These religious pirates commanded by a Count Baldwin of Flanders, assembled at Venice with a view of getting shipped to Palestine, but there went into a little side fight for the Venetians, captured a city in Dalmatia called Zara, and then went and beseiged Constantinople to restore the Emperor whose brother had driven him from his throne. They restored Isaac Angelus to his throne, but when the French pirates demanded the reward promised, a mob rose and killed the Emperor and his son. Then the Frenchmen stormed the city, plundered churches and houses, stole everything they could find, and committed the customary atrocities of such occasions. They then put a Roman Empire in place of the Greek, and made their head pirate Count Baldwin Emperor. That was in 1204: he lived two years and under three other Emperors the Latin dynasty lasted till 1261, when the Greeks came into power again. So the Fourth Crusade was only a piratical foray under that name. Afterward there were several bands of Crusaders went to Palestine and made a fight when they saw a chance of plunder.

One wretched fanatic raised bands of children to go to the Holy Sepulcher; report says 20,000 of them went, but none came back; they perished of hunger and disease, or were picked up and sold as slaves.

THE FIFTH CRUSADE

Was started in 1228 by Frederic II. of Germany, an Emperor excommunicated by Pope Gregory IX. His expedition reached Palestine when a civil war was in progress there. Fred made a pretty successful cruise altho he was under the curse of the church. He had for some years about the best success of any of them; made a treaty with the enemy by which Jerusalem and the greater part of Palestine was surrendered to the Christians and he was crowned King at Jerusalem. But the Pope in place of following up this success and securing the conquest and fortifying the city and rendering it safe for all time, acted the fool, forbade any Christian knight to join the crusade until Fred should buy off the curse he had put on him; he excommunicated the Holy City and all its holy things altho Fred had done just what the Pope wanted the people to do; and the Emperor, abandoned by his timorous friends and much discouraged returned to Germany.

We see men just like that Pope to-day; if a good work is being done by some person or persons whom they do not like, or in some mode they did not invent, or without bowing to them as popes and kings, they will do their best to destroy the work. Better they say, let the Turks and Pagans and rummies run this community to ruin and death than to have a temperance society or lodge succeed in doing good, unless it accepts our ideas and our leadership, or if Mr. Jones or Mrs. Smith is going to belong to it.

THE SIXTH CRUSADE.

In 1243 about 15 years after the beginning of the fifth crusade so pitifully ended, a marauding tribe of Tartars invaded Palestine. They were called Korasmins and were barbarously cruel like most other people of their day. They took Jerusalem, butchered its inhabitants, destroyed the Holy Sepulcher and did all manner of outrages and mischiefs. They slautered the Christians in a desperate battle at Gaza, but afterward the Turks and Christians or more properly the cross wearing men united and defeated and drove out the Tartars.

These occurrences aroused the King of France Louis IX., commonly called Saint Louis, for even a King might make a successful skirmish for saintship in those days. In 1250 he went by sea to Egypt with a powerful fleet. He captured one city and then the piratical saint had bad luck; his fleet was destroyed and he was captured and jailed and it cost ever so much money to get him out. They liked so much to have a fellow in jail there, that they sold him his liberty very dearly. And thus ended the sixth farce of the series. That was in the time of Pope Innocent IV.

SEVENTH CRUSADE.

In 1270 Saint Louis headed another expedition of cross wearing men who set out on an infidel killing holiday. He had the usual luck of that type of saints; a storm shook up his fleet and he concluded to glorify his faith by attacking the Moors of Africa. He landed and besieged the city of Tunis, but there was another enemy not anticipated by his saintship. A plague took off St Louis and the larger half of his followers. The rest made peace with the Moors and returned home.

The prince who became king Edward I. of England was engaged in this last crusade; reached Palestine, had some terrible combats with the Saracens; was wounded by a fellow who tried to assassinate him. The dagger was thot to be poisoned and his wife risked her life by sucking the poison from the wound. But his wars in the Holy Land amounted to nothing like the rest. In 1291 the Turks attacked and captured Acre with an immense army and the people who had come to christianize the country, gave it up and left the Holy Land, after making it for nearly 200 years a scene of frequent and ruthless slauter.

These fanatical crusades certainly gave an impetus to travel and to commerce and stimulated somewhat the cause of education. The crusaders in the east came in contact with people of higher education and refinement than themselves and those who escaped with their lives, returned somewhat improved with what they had seen and learned. Some cities, Venice, Genoa, Livorno and others grew into importance. And to some extent the idea of liberty was engendered among the serfs who were the rank and file of the crusaders.

But the spirit of using the sword in the church was enkindled and the popes and the kings and the counts and the knights soon began to crusade among the Christians of Europe who did not subscribe to the creed which the popes and the monks wrote out in Latin for them to believe; many thousands of innocent, truthful, honest, Godfearing Christians with their wives and children were cruelly butchered as a pastime by tyrants and crazy bigots who believed they did God a special favor and honor, when they martyred an innocent woman or child or burned an aged servant of God and lover of his fellow man.

A good woman in California who loves the children of the State and works to have them grow up clean, honest, sober, brave, manly, joyous, happy men and women, complained to a friend recently of the persecuting and fault finding spirit which ridiculed and belittled her labors; and that persecution coming from people who professed to be servants and followers of the most high God.

In reply she was reminded that for doing just these things Saint Paul was whipped and imprisoned and cursed and stoned by the same class of people and he called those things light afflictions. And for telling the truth and believing the truth, hundreds of thousands of people have been tortured, hanged, buried alive, drowned, burned, by people who called on the name of God and held aloft the cross as their authority to murder. There has been a wonderful improvement in martyrdom in later times. If it was a ligh affliction once to be whipped and stoned, we can stand it now to be ridiculed by fools and to be lied about by the malicious. To be hated and despised by good people, by God's people, would be a serious affliction and calamity; but that the advocates of temperance do not have to suffer. We shall have other crusades next week.

FOR THE SMART BOYS.

It is a good thing to give the boys examples of success and failure and point out to them the virtues which it is their interest to copy and also the errors and vices they should determinedly avoid.

Gen. Wm. H. Wright of Penn. was a few years ago a brilliant engineer, a brave soldier and a man of pleasant social qualities. In 1848 he was employed as engineer of the Pa. Railroad Company and was one of the pioneers of mountain railroading on the Alleghenies. In 1854 he was engaged for several years work surveying on the Isthmus for a railroad route.

In the war of the rebellion he was chief of the engineering corps of the army of the Potomac, and held the rank of Brigadier General. Was a friend of Gen. Sherman. He was with Sherman in his march to the sea, had an important command and acquired fame as a gallant dashing officer. After the war he was engaged in planning and constructing bridges and various public works.

He went with the De Lesseps party to Panama and when they returned to New York, Gen. Wright was announced to make the principal address at a banquet given in honor of the Panama Canal Scheme.

So far Gen. Wright showed what a man of industry and energy and perseverance could do in rising to a position of eminence and usefulness in this country of great privileges and great opportunities. He thus far was a grand sample of an active, intelligent American boy developed into a mature man of eminence and of great future promise.

So far he was a model of success for the American boy of to-day to emulate; but no farther; there was one habit he had, which has not yet been alluded to, which no boy or man can afford to follow. At the banquet when Gen. Wright was expected to make his speech; he was not present; a messenger sent for him reported that he was helplessly drunk. Since then the unfortunate habit he had nourished, has dragged him rapidly down till he became that most loathsome and pitiable object, a common drunkard.

Quite recently he was arrested for lying drunk on the pavement; sentenced to 24 hours in the jail of Moyamensing, Pa. and before that time was up he was found dead in his cell. Such a man as he was, must have been a fine, openhearted, generous, joyous and loveable boy; crossgrained, illnatured, dishonest, lazy boys never rise as he did. It is the bright looking, cheerful, goodnatured, energetic, pleasant mannered, generous, hearty boys that have good opportunities, for whom the rum traps and cigaret traps are set, and who get caut in them.

Dont you think, boys, there have been enough young men like Gen. Wright ensnared in this country and sent to rnin? The beer shop and the whisky bar and the tobacco stand have no purpose in the world except to make money; and the only way that money can be made in their business is to convert the best looking and smartest and finest boys in the world into tramps, paupers, criminals, jailbirds, suicides etc; and to ruin the homes and blight the lives of our purest and best and loveliest girls, to blast and curse and destroy everything that is good and pleasant and happy in this world. They may say they dont want to do this; but they do and they cant help it; the business can't be run any other way. If such a thing were possible as to have the saloons and beer dives run by the ministers of the Gospel and the best women of the W. C. T. U. and the most virtuous of the Good Templars, the liquor and tobacco sold by them would produce just the same effects; all bad; all filthy; all blight; shame; sin, misery, woe, death; the hopeless death of the drinker. To perpetuate the system which murders people like Col. Wright and to tempt some or all of the boys in your class to go to the same wretched ruin and suffer the same miserable end, the great conspiracy is organized which lyingly calls itself the Leag of Freedom; the only freedom they believe in is freedom to debauch and destroy and kill as many of the boys and girls as they can snare and we are trying to destroy their snares and break up their boy-traps.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

A Word to the Boys of the Band of Hope.—What kind of men do you want to be? There are two paths before you. One may be fair enough to look upon now, but the end is misery, wretchedness, and eternal death. The other one begins with self denial, and self control, but ends with the rewards of honor, influence, happiness and peace. It is spring time with you now, and in the autumn of your manhood, you will gather the harvest, good or bad, according to the seed sown to-day. When you hear people laugh about "sowing wild oats," remember, that reaping wild oats is no laughing matter; "and whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Character is early formed. If you control your appetites and passions, if you are faithful to your pledge, and obey the teachings of our Band of Hope, you will grow up to be men of integrity and honor. You may have riches, but you surely will have a clear conscience, and your own respect.

If, on the other hand, you choose to sow wild oats, to walk in the road that leads to drunkenness, you can look forward to the future, feeling sure that no honors await you, that no lands or home will be yours, and that in all probability, you will drag out a disgraceful, wretched manhood, and at last fill a drunkards grave, "unwept, unhonored and unsung." Now is the time to choose. My dear boys, will you not this day choose the right and firmly resolve, never to leave the pledge which you have taken? And beside this, will you not begin anew to work for this cause? There are youths on every hand who may be saved from a ruined manhood, and remember, "you have a work that no other can do."

The Reason Why Boys Smoke.—A gentleman returning from Alameda one day, entered the smoking car, cigar in hand, to enjoy the luxury (?) of a smoke. On second thot I will answer the implied question myself, smoking at the expense of one's money, health and example, is certainly a luxury, and a questionable one too. On looking round the smoking car, our friend discovered quite a company of boys from ten to fourteen years of age, all smoking. Five or six of them were evidently deathly sick, but were puffing away, with a persistency worthy of a better object. The scene was repulsive, the evident nausea, the pale listless countenance and the frequent ejection of saliva so disgusted our friend, that he turned away asking himself as he went "Why will boys be such fools, as to smoke?" The faithful monitor within, answered at once, "Because I set them the example." I am happy to add, as the proper conclusion to this incident, that this gentleman has donned the badge of the Band of Hope "which it takes a man to wear."

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.—In obtaining the 50 subscribers from Yolo Co. last week very valuable assistance was rendered by Sister Davidson and Bro. Loomis of Woodland, Bro. Sims of Winters, and Bro. Hoag of Davisville. Yolo Templars can congratulate themselves on possessing many earnest and talented workers. The few days spent among them were pleasant and will long be remembered.

Subscriptions for the Rescue were obtained from many leading citizens, and from every Co. officer. What Co. can show an equal record?

HOW TO CONDUCT A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

I have been requested by one of your own California workers to state in one article in the Rescue how a Temperance school can be conducted in all its parts. The writer says "I long to do something efficient for the children" and so much in the same line that I am led to infer that if the plan is clearly and successfully stated, he and perhaps others will be willing to put it in practice in their own localities. A good Superintendent is as essential to the success of a Temperance school as of a Sunday school, and I think it well worthy of the ambition of any man or woman to develop a grand model Temperance school with all its parts working as effectively as any Sunday school.

In taking the Sunday school for our general model we gain two important points, we have a well tried model and it is one that needs little explanation; parents, teachers and children falling in with it readily because they are familiar with it. It is capable of a great variety of modifications from that of the small settlement where there are but few adults or children to take part, to the city field where it may develop all the branches from primary class through the intermediate grades to young people and adult classes and even the reformed men's Bible class. Our Superintendent controls and directs the whole, conducting all the general exercises, and if he has time also explaining the lesson from the desk or he may delegate the latter to some one else as is also sometimes done in Sunday school.

The Superintendent is aided by a Secretary keeping quiet account of attendance, a chorister to play and perhaps also to lead the singing, a librarian to take charge of all books, cards, charts, etc., and to distribute thru the teachers those which are destined for the children, a janitor to take charge of the room and teachers to take charge of the classes, the primary and advanced classes having separate rooms when practicable. The teachers have small classes, (from 4 to 8) they look after their attendance, keep order, and hear their lessons in the catechisms and keep them reviewed, so that when they are thru the catechism they can recite the whole of it. A good plan is to offer graduation and promotion (and perhaps a book besides) for this perfect recitation of the entire book. The teacher is not expected to explain the lesson, this is done from the desk, and all questions of this kind may be referred to the Superintendent. This makes the time devoted to the classes short—10 to 15 minutes—and makes it easier to get teachers, quite young persons being available.

The text books used are the "Catechism on Alcohol" for the main school and the "Juvenile Temperance Manual" to aid the Superintendent in explaining and making it interesting (with other books, charts, etc., "Alcohol and Hygiene" for the next higher class, Richardson's "Lesson Book," for adults, "Temperance Lesson Leaves," for the "Bible classes" while the primary class can be taught from the ladder tickets, children's illustrated tracts etc. This plan is given with full details in a five cent pamphlet called "The Temperance school." It was first practically worked out by the author of the "Juvenile Temperance Manual" some years since and large numbers have since been successful in the same line. Several cases are given in the appendix to "The Temperance School."

This little manual ot to be in the hands of every one interested in temperance teaching of children; they will be almost sure to find some helpful hints in it even if they do not carry out the plan in full. I will send it to any one asking for it by postal or I will send a complete teacher's outfit including the Temperance school, Manual, Catechism and other requisites for 50 cents. I make this offer in order to forward more speedily the benevolent plans of any whose hearts are set on helping the children.

The suicide of poor Maltby at Woodland and many thousand more of suicides, murders and untimely deaths, not all that have happened the past 7 years in this State, but a great proportion of them, are directly chargeable to Judges McKinstry, Wallace and Niles who nullified the local option law in 1874, the best and most just and righteous and the most promotive of the public welfare that was ever enacted in this State. Perhaps their conduct in that act is a comfort to them.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may be able to accomplish it.

TOO RADICAL AGAIN.

Mr. Gladstone, Prime Minister of England, is a great scholar, writer, orator, thinker; the intelligent reading world are pretty much agreed that he is a great statesman and a great man in the advocacy of human rights. It is, perhaps, impossible for a great man to be great in every particular of his acts in life. With no lack of admiration for his great talents, industry and genius, and recognizing fully the good impression which his good deeds and words have made upon the world, it is suggested that he has made at least three or four mistakes in his life. 1st, He helped or instituted the grocer's spirit licence system, a fruitful source of drunkenness among women and families. 2nd, He said publicly, beer was the best drink in the world. 3d, He desired only last year to licence every railway passenger car in England for $25 a year to keep a bar or sell drinks to passengers. 4th, He has delayed nearly two years to give the people a local option law, after the Parliament has declared the people entitled to it.

The object of mentioning these matters is not at all to find fault with, or pick flaws in Mr. Gladstone, but solely to establish the fact that he is not an immoderately rabid or fanatical advocate of temperance, not a holder of extreme views in its favor, and yet he has made the public declaration that "the national evils resulting from the liquor traffic in England equal in magnitude the combined results of WAR, PESTILENCE AND FAMINE.

It is therefore submitted to our anti-radical tender footed friends that the Rescue has never succeeded yet in hammering out a more radical assertion than that; perhaps it never went quite so far, tho it has said more than once, that the grogshop in the United States commits more slaughter, causes more wounds, more sorrow, more misery, more suffering, makes more widows and orphans and cripples, and costs the people more loss and damage in money and property every year than the war of the rebellion did in any year of its existence. And that has been clearly proved and is never disputed.

Now if there was either a famine or an Indian war, or a pestilence, confined to Oregon and Washington Territory which had continued there two years, and was creating the same loss of life, health, and property, and causing the same amount of sorrow and misery that is being caused there right along by the drunkard and pauper factories—We should have public meetings all over California and the Eastern States, subscription lists, collections, fairs, shows, etc., for the sufferers; the churches would be asked to help, the minister or church which would refuse to notice, and preach and pray to help to succor the distressed or to arrest the evil, would be loudly accused of brutality or worse.

A religious or secular paper that should say "let them alone, let them die, it don't hurt us," would be deservedly ostracised and cursed by good men and good women. But when a curse is right here in our homes, at our own doors, all around us, that is committing as much murder, crime, robbery, and causing as much pauperism, starvation, and utter misery as a war, and the cholera, and a famine all combined; is doing it all over California and Oregon, and in every State except Kansas and Maine, and its only object in doing all this evil to destroy and pauperize and enslave and kill off our people, is merely to enrich a few men who would rather poison and rob and kill their fellow men than work like the rest of us—and when the Rescue tells the truth about this murder and robbery, and calls it by its own name, and asks people to help to stop the Shaeffer Leag of Fiendom from poisoning the promising boys and betraying the innocent girls that are now the pride and hope and treasure of this country,—Oh, the Rescue is too radical to be true or to be depended on.

Let those who would continue this "worse than war, pestilence and famine"—who are hurt that the truth should be spoken—and who want the slanter of souls and bodies to go on, prove up their case and tell us why they would like to have the truth suppressed. Show us how and why Mr. Gladstone, not an abstainer, not a temperance man, not a friend to restricting the traffic which yields a revenue and costs a five-fold loss to the country—why he is so much more radical than the Rescue has ever been.

THE FUTURE OF SAN FRANCISCO.

The Chronicle notices a lecture of last Sunday evening, by Rev. Mr. Hemphill, on the future of the city, and concluding with the opinion that the present generation will not build better than the one that is passing away. The young men were pronounced (so the C. says) "an ungodly lot; of the 42 graduates of the Theological Seminary, not one was a San Francisco boy; they dont study, but spend their time in dance cellars, saloons and theaters." But they are recommended to be honest, intelligent, energetic and above all, religious, etc., altho the outlook is not hopeful for them.

If one looks in upon the public schools, and more especially upon the night schools, he will form a very high opinion of the boys and girls of San Francisco; of their capacity, energy and good promise. But if one looks at the doors of the beer dives, the Sunday theaters, the gambling hells, the dance cellars, the billiard and pool dens, and sees the class of boys that congregate there, he will have a very hopeless opinion of the San Francisco boy and the future of this city.

When these subjects are discussed, it would seem proper to consider a little the cause and effect which involves this condition, for no one believes such things are due to climate or accident or bad ventilation or deficient sewerage.

Those who remember San Francisco in 1857 and a few years after when the churches were well filled with attentive, interested audiences, and the Sunday had a comparatively decent observance, must be aware that there has been a tremendous degeneration and demoralization ever since and the downward progress was never more active than to-day.

The reason is perfectly simple and obtrusively apparent. We have in this city more than 4,000 schools of vice, dens of crime and shame, open night and day and Sunday. The boys and girls would be the best in the world if they had the best chances. There is nothing in them or about themselves to make them worse than those of other places; and it is immensely to their credit that they are not all irrevocably and utterly bad without exception; for the fathers and supervisors and voters of this city have not neglected or omitted or forgotten to employ the most complete and perfect machinery that could be invented to demoralize and debanch and ruin the rising generation by wholesale.

If every boy is not a smoker and a gambler and a drunkard, it is simply because the city government and the voters of every class in and out of the churches failed in the most strenuous efforts to make him so. A boy cannot anywhere in this city get out of sight of a snare set for him and he is seldom out of sight of six or ten of them—every one of them reaching out an invitation, an inducement, a temptation to every boy to become a bad citizen, to take his first and following steps in vice and nastiness and crime.

And the churches and pulpits and citizens and temperance people are doing almost absolutely nothing to save the rising generation from being infinitely worse than the passing one. If we had ten thousand churches and ten thousand revivalists and ten thousand Sunday-schools all in full blast for ten thousand years, they would not at all noticeably arrest the growing and rapidly accelerating demoralization which has been unresisted for a quarter of a century—unless they exterminate the grogshop and the tobacco gehenna; at least the former.

There is not one solitary use for the grogshop and beer-dive and dance cellar and winery—except to turn good boys into idlers, thieves, criminals, and paupers, and to betray good, virtuous girls into the same vices and worse. A million tons a day of gospel and revival and prayer will never be worth a puff of smoke as long as it sits down contentedly alongside of the undisturbed grogshop. And if the pulpit is never going to make war against this kingdom of Satan, it may just as well adjourn in favor of the Sunday cock-fight now as ten years hence. It would seem to be worth an effort to save this city from the perdition predicted for it by Mr. H.

THE CHINESE BILL.

The President has signed the Bill and if the only material difference between it and the former one is found in the ten year clause, the veto has been of little account. There need never be any fear of a repeal of this act of exclusion.

The point of greatest importance gained in this law is the establishment of the principle that we have a right to exclude dangerous immigration, and restrict the influx of strangers who have no ownership or interest in the country. And there is no danger whatever of this principle being abandoned, when thotful people have taken time to consider it. It is just as much the interest of every foreigner who came here last year to set metes and bounds to the filling up of this country with bad material as it is of the people whose possession dates from the landing at Plymouth. Of course the rumselling and brewing interests are exceptions to this. It is their wish to keep out good settlers and invite the worst that can be raked up in the gutters of the world.

There have been so many Chinese rushed into the State in anticipation of this bill, that it is not at all likely any visible results will appear for years. It seems quite probable that there will be many more Chinese here on the 6th August than would have come in a year or two years had no such bill been proposed.

We need not expect a single worthy settler more to come here in consequence of this Chinese exclusion. The obstacle to worthy immigration has not been at all disturbed. As long as the rumseller and brewer can follow up the white laborer wherever he gets a days work, and strip him of his wages in the mill or harvest field or lumber woods or on the wharf or ship or steamboat or in the mines and on the railroad, so long the Chinamen will get the work that calls for sober steady hands.

Not one employer in 20 hires a Chinaman because of his cheapness, it is because, the brewer and saloon keeper and corner beer den wont let his white laborer work— they poison him and make him only half able, only half willing and not half civil to do the work required. A good man came here lately from a distant county to get 100 Chinamen—why can't you take white men? he was asked in the Rescue office—he replied, I could do nothing with them there, I cant manage the few I have where we are surrounded by mantraps, and if I had 100 more men there would be 10 more grogshops to utterly destroy my enterprise and make my life insecure.

There never has been any reason for fifteen years past why we should have over 2000 or 3000 Chinese on this coast, but the beer shop and wine interest; a crew of 2 to 100 sober, reliable white men could never be displaced by Chinamen at half the wages; but the grogshop won't let white men be sober and steady—and where sober, steady Chinese can be had, the white man that is not steady and often the one that is, must be idle or leave the State. Five sober men have often to suffer for one drunkard. The repeal of the Sunday law if effected, would do more to retard the immigration of wholesome settlers into Caliiornia than a weekly line of steam coolie ships arriving in San Francisco—and while the brewery and gin mill and dance cellar are allowed to rule our cities and enslave our labor, to take possession of every new mining camp, and strangle to death every enterprise that men embark in anywhere on the Pacific coast, it is a fraud and a swindle to invite white immigration or white labor or any settler but those who have money enough to buy a homestead in a southern temperance colony

The poor farmer or the white laborer should be warned to keep away until the grogshop nuisance is abolished, the only drawback this best of States ever had to a prosperity better than any ever possible in any other country.

The only enemy that white labor has in this State that white labor could not wipe out in a few years, is the beer and whisky enemy. If wages were $6 a day and work plenty, the thieves who rob the workers would take good care that the workers profited nothing by it. The great majority of the workers who have always had the highest wages in this State are the very poorest—stevedores and printers especially; and the exceptions who did not go to the grogshop became independent in a few years, as all could have done but for that great enemy of all men.

CITY LICENSES.

It is reported that a committee of the Board of Supervisors propose to make it a misdemeanor to use opium except for medicinal purposes, and at the same time to license its sale for a $1 fee. It is also proposed to license dance houses and cellars for $25 a quarter, in place of $50 as heretofore charged. And the reason given is to increase the city revenue; by reducing the license one-half, they hope a larger number of the cellars will pay the fee. This of course no one believes, unless the Supervisors mean that the number of thief dens now existing will be more than doubled.

Any proposition to increase the number of these dens of corruption and pollution and downright robbery, these most fruitful schools of vice and crime—these open feeders of the prisons and open doors to perdition—has no parallel in wickedness. The existence for a day of one such horrible affront to common decency is a shame, branded deep and broad upon the name of the city.

Strangers have visited this city and their report has made them hosts of enemies here, who charged them with wilful falsehood and slander, but not one of them ever published of San Francisco any such disgraceful charge as that of a dirty, villainous den of vice and drunkenness and robbery being licensed by the Supervisors, at $25 or $50 or $1,000 a quarter, and with the consent of the citizens and Christians and ministers of the city, not one of them ever protesting against the chartering about 4,000 similar institutions.

It is vile enough, shameful, disgraceful enough to license these pest houses at all, but a proposition seriously made to increase the number of such criminal resorts with the hope of increasing the city revenues ot to cover its authors with infamy. To authorize such man traps is to be equally guilty and equally vile with the perpetrators of all the murders and robberies and other unnatural crimes that are committed under the egis of that satanic license.

INDIANS.

It is consoling to humane people to hear of the extermination of the Apaches. It would have been more pleasant to know the Government had taken the children of the tribes and educated them at a trifling cost and made them intelligent citizens; but as that is not to be done, how much more merciful it is to put a bullet thru the boys and girls and women of the Indians than it is to employ the whole army of the U. S. in protecting a gang of Post Traders all over the Indian Territories to sell whisky to the Indians, to debauch them and their women, to rob them of their government supplies, to get up massacres of soldiers, massacres of white settlers and massacres of Indians, all the fruit of the Post Traders selling whisky to Indians and whisky to soldiers.

There has never been a case of Indian trouble for 30 years probably for 100 years, that did not grow out of whisky and white outrages directly or indirectly. The Canadians never have had any trouble with Indians; the Mormons never had any. And now the grogshop causes more murders in a month in Arizona by means of direct whisky poisoning or by the knife or pistol of the white desperados of the Leag of Fiendom than the Indians perpetrate in a year. It is a wonder no one proposes to exterminate the rumsellers who butcher all the way from 50,000 to 100,000 American men, women and infants every year, and have no pity for young or old, male or female.

SUNDAY MORNING

Of this week was signalized in San Francisco with three stabbing affrays. Two brothers named Troy, living in the kindest relations, after getting their weeks pay on Saturday evening, as printers in the employ of Bancroft & Co., called at a number of Leag of fiendom thief dens, where they had a great many drinks and a good time. On the way home, about 2 A. M., they fought with small pocket knives; one was killed, the other badly cut. The murdered man left a wife and family; the slayer is the sole support of an aged mother and young sister; could not remember what they quarreled about; but both kept a dramshop recently, and failed in business after 6 weeks; thinks that might have been the matter in dispute. A blacksmith was also dangerously if not fatally stabbed by a custom house employe, and a printer badly cut in the neck by a restaurant waiter, about a woman who peddles beer and dances in a city licensed thief factory.

It is somewhat noticeable that three of the parties concerned in these outrages were printers, one killed, one wounded and one a fratricide. And no man who is a habitue of the grogshop at 2 A. M., or any other hour should be an employe of the Custom House. There are plenty of good, sober men who would be glad to honestly and worthily fill such occupations.

LODI GRANGE.

"Resolved, That we look with positive disfavor, and absolute abhorrence, upon every effort, whether by league or otherwise, to defeat the execution of the will of the people, as expressed in the laws upon the statute books of the State, and affirmed by the highest judicial authority.

Resolved, That we will discourage such attempts that defy and show resistance to the law of the land, by refusing to do business with any man or combination of men, who enter into a conspiracy to retard, or otherwise prevent the operation of laws, made for the purpose of suppressing intemperance and protecting the laborer from the exactions of labor on the day called the Sabbath."

Next thing in order would be a resolution on the part of the Masons, disowning a grand lecturer of that honorable Order who is leader of a band of conspirators against the government of the State and the peace and welfare of the people.

GOOD MEN TO DEFEAT.

Judges Ross and Sharpstein are according to the Chronicle candidates for re-election as judges of the Supreme Court. The Hebrew Observer of a recent date strongly urges their re-election on the ground of their enmity to American institutions as evidenced in their strong grounds against the Sunday law. That is pretty good reason why every honest respectable citizen who does not desire to see this country stripped of every shred of the American institutions to which it owes all it has that is worth having—should use the most strenuous efforts to defeat them. With such men in that sacred office we can hope for no blessing of good fortune to come to the State. And all good people will agree that the advice of the Hebrew Observer to make a hatred of the American Sabbath, a first and only qualification of a Supreme Judge is the very best counsel not to take.

SHERMAN AND CLAY.

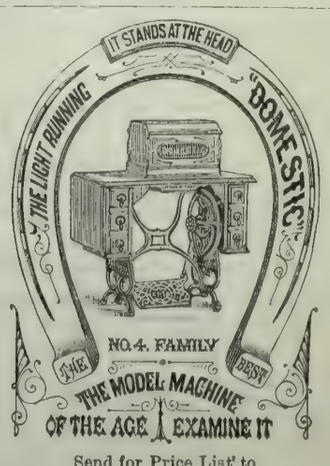
A Lamentable Failure. A run was made last week on the house of Sherman and Clay, corner of Kearney and Sutter streets. It seems a conspiracy had been formed by some inconsiderate readers of the Rescue to burst the house out by buying up all their stock of organs and pianos. They created something of a panic, but the stock was too extensive and varied to get away with it all, and they are selling away this week just as good naturedly as if they had not been subjected to a fright. There are about fifty lodges who want organs this summer, and they can all get supplied there with first class instruments.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the Rescue will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year.

Fairfild Lodge at Lemoore, Tulare Co., feels a a little discouraged, and to help keep up its spirits, it sends a subscription for 20 copies of the Rescue, which is the most level-headed proposition that ever came from a sickly Lodge. It looks like a very strong symptom of early recovery.

BAD EDUCATORS.



In a speech not many months ago in Scotland, Sir Wilfred Lawson said:—

"Do not run away with the idea that I am a disbeliever in education. Nobody believes in it more firmly than I do. I believe in it fanatically, and that is the reason why I am here to-night. It is because I believe that the 150,000 licensed sellers of drink educate the people to drunkenness that I am here to-night to attack the system. Mr. Bright and his schools are all very well but dont you know that people learn what is bad twice as quick as they learn what is good. And these 150,000 licensed drink sellers are paid by results—they are paid a premium on every glass of drink that they can persuade their fellow-men to consume, and that is why they are so earnest and diligent in business, that is the reason why the trade hitherto has been so active—they are paid by results; while we poor people are going rampaging about the country preaching on intemperance and get no pay at all, and our reform only goes on by fits and starts. I think I can tell you why the country is so badly off in this matter, because there are three times as many people licensed as there were half a century ago, and yet education is going on three times as quick as this, and drunkenness has not a bit diminished—I am afraid, rather increased. As I have told you men learn evil quicker than they learn good, and my opinion is that these 150,000 licensed publicans are beating the schoolmasters and ministers out of the field. Mr. Bright talks in his speech about 'prisons and jails darkening the land.' So they do; but why are they there? The prisons and jails are nothing more than monuments of the energy of the publicans, and they are monuments of your disgrace, because you have hitherto maintained or allowed the laws by which they are licensed to do this great evil. You may say that I am undervaluing the work of the ministry. That is not the case at all. I believe in the power of truth—I must use the proper means for bringing the truth before the minds of the people. There is the parable of the sower. He sowed good seed but when that seed fell where there were thorns, the thorns sprung up and choked it, and there was no crop; and you may depend upon it the most pious and most eloquent minister may preach for a long time in a district infested with whisky shops and public houses before he has anything like the crop which he ought to have by sowing the truth."

That speech is admirably suited to the latitude and climate of California.

If any one supposes that In Memoriam resolutions are declined to save tronble or to disoblige, it is a signal mistake. The motive is to do things more decently and in better order, to preserve the dignity and decorum of the I. O. G. T., and to pay a proper and kindly respect to the memory of our departed members. The old mode has been criticised and ridiculed a hundred times, and the only reason it was so long retained was a fear of giving offence to the first parties that sent a set of resolutions. We don't want to hear of a death among us for a long time, but if one occurs let a committee prepare a sensible and proper memorial notice that is really a testimonial of respect for the departed, and let it be adopted or approved by the Lodge, inserted in the minutes and published in the Rescue.

Milnes Bros., say "Our ad in Rescue gives us constant employment, and our daily mail would decrease considerably if we ceased advertizing." They also enclose samples of their cards which are executed in most elegant style and bid defiance to the most fastidious critic to discover anything to find fault with.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.;-Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

In Memoriam.—Notices have been given at various times that In Memoriam resolutions will not be published in the Rescue, but still they continue to be sent regularly, without date or place of death, with no intimation whether the age was 13 or 81, and constructed in language and pattern that have been worn out a thousand times and are obsolete. The organ of the order should register the date and place of death, the name, age, sex, standing, record and qualities of every member that is called home from our circle. And the memorial notice should be in decorous terms and shape, and should be respectful to the memory of the deceased, satisfactory to the bereaved and creditable to the Order. It is a very simple affair to write an appropriate memorial notice, but it is impossible to frame one in this office from the material presented in the resolutions that generally come to hand. Therefore, be it understood, memorial notices will be readily inserted, but resolutions that contain no particulars from which a respectful notice can be framed, will in the future receive no attention. Twice during the past year the name of the deceased was omitted in the resolutions sent for publication beside many other irregularities and it is time this matter should receive decorous attention.

OREGON.

Office of Grand Secretary, I. O. G. T., Eugene City, Or., April 24, 1882.

TO SUBORDINATE LODGES.

The G. L. of Oregon will meet at The Dalles on Tuesday, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

O. & C. R.R.Co.will sell round trip tickets to Delegates on presenting their credentials at their home stations, at a reduction of 40 per cent.. good from June 17th to 24 inclusive.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. will return delegates who paid full fare going at a reduction of 80 per cent on presenting my certificate at "The Dalles" ticket office.

Remember to purchase tickets for round trip at home for Portland, at all O. & C. R. R. Stations. Ask for return tickets for Grand Lodge, and start Saturday, the 17th to be on time.

Representatives to G.L. must be chosen at the first regular meeting in May, and the basis of representation is one for the Charter, and one for every 40 members or fraction thereof when it exceeds twenty, based on the returns for quarter just ending, and it is hoped that each lodge in the jurisdiction will be represented, as we are assured the citizens of The Dalles will give us a warm welcome and aid us to make this session one of the most pleasant in our annals.

The R. W. G. T. has designated the first week in May as "Banner Week," and requests that every Lodge on the continent of America make a special effort during this week, in Sunday-schools, day-schools, lodge rooms and personal canvassing, to increase the circulation of the "Youth's Temperance Banner," published by National Temperance Society, at 58 Reade St., New York City.

Returns.—Do not fail to send in the returns early in the term, in fact, as soon as your officers are installed, that I may have time to make out my yearly report in due time for Grand Lodge session.

Anticipating a hearty compliance in the matter of returns, and congratulating you all on the continued prosperity of the Order in our own State, I am faithfully and fraternally yours, J. E. Houston, G. Sec'y.

No Lodge dues, rents. officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. Simmons, or to Rescue Office.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

Lecturers' Reports.

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

MRS. E. P. STEVENS.

The serial meetings in Sacramento of one week resulted in one hundred members for Good Templary. Col. Long did valiant service; his speech on "Prohibition" was one of the ablest I have heard. Each and every night the M. E. church was filled. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction was present; it is to be hoped that he will become a Good Templar. Many prominent citizens gave their names for the Order. The last meeting on Sunday afternoon was largely attended. Rev. I. E. Dwinelle joined the Order, and made supplications for our prosperity. The clergy co-operated in the meetings, and a general spirit of good will prevailed. With a little labor 100 subscribers could be obtained for the RESCUE. The cordial reception received from Bro. and Sister Katzenstein in their beautiful home was really refreshing to one who has much indifference and opposition with which to contend. A real temperance home is that of our R. W. G. T. The three bright, promising boys speak well for that Home Protection which has so safely sheltered them—the pure, loving, young mother who has that rare gift of making home attractive and her guests happy, is a strong argument in favor of our Order as a temperance educator, Bro. K. and his wife being both children of the Order. No league of fiendom can present a parallel to this. God grant that the day is not over distant when just such American homes of peace and soberness may fill our fair State. Heaven save us from the vice of Continental Europe with its lager beer gardens to supplant the American home. If it be true that in Continental Europe men and women are content to live, work, eat, sleep in one room, and spend the rest of their time in beer gardens, wine rooms and ale houses, in the name of all that is pure and lovely in home, let us as Americans demand Home Protection.

There is still a wide-spread disposition to hide this question in a corner; there are trimmers in politics and press, many Christians who possess a degree of interest in the Sunday closing, believe that this subject is too secular for treatment on Sunday, so that the pulpits undervalue the cause. The Christian who would exclude this subject from Sunday school or church, is totally disqualified for a teacher or a leader of men; "these are blind leaders of the blind." The cry of the conservative when legislative action is proposed, "Oh, you are in advance of public opinion; no use having a law that public opinion will not support." Let temperance Christian people every where make public opinion on this question as it has been made on other subjects. Public sentiment ought to sustain law and order, integrity and Christian institutions. The religion that approves of respectable saloons and provides the moderate drinker with wine is not the true religion of the Savior of men.

This law-defying Sabbath-breaking traffic has banded itself into a powerful and dangerous element in politics; it has become the curse of our State. And the church which sees her relation to bribery and fraud in the light of the eighth commandment must see her duty in the light of charity which covers all the commandments in the second table of the law. Let all the people be alive to this matter and we shall see the Sunday law thoroly enforced. Party affections must be cast aside. Let the influence of the church be against excusing criminals. Awaken the people, impress them with the majesty and authority of law. The way to despotism is thru anarchy. Law is our only safety, we are drifting towards the breakers. The best thing the people can have as an assurance for the future, is a solid conviction of the authority of law. The individual must have no alternative but to obey the law or suffer the penalty. Implant this sentiment for the Sunday law in the hearts of the people and then the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

Galt, April 26, 1882.

H. R. HUGHES.

I spent two days at Collegeville, eight miles from Stockton; secured 22 names for a lodge, but the School Trustees, in accordance with some old rule, could not let a lodge hold meetings there. So we appointed a committee to canvass the community for signers to a petition to do away with the old rule and open the building for moral and reformatory purposes. If this is done, it will give us a good working lodge.

I spent two days at French Camp, got 30 names, and organized Valley Rose Lodge; night of meeting, Saturday.

Nothing for us at New Hope at present. From there to Amador county, at Mountain Springs—I found that the officers of Amador D. L. had been making arrangements to organize a lodge, and had appointed a meeting for next Sunday.

Friday attended the Amador D. L. a very large and enthusiastic meeting, which will doubtless be reported by the Sec'y. The mass meeting in the evening was grand, stirring speeches, good songs, and a liberal collection for the Orphans' Home, which will be forwarded by Brother Johns. The people of Amador are alive, and are ready to carry the battle to the polls.

C. N. GOULDING.

Wednesday the 3d, visited Head Light Lodge, installed the officers and enjoyed the refreshments provided by the ladies. Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings lectured in Livermore in Palace Hall; large audiences and an awakened interest in the cause of temperance. With a population of about 1,200 Livermore can boast of 22 saloons. considerable interest is manifested regarding the election for trustees, which occurs on the 8th; it will be a straight out fight between whisky and cold water, with the chances in favor of cold water.

Sunday the 7th, came here (Lathrop) addressed a large audience at 3 P. M. and waited for brother Morse from Atlanta, as I had written him that I would lecture there in the evening. He did not put in an appearance and I remained here. Found the Lodge here (which was organized in December last by Sister Stevens) doing well; succeeded in obtaining six additional names for membership. The skies are brightening and our Cause advancing.

IN OTHER STATES.

INDIANA.—Bro. Shiel of the Monitor Journal writes "the big fight has commenced in this State and we are going to win." That is so and Iowa will also surely win this year. In 1884 there will be 4 more States and there is no reason why by 1890 we should not have the last altar of the great Antichrist driven from the entire Anglosaxon face of this continent.

MASSACHUSETTS.—The Prohibitory law was lost in the legislature by an even vote, the Speaker refusing to give the casting vote, thus virtually voting against it. The Congregationalist thinks it dont matter much as the majority was so small. If that paper has exercised any influence at all upon public opinion in its own State, and it surely must have done so, we must believe that in a division of the House it has after all these years influenced one vote for good or evil. If so, that journal must have prevented the passage of the prohibitory law, for it lacked but a feather weight of passing; the persistent fight of the Congt. against total abstinence and to prove that Christ was a wine-bibber and that alcohol is a food, etc., must have supplied at least a feather's weight if not a good deal more influence in favor of continuing the licensed reign of Anti-Christ.

OHIO has passed a rigorous Sunday Law.

NEW HAMPSHIRE has a good G. W.S., Miss Emma P. Whittier, a most earnest and faithful worker, and no doubt many others earnest and faithful but it dont seem to prosper in Good Templary. Six months ago it had 54 lodges and 2,993 members. Since then it has organized 4 lodges and lost 5; gained 712 and lost 703 members. The G. W. C. T. has visited nearly all the lodges meantime and given a large number of lectures. The vote on the change of regalia for a penny clothespin was against the improvement, which indicates good down east common sense. The Grand Lodge degree was conferred on 26 members of the Order and the session only occupied an afternoon and the time for closing service after a public meeting in the evening. They ask next session of R. W. G. L. to be held in their State. A loss of over 5 per cent a year in lodges or membership, either in Cal. or elsewhere, is due to bad management somewhere. It is to be feared the cheap john capita tax is what ails New Hampshire. No temperance society of any shape, size or form can ever carry on for any length of time a dignified reformatory program on the finances derived from a 5 or 10 or 15 cent quarterly capita tax; never did, never will, never ot to; one can starve out, go in debt, go backwards, burst like a bomb and do everything but go ahead. Another fact or two should be grouped with this; open water never runs up hill; water does run down hill; a bird not fitted with wings has never once been a success in flying. A reform without a treasury is only a superstition.

THE Anvil lately stated that not more than ten per cent of the members of Congress were temperance men and some of the ninety per cent are affronted. The Anvil says they can soon have the report amended by joining the temperance ranks in sufficient force to exceed the ten per cent. It is a healthy sign that whisky drinkers are affronted at the truth being stated as to their habits.

THE SALVATION ARMY in England are being mobbed by the British leag of freedom and their poor demented slaves and the municipal authorities in place of protecting them join with the persecutors in some localities and arrest them for disturbing the peace.

VALLEY FORD, Cal., May 1, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Politicians always cover up the liquor question and charge the poor condition of the working class to any thing but the right cause. They howl about the Chinese and capitalists, etc. These are evils, but there is another which demands more immediate action. The working man looks over his bad habits and expensive vices and blames most everything, but the right thing, as the cause of his poverty. One rum-besotted individual even went so far with his obstinacy and blindness as to charge the churches with this bad state of things.

It is refreshing to see better signs. In some of the Western and Eastern States an organization exists called the "Knights of Labor." Their objects are to prevent strikes, to educate the laborer, to secure legislation to protect the working man etc. It is an Order well spoken of.

The Toledo Blade can't be called a temperance paper, but note what it says of the Order in its issue of last week: "A very excellent thing connected with the organization is the fight it makes against whisky drinking. It considers that this is the great bane of the workingman, and no one is any way interested in the manufacture or sale of the poison can be admitted into the Order."

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark. Napa City; Dr. F. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!
GREAT OFFER FOR
Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH
GET GOOD AND DO GOOD
WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

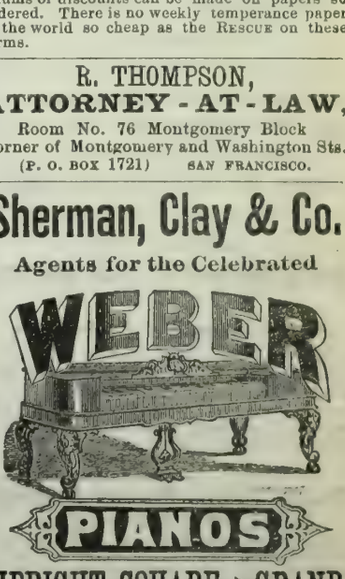
Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free---one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Auchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.
For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.
For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.



The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each cantains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

TEMPERANCE WORK.

HOW TO DO IT.

The Temperance Worker.—A new paper devoted exclusively to methods of temperance work. The great need of the day is practical information on how to get hold of temperance work. The "Temperance Worker" aims to supply this need—a four-page, twenty column paper, published by "THE REVOLUTION," one number each month; costs but 30c. a year. In clubs of five or more, each to separate addresses, 25c. per year; sold by the hundred at 1c. per copy. No. 1 tells all about juvenile temperance work and how to do it; No 2, the press; No. 3, general distribution of literature. No 1 is now ready; should be in the hands of all day-school and Sunday-school workers; send 3c. stamp for sample copy. Address, The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, 143 Madison St., Chicago.

Burneyville Lodge stared with 38 members April 8, has had 14 accessions up to last Saturday when it put in 7 more and received 11 propositions.

THE SCHETZEL AND SHAEFFER Leag in the city of New York send every day on an average 47 women and 78 men to the work house and about 14 a day to the morgue and the grave. That is the European Freedom, the leag wants here.

CIRCULARS from the Ex Com. of Grand Lodge will be sent to the W. V. Ts. of all the Lodges of this jurisdiction this week relative to canvassing for the RESCUE.

LODI B. OF H. numbers 175 and grows in interest and utility. It has received of D. C. Cook literature 100 B. of H. Lessons and Song quarterlies, 25 teacher's lesson and song quarterlies, 30 copies of Red White and Blue, also tickets, reward cards, certificates and lots of papers for distribution. Dr. Haswell has been an active moving power in this Band, but can only be with them four months longer. Wonder if some patriotic citizens there will not take it up and determine that it shall run just as well after he leaves as it had done hitherto.

Subscribers and renewals this week: Springville (Miss Guthrie) 5; Linden 1; W. C. King, (Elk Creek 12, Newville 10, Paskenta 2) 24; Mrs. M. E. Richardson (Napa 1, Byron 1, Brentwood 1, Stewartsville 1, Alameda 6, Kansas 1) 11; Willows 1; Bogus 1; Colfax 1. In all 44.

DUBLIN has 160 Protestant ministers of whom 78 are abstainers from poison drink. Of 120 Episcopals there are 50; of 13 Presbyterians 7; of 24 Methodists 15; of 6 others 4 who set a good example. A slight majority of the whole place a misleading, dangerous, depraving, corrupting, unchristian example before their people. The sheep of such shepherds are to be pitied.

THE LEEDS-Mercury one of the most important provincial secular dailies of England refuses to publish theatrical and sporting news, "because the theater and turf are enemies to the best interests of our social and national life;" a most excellent example that will be much followed by respectable newspapers, when the Antichrist of drink is dethroned.

Is it not strange that those who think it quite proper for a great actress or singer to appear before applauding thousands for fame or money, should object to hear from a woman's lips reasons why Christian people should think it a privilege to abstain, or good news for the poor drunkards that Jesus is willing and able to break their chains and enable them to overcome?—Ex. No, it dont hurt the world's feelings at all to have woman do anything public or private in the service of the devil, but it is violently precise in its demands that she shall be intensly modest when she undertakes to do any thing for God and humanity's sake.

THE N. W. Christian Advocate says: "if the prohibitory amendment is defeated in Iowa, the Republican party will never survive another Presidential campaign." Then it says a new party will lead. There is only one possible way now for the Republican party to elect another President and that is to heave the poison beer barrel overboard and its drunken rats, take on board a temperance crew, and hoist the flag of prohibition; nothing but the madness that precedes the settled doom of destruction can blind any one to the fact that the Republican party as a partner of the interests of drunkenness and crime can only perish and ot to. Better repent before the ship sinks.

THE WOMAN'S VOTE.— The Brewers Convention at Chicago last October voted unanimously. "Resolved that we oppose Woman Suffrage every where and always, for when woman has the ballot she will vote solid for prohibition, and the woman's vote is the last hope of the prohibitionist." That is about the strongest argument ever made for Woman Suffrage and there never could be a more convincing proof that it would be an immense benefit to the country to adopt it, than that the brewers are unanimous against it and afraid of it. There is no policy in any possible direction that would be good for the country and the people that the brewers would not oppose and hate; there is no possible policy that would please the brewers if it were not loaded with pestilence and famine and pollution and death to the people.

A VERY REV. DEAN in England has just heard about the wine discussion apparently for the first time and pompously declares in a sermon that Scripture condems the abuse and not the use. "A Sexagenarian M. D." answers that a child once more wisely said in his hearing "it must be the nature of the drink to make men so wicked," and a simple gardener in 1844 wrote that those who say the Savior referred to alcoholic wine when he said "I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine till I drink it new in the Kingdom of Heaven" must adopt the belief that intoxicating drinks will be used in heaven. And that is a better point than all the combined talent on the Dean's side could rake together in 50 years.

THE MRS. HAYES pictures ordered have all been delivered; so our good sisters of the W. N. C. T. U. report. If any one entitled to one of those pictures thru the RESCUE, has by any possible oversight been omitted and has not received it, please notify this office at once. Would rather make the mistake of sending five too many than omit to send one promised. Lots more pictures to be had of Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, N. Y.

A COMMITTEE of congress commends the presentation of 83,000,000 acres of public land to certain railroad companies; it admits that the companies have no claim or right to it, but if they don't get it some of the stockholders or bondholders may be disappointed. The passage of such an act should hang every bribed traitor of the committee and every bribed traitor who votes for it. As well rob all the depositors of a bank, lest a stockholder should fail to steal all he wants to. These railroad steals if not arrested promptly and decisively, will assuredly one day set up the guillotine or the gallows of communism and the stolen property will return in a whirlwind of blood.

THE SUPERVISORS of this city have before them a proposition by a committee (Mr. Fisher objecting) to reduce the license of the dance houses from $75 to $25 with a view of increasing their number to such an extent as to produce a larger revenue. These places are filthy dens of drunkenness, debauchery, crime and robbery, a disgrace to the city, and such a proposition is infamous and execrable, and every good citizen ot to make a personal protest against such an outrage. That a supervisor should be elected to office that would make or listen for a moment to such a proposition, is disgraceful to the city's reputation. It is hoped the Supervisors as a body will put the scandal out of the window and if not, that the Mayor will veto it. We could not get Supervisors in the penitentiary that would do any thing worse than pass such an act; it is to be hoped but a few of them would favor it any way—Here is ground for the friends of decency to make a protest against the triple increase in the numbers of the most infamous dens of crime the world has ever known.

DR. R. H. MCDONALD, a former resident of Sacramento, and at present President of the Pacific Bank in San Francisco, is proving himself a genuine philanthropist. Last year the doctor caused to be made several hundred elegant medals to stimulate competition in the art of writing essays among the pupils in the public schools in San Francisco. He has also taken a conspicuous part in many other local charities, his latest venture being the purchase of the property at the northwest corner of Sansome and Pacific streets, in that city, known as the Railroad Hotel, which, with the contemplated improvements, will involve an expense of some $50,000. This building Dr. McDonald intends to be devoted to a sewing school, where young girls may be taut the use of the needle in all branches of sewing. The lower portion of the building is intended to accommodate some 500 children, who will be under the charge of thirty competent teachers. Here girls will not only have an opportunity to learn a useful industry, but will be free from evil influences and under the constant superintendence of carefully-selected teachers. A well-supplied library will be attached to the sewing school, where chaste and instructive books can be had by the girls. Dr. McDonald is reputed to have made a handsome fortune in his former business as a wholesale druggist, much of which he is using for the benefit of the rising generation. He is deserving of the thanks of all classes of citizens for his disinterested efforts in behalf of the poor—Bee.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS' PSALM OF MAY.

[Read before San Bernardino Lodge No. 220, May 1, 1882.]

BY H. C. BROOKE.

Another year has passed away,
With many a grief and care
To leave the impress of their sway
The weary heart to bear.

Another winter's snows have gone
From off the mountain side
To join the flood that sweeps along,
To swell the ocean tide.

Yon grand old hills, so brown and sear,
When drest in winter's gray,
At bidding of the gay young Year
Have donn'd the green—for May.

And Nature, from her sleep awoke;
The vale and woodland ring
With music from the tuneful note
Of song-birds to the spring.

The merry rill goes dancing on,
And tripping o'er the lea,
To join the cadence of her song
With anthems of the sea.

The budding blossoms, balmy air,
The song-birds' lay of love,
Are heav'nly teachers sent to bear
A message from above.

Behind the winter's cloud and gloom,
Lies hid a Father's face;
In the bright world, beyond the tomb.
We'll know that Father's grace

The azure sky, the fragrant flower,
The sunbeams in the stream,
The woodland grove, and shady bower
Will fade—as childhood's dream.

Spring blossoms come, in love, to give
The message everywhere:—
"It is not all of life, to live,
And breathe the balmy air:—

Life hath a purpose to fulfil,
A high and holy aim:—
In faith to do the Master's will,
To save, redeem, reclaim."

Then, let us work in sunlight clear,—
Work in the light of day:—
Work, for the shadow draweth near,
It is not always May.

In Faith and Hope we'll strive to win
Our brother gone astray,
Back from the bitter cup of sin,
To find the better way.

Then, when the shades of night have come,
The eve of life draws near,
We'll have the blessed words, "Well done,"
Fall grateful on the ear.

O, let us heed the message sent,
These shining hours are given,
These fair bright days but moments lent,
To light the way to heaven.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

XVIII.—ALCOHOL AND PRISON LIFE.

We have gained a piece of information we had not twenty-one years ago. Twenty-one years ago it was common to say, "What the Total Abstainers say is right enough, but we are accustomed to the use of strong drinks, and are unable to leave them off; it is dangerous to leave them off. You must not break lightly a habit. You must be moderate." On that point we have a grand experiment going on in our model prisons. We know that those unfortunates who are locked up are locked up directly from this agent. When my mind became turned toward the action of alcohol upon the body I said, "Here is a crucial test about the leaving off." I inquired of all the prisons—"Do you let these people down drop by drop, and gradually reduce it?" "No," I found was the response. As the prison door closes the tap closes, so far as they are concerned. Then I asked, "Do they suffer in any way?" The answer was "Never." But wherever I made inquiry into prison discipline of life I have never once found an instance where it could be shown that the sudden leaving off of their drink by these people was a cause of any disease or any kind of defect whatsoever. In America and Canada we have had some experience. Dr. Buck has recently published some experiments he has conducted. In 600 cases he has removed suddenly strong drink, and he says his asylum was never in better condition, and that he has never had the least occasion to suppose that the slightest injury was inflicted. For the cause of the moral side of this question this is a fact of supreme moment for you to bear in mind.

HOW BEER PRODUCES SLEEP.

No. 36.

It is one of the good things credited to beer among its many wonderful and varied virtues that it is a help to the sleepless. Some people who consider themselves leaders and guides in public opinion have said publicly that they take beer to help them sleep. It is true that others with equal authority and longer experience take beer to make them strong to work; and others still when they wish to have a good time, but this does not trouble the man who takes it to make him sleep. He is not bound to account for the fact that beer is used for such contrary purposes. None of them seem to suspect that the beer is deceiving them, playing them tricks. Let us consult a real authority.

An English doctor writing about sleep and sleeplessness observes that the state narcotics produce is not sleep, but a condition of narcotism that counterfeits sleep; adding: "When a man says: 'I want a quiet night, I will take a sleeping draught,' he speaks in parables. To express the fact plainly he should say, 'I want a quiet night; I cannot obtain it by going to sleep, or I am afraid to trust to the chances of natural rest, so I will poison myself a little, just enough to make me unconscious, or slightly paralyze my nerve centers, not enough to kill.' If this fact could be kept clearly before the mind, the reckless use of drugs which produce a state that mocks sleep would be limited." The state of inaction which is brot about by natural sleep is very different from that which is produced by paralysis of any degree.

The real reason for this is that the action in the brain is different. In sleep the brain rests, it is quiet and reduced in size. But the action of alcohol is to send blood to the brain and make it engorged, to paralyze its action and so make the man forgetful, and he may imagin he has been asleep; but it is not a natural, healthful sleep, and he does not feel rested and refreshed after it as he does after natural, healthful sleep (Dr. Richardson's "Dialogues on Drink," p. 86, etc.) Beside this, getting drunk on beer does not always produce unconsciousness even, while it does often make people stupid and lazy; which effect is partly due to the hops and partly to drunkenness and the alcohol. Yet we often find the other common effects of the alcohol it contains. A recent writer says;

"We know a man who for twelve years has never used any liquor save beer. He comes home from his elegant store, behind his handsome pair of horses, and makes his home a terror. He runs after his wife with an axe, and makes a beast of himself in a thousand ways. Is that somnolence? We know another man who uses only beer, who has beaten his wife so as to make her helpless for days, was dead drunk on beer when the neighbors helped bury his infant son, and has repeatedly knocked down and beaten his girl of eight and boy of five. Is that somnolence?" If it were produced by whisky it would be called drunkenness.

Dr. Richardson says of himself that during the time when he drank daily, as some other people do, a period of nearly thirty years, he never had what may be called truly natural sleep, never with the same freedom from oppression and dreams and nightmares as he had in early life and as he now has since he has become a total abstainer.

POLITICAL ROTTENNESS.

The amount of political rottenness at Washington is fearful to contemplate. And this rottenness is not all democratic rottenness by any manner of means. As we see things, Republican rottenness is fully equal, both in quality and quantity, to Democratic rottenness. The fact is there is no longer any real issue between the two great political parties of the country, and the fight between them has degenerated into a sinple squabble for place and power, and the worst of it all is those who are engaged in this dishonorable business are so lost to all thot of decency that they unblushingly publish their real motives to the world. A special dispatch to the Post and Tribune immediately after the presidential veto of the Anti-Chinese Bill had been made public is sufficient evidence of the truthfulness of this statement. The dispatch says:

"The Democrats are very happy over the matter. A prominent Democrat said to-night that the only reason why the Democrats supported the bill so generally was that they expected all along that Mr. Arthur would veto the bill, and they desired very much to give him a chance, thinking that by so doing he would cut his own throat politically. The California members and senators are in a very despondent condition. Mr. Page, who championed t bill in the house, said to your correspondent, 'this bill had become a law, my place in congr would be assured for the balance of my life. No I am all at sea, and cannot expect again to be turned from my state as a congressional represent tive.' Mr. Page predicted that his party would n be able to carry any of the Pacific coast states f many years." * * This explains why there is much despondency among the California represe tatives and senators. These men do not take t merits of the case into consideration at all.

The facts in this case are as follows, as near we can state them: The Democrats supported t Anti-Chinese Bill in order to secure the vote of t Pacific slope in the next presidential campaign. T Republicans supported the Anti-Chinese Bill order to secure the vote in the next presidential cam paign. The motive of the two parties in favori the bill was precisely the same. The Democra after having voted for the bill are now jubilant b cause a Republican president has vetoed it and th weakened the claims of the Republican party up the Kearny vote, and the Republicans are despo dent because their scheme to get the Kearny vo has not worked, and some poor fellows will not l able to remain in congress for life. It is about tim it seems to us, that the people of this grand count should wake up to this matter and replace t horde of political demagogues at Washington wi honest men.—Lever.

During the month there was one full meeting the Board of Directors, and one each of the lectu and devotional committees. On two Sunday afte noons there were rousing Temperance meetings one of our churches addressed by Col. J. T. Lor and Mrs. Emily P. Stevens, in favor of which o services were given up.

On account of the confinement in the county j of Simon Raten, the slayer of Mr. Jas. Lansin the prison officials have not deemed it safe to allo religious services there since the first Sunday April. We hope to resume our work there soo About 1000 invitations to our noon-day and oth meetings have been distributed, and some 300 ass ciation cards given out during the month. In t county jail and elsewhere, about 5000 pages of te perance and religious literature have been giv away.

Our free reading room, so generously supplied editors and publishers of leading secular and re gious newspapers with fresh reading matter, and others, with valuable books and periodicals, is dai proving a great boon to strangers and to poor m in our city. Expressions of gratification at th feature of our work are becoming both frequent a emphatic.

Owing to bad weather and other embarrassment the singing class, and teachers class for S. S. less study were poorly attended during the month, a had to be abandoned. These we hope to resume the near future under more favorable auspices.

Our religious meetings have been generally se sons of much interest, and we feel that considerab good is being done by the several departments our association. ANDREW J. HANSON, Pres.

AN APOSTLE.

Miss Weston is working of course to persuade the aged blockheads of the admiralty and of the government of England to abolish the horrible crime of peddling out rum and vice and disease to the sailors of the Navy every day. Blockheads in an intense degree on that question and on all matters relating to alcoholic drinks; but honest, respectable, honorable men in all other respects; only blind in that one direction, like every king, prophet, priest, noble, gentleman, judge or slave that ever did or does drink alcohol; and the Bible says so.

She testifies truly to the generosity of sailors in subscribing for and helping the temperance work and in that matter shows that she knows exactly what she is saying, for there is no class of men anywhere that are so helpful and generous and sympathetic as the sailor unscathed and uncorrupted by the mantraps of the shore. She continues:

I am finding how this temperance work goes hand in hand with true religion. It is an exploded idea that temperance is one thing and true godliness another, and that they run upon two sets of rails. We have found out that they run on the one set, and that temperance is as truly a Christlike work as any other work. Christian people are seeing that, and are therefore joining in this great cause. I find that among the sailors every day. The men have told me that there is nothing that has hindered them from spiritual things like the drink. When the drink is moved out of the way then those men begin to turn to all that is good, and at our temperance entertainments and social evenings and temperance meetings what do we do? At the close of each of our meetings I always ask if there are any who would like to remain. "We are going to sing a few hyms, and to have a little prayer together that God would bless those who have joined the temperance society and help each one of us." You might think that would scatter them like wildfire. Nothing of the kind! The few are those who go out, and the majority are those who remain, and many a man who has not given a thot to better things remains to those meetings, and they have been the means of leading him up to knowing and loving the Lord Jesus Christ. I was at Sheerness about a month ago, and we had our Christmas and New Year's party and a very happy party we had. The house was full of sailors, and they decorated it. We kept them busy with scissors and needle and thread, colored papers and holly. They said they would make the Sailor's Rest beat the public-house to fits; and what with the flags and mottoes, and evergreens, I hardly knew the place. On the New Year's Eve we had our tea-party for them. When I saw the immense crowd of wild young fellows who came—the steady ones had leave—and when they confided to me that they were going to see the old year out and the new year in, and that was only about six o'clock, my heart failed me. They said, "We are going to have a happy time. May we have some Christmas games?" I said, "As many as you like," but the first thing was to go in to tea. After tea they set to work at their Christmas games, and they did enjoy them, I can assure you. They played like kittens, and I was a little afraid that the foundations of the house might give way. Then there was a magic-lantern exhibition on the immortal story of "Buy your own Cherries," and that told its tale, altho they demanded and I gave a description of it. It was then only ten o'clock, and they said, "We have two hours yet." I said, "Look here, you have had your games and lantern, now I am going to make a proposition. What do you think? Suppose we gather together in this large room at 11:30, and we will have our hymn books and some singing and a prayer as the old year goes out and the new year comes in. They said, "The very best way to spend the time, and we will all be here." They went to their games and were true to their word. At 11:30 every man was in that room. One chose one hymn and another chose another, and I had a nice talk with them, and as it got near twelve o'clock we had some prayer and many of those men were moved to tears, and told me afterwards, "We have often drunk the old year out and the new year in, but we have never prayed it out and in before." After that many of them signed the temperance pledge, and as a good many of them had to go back to barracks, they said, "We'll march down the streets singing." They formed up outside, and as they marched thru the streets of Sheerness they were singing a hymn well known to many here—

"The bright for evermore."

It was extremely pleasant to hear this, and to feel that they had been brought together and spent a happy time, and had been as it were worked upon in the highest and best way.

* * * If you could see as I do every day of my life those men rescued from drink, and many of them brought to be decided for Christ, I am sure it would convince you all what a grand cause temperance is. I do want our friends to think of the National Temperance League and its work amongst sailors, to pray for it, and also to help it in any way you may be able.

Miss Weston was heartily cheered at the close and others testified to the good she had done and was doing. These articles are headed "an apostle" and it would seem just and proper to regard Miss Weston as one of the greatest apostles England has ever had. Father Matthew accomplished a more conspicuous and showy reform, but he founded no system and his work died with him or languished in a very brief survival. John Wesley's work would have died out as early, had there been no organization of the results of his labors. There have been wondrously bright stars in religious revival work, but their permanent results bear but a scant proportion to the apparent immediate promises and pretensions. The Temperance Natl. Leag organizes their results and gives them permanence.

Miss Westons's work is that of preaching the whole gospel with no fealty or tribute to anti-Christ in it. The British Navy has had for 300 years a chaplain on board of every ship, whose duty it was to hold religious services every Sunday and to be God's messenger of love to the sailor every day of the week, to be his counselor and instructor in his moral and religious duties. That chaplain had 20,000 priests, deacons, canons, bishops, archbishops and the King or Queen and the whole church and government at his back; before the sailor he stood as an authoritative messenger and guardian, accredited from God, from his sovereign, from his whole nation; all the power and wealth of this world could not have clothed him with higher authority, made his mission more respectable or given him a greater leverage to exert a potent influence for good upon the seamen of the Navy.

And what have been the results; rum was up to Miss Weston's appearance the crowned God of the British Navy. All these chaplains and all their backers never stopped one glass of the rum which was daily dosed into boys and men and officers by the government to make them bummers and bad men, indifferent seamen, faithless and unreliable. Fortunately there was manhood in many of the sailors that rum could not always destroy, but if it had been the solem intent of the government to make every man and boy of its sailors a miserable, good for nothing drunkard and worthless scoundrel, they could not have easily invented any more effective machinery to that end than they used.

And what did the army of chaplains do? no doubt there must have been some earnest Christian men among them, but in all these generations of chaplains and sailors, the chaplains drank antichrist, worshiped antichrist like the rest, until very recently, and all but a few do so yet—and their work for good so far as heard of in three centuries can be counted up in one 0. Three centuries of wine drinking and grog partnership gospel, an utter cipher among the influences for good. With all the opportunities that an established national church of limitless wealth and power has had all this time to reform and bless the British Navy committed to its care, the seamen were terribly drunken and addicted to all the vices that drunkenness fastens upon humanity; and not a chaplain's or churchman's voice was ever raised to be heard against the infamy of poisoning the health and morals of the boys and men. If sober men were in the Navy before Miss Westons time, it was because they had heard the temperance gospel at home or among the good Samaritans on shore.

But at last an angel of peace came down to trouble the waters, not in canonical robes and jeweled mitre, not with sound of trumpet and salvo of canon and applause of kneeling admiring multitudes, with no ponderous parchments of human endorsement and authority, attended by no train of obedient satellites and followers; there was nothing of her but a simple unpretencious woman; we dont hear that she was gifted with eloquence or wit or wealth, but we do know that she came armed with the mightiest power on earth, the pure flame of an earnest, ardent, all-embracing Christ-love in her heart and with the bible and the whole gospel and its pledge of temperance in her hand; her eyes wide opened to see the murderous slauter of the innocents wrot by the antichrist of wine and the enormity of the crime of the dalliance and friendly intercourse of the church with Satan's mightiest captain.

The apparent capacity and means possessed by Miss Weston compared with those of the chaplains and the church have been as 1, to 10,000,000. The result of her labors have been as many thousands perhaps millions to one. What she has done could have been done in any one of the past 50 years by a faithful church in the spirit of the master; any one of the chaplains could have as easily done the work; but God chose the weak to confound the mighty and called up a woman in that country where women are esteemed as very weak vessels, to show the power of the truth and of an unmixed, unadulterated, undefiled, unmystified, unbedraggled gospel of peace and love to all mankind.

There doutless goes up to heaven many a daily prayer for Miss Weston from the ten thousand seamen to whom her ministrations have been a veritable message of peace and love from heaven to men and who are now scattered in every clime and over every sea, endeavoring, many of them, to reflect her loving influences to be a blessing to others. The other 50,000 in that English navy will one day thank God for raising up that great and good apostle, and it is hoped every reader of the RESCUE will place her name high up in his or her celandar of the glorified spirits whose presence with us has been such a signal and abundant blessing to mankind.

TWELVE YEARS EXPERIENCE.

"Care for the public morals by the adoptions of every proper measure for the supression of vice and encouragement of virtue, is a most sacred obligation of every legislator; for upon it must depend in a large degree, not only the personal security and happiness of individuals, but also the stability, prosperity and glory of the State.

"There is an important sense in which this is especially true of Wyoming legislators. You, gentlemen of the legislative assembly, represent not only a larger constituency of citizens in proportion to population than is to be found elsewhere on the globe, but a constituency nearly half composed of a class everywhere regarded as the more watchful guardians of the public as well as private virtue, and should be considered as holding in solemn trust the guardianship they would have exercised. As in Roman mythology it was a goddess who stood for the precious rights and immunities of the home, as such receiving exceptional honors, and as it was virgins of high appointment who, by ceaseless vigils, kept the sacred fire ever burning on her altars, so in this later age it is woman who at once represents and religiously cherishes all that is sweetest and holiest in human life. Again you remember that, when the highest dignitaries of the Roman Government passed one of those vestals in the public places he bowed with reverence, and attending lictors lowered their faces while she passed. Shall not this fitting reverence of the public authorities in the far-off age find full parallel in that profound respect that shall be paid by us, as legislators, to those high principles and moral sentiments, which, without clamorous appeal or formal demand, we know to be forever enshrined in the hearts of the women of this commonwealth?

"I may properly mention one other consideration having appropriate place under this head. Woman suffrage, altho resting on equity, supported by reason and confirmed by experience, has hitherto gained but partial acceptance as a principle of political philosophy.

"It commands more and more of the public attention in many portions of our own land and in some other countries whose political institutions looked toward the freedom of the people. But to-day the new Territory of Wyoming is the only spot on the earth where the political privileges of women are equal and identical with those of men. It was a bold and gallant stroke on the side of reason and of justice long delayed—that act of our first legislative assembly. And what wonder that the eyes of the world have been turned on Wyoming ever since.

"Elsewhere objectors persist in calling this honorable statute of ours 'an experiment.' We know it is not—that under it we have better laws, better officers, better institutions, better morals, and a higher social condition in general than could otherwise exist; that not one of the predicted evils, such as loss of native delicacy and disturbance of home relations, has followed in its train—that the great body of our women, and the best of them, have accepted the elective franchise as a precious boon and exercise it as a patriotic duty,—in a word, that, after twelve years of happy experience, woman suffrage is so thoroly rooted and established in the minds and hearts of this people that among them all, no voice is ever published in protest against or in question of it. For these reasons, also, there rests on us the sacred obligation to so guard and elevate the social order as to make of Wyoming an ever-brightening star for the guidance of this new grand movement in the interest of human freedom."

QUARTERLY REPORT OF LADY MANAGERS OF GOOD TEMPLARS HOME FOR ORPHANS.

The Board convened at the Home, Tuesday May 2d. Present, Mesdames Thompson, Alsip, Carpenter, Mayhew, Partridge, Robbins and Stevens, G. W. V. T. Absent, Mrs. Rix of Washington Corners.

Minutes of the last meeting approved, officers reports read and accepted, likewise standing and special Committees.

Number of children admitted during the quarter, 20; discharged, 20; deceased, 1. General good health has prevailed with few exceptions; there have been seven cases of scarlet fever in mild form. The child deceased died of consumption.

Applications for the admission of 30 children have been received during the quarter and in each case they were admitted. Among this number are 3 whose mother is dead and the father served in the Navy during the war between the North and South, since which time he was crippled for life in the Lighthouse service. These children were received free. One other whose father died in the Napa insane asylum from the effect of a wound received on the head while in the army. We make special mention of these two cases because we are pleased that our noble Order has in its power to make some return to those that have been disabled and lost their life in the service of their country.

During the quarter ten applications for the adoption of children have been received.

From the Financial Secretary's report we find the following amount for warants drawn on the Treasurer for the quarter:

February	$1,511 86
March	1,474 24
April	1,010 95
Total	$3,997 05

DONATIONS.

Mr. Cooper, of Nevada City	$1 00
Mr. Kimball, Vallejo	50
Mr. Herbert Folger, San Francisco	5 00

Benicia donation, one volume "Achievements of Henry M. Stanley and other African explorers," solicited by Mrs. Mc. Lellan. Vote of thanks was tendered the donors.

From Bro. Geo. B. Katzenstein, a beautifully framed picture of Mrs. Lucy B. Hayes, the noble woman who possessed the moral courage to banish intoxicating beverages from the side-board during her reign as hostess of the White House. A special vote of thanks was tendered to Bro. Katzenstein for this well chosen gift.

After the transaction of a large amount of miscellaneous business, the Boards Lady Managers and Trustees, met in joint session. Rev. Mr. Nelson of Vallejo was formally introduced and invited to a seat as a visitor during the session. Remaining a short time he withdrew expressing himself pleased with the manner in which the business of the Home was conducted.

After the disposition of several items of business pertaining to the interests of the Home, the Lady Managers sought the advice of the Trustees, as to what action should be taken with children that have been inmates of the Home five and six years without having received anything from their parents for their support during that time. Some of these children have arrived at the age which requires their dismissal from the Home. The parents have been notified thru the Secretary by vote of the Board that they must remove their children and the notice has been treated with silence.

It is a well known fact, in two instances the fathers have remarried, have homes and could easily provide for their children, yet in each case they never recognize any appeal from the ladies for assistance.

The Trustees believing such treatment an abuse of the charity of the Home, and a deprivation to the deserving, recommended to the Lady Managers the propriety of taking legal steps to obtain the guardianship of the children in question, and when obtained find them homes.

Recommendation unanimously adopted.

On motion the joint Board advised the Lady Managers to refuse all applications for admission of boys to the Home over twelve years of age.

The motion prevailed, the same to go into effect from date.

Nothing further appearing the Boards adjourned.

Fraternally submitted.

Mrs. M. M. CARPENTER, Sec. B. L. M.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

W. C. KING.

Alas for the mutability of all things human. On reaching the church the evening after my last was mailed, I found about 60 persons present and was elated over the prospects for a lodge. Several of the members of Colusa Lodge were present, and we proceeded to sift matters and get into organizing shape, when lo, one and another "begged to be excused," until only fifteen true ones were found. It has never been my fortune to be as thoroly and intensely disappointed as I was at Williams.

I did not organize the 15 into a lodge, but advised them not to ask it. The circumstances convinced me that the best interests of the cause would be subserved by not organizing at least at present. Nothing in this whole matter saddened me more than the attitude of many professed Christians. When! oh, when! shall we find help instead of hindrance from all professions of religion. On Monday eve I attended a public installation of the officers of Colusa Lodge and closed session afterward. This is now the banner lodge of the connty in subscribing for the RESCUE. Wednesday morning I started with Bro. Liening for Sheet Iron and arrived duly but much prostrated by a severe cold that had been gaining on me for several days. Bro. L. attended and addressed the meeting that evening thus allowing me to "lay off for repairs." I can not speak too warmly of the kindness of all the friends inside the Order and out, at Sheet Iron. This lodge is rightly named, for it is built of as substantial material as I ever saw gathered into a lodge. In results accomplished, thoroness of work, and real appreciation of what Good Templarism means—Sheet Iron Lodge is a gem. For the picnic gotten up to make my stay more pleasant and all kindness proffered they have my thanks. Sunday the 7th I went on to Elk Creek and met with the lodge. They had a large attendance and are persevering and in earnest and subscribed generously for the RESCUE. The public meetings on Monday and Tuesday evenings were well attended. Wednesday A. M. Bro. Anderson took me to Newville and in the evening a surprisingly large audience assembled at the school house after which the lodge met in its hall and the officers were installed. The Thursday evening meeting was also large and I hope profitable. It was a pleasant surprise to meet here Bro. Ballard who aided me so much in my work in Tulare Co. and who came 10 miles to attend the meeting, thus proving that he is as thoroly in earnest in the cause as of old. What Tulare loses in his removal Tehama Co. gains. The meeting here last evening was fairly successful but the prospects for the success of a lodge if organized are not flattering. It must be remembered by all readers that the crops in Colusa Co. are a failure—very nearly totally so. This can only be an obstacle in our work and in many places I find it a serious one.

Orland, May 13, 1882.

H. R. HUGHES.

May 6, attended Calaveras District Lodge, only about half of the lodges in this county represented perhaps because it was held in Mok Hill in the extreme northern end of the county.

The session tho small was harmonious, several Bands of Hope organized since last session but no new lodges.

The Com. on State of the Order had no date to base a statistical report as usual, because the lodges had failed to send in credentials and reports. But members present reported that Garfield and West Point lodges had ceased to meet, and that probably Faith lodge was in the same line.

Com. on Resolutions introduced a number of Resolutions—all but one were adopted without debate, the one referred to, was finally passed in the following form Resolved that we consider the practice of treating voters to intoxicating liquors by candidates for office, as reprehensible and bordering on bribery and that we will oppose its continuance by our influence and votes.

In the evening an entertainment was given for the benefit of Mokelumne Lodge, which was a success financially and otherwise:

Next meeting will be held in San Andreas in September. From the Hill came home to rest and get my buggy in trim for the summer campaign.

Was gone 9 weeks and a day united all the lodges in Mariposa and Merced but one, organized a District Lodge for each county, and one new lodge for each, and according to instructions, hunted up out of the way places where there was a possibility of organizing; in both Stanislaus and San Joaquin I found the possibilities sure in the first, got one lodge in the latter and names enough to get another if they had a place to meet; this kind of work has to be done but often times it is disagreable and very thankless work, and one is looked upon as an intruder trying to force something on them for which they have no use. But if we are ever to win the fight we must thoroly work up the country districts and get all our school districts organized and plant our lodges so thick that they will never get lonesome nor discouraged.

After a little rest I took up part of Amador, and all of Eldorado, for a thoro canvas, and sincerely hope the friends when advised of time of meeting will thereby advertize and aid to get out the people, for empty benches do not create much enthusiasm.

Angels, May 13, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

The fast sailing steamer Crescent City failed to leave as advertised, and I have had another week of work on the skirmish line, and visited Headlight Lodge on Wednesday evening the 10th. Thursday evening visited Valley Lodge, and found a large audience, a well arranged programme (leaving out the part assigned to me), and same evening gave a few minutes talk at the open meeting of Evening Star Lodge. The hall was crowded. Open lodge meetings can not fail to production of great good to our Order; it brings us nearer to the masses and establishes a friendly link in the chain of a common brotherhood.

Friday, 12th, went to Woodland, remained over night, and Saturday morning went to Dunnigans to attend a temperance picnic, under the auspices of Antelope, Yolo, Grafton and Faithful Lodges, assisted by friendly delegates from Orion and Chrysopolis Lodges. A large audience assembled in the grove near Dunnigans, and general good feeling prevailed. I trust some good was accomplished, being in my own county and among friends; I addressed myself to want and needs of the county as regards temperance work. Sister Stevens was expected, the audience came to hear her, and I am but a poor substitute in such a case; however, did the best I could. The old veterans, Brothers Winchester and Black, of Knights Landing, were as usual on hand. The meeting was presided over by Bro. T. J. Goin, who opened the meeting with appropriate remarks; words well chosen and suited to the occasion. Left there at 3 P. M., arrived in the city late in the evening and am now on board the Crescent City, bound for the city bearing that name. Shall, as I always do when on the ocean, be very busy during the trip. I want to find the man who wrote, "A Life on the Ocean Wave"; I would like to interview him. Will write as opportunities offer.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

The next meeting of Tulare D.L. will be in Tulare City on May 20, 1882.

THE next regular quarterly session of San Francisco D. L. will meet in Grand Central Hall, Sixth and Market Streets, Friday evening May 19th.

Colusa Co. D. L. will meet at Butte City on June 2 and 3d.

LOS ANGELES Co. D. L. will meet at Downey, Saturday, May 27th, at 10 o'clock A. M. All members in good standing cordially invited.

Colusa Co. D L will meet at Butte City, June 2 and 3, 1882.

Stanislaus Co. D L will meet at Modesto, at 10 o'clock, A M, Saturday, June 3, 1882.

DISTRICT LODGES.

Sonoma District Lodge held its semi-annual meeting at Fulton May 5th, nine lodges represented. An interesting session and considerable business transacted of importance to the cause, and in order to engage in active work, all the lodges were requested to pay district tax promptly so as to have funds for so doing.

Lodges were recommended to aid in organizing and sustaining "Home Protection Clubs" in their several communities.

The holding of the usual temperance campmeeting at Guerneville was heartily endorsed. Ringing resolutions passed condemning Pres. Arthur for favoring intemperance by using wine at the White House receptions—and so on—will not take space even to enumerate.

LOS ANGELES, May 1, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—It has been said that the Sunday Law was passed in haste and in an unguarded moment. I wish to correct this false statement thru the RESCUE and to give our people some reliable information about this law. As we are now or actively on the battle field we should keep our powder dry and ready for use. We have been fighting for Prohibition and a Sunday law ever since Cal. was admitted into the Union. In 1855 there were 2,121 petitions sent to the legislature for the prohibition of the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquor and 484 for the better observance of the Sabbath. This bill passed unanimously, be it to the honor and glory of this session, for not one vote was cast in favor of desecrating the Sabbath by free rum and barbarous amusement. Again on Jan. 24th 1858, Sen. Baker gave notice that he would introduce a bill shortly for the better observance of the Sabbath; on Jan. 27th the bill was introduced and referred to the Com. on Pub. Morals. Feb. 24th this Com. returned the bill and recommended its passage. On the same day it passed the Senate by a vote 20 to 11. On March 22d, it passed the Assembly by a vote of 45 to 17 or nearly 3 to 1. Again on March 18th 1861, an act for the observance of the Sabbath was introduced. On May 18th (2 months after) it passed the Assembly by a vote of 37 to 23 on the same day it passed the Senate by a vote of 16 to 10. And two days after, May 20th, the bill was approved and signed by Gov. John G. Downey, who is now a resident of this city. So the bill of 1858 occupied the attention of the law makers for two months, the vote of both Houses being 65 for and 28 against. The bill of 1861 was before the legislature for 63 days and passed by a vote of 53 for, and 33 against. I hope this will sufficiently meet the charge that the bill was rushed through.

At the next legislature the Capitol was surrounded with the whisky ring. The till of many a dram shop was emptied as a corruption fund and beneath the shadow of the American flag which waved over the Capitol the agent from the drunkard maker, the gambler and the harlot openly insulted the legislators by offering to buy their vote; the black bottle was freely passed around and more than one fell beneath its blighting curse. But the note of alarm was sounded, the destroyer of our homes had been seen in the Capitol, the farmer left the field, the mechanic his bench, groups of men and women could be seen in every town discussing the all absorbing question. They said then as they should say now: God helps those who help themselves. So they sent up their petitions to the legislature and their prayers to heaven for the law not to be repealed and it was not repealed. The people were alarmed for the safety of our institutions when they saw that the liquor traffic was actually carried on within the walls of the Capitol, so at their command the legislature enacted a law, making it a misdemeanor to sell or give intoxicating liquor at that place in the future. Next week I will continue this article and show why we had to drop the soft notes of moral suasion and take up the thundering voice of thou shalt not, of the ten commandments and print them in our statute books.

SAM'L. MCCURDY.

JUDSONVILLE, May 11, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Contra Costa District Lodge convened May 6th at 11 A. M., Bro. F. Clifford D. D. in the chair. The following Lodges were represented, viz: Brentwood No. 116, Star of Empire No. 255, Carbondale No. 288, Lily No. 330, Twilight No. 331, Excelsior No. 349. Reform Lodge not represented. Lodges all reported in a prosperous condition. Sister M. E. Richardson being present, favored the Lodge with a short speech and afterwards with a song, and was greeted with applause. She sang "Never Marry a Man if He Drinks," and then made a canvass for the RESCUE. Bro. Rev. Mr. Wallace, of Livermore, gave a very interesting speech, as also did several of the members.

"WINES: SCRIPTURAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL."

The National Temperance Society has just published a new volume, with the above title, by Dr. Norman Kerr, of London. It presents a very complete and convincing array of authorities, ancient and modern, demonstrating beyond question the existence of two kinds of wine—the fermented and unfermented, the former intoxicating and harmful, the latter non-alcoholic and wholesome. It is a most conclusive answer to the unwarranted assumption that Jesus made and commended alcoholic, and, therefore, intoxicating and poisonous wine. It is one of the most valuable and scholarly contributions yet made to the literature of the Bible-wine question, and should be widely read, especially by every clergyman and by all friends of temperance in the land. 12mo, 130 pages. Price, 50 cents in cloth; 25 cents in paper covers. Address, J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

CORRECTION.—There was an error in the publication of my April collections; it should have been thus: Black's Station $21.25; Elk Grove, $11; Galt $9. There was no collection taken at Madison or Yolo D. L. E. P. STEVENS.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

SOME CRUSADES.

Altho the crusading business had proved so disastrous and so fruitful of evil results, Europe became the theater of a great many marauding wars in which they generally contrived to make the cross an important cause or motive of the disturbance. In those benighted ages the people of any part of Europe, might, on the death of the king become the subjects of the King of Spain or the Emperor of Germany or of any one else who happened to be grandson of some old despot who had been a King or Emperor or related to one.

Charles V. of Germany was grandson of quite a lot of royal people, so that in 1516, when still young, he was King of Spain, Sicily, Naples and Sardinia, and all the Spanish colonies in America at that time; soon after, on somebody's death, he became Emperor of Austria, and in 1519 he was found to have such a lucky string of grandfathers that he was elected Emperor of Germany.

When a man became King or Emperor in regular family succession or in any other way, fair or foul, it was always to save the country; same thing is done now when anybody wants to be postmaster, or county clerk, or member of the legislature or congressman, he don't care a rap about the money in it; he is desirous of making a serious sacrifice of his time and talent "to save the country"—that is the way he puts it.

Charles was always very zealous and anxious to have all men exactly square on their religious belief; he wanted them all to believe just as he did and be unanimous, same as he was—but they were so obstinate that they would not, and he was so surprised, and grieved so much about it, that he killed all he could of that kind of people.

He had a very jealous rival too in King Francis I. of France, and the two contrived to involve their subjects and friends and allies in four serious and disastrous wars. These were mostly got up to gratify their own personal interests or spites, but the Pope and the Turks and all the neighboring countries took a hand in the fights as a good opportunity seemed to invite them. Men and dogs are inclined naturally to interpose and assist when they see their brethren engaged in a combat.

The Pope was first in favor of Charles, and Pope Leo X is reported as having died of joy in 1521 when he heard Charles had captured Milan and defeated the French at the battle of Bicoccia. The first war between Charles and Francis continued till 1525 when the latter was routed and himself a prisoner and 12,000 French soldiers killed and drowned in the closing fight.

A peace was made in 1526, Francis was liberated, leaving his two sons as hostages; but as soon as he was safe home he violated the treaty he had made, which was a very common practice among Kings; and the Pope absolved him from any obligation to keep his word, which was a very common practice with the Popes of that day. And the Pope (Clement VII) being jealous of the power of Charles, he entered into an alliance called the "holy leag" with Henry VIII of England, the King of France and the princes of Italy to clean Emperor Charles out of the Duchy of Milan.

But somehow the Popes had bad luck in war. Under the Generals of Charles, the Germans besieged and took Rome by storm in 1527, (May 6), slautered 8,000 of the people to make it an interesting occasion, and captured the Pope himself, which was a very wicked thing to do in those days. Charles pretended to feel deeply hurt and shocked at this disrespect to the head of the church, but in place of letting the Pope out of captivity he ordered prayers to be offered for his liberation in all the churches of his Empire.

But other dignitaries were affronted too, and they got up another war against Charles, but the King of France quarreled with his allies and one sold out the other; just as modern politicians do now-a-days, and the Emperor's luck prevailed and Francis had to pay an enormous ransom for his captive sons who were still detained as hostages.

In 1535 Charles made a crusade into Africa against the infidels as usual, captured Tunis and liberated 22,000 nominal Christians whom the Moors and pirates had enslaved. That was a meritorious act and about the only one the old bigot ever did save the one of giving up his Emperor's throne for the purpose of devoting himself to saying over prayers in a convent, and playing with toys the rest of his life.

France, Turkey, Scotland, Denmark, Sweden and the protestant princes of Germany in 1542, warred with then Catholic England and the Catholic German Emperor. They fot and committed outrages in all directions for two years when the Germans and English got the best of it and the fighting Kings made peace, agreeing to give up all the territory they had robbed from each other, and unite in future against the Turks and the reformed religion—protestantism.

Charles V. was a very pious man; he was very anxious to keep people in the right faith by such arguments as cutting their heads off, burning and drowning them and burying them alive. His opponents were always convinced when he had got done with them; they never made any more mistakes after his argument closed. He would have completely extinguished protestantism probably but for the Turks. They used to go for him frequently, and he had to abandon his religious wars and persecutions before he could get any assistance from various allies on whose help he relied. But for that providential use of the Turks, he would have added a terrible army of victims to the roll of martyrs of his time.

LEAG OF FIENDOM SPECIMENS.

Seven girls and two boys were arrested in a shed at the corner of Japan and Second streets yesterday afternoon in a half-drunken condition. All were noisy and quarrelsome, and their rioting had attracted a crowd of several hundred persons when the officers arrived. The oldest of the girls was about 17 years, the remainder and the boys being a year or two younger. All were locked up on charges of disturbing the peace.—Chronicle.

That, my young friends, is the work of the brewers and beer sellers and other people who compose the "leag of outlaws." It must be a sweet business that produces such fruit as that. Now if Mr. Shaeffer and Mr. Bulert and the leag of family killers and Sunday smashers and law breakers could have their way, every girl of 15 to 17 and every boy in this city and State would be in the habit of getting drunk and quarreling and being put in jail.

It would not be good for the carpenters or bakers or tinsmiths, or farmers, or milkmen or tailors or shoemakers or storekeepers to have one boy or girl ever get drunk. It would be a damage to all of these people, to every honest man and women to have any body get drunk. But the beer seller and wine and whisky seller get their living only by making boys and girls and men drunkards, and as soon as they are that, they are ready to be anything else you can name, that is mean and wicked and shameful.

If they were not always making a new crop of drunkards out of the boys and girls they would have to shut up their traps and go to work; for their finished customers soon die off. But their dependence is on making young folks depraved and drunken, and here you see specimens of their work; seven girls and two boys sent to jail drunk; and if these nine were arrested and their case made public, it is quite probable there were many hundreds all over the city in a similar condition that were not arrested or heard of.

That beer is the most satanic of all the drinks that were ever invented to destroy boys and girls. They use it first because they think it is not very harmful; but it is the most filthy, poisonous and depraving and debauching of all drinks known. Do not misunderstand that; you are not told that a man or woman who drinks a small quantity of beer every day is depraved and debauched; to do so and never use but a half-pint a day might not hurt a person much, tho it can never do any good. But every body who begins to drink beer intends to only keep on taking a little; and a large proportion of those who begin become in spite of themselves the most stupid, helpless, brutish, swinish and vicious of all drinkers. The brewers put certain things in all their beer to make those who drink it thristy and in that way the boys and girls are very easily caut in their traps.

Nice men that poison girls and boys; but you may know some men in that business who you say are good fellows; yes, but that dont make their business any better. When a man is going to be hung it dont make the hanging any pleasanter to have the hangman a good looking fellow. Good fellows, that is men who had good qualities and whom lots of people liked, have killed or robbed somebody and have been pirates—but their being good fellows did not lessen their crime at all.

There must be a stop put to this system of making money by making our fine, healthy, handsome boys and girls of the public schools and of our homes hoodlums and jailbirds. And first thing is to put down the leag of men who want to break up our Sunday and Band of Hope and churches and schools and have all the working men ragged, smoking, pauperized drunken slaves of the filthy beer dens.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Contra Costa D. L. held at Brentwood, May 6th was an enjoyable affair. The Lodges in that Co. are terribly in earnest; they are anchored. One brother said "We would as soon think of giving up our ranches as our lodge," and judging from the applause with which the remark was received, many others entertained the same sentiments. Some of these lodges are fourteen years old, and many of their members have literally grown up in the Order, and are sound in the faith.

This is a good argument for Bands of Hope. It is natural to expect, that boys and girls trained in our Bands of Hope, and graduating thence, into our lodges, will be thoroly in earnest, will be steadfast to the principles formed so early in life. It is easy to train the children into habits of virtue and temperance. They are willing to join our Bands, and if encouraged, will work as little missionaries, with all-conquering zeal.

A great difficulty in the way, is indifference on the part of parents. Many parents do not give the cause the support that it deserves. Let every father and mother interest themselves in the Band of Hope. Come and join with us. It is so much easier and better to say "come" than" go." And the children are very apt to follow the example of their parents.

It takes hard work to carry on a Band of Hope successfully. It takes "line upon line" and calls for earnest self-sacrificing efforts; but these labors will yield a rich harvest. We have a membership at the present time of nearly 9000, let us keep this membership for ten or fifteen years, and the state will be ours.

Bands.—At Alameda May 4th a Band of Hope was organized, with 74 members. Mrs. Plummer Supt. At Brentwood May 7th visited Band of Hope. Twelve names were secured for membership. This Band is in a flourishing condition. We had the pleasure of listening to the "Cascade," a paper ably edited and read, by the Sec. Master Winning.

At Liberty same day visited the Band of Hope—eighteen names were secured; several of them gave up their tobacco to join. At Eden Plains a Band was organized with sixteen members. Wm. Shafer Supt.

At Point of Timber, a Temperance Mass Meeting was held May 8th. Much interest is manifested in the juvenile work in every place visited in Contra Costa Co. M. E. R.

A LETTER TO THE CHILDREN.

My Dear Little Friends:—I must now tell you something about the tramps. Tramps are men that are walking on the roads packing big heavy loads of old dirty blankets and old cloths; yes and there are some women tramps too. I am living at the side of a big road, upon which is a great deal of travel. Most every day there are tramps passing here, sometimes there are from 5 to 9 will pass in one day, all of them wear old, dirty, ragged clothing, patched up with white thread and any kind of thread they can pick up. They wear old heavy shoes with holes in them, old dirty socks and sometimes old rags for socks, their feet are blistered and their backs and shoulders are all sore from packing the heavy loads of rubbish. They are always hungry—every one of them—none of them have any money at all in their pockets. Oh, my ! They are the worst looking people that I ever saw. There is a big river close to my house with some large oak trees on the bank, these tramps always stop here to rest and get water after tramping across the dry, sandy, hot plains. While they are seated under these beautiful trees I com-hence to talk to them, and before they know what I m up to they tell me they all drink intoxicants, hisky, beer and wine, then I ask them, Did you ver belong to the Good Templars. No. Did you ver belong to a Band of Hope when you were a oy, answer no. Did you go to Sunday school. es sometimes my mother took me to Sunday chool. My dear little friends among the many undred tramps that I have communed with I have ever found one of them to be a Good Templar or a Band of Hope boy or girl. Sometimes there are women tramps here going just like the men do. They are always hungry too. So you see every boy nd girl ot to belong to a Band of Hope, then when hey grow to be men and women there would be no ramps traveling the roads and begging a piece of old bread at peoples back doors.

All the Band of Hope boys and girls, and all the Good Templars have good homes to live at and all have nice clothing to wear and nice blacked boots nd fine gaiter shoes to wear every Sunday; and when several of them meet in the parlor of one of heir neighbors on a pleasant evening, what a fine ime they have; one will take a seat at the organ, he others gather round, open song books and the nusic commences. Oh dear, oh dear, the loud, clear oices, just listen how these children do sing.

Children, is this not much better than begging our bread at some ones back door and walking ver the country hunting work and praying that you wont find it. Oh, my, I now see some more tramps oming 2, 3, yes 4, there they go to the big oak, now hey stop, putting down their heavy loads, there goes one to the river with an oyster can to get water, ow I will go and have a talk with them and find ut all I can and let you know next week. Good ye little friends until then. Your Friend,

MILTON KENNEDY.

TOM.

It was at a public meeting that I addressed re- ently, that I saw him for the first time. I learned rom inquiries afterward that he was fourteen but e was small of his age. He sat in one of the front eats; he had a pug nose copiously sprinkled with reckles, a round face framed in a shock of hair of hat peculiar hue designated by a poet of obscure ame as "A sort of delicate tincture, Ginger, auburn, carrotty," etc.

But the blue eyes which met mine attracted me ir- esistibly—they shone with such a clear, steady, fear- ess light. Thruout my talk, which occupied an hour, those eyes telegraphed to me their apprecia- ion in unmistakable language. Did I make a point, Tom was among the first to perceive it, and lead the pplause, which he did heartily. When I told a unny story you should have heard him laugh. It was positively infectious and set the whole house going; but at the portrayal of the desolation of a heart-broken wife over the body of her husband and he father of her little ones—slain by the accursed rum-fiend—his face was very grave, and I'm sure hat so far as Tom was concerned there was not a dry eye in the house. At the close of the meeting while canvassing the audience for names, Tom sud- lenly confronted me, "Miss G——," said he, "I wanted to let you know that I am on your side; I'm a Good Templar and belong to the Band of Hope." "Good, I'm glad to know that," answered I. "Yes, I'm all right," he resumed, drawing himself up proudly, and looking every inch a man; "but do you see that man to the left—the gray-haired one," here he dropped his voice and spoke very earnestly, "go after him, he needs it." They told me the next morning that Tom's parents tho not opposing him in joining the Lodge and Band of Hope, are foreign- ers, and wedded to the drinking customs of the old country—could not be induced to attend a temper- ance meeting. It is to be hoped that Tom will yet convert them from the errors of a false education. However that may be, I feel quite sure that he will never be found among the wine-bibbers or beer- swillers. Indeed, I predict that he will make a whole regiment in the cause some day. Just wait till Tom and all the other dear boys (God bless them) who are on my side come to the front ten or fifteen years hence. Wont there be a stir all along the enemy's line—wont there be wailing and nash- ing of teeth in that quarter? For when they come —our boys—they will come with clear heads and clean hearts, with intellects unclouded by the fumes of tobacco and their manhood untainted by the withering, blighting, damning influences of the rumshops. They will come as a grand resistless army, the thunder of whose tread will send a thrill and a quiver over the land which will demolish the idol-houses of Bacchus. Then the drunken para- sites who now infest our Government halls and Legislative institutions must fall back, and sober men (our boys) will take their places and men who will secure for us just and sober legislation, who will make honest laws and see that they are enforced. No more "rings" no more leags of liberty, except the great common leag which holds a brother's woes our own and the true liberty which only exists in that higher form of civilization, whose principles were embodied by One in a famous sermon delivered eighteen hundred years ago on the Mount of Olives. May God help us to this end, in winning all the boys over to our side, to your side and Tom's side, and mine.

TEMPERANCE LESSON-LEAVES.

BY REV. W. F. CRAFTS. NO. 17.

"SAVE THE BOYS FROM THE DEMONS OF DRINK."

Golden Text:—This kind can come out by nothing, save by prayer.—Mark ix: 29.

HOME READINGS.

Mon.—The demoniac of Gadara as a picture of the drunkard demoniacs of to-day.—Matt. viii: 28-34.

Tues.—The demoniac at Capernaum.—Mark i: 23-27. How are the acts of demoniacs like the actions of drunkards?

Wed.—Some whose watchword is "Destroy the boys."—Gen. xxvii: 23-36. Who sell boys into slavery to-day for gain?

Fri.—Selling a birthright for gratification of appetite.—Gen. xxv: 27-34. What appetite ruins many a boy's prospects to-day?

Sat.—The Book that saves the boys.—Psalm cxix: 1-16. What does the Bible say against rum?

Sun.—The lesson.

RESPONSIVE READING. PSALM I.

Leader.—Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly. Nor standeth in the way of sinners.

L.—But his delight is in the law of the Lord;

R.—And in his law doth he meditate day and night.

R.—That bringeth forth his fruit in his season;

L.—His leaf also shall not wither,

R.—And whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

L.—The ungodly are not so:

R.—But are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

L.—For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous.

LESSON.—MARK ix: 14-32.

14 And when they came to the disciples, they saw a great multitude about them, and scribes questioning with them.

15 And straitway all the multitude, when they saw him, were greatly amazed, and, running to him, saluted him.

16 And he asked them, What question ye with them?

17 And one of the multitude answered him, Master, I brot unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit;— (And to verse 32.)

Doctrines and Duties.—What doctrines and duties does this lesson teach us?

As to places.—In what places does the devil take possession of boys to-day? (1. News-rooms of sensational story papers, which have led hundreds of boys to crime. 2. Policy shops for boy lotteries and games of chance. 3. Cheap and low theatres, where degrading plays are seen by thousands of boys. 4. Saloons where boys play games of chance, and ruin their bodies by tobacco and strong drink.) A Quaker was asked as to the character of a neighbor who was dishonest and vicious. He answered quietly: "I think he would make a tip-top stranger." All the places just mentioned would make tip top strangers for any boy who expects to be either rich, or wise, or good. There is a place called "Hell Gate Brewery." All these places are gates to disgrace, to prison, and to hell.

As to persons.—What boys are most like the demoniac boy in letting the devil injure their bodies and minds? (Those who read bad papers; those who smoke away their brains and stunt their growth; those who cut short their lives and spoil their strength by beer and other alcoholic drinks.) Almost every day boys in their teens are arrested for drunkenness. Most of the criminals in our prisons are less than twenty-five years of age. In Chicago, before the enforcement of the law against the sale of liquor to minors, thirty thousand boys and girls were regular patrons of the saloons, and more than three thousand of these were arrested every year for the quarrels and crimes into which they were led by the demons of rum. Almost every day the papers tell of baby drunkards and child criminals, staggering and stealing almost as soon as they can walk. * * *

The only safe way is that of a young man who, when asked by other young men to go into a saloon just to see the fun, even if he didn't drink, or play, replied, "I have positive orders not to go." "Nonsense," said the others; "let us see your orders." He took out of his pocket a card, which he read:

"Enter not into the path of the wicked;
Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it and pass away."

"Those," said he, "are my Captain's orders, and I intend to obey them."

TRIP TO NEHALEM.

Mr. Slater tells us more about the old pirate ship, and assnres us that the two brass canons of which we have heard before, and which are supposed to have belonged to the pirates are lying in the sand and drift wood on the beach where we came yesterday. Breakfast over, we take the winding trail over Tillamook Head; under the dense evergreen foliage. Again and again we wade the dashing brook up which our trail leads. Over the summit and down another creek, and down again by the ocean shore and bring up at Mr. Grimes' seaside hotel. A hearty dinner dispatched, and away we hie over Clatsop Plains in order to reach Mr. Stevenson's at Ft. Clatsop. How sweetly the meadow larks sing to us! What nice residences these farmers have! Ah darkness is stealing upon us. Never fear, rush along, and when we tumble down get up again, and keep up the merriment and good cheer. There—a light! We rap at the door. and recognize Sister Lilie's sweet voice bidding us to "come in." Mr. and Mrs. S. are away from home, but Lilies dextrous little hands soon provide us a good supper, and make us feel so comfortable with her pleasant talk and winning ways. It was Lilie who worked up the Ft. Clatsop Club for the Banner.

The boys keep a good fire, and little Alice is made happy by our kind talk and caresses. No wonder that the doleful howling of the wind makes these young folks sad, for their mother has just started on a long journey to her old home in Illinois and the loud roar of the surf tells them of a rough ocean for her ship. Morning is here and the nice breakfast over. Then a kind good-bye to our young friends. and down the broad river we glide before a lively gale which sweeps us on even against the rising tide. No need of sail either. Here we are at the mouth of the river, and now for the pull across the bay. That house and barn is the point we are to make. That is Frank Barrows' milk ranch. It looks only a little way, but is, perhaps 5 miles. Our boat is quite a frail one, but the wind has quieted down, and the water does not seem rough. Out we shoot, and away we fly. One sailor seasick! But on we drive, toss, toss. Now, this is rough. Yes, and getting rougher fast. Is this safe! Safe or not how can we help ourselves now? We look back to shore. Ah! we are in peril. See the wild storm-clouds, black with rage, and seemingly in mad pursuit of our frail craft. To return to that shore is impossible. Our only hope is the distant shore at the milk ranch. And now the storm, in all its fury is upon us. Wilder howls the blast, and higher leap the mad waves, lifting us high upon the breaking crest, and dropping our strained and leaking boat heavily into the deep trof, and then in mingled play and anger tossing us high in air for another fall. The leakage and breaking waves would soon fill our boat but for our bailing. The chances are largely against us, except by the help of One of whom it was asked "What manner of man is this that even the winds and the sea obey him?" We trust in Him, but do not forget to use well the means he has given us—strong muscle and judgment. Yes, the wind is in our favor, so far as direction is concerned, and furiously so, for it sweeps us on at a rapid rate, but we fear the roughest sea is still ahead of us. Calm and steady is our plan, and each threatening breaker eluded gives us still more confidence and hope. We think the waves do not break so furiously, and the shore is rapidly nearing. Now, we are under the protection of the Point, and feel ourselves almost safe. But where is our sea sick-man? He says he forgot all about it. A new remedy for that most horrifying ailment; but we would prefer a little of the disease rather than another such dose of the remedy. Landed all safe and deeply thankful to the kind preserver of our lives. If we had been a rum crew, with our muscles weakened and our brains muddled with alcohol and tobacco poisons the case would probably have been different. It is well known here that almost every fisherman that is drowned--about 100 every year—is lost because of drink. They take bottles of whisky with them in the boat, and when they are cold and wet they think the whisky will keep them warm. The truth is that it makes them still colder, and puts them in such a condition that they cannot endure a struggle with the waves as we have battled thru. Now over the hill into the city we go, and our good friends are astonished to hear that we were out on the bay in such a storm. The terrible storm is the chief topic in town, and knowing ones assure us that 99 chances out of 100 were against us, Some call it a miracle, but we think that healthy, unpoisoned muscles, clear brains and Templar pluck had something to do in the matter. Yes, and the same pluck and clear brains will do another thing to be wondered at when we become voters.

TOO RADICAL.

Simply because the Rescue like all other temperance papers has been for years "too radical," or in other words because we have not lied to God and the people, but have all of us told all the truth that we could discover—the most terribly scathing curse that has ever plagued and tormented this earth is now in a fair way to be speedily removed. The most fruitful cause of all sin and vice and misery has been thoroly exposed by the temperance press, and the most dangerous and formidable and successful foe of Christianity and virtue and peace and the most persistent obstacle to the progress and happiness of the people is getting shaken to its foundation. And we are not very far from the commencement of an era when the first function of a government shall not be to give its largest sanction to the worship of the devil, to give its most urgent aid and countenance to the ensnaring and debauching and pillaging and slautering of its own citizens; when a government shall protect in place of enslaving the weak; when it shall restrain and no longer abet the robber; when it shall make it easy and no longer hard to do right; when it shall no longer charter ten schools of vice and shame and crime to one of virtue and morality.

Had the temperance press lied all these years on the most vital interest affecting the national and individual welfare, or been silent like the other sources of the peoples' information, the country would have been now past hope of redemption. But for the radical temperance work of the past fifty years, the only temperance work that has not clogged the wheels of progress and retarded the day of victory, tens of thousands of men, now active friends of morality, workers in the church and helpers in every good interest, would have been slaves of the accursed traffic and leading others in the downward road to death. Tens of thousands, who have been preserved from ever dallying with the serpent, who have been safely guided from their youth up, would have been ensnared in the ever present pitfalls of the fiends of rum.

And now when we have for years pronounced the truth as it came to light and have been ridiculed for fanaticism and accused of folly and lack of judgment and charged with exaggeration and falsehood at every step, we find the very men who have thus assailed us and who still resist the reforms we seek, unbosoming themselves to the public with more radical assertions than we ever made. No temperance advocate ever gave utterance to as comprehensively radical assertions, no temperance journal ever came quite up to the sweeping condemnations of the liquor traffic, that have been thundered by the London Times the N. Y. Herald the Chicago Tribune, Buxton the brewer, Mr. Gladstone the statesman, Governor Andrews the champion of license. No temperance lecturer ever dared use such scathing and profane language as we have all heard liquor sellers apply to their own business, while they said if they gave it up others would continue it. The Rescue never used such extreme language against liquor sellers as John Wesley, one of God's chiefest and holiest apostles did, nor as the polished, refined, scholarly gentlemen Lord Chesterfield did more than 100 years ago. And no one ever called these gentlemen radicals or falsifiers. Not one of us have got up to the radicalism of the Bible yet.

There is one great comfort in the kind of radicalism that is in question; the company of the honest men and the saintly women who are the radicals in temperance, in Christianity, in integrity, in conscience, is ten thousand times pleasanter and happier than the seat of the scornful and the counsel of the ungodly or the enticement of those who say "let us lay wait for blood, let us lurk privily for the innocent without cause."

This talk of radicalism has always been one of the most cunning weapons of Satan. With it he has tied the hands and perverted the judgment and darkened the counsel of many of God's servants and beguiled them into his active service. Men afraid of radicalism have been trying for centuries to destroy the works of the devil, without at all disturbing the devil in his seat. Have been professing Christ and keeping the serenest peace with anti-christ.

The radicals that are to be feared are those who deny and conceal and sell the truth. May their God have mercy on them at settling day. The radicals of temperance propose to unseat the anti-christ whose reign of blood has so deluged this long reserved heritage of God's people and to prepare the way for the better kingdom that is to come but which can never occupy with Satan a co-partner.

It is a little significant that we dont hear a word of disapproval about this radicalism from any of the reformers who have labored in the field; it is only from the newcomers who have been cautioned against it by the "friendly" observers on the outside.

The great and good Dr. Holland said no tongue or pen could exaggerate the evils and cruelties and miseries wrot by the wretched traffic we war against. Whoever finds fault with the radicalism that seeks to strike the grogshop out of existence needs a new eyesight if not a new heart.

MISSIONARIES.

It looks very smart, so some people think, to ridicule missions and foreign missionaries. It is a very foolish and absurd thing to send missionaries to the Fiji Islands and China while there are so many places in Siskiyou and Modoc and Mono counties that have no church; but it is strange that no one, who spends time and eloquence on this sad oversight, ever goes or helps any one else to go up to these forsaken counties as a missionary, unless it be to tend bar or run a faro game.

It is style to point out the self-evident fact that "missionaries have been mostly raised down East, farmer boys that always lived on very rough fare and to whom a quarter dollar was a little fortune. They go to China where they can look big, sport a Rev. to their names, live on the fat of the land, have nothing to do and get big pay out of the penny collections rung from the poor people and childrens pennies of the Sunday school. Missionaries have a nice time there and they never do a particle of good, their reports of converts etc., are all stuff."

There are people who repeat that twaddle perhaps because they have heard some wretched maligner of his fellow men say so, and they never stopped to consider whether they did right to murder the characters of innocent men and women.

The boys who were raised on a farm down East any time during the last 50 years, never left home to get better food than they had there, and if anywhere around this globe they happened once a year to find a sample meal of unusual excellence, the highest praise they ever gave it was to say, it was almost up to what "mother used to set out."

The living too in China is remarkably tempting to a plain country down East boy, who never saw anything but plain food. In China you get boiled rice three times a day sure, and some curried duck or pork or chicken with it sometimes; never heard of any thing like that down East; then there is fish fried and baked reminding you of shavings fed to a goat; no fish down East. Then our foreiguers can get puddings and pies made from American third rate preserved fruit and bread from American flour. And there are plenty of oranges, bananas, persimmons etc., and none of our Eastern fruit. We see how Chinamen browse here in Cal., but there is no rush for any of their luxuries here by white folks.

As to money it is quite likely that some missionaries get into the field, that are not the brightest of mankind, but among those this witness has met with, in a considerable experience, there was not one who had not talent enough to be a good bootblack and to earn more money in that way at home and much easier and more pleasantly than he ever could as a foreign missionary.

They dont go right off to China either of their own accord and write to the Society to send them $1000 whenever they want it. They must be well known and their character and qualifications well vouched for and strict examinations passed before they can be sent on missions.

Hundreds of men who get sent out to foreign countries as consuls and ministers and Secretaries and clerks and merchants etc., could not pass an examination as to moral character that would entitle them to be assistant dishwashers to a missionary party, but nobody finds any fault with them or pities Siskiyou county for not having their sanctifying services. These people leave their country in quest of coin and easy work and good food, and it is natural that they should attribute to the missionaries the only sordid motives of which they themselves are capable. It is from them these evil reports come; they hate the missionaries because they reprove their wretched vices.

A moments thot will convince any one that it is a very great sacrifice indeed for a missionary single or accompanied by a wife, to sever all the ties of home, kindred, friends and native land, to go among strangers that are heathens and who regard them with hatred and distrust—and to live in an unhealthy climate and miss the home comforts of comfortable food and their own language and every privilege of civilized people. Many a couple have buried their one, two or four children in savage lands and returned shattered and broken to regain a little health, to enable them once more to reach their field of weary labor and die at their post at last among the strangers and heathens.

What a noble cabbagehead that man is who goes round reviling missionaries and retailing miserable defamatory lies about them. Were the objects of their missions the very cheapest of delusions, the christian missionary in Pagan lands should command the highest admiration for the heroic self-sacrificing philanthropy which sustains him in his labor of love.

The miserable stingy wretched mites which have been cast into the missionary collection box, and which will at the final judgment bring shame on many of their miserly contributors, have helped the more liberal ones to be the most profitable investment ever made; tho they were miserably contemptable in their littleness and stinginess, they have produced mighty results with God's blessing added to the prayers and earnest works of the Christian missionary.

The natives of the Hawaiian, Society and various other groups of Pacific islands, as heathens were entire lawless as to honesty and chastity, the examples and influences of the consuls and politicians and traders and seamen and Naval officers that have gone there from Christian countries have with few exceptions been hostile to any improvement in the native morals. But the work of the missionary has prevailed mightily against both native and civilized Paganism and life and property is safer among these missioned Kanakas than in any other country under a Christian civilization.

There are hundreds of islands in the Pacific which forty years ago white men could only approach with musket and bayonet presented for fear of being killed and eaten, but the missionary's whitewashed hut and chapel now indicate perfect safety to life and property. All these works of civilization opening all these places and people to commerce, including the miraculous evangelization of the Fiji Islands have been done by those down East boys and girls and their helpers from other States and against the combined opposition of the rumsellers, the Devil and the profligates and renegades of Christian civilization who outnumbered the humble missionaries 10 or 100 to 1, both in number and in dollars. It is only fools who prate derisively of missionaries.

HOME PROTECTION MEETING.

Altho well advertized to be at the Hall on Pacific near Mason, the usual audience seem to have gone last Saturday evening to the Y. M. C. A. Hall, and the attendance was very slim indeed. But the address by Mr. Oliver, of San Jose, which reviewed the uses and origin and history of our Sunday law, was about the most interesting and well put argument that has been heard upon the question. Another opportunity should be afforded the public to hear Mr. Oliver on this subject in a central and populous quarter, where the entire business of the vicinity is not transacted in beer dives and corner groggeries.

Mr. Oliver showed up in a masterly way the inconsistency of a conspiracy of men who have been driven from European countries by the pauperizing influences of free beer and free Sunday,—who have come to a land of plenty and comfort, made so by American industry and sobriety and liberty and virtue and obedience to law and order and to the universal law of a day of rest,—who, with head reverently uncovered and hand upraised to heaven, have sworn most solemly to support and sustain the Constitution and laws of this country which has welcomed them to equal rights and privileges they never knew before—and who with unblushing effrontery dare to stand up in open perjured rebellion and defy the law and the highest authority, not in defence of a righteous principle or of anything honest, but in assertion of a determination to implant and root deeply in our soil the vices and rottenness which have spread a leprosy of pauperism, ignorance and debauchery over their former homes.

He said they dont want the day secularized by any means for the banker and merchant and storekeeper and the workingman; they would resist with all their might an effort to pass a law which would obliterate Sunday and keep the mechanic and laborer harnessed to his daily toil. No, they want the Sunday law to stop the axe and hammer and saw and spade and shut up every business except that of making men drunken and crazy and murderous and robbing the working men of their home day and repose and recreation and of the weeks earnings which belong to their wives and families. Sunday must be a holiday for every body but the rumsellers and the few classes connected immediately with them who bring men to their trots to drink. Sunday must be secularized solely for the rumsellers and crime-breeders to prey on the public and cause the employment of a vast police and judicial and correctional army to watch and capture and jail and try and punish the Sunday manufactured criminals of the satanic beer shop.

The Chronicle's report that Mr. Oliver's speech was a portrayal of the evils of intemperance is exceedingly incorrect and misleading. There was no reference to the evils of intemperance except incidentally and the Troy fractricide was described as an incident in the Sunday traffic of the monstrous conspiracy who are banded together to uproot American civilization and plant European anarchy, European beggary and European paganism and its debaucheries on the soil of this beautiful State.

The Home Protection Society would be absolutely sure of the enactment by the next legislature of a stringent and suddenly effective Sunday law, easy of enforcement, that would subdue the miscreant enemies of the public safety, if they would have Mr. Oliver's address delivered in every community of the State.

OUR MUTUAL AID.

A worthy brother asks why it costs $4 to insure in the $1,000 Division A. and only $5 in the $2,000 Division B. And other brethren are afraid our charges are too small to be safe. An explanation of these things will be made to which attention is requested.

The $4 or $5 is not the cost of your insurance at all; only $1 of it goes to pay your first assessment. The remaining $3 or $4 is supposed to be necessary to pay the running expenses of the concern, such as printing, postage and clerical or secretary work, when it becomes more expensive. The cost of your insurance is only to be the assessments you will be called on to pay; and the statistics of all mutual aid and temperance benefit societies promise us that our assessments will be the cheapest in the world.

Now as to the entrance fee, another dollar goes for the Medical Superintendent, leaving only $2 or $3 in either class for other expenses, and that looks too cheap to be safe. If we had a president at $25,000 a year and a secretary and board of directors at as much more, we would have to charge $100 as an entrance fee and keep up a high annual assessment as the old companies do. But we dont have that. We dont have to advertize in the papers. The RESCUE does that free.

The Pennsylvania Mutual Aid has a $10 entrance fee and a $2.10 annual assessment for expenses—which their members have to pay and which our members entirely avoid, bec. use we have no presidents and secretaries to pay nor any expenses to provide for not absolutely unavoidable.

It is, therefore, about an even thing to all concerned whether our entrance fee should be $2 or $10; for any surplus in hand over expenses must when it accumulates to a certain amount, be turned over to the Benefit Fund. So if all hands had paid $1 or $2 or $5 more each this year than expenses amounted to the overplus would pay one, two or five benefits and there would be no assessment for that many benefits. And if the entrance fees are insufficient to pay all expenses, the by-laws permit an assessment not exceeding $1 a year on the membership.

Some other associations make their entrance fees larger so as to allow a $4 or $5 commission to the canvassers who have a good thing drumming up recruits. No provision was made for this in ours as it was supposed our lodge deputies and Good Templars would be glad to come in themselves and bring others into the cheapest and safest and squarest Mutual Aid Society in the world, without any hope of a commission or reward therefor.

Our Mutual Aid has not a single drawback as a system to prevent it from occupying a first-class position as the most advantageous insurance that a total abstainer can belong to.

VIENNA.

"What sort of a place is Vienna? The vital statistics of the Austrian capital show that in 1880 there were in that city 15,880 births of legitimate children and 12,700 births of illegitimate children. In 1881 the legitimate births fell off to 15,621, a reduction of 250, and the illegitimate rose to 13,076, an increase of 376. Queer Christian city that, where 45 per cent of the children born are illegitimate."—Santa Ana Standard.

That question is easily answered. It is a place where no Sunday law nor Sunday observance has ever been practiced. The Roman Catholic religion has always beon dominant there and it could long ago have stamped out the beer shop, but it never once tried to. The brewer and the wine merchant have been the kings of civilization and of trade; beer and wine have had their fullest opportunity to pauperize, debauch and deprave a splendid race of men that under a truly christian, sober civilization might have developed by this time into a race of giants in intellectual ability and learning and moral worth and kings in material wealth and prosperity.

What sort of a place is Vienna? little better or little worse than any other large European city where a nominal Chrtstian faith and a beer and wine shop civilization have combined to pauperize and deprave the people and where the day of rest and christianity have been trampled under foot—where a beer and no Sunday civilization has had a fair full unresisted opportunity to assert itself. Just such a city as San Francisco, New York, Chicago, Boston, etc., are at present growing to be; just such a place as Vineland, Lompoc, Santa Ana, Riverside and the best and purest populations we have, would one day become, were the temperance warfare abandoned and beer and the Leag of Fiendom permitted to shape the destinies of the country, destroy America and engraft on its stock the leprosy which has made Vienna and hundreds of similar cities fester sores of utter moral destitution and drunken depravity.

THE PROHIBITION PARTY.

Are proposing measures for a State Convention in the interests of that party. The reports received by the Secretary are of quite an encouraging character and indicate a growing sentiment in favor of chopping down the rotten old Upas tree in place of calling in the doctors.

The question is asked by Good Templars who are and have been for years settled one-hundred-cents-to-the-dollar prohibitionists, what the Home protectionists of California intend to do in the cases where neither Republican or other party nominates candidates satisfactory to temperance voters. If they are going to make any provision for those contingencies. They say that questions asked on these points have not been satisfactorily answered and therefore they stand aloof for the present.

There is no class of temperance people so sincerely desirous of pulling together, working together and avoiding schism, and division of our forces, as the radical prohibitionists; that can be said of them whether they are right or rong in the methods they have pursued and may pursue. But if Prohibition is due North, before they hitch on to pull, they very properly inquire which way the machine is going to run, because if it is going to head southwest or southeast they want to be excused from pulling in that direction.

No dout the Home Protection officers can give a perfectly satisfactory and an open and conclusive answer, that will point out definitely the course they have marked, and that will call into one fold all classes who really desire prohibition of the only real grievance that ever stood in the way of this grand State being the choicest paradise of earth.

The opinion has been largely prevalent that the Home Protection Association are determined upon aggressive genuine work, and it is hoped it may give such an utterance as will quiet all doubts and unite all our workers in one active and effective force.

CRIME.

"Crime of the most frightful character is becoming so common in San Francisco that one opens his daily paper every morning expecting to be stared in the face with the bold head lines announcing another murder. Courts are so lenient, justice so blinded, exhibitions of public sentimentality over criminals of the worst stripe so sickeningly frequent that life is held at naught, and the lowest elements of the city indulge their blood thirsty propensities seemingly without fear of punishment. Murder after murder is committed and yet the gallows moulders for want of use. Nothing but prompt arrests, trials, convictions and executions will ever check this tide of crime and until then we may expect violence to flourish in all its hideousness."—Haywards Journal.

There is only one reason why crime is rampant; the grogshops and beer dens and corner grocery doggeries are becoming more plenty all over the city, driving out and drying up all honest sources of employment and opportunities of lawful trade, making their present crop of drunkards and criminals more drunken and vicious every day and seducing young men and women every day from the ranks of decency and virtue, and adding them to the list of drunken loafers, thieves and murderers.

There was never any other reason for more than about one crime in 100 in this state but the thief and murderer's school which people miscall the "saloon," and every body knows it, too. The gallows is a terror to criminals and decent men when they are sober, but neither gallows nor any other terror ever affected good or bad men when drunk or at all under the influence of the saloon keeper. It is strange that the whole secular press would rather see the gallows in daily operation upon the unfortunate crazed victims of the dramshop, than lose the 12 cents a week or month patronage of half a dozen rum selling and thief manufacturing murderers who make the gallows a frequent necessity.

THE HOME PROTECTIONISTS.

"The meeting of the Home Protection Society at Young Men's Hall, on Pacific street, last evening was attended by about thirty persons. Dr. R. H. McDonald presided. Robert Oliver of San Jose addressed the meeting upon the evils of intemperance, dwelling particularly upon the late Troy tragedy. At the conclusion of Mr. Oliver's remarks the meeting adjourned without a word in regard to the Shaeffer-Babcock controversy."—Chronicle.

The Home Protectionists have not heard of any Shaeffer-Babcock controversy. They know that Mr. Shaeffer by his own admission and by the testimony of both Mr. Johnson and Col. Babcock, went to the office of the Col. to enter into Benedict Arnold negotiations and could not succeed. No controversy about that; both sides and the public are entirely unanimous about the whole thing. And further, if Guiteau should publicly assert that Senator Blaine promised to pay him $500 to assassinate Garfield, or that President Arthur offered to pardon him out for $500 that would not constitute a Guiteau-Blaine or a Guiteau-Arthur controversy by any means.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

IN MEMORIAM.—Notices have been given at various times that In Memoriam resolutions will not be published in the RESCUE, but still they continue to be sent regularly, without date or place of death, with no intimation whether the age was 13 or 81, and constructed in language and pattern that have been worn out a thousand times and are obsolete. The organ of the order should register the date and place of death, the name, age, sex, standing, record and qualities of every member that is called home from our circle. And the memorial notice should be in decorous terms and shape, and should be respectful to the memory of the deceased, satisfactory to the bereaved and creditable to the Order. It is a very simple affair to write an appropriate memorial notice, but it is impossible to frame one in this office from the material presented in the resolutions that generally come to hand. Therefore, be it understood, memorial notices will be readily inserted, but resolutions that contain no particulars from which a respectful notice can be framed, will in the future receive no attention. Twice during the past year the name of the deceased was omitted in the resolutions sent for publication beside many other irregularities and it is time this matter should receive decorous attention.

WHERE THE INIQUITY LIES.

* * Finally, I want to go one step farther and show that the responsibility for the evils of the liquor traffic lies where we have not been accustomed to look for it. I propose to trace it to the door of a class of citizens who ot to be shocked to find it there. We have among our people a large Christian element. This class of our citizens can have consistently at least—no toleration for the liquor traffic. They must deplore its evils and desire its extinction. Christians should consider themselves prohibitionists ex officio. In addition to this element, there is a large class of sober, upright, substantial citizens; whose sense of righteousness, whose intelligent views of public policy, and whose interest in the well-being of the State, make them desire the abolition of the liquor traffic. Now if these elements will combine and make war upon the liquor traffic, they can I verily believe, by the votes they can poll and the votes they can control, abolish this traffic. If they can do so and do not do so, then they are partners in the iniquity of the traffic. We, therefore, see the Christian and sober voters of the State, who are at heart opposed to the liquor traffic, who realize its inherent iniquity and inexpediency, standing in the lamentable attitude of parties to its perpetuation.

MUST VOTE OURSELVES CLEAR OF THE INIQUITY.

Now I come to the point I have been all the while preparing to make. There is but one way for a West Virginia voter to free himself entirely from partnership in the wicked work of perpetuating the liquor traffic. Praying for the extinction of the traffic will not do it. Lamenting the evils of the traffic will not do it. Earnest wishes for the success of prohibition will not do it. He must vote himself clear. He must meet his responsibilities and claim his privileges as a freeman. He must resolutely determine to support no man, no party, in favor of giving the protection of law to the liquor traffic. He must see to it that the question of prohibition is carried before the only tribunal authorized to pass sentence upon it, must see that it is fairly dealt by there, must stand by it there. He can, in this way and in this way alone, purge himself of complicity in the great crime of legalizing a terrible curse.—P. B. Reynolds in W. Va. Freeman.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

CONCERT EXERCISES.

The National Temperance Society has just published a concert exercise with the title "Nots," in three parts. It is a very original and emphatic exercise, combining Scriptural responses, recitations, etc., showing the reasons why we should touch NOT, taste NOT, handle NOT the intoxicating cup.

The Society has also just published another concert exercise, entitled "The Little Volunteers," which is a very attractive exercise for any juvenile organization. Both the above exercises are by Thos. R. Thompson, and are adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, or children's organizations. Sample copies sent on application. 12mo, 8 pages each. Price, 3 cents each; 36 cents per dozen. Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

SOUR MASH.

When men are made more moral or virtuous by compulsion of law, then we shall grow cucumbers in December and gather roses in January.—Cincinnati Commercial.

When editorial noggins are filled with "sour mash" instead of brains, we always have just such bar-room nonsense as the above.

The Commercial knows that the good people of Ohio neither seek nor desire to make men moral or virtuous by compulsion of law, and it knows it deliberately and wickedly tries either to deceive the good or please the bad in the foregoing remark.—W. Va. Freeman.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year.

OREGON.

OFFICE OF GRAND SECRETARY, I. O. G. T.,
EUGENE CITY, Or., April 24, 1882.

TO SUBORDINATE LODGES.

The G. L. of Oregon will meet at The Dalles on Tuesday, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

O. & C. R.R.Co. will sell round trip tickets to Delegates on presenting their credentials at their home stations, at a reduction of 40 per cent., good from June 17th to 24 inclusive.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. will return delegates who paid full fare going at a reduction of 80 per cent on presenting my certificate at "The Dalles" ticket office.

Remember to purchase tickets for round trip at home for Portland, at all O. & C. R. R. Stations. Ask for return tickets for Grand Lodge, and start Saturday, the 17th to be on time.

Representatives to G.L. must be chosen at the first regular meeting in May, and the basis of representation is one for the Charter, and one for every 40 members or fraction thereof when it exceeds twenty, based on the returns for quarter just ending, and it is hoped that each lodge in the jurisdiction will be represented, as we are assured the citizens of The Dalles will give us a warm welcome and aid us to make this session one of the most pleasant in our annals.

The R. W. G. T. has designated the first week in May as "Banner Week," and requests that every Lodge on the continent of America make a special effort during this week, in Sunday-schools, day-schools, lodge rooms and personal canvassing, to increase the circulation of the "Youth's Temperance Banner," published by National Temperance Society, at 58 Reade St., New York City.

Returns.—Do not fail to send in the returns early in the term, in fact, as soon as your officers are installed, that I may have time to make out my yearly report in due time for Grand Lodge session.

Anticipating a hearty compliance in the matter of returns, and congratulating you all on the continued prosperity of the Order in our own State, I am faithfully and fraternally yours,

J. E. HOUSTON, G. Sec'y.

MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION.

I. O. G. T. OF CAL.

Every Good Templar between ages of 20 and 60 eligible if medical examination passed.

Two DIVISIONS, A and B. Benefits in A, $1,000; in B, $2,000. Entrance fee in A, $4; in B, $5. A member of one joining the other pays half fee; under 49 eligible to both.

Classes: 1st, 20 to 29 yrs; 2d, 30 to 39; 3d, 40 to 48; 4th, 49 to 55; 5th, 56 and upwards.

Assessments. On the death of a member each member of his division shall be assessed, 1st class, 75c; 2d, 90c; 3d, $1.15; 4th, $1.40; 5th, $1.70.

Notice of assessment payable in 30 days.

For further particulars apply to G. W. S., Sacramento.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

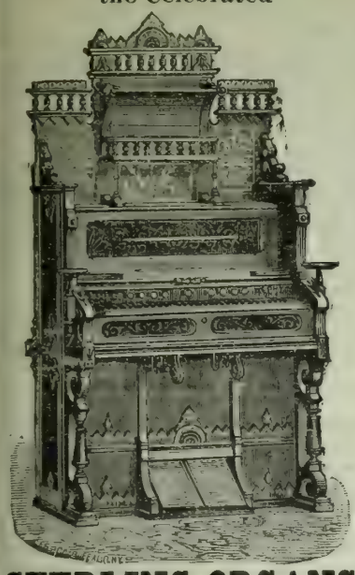
CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.



The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

A few National Temperance Almanacs can be supplied at the RESCUE office; a 10 cent stamp will get one, and that is the cheapest way of remittance. The volume for 1882 is, as usual, full of good matter.

Mr. H. B. Williamson is agent for the RESCUE in Lompoc. Renewals and subscriptions can be arranged with him.

MESSRS. HENDERSON & HOOK.

"Temperance Grocery" 1901 Bush St. Total abstinence people, Christian people, law and order people, must realize that the only way to bring about the millenium of temperance is to be practical and live our faith. Every dime paid into a corner beer and wine selling Sunday breaking grocery is aiding and abetting the leag of outlaws. To send children into these vile places to breathe the foul air, to hear the fouler oaths, to be jostled by whisky hardened men who congregate there, is to familiarize and educate the little ones in vice and crime, and then the odor that permeates sugar, butter, everything bought in these places, is enough to disgust one. Bush St. No. 1901 near my home is a corner grocery of another type, a temperance house, new and bright, clean and wholesome. It does one good to step into this artistically arranged, pleasant store, no smell of whisky taints the air, there are no beer bloated loungers, no dirty back room, where men are cursing and playing cards, no tobacco smoking hoodlums are swaggering about. Little children whom Mama has sent all in a hurry, receive prompt and gentle attention. The clean, wholesome looking proprietor with his white apron and his civil wide awake manner means business and inspires confidence at once, and then as a lady said to me the other day it is such a comfort to feel that I can send into a store when I know it is all right. "I would not patronize a bar-keeping corner grocery and I was obliged to send down town for every thing," and it is a real comfort. Then our Temperance store is always closed on Sunday; people ot to be able to buy what they need Saturday night, a corner grocery open on Sunday attracts the beer lounger and the little children will find it out and stand around; it is an outrage that none but San Franciscans would submit to, this defiant Sabbath breaking corner grocery. "It is needless to add that all the persecution of the vile corner grocery crowd is poured out on Messrs. Henderson & Hook, that every low means is resorted to by the Leag of Fiendom to break them up, but still our bright temperance grocery lives and thrives; "its uphill work, but it is up hill work we are all doing, and not down grade work, and the question for all moral, God fearing law and order people to settle is, which will you have?" the clean, wholesome grocery or the lager beer place open all night and Sundays. Are we to take off our hats to rebels and law breakers and permit them to destroy the purity and sanctity of our homes or will we support, sustain, encourage the sober industrious man, who is aiming to make our city, a better, cleaner, nobler, God fearing town. Messrs. Henderson & Hook's grocery does not sell tobacco in any shape or form. These men so fearless are to be respected; and our respect should be felt in deeds not words. Orders from all parts of the city are taken and promptly delivered. Messrs. Henderson & Hook have their own wagon, and deliver goods any where. Friends of temperance; rally to the support of these earnest temperance workers who are doing so much for our cause. Remember the place 1901 Bush St. Cor. Laguna. Sign of Temperance Grocers. These men are not afraid to show their colors, the store is painted red an aggressive color, but there are no red noses to be seen around, nor blue clouds of tobacco smoke to be puffed in our faces. The store is filled with cleanly things, and business moves on golden wings; seeing is believing, come and see for yourselves. EMILY P. STEVENS.

TO THE FAMILY OF DR. JOHN HALL.

BELOVED BROTHERS AND SISTER.—Last evening the lodge room of the Good Templars was tastefully draped in mourning for the loss of their sister—the beloved one of your family—so unexpectedly taken into the inner life; when it was resolved that a letter conveying the sympathy of the Lodge in your deep affliction be presented to you, the undersigned being appointed a committee to draft and present the same, sending a copy to the Press and to the RESCUE for publication.

DEAR FRIENDS.—What can words do in such an affliction as yours? Yet we will hope the conveyance to you of our deep sympathy in your sad bereavement, and the assurance of our suffering, in degree, with you, may prove of some solace to your wounded spirits. How true are the words of the Good Book: "In the midst of life we are in death." That one so young, so pure, so ardent in her purposes for good, as some of us knew her to be, should be so suddenly taken from us, would be a deeper source of sorrow did we not possess faith in "Him who watches the sparrows fall," and hence who has a purpose of not only good to her, but to us also, in taking her so early out of the body. We know you have a faith in the inner life, and know that it is so closely connected with the outward that the dear one, though lost to outward sight, is not in reality taken from us, and may still reach those she loved so well with her sweet and pure influence. We cannot mourn for her, for we know that our loss is her gain. May this thot ever be with the brother she so tenderly loved, and raise him, indeed each of you, to a clearer and higher view of the spiritual as above the mere outward life. May this faith support and comfort you, and enable you to say with the one of old, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

MRS. LYDIA OVERTON,
GEORGE LEACH.

Riverside, May 11, 1882.

The intelligence of this most afflicting bereavement will be received with the deepest regret by the many friends of the stricken family and their kindest sympathies will go forth to them in this most unusual calamity, the loss of the brightest and best of the family circle. Nothing can be said; nothing can be done, nothing but the soothing healing hand of time can temper or mitigate so solem and pungent a grief as theirs.

OBJECTIONS TO THE "RESCUE."

ED. RESCUE:—Some newspapers and some few people assail the RESCUE as being too fanatic, too one-sided and so on; as it seems to be in order for objections I would like to give some of mine; will only ask space for the principal ones, viz:

I dont get the RESCUE but once a week; then the first thing is to read every thing in it, advertisements and all. Then I have got to wait six days before I get another, tho I put in the time by glancing over the Liberator, Anvil, Lever and other like matter.

The RESCUE is entirely too small; it ought to be four times as large as it is (for a weekly.)

The RESCUE dont advocate Woman Suffrage strong enough to suit me. Give me the woman's vote and I will drive the whisky party out of all the civilized world. Has not every barrel of strong drink been bathed with woman's tears of sorrow in every nation on earth? Is it not the poor helpless woman that suffers all the punishment of man's wrong doing? Is it not woman's honest and unceasing toil that raises man to every higher step of civilization? Was it not the woman that tilled the soil while our forefathers fot the savages in our country's early days? Is not the mark of the woman's toil upon every improvement that there is to-day in the land? Is it not in part the woman's hard earning that pays the enormous salaries of all our law-makers? Yes, in every public expense on the face of the globe, woman's hard earning must help to foot the bill. You tell me woman has no right to vote, especially in this FREE country. Tell me the woman is not as much entitled to every thing in these United States as man is. Tell me you can hurl the Andes Mountains into mid-ocean and I will believe you as readily as when you say that woman will much longer be deprived of her right to vote.

Considering the little space in the RESCUE I must close, tho I would like to write about 400 columns on this subject of so great importance. For the present I leave this for the consideration of candid thinkers and lovers of justice and American liberty. Yours for Prohibition and Woman's Suffrage, first, last and all the time. M. K.

Kingsbury, Fresno Co., Cal., May 10, 1882.

SENSIBLE TALK.

The supreme moment for a mighty moral revolution has come to Iowa. The people can vote for a constitutional amendment forbidding the manufacture and sale of spiritous and malt liquors. Such a privilege should cause every Christian to do his utmost. The religious press circulating in Iowa can help. The local press includes many excellent friends of prohibition. The hour has come, and that splendid State may add many millions to her wealth, and drive out a horde of rum-sellers who are a thousand times more destructive than cyclones, chinch bugs, grasshoppers and army-worms. The good people of that State can now rid themselves of a mighty curse, and they will do it. Let the expelled rum sellers move west. We shall be able, after awhile, to expel them from California and then they can go to China or Halifax, or into the sea with other sharks. Kansas has given herself a wonderful moral, social and political elevation by prohibiting the crime of crimes. Immigrants of the very best character are pouring into her borders. Crime is decreasing. Her prisons are becoming lonely. She is putting rum-sellers where they do the least harm, and all is well. We must not stop until we too, on this coast, put the ban of public reprobation on this atrocious and cruel business. It is foredoomed by God's righteous judgment, and civilization will hereafter be measured by the stringency of the statutes against a business that has no redeeming trait. It is a majestic spectacle to see a great people like those of Kansas and Iowa stamping out the greatest crime of the age. Iowa will unquestionably prohibit this unspeakable atrocity.—Cal. Christian Advocate.

The Lompoc Record heads that "Sensible Talk," but the RESCUE protests against that radical language. "Atrocious and cruel business;" "greatest crime of the age;" "unspeakable atrocity." It is too bad to talk of a respectable licensed business in that way. Almost as radical as the prime minister of England, Mr. Gladstone, who said the evils of drink equal the combined calamities of war, pestilence and famine. Call it pet names, people like it better; go and ask these people in a kindly way to quit and go into the ranch business and they will all quit of course.

TEMPERANCE WORK IN PASADENA.

The Good Templar's Lodge and the Presbyterian and Methodist churches of Pasadena recently elected a committee to arrange for active temperance work.

This committee, composed of four from each of the above bodies, accordingly met and arranged for a permanent organization to be known as the Pasadena Union Temperance League. Mr. James Cambell was elected president and C. H. Case secretary. They decided to hold a grand public meeting every quarter for which music, recitations, discussions etc., should be provided, for the purpose of interesting the people and awakening public sentiment. It was also arranged to secure as large a membership as possible to the organization. On joining this, one must not only agree to strive for the advancement of the temperance cause in general, but especially pledge himself not to raise or sell grapes for wine, nor in any way directly or indirectly, to engage in its manufacture, and to endeavor by every honorable means to prevent others from growing or selling grapes for the manufacture of wine.

OLD INSURANCE COMPANIES.

The old insurance companies were a very excellent institution for the insured who died in a few months or one or two years after taking out their policies. Of these there were ten to twenty of a thousand and from these (say 15) the companies received $600 and paid out 15,000 losing 14,400 on that part of their customers. But sametime the 985 other customers of the 1000 paid in $39,400 of which the company after paying its losses put away $25,000 as a comfortable nest egg to provide nice Delmonico dinners in the brilliant future. If the company had 10,000 customers they had a nest egg of $250,000 a year supposing all these were insured only for $1000—whereas probably the average amount insured was $3,000 which would treble their profits. After a little while of this prosperity the interest of the money derived from their generous patrons, if it had not been gambled away paid all the losses and thence the company could keep all their receipts from new policy holders as clear profit.

The way our Mutual Aid would stand at the end of a year with 1000 members would be $6000 to $7000 paid in and 6 or 7 death benefits paid amounting to all that money except a few dollars for expenses, and at the end of the year the Company would perhaps lay up $5 or $10 to help pay next years expenses or have to borrow that much to meet those of this year. A great difference to the payers between that and the $40,000 old style, all turkey for the company and all crow for the assured.

PHILOMATH, May 1, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—The RESCUE is the best temperance paper I can find, it is so full of Prohibition. I am sowing D. C. Cooks' publications in Benton Co. and scattering some posters thruout 2d judicial district. The nominations are now made and the temperance element should be selecting their candidates. I think the temperance men of both Democrats and Republicans have not been idle, for we have good men on either ticket in a shape that we can select a genuine temperance ticket. I have been voting temperance since 1872. I joined the Good Templars in 1866; soon after I joined I went with a friend to a grocery store at St. John, below Portland, Oregon; my friend called for a drink and asked me what I would take. I answered nothing stronger than pure cold water. He looked at me in surprise and asked, "What, Bijah, have you joined the Good Templars?" "Yes, I have." "Well, come take a drink with me, anyway, it wont hurt you, other Good Templars drink and so may you."

I informed him that Hillsboro Lodge made a strong impression upon my mind that the pledge was life long in duration and I should endeavor to keep it. The proprietor then pointing his finger at me said, "That's right, young man, stick to your pledge and it will make a man of you." At that time I did not know the full meaning of the entire pledge, but still I have all along kept the strong drink part of it. But the Good Templars' obligation reaches farther than simply abstaining from strong drink, for we pledge ourselves to discountenance the use and sale of all intoxicating drinks in all honorable ways; and let me say that the ballot box is the most honorable way we can discountenance the use and sale of intoxicants by voting for sound temperance men and a man who has taken the I. O. G. T. pledge, violates it when he votes for a whisky man or even moderate drinker. And now, Good Templars of Oregon, shall we pick out the best men in either party and elect them next June or will some of you vote for W. S. McFadden (a whisky ring leader) of Benton Co. for judge of 2d judicial district. For my part I shall vote for R. S. Bean, of Lane Co., for he is a temperance man. I will not vote for a whisky man if I know it, for I firmly believe I would be violating my pledge. And I believe the saloon man's advice was good, "stick to your pledge, young man, and it will make a man of you."

Then brothers in the temperance cause of Oregon let us fulfil our obligation on the 5th of June 1882 by giving a rous ng vote for the temperance candidates of either party.

How will the following men suit the temperance voters of the 2d Judicial District consisting of Benton, Polk, Lane, Douglass, and Coose counties.

DEMOCRATIC.

For Supreme Judge, E. D. Shattuck. (A 1.)

REPUBLICAN.

For State Treasurer, Edward Hirsch. (*)
For State Printer, W. H. Byars. (*)
For Circuit Judge, R. S. Bean. (G. T., A 1.)
For Congress, Hon. M. C. George. (G. T., A 1.)

If there are any whisky drinkers among the above list I would be thankful to be informed by Good Templars thru the RESCUE. Brothers of Oregon let us hear from you on this subject.

Yours Fraternally, E. A. JACKSON.

G. T., means Good Templar; A 1. a sound temperance man, and *, I am not sure.

SALINAS, Cal., May 5, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Inclosed I send a report of our District Lodge as published in the Salinas Index. The editor attended the evening meetiug and wrote his own report which indicates our appreciation in the community.

Our saloons are all quiet on the Sabbath, but their keepers say, "It will be lightning on us, if this state of things continues through harvest." The boldest saloonkeeper in the place, the last man who paid his fine on two complaints, is now, we think, on his dying bed, having been stabbed by a bar-tender a few nights ago.

We expect sharp work here for the next three months to save the harvest hands in the valley.

A. K. CRAWFORD.

GREATEST SINGLE BLESSING.

"The drinking of intoxicating liquors has probably conferred more comfort and happiness upon mankind during the long ages it has been in vogue than any other single blessing the good God has bestowed upon his children."—Beaufort's Wine and Spirit Circular.

Than any other single blessing in the same line it should have said. Leprosy, smallpox, plague, cholera, famine, war, earthquakes etc., have conferred a good deal of that kind of happiness that the rumseller has done; but the latter gives us the effects of all combined and all the time in place of at intervals. Truly the happiness of the red nosed, bleareyed lepers of the brewery must be great, to see the infinitely expansive and well crowded hell which they have established here on earth.

"Our very estimable San Francisco contemporary, the RESCUE, has adopted a new mode of spelling by which the sound of the word is all that is taken in account, thus: thru, tho, bot, etc. Following out this rule to the letter, as our contemporary does other rules, should it not spell its own name 'Res-q?'"

That way or "Resku" it ot to be speld certainly, and it would be so, and a good many ill-favored excrescences would be lopped off from certain words in this journal but for one reason. There are a great many of the best and kindest of friends who would be distressed if any further improvements were made, because they have not been accustomed to see any but the old fashioned mode of spelling. If Brother Halliday and other advocates of reform would only help the RESCUE and the few journals, (200 or so), who use the only possible means of introducing a change, by beginning it at home, we should soon pave the way for a uniform method of fonetik spelling. There can be no possible apology offered for the use of a letter that does not represent an absolute sound or for using a hieroglific like through to stand for thru, or coughffph for cof, or beauty for buty. If we had not been accustomed to these outrages from childhood—had not been born as it were, in slavery to a wicked manner of misspelling our butiful language—we would every one of us enlist in a fifteen years war to resist it, if a government or faction of a government should attempt to impose it upon us. The change is coming, friends: it always cost much effort and opposition to divert the world from idol worship.

CANADA.

The Census of Canada in 1881 shows:

Catholics	1,791,982
Methodists	742,981
Presbyterians	676,165
Episcopals	574,818
Baptists	296,525
Lutherans	46,350
Adventists	7,211
Jews	2,393
Other denominations	92,504
Not given	86,769
No religion	2,634
Pagans	4,478
	4,324,810

The Methodists have increased in 10 years 26½ per cent; the Roman Catholics 15⅓ per cent, and the Presbyterians, Baptists and Episcopalians together 12 per cent. The stronghold of the Catholics is in the province of Quebec, where they number 1,170,718; their increase is mostly due to the rapid natural increase of the French Canadians. The Methodists are beyond all others the advocates of temperance and that seems to be full and sufficient reason why they should more than doubly outstrip all the other protestant denominations in their progress.

PLEASE READ WITH CARE

On page 450 our good Brother Brook's Psalm of May which is as redolent of sweet fragrance as the May flowers we used to gather in the way down East if the snow was gone so early. Then on 451 be sure to pay your homage to Miss Weston, and earnestly invoke a copious blessing upon our noble sister and her work. The G. S. J. W. and Miss Guthrie and others have provided for the Juveniles; and above all, read Bro. McMillan's address to the Ministers, which it is hoped they especially and all the RESCUE family will carefully read. And don't forget Bro. McMillan's Decoration Day poem, on page 434 in the RESCUE of May 11th, which is a very admirable and appropriate production.

IN OTHER STATES.

ENGLAND.—A young lady in Birmingham, a total abstainer was at the head of 17 who passed a first-class educational examination out of 1141 contestants. At Batter Sea Training College there were 42 members of a total abstinence society and 11 of a moderation society; the whole 42 passed first-class and only 2 out of the 11 did so. That looks radical, don't it?

THE Retailer, of New York, in a recent editorial says: "The Sunday liquor law must go. It is a folly, an injustice, a sham. Away with it. Such a menace to the trade cannot be borne."

This is the sentiment of the liquor traffic the world over. No other known traffic takes such a position on the Sunday question. Now how is it that while the liquor traffic is a mortal enemy to the Christian Sabbath and to everything that centers in the Christian Sabbath, not more than one in ten of the members of the Christian churches are really doing anything to destroy this traffic?—Lever.

MICHIGAN has a Good Templars Insurance concern which is progressing finely.

IN OHIO the leag of fiendom desired to incorporate a rebel conspiracy to defeat the Sunday law, but the Attorney General informed them it could not be done in Ohio.

THE WAY to say "total abstinence society" in the Danish language is "Totalafholdswirksomheden," which would be handier for transportation purposes if it was sawn up into about four lengths.

IN CAMPBELTOWN the great whisky making center of Scotland, a part of the estate of the Duke of Argyle, a recent census found the attendance at the grogshops from 8 to 11 Saturday evening to be 1869 men, 760 women and 377 children in all 3,006 in a population of 9749. A previous census of church attendance March 19th showed 2953. Almost every body went to church in Scotland 40 years ago but the church signed a truce with the national Anti-Christ and if the temperance reform had not stood up in these latter days, it would some day have been all Anti-Christ and no church.

IRELAND:—The report that Ireland has consumed more money in whisky every year than all her land rents amount to has been rabidly denied by people who know nothing about it. By the Sacramento Bee especially. A government return recently issued shows the fact however unwelcome it may be, as follows:

For the year ending March 31, 1880:

The taxes paid on spirits, malt, beer, wine, etc., were	$17,454,590
The taxes on tobacco were	5,957,260

It is conceded that to produce one doliar of revenue four must be expended by the drink consumers, therefore Ireland whose land rents are about 55 million dollars a year spends in the time about 68 million on a useless pauperizing drink and about ten million on poisonous loafer breeding tobacco. The other taxes in Ireland amount to $6,769,415. The compulsory tax there is a trifle compared with the voluntary as elsewhere. The tax on drink and tobacco in England is 140 million; in Scotland 24 million; the other taxes in England 125 million; in Scotland 12 million.

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.—NEW YORK, MAY 9:—The National Temperance Society to-day re-electod William E. Dodge President. The receipts of the year were $60,000; expenditures, $60,000. Resolutions were adopted heartily congratulating the friends of temperance thruout the land upon their marked progress. Chronicle, 10 May. One of the signs of that progress is the telegraphing of that item by the associated Press. But a very few years ago a temperance item would have been indignantly rejected unless it had been a report by some John Smith to the effect that drnnkenness was terribly on the increase in prohibitory Maine.

THE VERY LATEST remedy for the evils of intemperance has been discovered by the Chairman of the Quarter Sessions of Manchester, England. He suggests to his countrymen in that quarter that they ot to give up altogether the custom of wearing clogs (heavy wooden shoes) because the practice of kicking their wives to death with those clogs has become so prevalent. The venerable Magistrate and philanthropist thinks the life of a woman might often be saved if after returning from his leag of Fiendom club, a drunken husband had light leather shoes on, in place of clogs, with which to impart to the mother of his children the private work of the Leag of Fiendom, It is suggested to Mr. Shaeffer that the introduction of clogs into California by the Leag might be a useful adjunct to the business of his Order. The tax upon the workingmen imposed by the custom of wearing leather shoes when they and their families buy any is a hardship to the drunkard makers. If the workingmen and wives had good wooden shoes the mens beer money would be largely increased and Mr. Shaeffers friends largely enriched.

E. W. PIPER.—Some men are a Good Templar's Lodge in themselves. Bro. E. W. Piper left San Francisco some months ago and soon after his lodge died. But we find him soon L. D. of Wasatch Lodge No. 6, at Ogden, Utah, with a membership of 40, three-fourth of whom attend regularly; and they have adopted for their seal the emblem of departed Kentucky Lodge of S. F. Wherever Bro. Piper goes there will pretty certainly be a lodge.

IT APPEARS that the Jews who are persecuted in Russia are the principal rum-sellers in that country. In various communities, Jews have been refused any more license to sell spirits. It don't pay even Hebrews to be liquor sellers; the chickens come home to roost badly diseased.

BRO. A. PETERSON, of New York (4 Fourth Avenue), has published a "Sallskapet Good Templars" which is a Swedish tract of 38 pages explaining the principles, aims and systems of the I. O. G. T. He has chosen a most useful and necessary field to occupy, and it is a pity that a thousand tons of temperance literature in the German, Swedish, Italian and French languages could not be circulated every year in this country. It is hoped Bro. Peterson has spelt spritdvyckshandteringen right. The RESCUE is a little uneasy about the proper orthography of that word. Price 35 cents.

ESSAY ON TEMPERANCE,

Read before the Ministerial Association of Visalia District Southern California Conference, M. E. Church, May 3, 1882, by Rev. John A. McMillan.]

The "Temperance Movement" has reached that stage of development in which it appeals to the citizen, as such for support. The days of "Moral Suasion," as a method for the suppression of intemperance, have passed away. It has proved too congenial to the "liquor interests," for under its sway and despite its utmost efforts, the consumption of intoxicating liquors has steadily increased. While many individual drunkards have been reclaimed a greater number have fallen victims to the dread scourge; so that to-day, drunkenness is increasing with all its attendant evils. Deaths by this cause are more, instead of fewer, each succeeding year. By sad experiences, and oft repeated lessons, the friends of humanity, in the Temperance ranks, have learned that the suppression of intemperance and the reclaiming of the victims of "alcoholism" are quite diverse things.

It has been, at last, discovered that Niagara cannot be stopped by catching the water in buckets, as it falls over the precipice. The rushing, roaring, seathing torrent above laughs at such puny efforts. While every effort for the reclamation of individual victims of drunkenness ought, and shall be, sustained, because of the value of a single life, there must be some other method by which the torrent of intemperance shall be stopped. We must go farther up the stream and shut off the supply. In casting about for the most effective means by which to accomplish this, the following discoveries were made: 1st. The Liquor Traffic is established by law; 2d to disestablish it will require the repeal of existing laws, and the enactment and enforcement of other and better laws; 3d law, in our country is supposed to be the expression of the will of the people; 4th the will of the people is made known at the ballot-box. Hence the final appeal must be made to the people, or, rather to that portion of them who are permitted to exercise the highest prerogative of citizenship, viz., the franchise of the ballot. For the last twelve years this has been done. For the next century if need be, it shall be done, and until victory shall be complete. But we are confident that a much shorter period than that will accomplish the desired end, or shake the continent with convulsions of revolution; "for the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land;" for, "by swearing and lying, and killing, and stealing, and committing adultery, they break out, and blood toucheth blood." These all being the well-known and direct fruits of the authorized traffic in alcohol. With the greater confidence, then, is appeal made to the servants of God, and, through them, to the Christian citizens of the land for aid in this warfare. Indeed it is rightly expected that the Christian Ministry, closely followed by the Christian people, shall be at the very fore-front of the battle. And shall this expectation be doomed to disappointment? I am sure it will not. In this favored land there can, by the will of Christian people, be more of the cardinal principles of righteousness, with less of dogmatism and sectarianism, wrought into our laws than has ever been possible in any other nation. In the face of this, how great the responsibility of Christian citizenship! To have harmony betwen our laws and the laws of God should be our highest aim, as citizens. But what fellowship hath the throne of iniquity which frameth mischief by a law," with Him who is "of purer eyes than to behold evil, and can not look on iniquity."

But we, as a people, are they who "frameth mischief by a law." And what mischief! Just look at the appaling catalogues! 70,000 lives sacrificed annually and that, too, with the fearful denunciation of Scripture, "no drunkard shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven." 30,000 widows, and 100,000 orphans, are made each 12 months, to tax the liberality and ingenuity of good men to provide for them. There are 500 maniacs, and 500 driven to suicide every year; with 250 murderers. And beside this 500,000 other criminals consigned to our prisons and these with untold numbers un detected, are the direct fruits of this infamous business. Did ever anythiug approach it in its immensity of horrible iniquity? Is this sufficient to exclude the fellowship of God from our government? If not, how much "iniquity" and "mischief" must be "framed by a law" to incur God's wrath? This traffic is not only authorized, but protected by law, which law is supposed to be the will of the people, which will has been repeatedly expressed, by actual test, at the ballot-box. Therefore, we, as voters, are individually responsible for this awful condition of things to the extent of our individual will as expressed by our votes at every election where there is an issue. And for this responsibility will not God hold us to a strict account? If the first great object of human government is the preservation of human life, where is to be found a question of equal importance to this?

But viewing the question in its moral aspect; and in its relation to, and influence upon the spread of the Gospel, we, as Ministers of the Gospel, can but realize that in the liquor interests is found our greatest obstacle, and our mightiest enemy. To overthrow this should command our utmost effort, and, as it can be effectually overthrown only by the ballot, we should regard it a religious duty to see to it that our voice and vote should ever be used to this end. And that the traffic can be overthrown only by the ballot has become painfully apparent by the repeated denial of, and refusal to listen to the hundreds of thousands of petitions presented at every meeting of our State and National Legislatures. And is it any wonder that the best interests of the people are so persistently despised when we reflect upon the class of men who are usually sent to frame our laws? Even at the funeral of our late lamented President what disgrace and shame was imposed upon us by our National Representatives.

The Washington Correspondent of the New York Herald tells us that the expenses of the members of the House of Representatives alone were about $7000,00 "including $1700.-00 paid for champagne, brandy, whisky, cigars, and lunch," adding that $300,00 were charged for cocktails." And a Republican member of the House is reported by the N. Y. Tribune as saying, "There was an unlimited quantity of wine and a very expensive lunch. Some Congressmen took too much wine, and, the truth is, I became very much disgusted. It appeared as though a great many Congressmen thought the journey was a grand junketing trip instead of a funeral procession." Now can we be so blinded by prejudice, or anything else, as to expect wise and wholesome legislation from such men? But why are such men elected to such high responsibility? Because they are the recognized candidates of a great political party, and for no other reason. Their moral fitness is never called in question. But why do the great political parties nominate such men? Because of the influences they can wield at the polls by means of the very vices we complain of. But will these great political parties not give us better men if we ask them? Not in the line of temperance men. They have been asked again and again, and as often have either positively refused or have promised only to deceive. Take the Republican party for example: What has been for years its policy and still is, well expressed by the Chicago Tribune in the following language: "Prohibition must be prohibited in the Republican party." And the N.Y. Times has said; "The temperance societies could not possibly get an out-and-out temperance man nominated. They know this as well as we do." And Harper's Weekly, a strong exponent of Republican party opinion, said as follows: "The Republican party is certainly not a Prohibition party. As the best sentiment of the country agrees that the subject shall be legislatively treated by authorizing a license system, the Republicans would make this as just and efficient as practicable. Further than this, as a national party, they will not go, and the attempt to buy the Prohibition support by adopting a Prohibition platform could end only in the destruction of the party." Thus it declares itself not only opposed to prohibitory legislation, but as pledged to that which temperance people most of all deprecate, the license system. Now, is it not time that we should look this matter squarely in the face?

As a national political party, there is certainly no shadow of hope for aid from the Republican party; and it is equally so with all the other purely political parties, the Greenback party excepted. And in our own state, apart from national politics, there is as little hope for aid from that source, while a leader of the party and U. S. Senator is a wholesale liquor dealer; and many others prominent in political circles are interested in the traffic. And yet the great evil must be overcome, if overcome at all, at the ballot-box. What are we to do? The history of the Republican party itself gives us a valuable precedent, viz: Organize on this issue. And as that party swept all before it on the slavery issue, so shall this, eventually, on the prohibition issue. And the same class of men who so nobly led that to success will lead this also; foremost among whom, I am confident, will be found the preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Indeed, they are to be found among the originators of the movement in flattering numbers; and at least one whole Conference has taken formal action, declaring itself in favor of the Prohibition party; while all the others have repeatedly pronounced for the legal prohibition of the liquor traffic.

Now, it will not satisfy an awakened conscience to say that public sentiment is not yet prepared for prohibitory legislation. Public sentiment never was and probably never will be prepared for any moral reformation until the depraved nature of the race is regenerated. It is folly to expect such a state, and criminal to wait for it. Public sentiment was not prepared for the reception of the law at Mount Sinai. Public sentiment was not prepared for the advent of the Savior with His "perfect law of love." And public sentiment will not be prepared for prohibition until it is enacted and creates sentiment for itself as it has done in Maine, Vermont and Kansas.

But that the public is prepared to test such a law has been proved in almost every state in the Union, if it could be had thru existing political machinery; but to leave the dear old party (even tho it has positively declared against the best wishes of the people), for the mere overthrow of the liquor traffic, with its little list of evils seems too much to ask. In short, political prejudice is the one great hindrance to this cause so fraught with welfare to the state, the home and the Church. Never has any other question, with such a maximum of good and such a minimum of evil been presented to the American people for consideration.

Now this great question is before us, demanding our voice from the pulpit, our prayers and our votes. As Christian citizens we are called upon to weigh well the whole matter, with as little prejudice as possible, with the fear of God and the welfare of humanity ever before us. By the experiences of the past, in the light of the present, and for the hope of the future let us look at this matter. God is surely working in this cause; let us see to it that He will not be obliged to cast us aside to make room for better instruments. "For God and Home and Native Land" is the watchword; send it out with a shout! for in the strength of the Lord we will conquer.

FROM THE "CHRISTIAN WORKER."

"What will the people say" as a maxim for life, causes more fret and anguish than hay fever, boils, and tight shoes combined. The dread of the people's tongues makes homeless the mind and hypocritical the life. Fear God rather than man.

It is about time that the scribes were discussing the gallows as a converting power and means of grace. It seldom fails. There are but few exceptions. Then, too, the value of Gallows' Religion would perhaps be a profitable theme. Will it save?

The Worker has espoused for life the temperance cause and will devote all its powers and energies especially to such Minister's Movements as in Kentucky, and to Church Prohibition. We have a foretaste of the opposition provoked by such a conflict. We have nailed our flag to the mast and if we go down we will sink flying our colors. Let the Ministers of every State rally without regard to creed or color, hold a State Convention, and form county alliances thruout the State to help beat back and suppress the liquor traffic, the crime of crimes, and most prolific source of vice and sin. Bro. ministers, one and all, do you favor a State convention of ministers in your State to take counsel together as to the best means to carry on the temperance war? Report it, and the Worker will take active steps to bring it about. We will make a specialty of this work, and our large and general circulation will make us no mean ally. Note Kentucky, Texas and Missouri, and be cheered to make a beginning. Report now."

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

NEW TEMPERANCE LESSON-LEAF.

The National Temperance Society has just published a new temperance lesson-leaf, by Rev. W. F. Crafts, entitled, "Save the Boys from the Demon of Drink." No. 17; 4 octavo pages. It contains the full text of the lesson, home readings, golden text, responsive reading, hints and questions, illustrations, blackboard exercises, music, hymns, etc. It is one of the best of the series, and can be used on the last Sabbath in the quarter or at such time as is set apart for a temperance service. 50 cents per hundred. Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York City. [Sample extracts in this issue of the RESCUE.]

A gentleman now traveling in Kansas has written the following concerning the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law in that State:

"I have visited twenty towns, cities and county seats in this State. I have gone into these places at all hours of the day and night, and have had excellent opportunity to know what is going on in hotels, billiard rooms, restaurants and all such resorts. I have made it my business, in fact, very largely to go into these places, for the purpose of seeing for myself and to find out just how far the prohibitory law amounts to anything. I have talked with all sorts of people—ministers and merchants, saloon men and hotel keepers, and after the best investigation of the whole matter which I can make, I am convinced that the law is working well, and is every day growing more popular. In Fort Scott, where I am writing, every liquor dealer has been driven out of the business. Eighteen cases have been before the court, and seventeen convictions secured. Eleven of these trials have put over $1,000 into the school fund. In six, the saloonists paid the costs, and have given their unequivocal allegiance to the law. What is true here is also true of sixteen other county seats that I have visited. St. John will surely be renominated, and will be elected by a larger majority than ever before." This is the testimony of a disinterested business man.—Ex.

AMONG our contemporaries who are doing good service in the field, we prize none more highly than our good friend the RESCUE. While faithfully representing all branches of the Temperance work, and being the official organ of the Good Templars, it gives a full page to the California W. C. T. U., and has always a good word for us and our work. We are always glad to see the clear type of the RESCUE on our library table, and to read—as an editor reads—the breezy articles and well-selected news.—Our Union.

WE value the RESCUE very highly and thank the Grand Lodge for sending it, says Rev. A. J. Compton, and many similar kindly notes are frequently received. The receipt of a dozen or two such almost reconcile one to be resigned under the potent calamity of a notice from a high toned gentleman in Tipton "that he would not have such a thing in the house," and another that he "don't want none such paper."

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!

GREAT OFFER FOR

Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH

GET GOOD AND DO GOOD

WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free—one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers.
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.

For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.

For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each contains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

TEMPERANCE WORK.

HOW TO DO IT.

The Temperance Worker.—A new paper devoted exclusively to methods of temperance work. The great need of the day is practical information on how to get hold of temperance work. The "Temperance Worker" aims to supply this need—a four-page, twenty column paper, published by "THE REVOLUTION," one number each month; costs but 30c. a year. In clubs of five or more, each to separate addresses, 25c. per year; sold by the hundred at 1c. per copy. No. 1 tells all about juvenile temperance work and how to do it; No. 2, the press; No. 3, general distribution of literature. No. 1 is now ready; should be in the hands of all day-school and Sunday-school workers; send 3c. stamp for sample copy. Address, The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, 148 Madison St., Chicago.

When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

At the last moment comes a delayed letter from the R. W. G. T. at Cincinnati, all well and in good spirits.

Shipherd.—It is a pity that any notice should be taken of that pirate. Every one who reads his testimony must know that every word of it is false and every act of the man a fraud. It is a pity too that such a despicable lawless sharper should be able to get the ear of our congressman and public men.

Messrs. Rouse and Laws, 306 Davis St., is the place to send all your produce to and get all your business properly and honestly attended to. Get square, sober men to attend to your commission business. Temperance people should pull together.

It appears the Supreme Court have affirmed the constitutionality of the law which prohibits the sale of liquor within a distance of two miles (or one mile?) of the University, but they also decide that the law don't apply to malt liquors. After removing the stock, the lock, and the barrel, the gun now consisting of the ramrod, is to all intents and purposes a good serviceable and genuine weapon. The University will now be a very unsafe place for students. But there are other institutions where as good an education can be had with much less risk of the young men being tempted by those who seek their ruin.

A penny saved is two gained. How to get a copy of the Rescue free. Go to Nolan Bros., 812 Market St., San Francisco, and save $1.25 on a pair of shoes, or get two pairs and subscribe for a copy for yourself and one for your friend, and have the satisfaction of getting the best shoes that can be found fn the State.

Subscriptions and renewals this week: Salinas, 1; Frankford, W. Va., 1; Gilroy, 1; Galt, (Mrs. Stevens) 2; Ventura 1; Spokan Falls, W. T., 1; Ukiah 1; Mrs. Richardson, (Stockton 1; Davisville 1; S. F. 1) 3; (Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Richardson, San Francisco 33; Mrs. E. Peckenpah (Guerneville 5; Aledo. Ill. 1) 6. In all 50.

After you get your eyes so damaged by quack treatment, that you can't read a six feet theatre poster when you run against it, the wisest thing to do is to go and see if Dr. Paugh, 640 Clay street, can help you. That is where you ot to have gone first, but people like to waste $50 or $100 before they go some place to get cured. It is human nature to do that.

The Mrs. Hayes pictures ordered have all been delivered; so our good sisters of the W. N. C. T. U. report. If any one entitled to one of those pictures thru the Rescue, has by any possible oversight been omitted and has not received it, please notify this office at once. Would rather make the mistake of sending five too many than omit to send one promised. Lots more pictures to be had of Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, N. Y.

Schetzel, Shaeffer & Co.—On Sunday week the Leag of Fiendom had a public exhibition of the workings of their business. A well-dressed young man of 17 years, son of a liquor seller in this city was very drunk on the cars in Alameda. The passengers were laughing at his condition when a lady present was so shocked that she removed to another car; a few minutes after the boy victim of the Schetzel and Shaffer leag was crushed to pieces under the car wheels. But the leag had not so large a crop of murders as usual that week after the Troy fratricide.

Brandy of 1820.—At a banquet recently given by Republican Senators at Washington, the bill of fare contained among other vile potato whisky mixtures, champagne of 1874 and brandy of 1820. Perhaps the miserable idiots who drank those frauds, paid $10 a bottle for them, and never suspected the truth that neither of them was a year old nor cost more than 20 cents a gallon exclusive of the revenue tax. People who believe there is brandy for sale anywhere in the U. S., that is 10 years old, are credulous to the extent of silliness.

Unfermented Wine.—There must be a mistake in that recipe for making unfermented wine. There can be no possible utility in bottling up that quart of water in a country where it rains. Without that the recipe is probably correct; the water is perhaps to be added when used. If the grape juice is boiled to half its volume and canned or bottled perfectly like fruit, it cannot spoil; or if well boiled for a little while and properly sealed and kept in a very cool place it will keep for years. To make a few gallons is expensive, but unfermented table wine of excellent wholesome, nourishing quality, if made by the 1,000 or 10,000 gallons should cost something like 50 cents a gallon or less.

The Pacific Bank keeps on the even tenor of its way; its volume of business continually rolling up every year like the big snowballs we used to roll over in the Eastern winter, till they became so solid and ponderous they could be no more moved. But they melted away in the spring and the Pacific Bank dont do anything like that. With every roll over of its monthly transactions, new evidences accumulate of its safe and careful management and of the ever increasing confidence of all classes of the public in its perfect integrity and ability. And while its guarantees of absolute security are undoubted by the most hesitating of skeptics, the well known generous helpfulness of its president to all the good and beneficent interests of the city and State, creates a wholesome and helpful good will and kindly feeling on the part of the good and true citizenship of California, which will be an important link in the chain of influences that will place the Pacific, the first and favorite bank of the State far out of reach of all competitors.

Correspondents of the Rescue seem all to think the whole paper is put in type and printed on Tuesday afternoon, for every body chooses that time to have their articles reach for publication "this week." One side of the paper, the 2d and 3rd and alternate pairs of pages, has to go to press Saturday to get its turn among a lot of other journals. On the other side there is not much space and there is always enough in type on Monday evening to fill it. Then on Tuesday come perhaps a dozen communications, some of which get in by crowding out something else and some get left out—when they would have been preferable to some other matter printed on the first side that cant be crowded out. Anything but very short items might just as well be a day or too sooner as not.

The New Organ.—"Oh! my husband," said the newly-married wife up at Red Bluff, "what possessed you to buy that organ; you know we can't afford that now; oh! you have gone in debt and that is going to be a skeleton in the closet, keeping us in trouble all the year; that organ must have cost you ever so much." "Don't be alarmed," was the reply, "I made a discovery this time. I found a place in San Francisco where I saved about 50 per cent on the carpet and got a beauty too; saved about 30 per cent on the bedding and chamber sets, and chairs, etc., and got such reductions on all my other furniture by getting it at Terry's, 747 Market St., that I had $125 left to go to Sherman & Clay's and get this instrument for you, and in place of being a skeleton in the closet it shall be a live ornament in the parlor. And now go out and tell your neighbors where to go and buy their house fixings and get an organ thrown in gratis.

The grogshop furnishes nearly all the business done in all our police and criminal courts; the rumseller is always before the State Legislature and Congress to get laws passed or laws repealed, and whenever a law does not suit the rumseller he sets it at open defiance. When a case in any court is decided against him in spite of his bribery and perjury, he appeals to a higher court and keeps on appealing and violating without the least respect to either law or court that he cannot force or bribe to give him perfect freedom to rob and murder the people just as he pleases. Same way everywhere. In New Brunswick a local option law was declared by a whisky-loving Supreme Court unconstitutional, because only the Dominion could regulate trade. Then when the Dominion Parliament passed a similar local option law, the same drink-depraved Judges ate their own words and declared it had nothing to do with trade, and as only the provinces could deal with licenses and police matters it was null and void. But the Supreme Court of Canada declared otherwise and then the rum-seller violated the decision to which he had appealed; was fined in a Justice Court, appealed from one to another, and even at last to the privy council of England, where the case was being argued May 3d. And when it goes against the rum thug he will go right along thieving and killing on the sly. The only law he regards is law bribed and blinded and sold out to crime.

ONLY SIXTEEN.

Only sixteen, so the papers say,
Yet, there on the cold stony ground he lay,
'Tis the same sad story we hear every day,
He came to his death in the public highway,
Full of promise, talent and pride;
Yet the rum fiend conquered him so he died.
Did not the angels weep over the scene,
For he died a drunkard, and only sixteen,
Only sixteen!

Oh, it were sad he must die all alone,
That of all his friends, not even one,
Was there to list to his last faint and moan,
Or point the suffering soul to the throne
Of grace, that if perchance God's only Son
Would say "whosoever will may come."
But we hasten to draw a veil over the scene,
With his God we leave him and only sixteen,
Only sixteen!

Rumseller come view the work you have wrought,
Witness the suffering and pain you have brought
To the poor boy's friends, they loved him so well,
And yet you dared the vile beverage to sell,
That beclouded his brain, his reason dethroned,
And left him to die out there all alone.
What if 'twere your son instead of another's
What if your wife was that poor boy's mother,
And he only sixteen!

Ye freeholders who sign the petition to grant
License to sell, do you think you will want
That record to meet in the last great day,
When heaven and earth shall have passed away;
When the elements melting with fervent heat,
Shall proclaim the triumph of right complete.
Will you wish to have his blood on your hands
When before the great throne we shall each stand,
And he only sixteen!

Christian men rouse ye to stand for the right,
To action and duty into the light,
Come with your banner inscribed, death to rum!
Let your conscience speak, listen, then come,
Strike killing blows, hew to the line;
Make it a felony even to sign
A petition to license, you would do it I ween,
If that were your son, and he only sixteen,
Only sixteen!

—Living Issue.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS.

BY B. W. RICHARDSON, M. D., F. R. S.

XIX.—ALCOHOL AND HISTORY.

We get to see that thru history there is a great deal to be learned in regard to what have been the failures of nations. Historians now are beginning to look up, and say there were great wars at various times—how did they spring up? Who were the men that led them? They look at those great wars that led to the American Revolution. Who were the statesmen? Why they were the statesmen who were always in wine. Look at the great riots and troubles that have arisen. What was their origin? Wine and strong drink. Even Alexander the Great is spoken of as "Alexander the Drunkard," and it is known that he died intoxicated. Historians will soon be able to pick from the history of the past that which was sober and that which was drunken in the history of mankind and of nations.

XX.—ALCOHOL AND LEGISLATION.

We have scored a point in legislation. Twenty-one years ago no statesmen would have dared to have thought of legislation as touching the English Juggernaut. On the contrary, he would let our people roll under its wheels, and be killed wholesale, and think nothing about it; but now it is the ambition of statesmen to lead the van, and by and by Sir Wilfrid Lawson would have more compeers, perchance, than he liked, were it not that his heart is as sound as his head.

XXI.—ALCOHOL AND OURSELVES.

Lastly, we have given up the notion pretty generally—those who are men of science and of thot—of alcohol as a necessity. That general expression of alcohol as a necessity has passed from our minds by the accumulated evidence derived from so many sources. We speak now of this as a plague, and we say it produces fever, and it kills: we speak of this as a pestilence, for we say that it infects, and spreads, and devastates. Twenty-one years ago we used to hear in our churches the ministers say: "From plague, pestilence, and famine, from battle and murder, and from sudden death"—and we used to hear the congregation give the response—"Good Lord deliver us." Now, by the knowledge we have, we say yes, and plague, and pestilence, and famine, battle, murder, and sudden death are all more or less linked up with this one agent; and we declare that if we could say, and not only say, but insure ourselves that we were delivered from this one agent, then the rest of our deliverance were indeed at hand.

THE END.

RIVERSIDE.

BY ELDER M. V. WRIGHT; NUMBER THREE.

CLIMATE.

After a residence of nearly nine years here, aided by a careful investigation thru reading of books and papers and by frequent opportunities of converse with persons who have visited various parts of the world, including the world-renowned Italy, and the far-famed Florida, I most candidly believe there is not a finer or more desirable climate on the globe, than that of Southern Cal. There are reasons why it is preferable to the above named localities. Their climate, I am told, is much damper and more oppressive and closer, both summer and winter, owing to the fact of a much greater and more frequent rainfall. They have more or less rain thruout the entire year, while the rainfall here is almost wholy confined to three or four months of the year. We have, strictly speaking, but two seasons instead of four, namely, wet and dry. Our wet season is between November and April; we do not perhaps have a week of cloudy weather altogether during the remainder of the year and seldom more than one good shower of a few hours duration. Scarcely does a year ever pass which does not contain more than a hundred consecutive days without a drop of rain or even the appearance of a cloud as large as a man's hand. This causes our atmosphere to be exceedingly dry and free from malaria, so that fevers are comparatively little known in this portion of the State. This long dry season of ours may not appear to the distant reader who has to depend so much upon rain, to be a very inviting feature of our climate, but we who live here are perfectly satisfied with the arrangement and would not have it otherwise if we could, with the exception we dont want the above named shower during the summer, as it sometimes spoils the dry feed on our plains. If enough snow and rain would fall in the mountains to supply abundant water for irrigation, fruit growers would prefer that never a drop of rain would fall in the valleys, if it were not for the stock and the grain raisers. Again our Eastern readers are apt to get a wrong impression in regard to our rainy season and think that when it commences to rain that there is no let up to it for the whole season. On the contrary it seldom rains over a day and night at a time and then may clear off and not rain another drop for a week or two. So that our roads are seldom muddy and umbrellas are almost unknown. But, asks some one, does not this long continued rainless season make the heat of your summers almost unendurable? I answer, No. We have a truly heterogeneous population made up of people from not only almost every State and territory in the Union, but also from the British Isles, Australia, Spain, Germany, France, Norway and Sweden, Mexico and South America, with a small delegation from China; also quite a large number of honest, enterprising and prosperous Canadians and yet all of these testify that the heat in summer in their respective countries is more oppressive than it is here. The thermometer seldom gets to 100° in the shade and very seldom as high as 110° and I am satisfied that we do not feel the heat as much at a hundred degrees here as the people do back in any of the States or Canada at 90° or perhaps even 80°. This is owing to the following reasons, namely: Almost every day during the dry months a strong, cooling health-laden breeze comes from the ocean tempering our atmosphere. This breeze begins about 10 o'clock generally and continues unabated until sundown and then commences a light counter inland breeze from the mountains across the valley and continues until morning, thereby making it very pleasant all thru the night. I doubt if any other country in the world affords so much rest and comfort at night to the tired and weary laborer. I do not think that there are a dozen nights in the year that the sleeper will not require from two to a half dozen covers over him. I do not remember of ever having slept a night in the State without needing a blanket or two over me nearly all night and yet the air is so pure and free from dampness that one can sleep out doors on the ground for months during the dry season without danger of taking cold. While you, my reader, are tossing and rolling from side to side of your couch and fuming and fretting about the heat, we are enjoying the sleep of the innocent.

If you are very industrious and love work for the fun of it, this is the place for you; just come right along. You can work out doors comfortably with your coat off during at least three hundred days of the year and yet some people are not satisfied with that, but work more or less on the Sabbath.

If the weather becomes too warm for us, there is a remedy at hand. We can harness up our teams and hie us away to the mountains and spend our time in exploring their canyons, drinking their pure sparkling waters and resting in the shadow of their tall pines, or if we prefer we may pay a visit to the grand old Pacific, bathe in his waters and listen, entranced and awed by the wild, unceasing song of his rolling, restless waves.

Our winter in some respects is the most charming and pleasant portion of the year. It answers to your spring. It is then that the landscape which has for so many months been naked, barren, and brown, robes herself in her beautiful garments of green and bedecks her form with a million lovely flowers. The air is filled with joyous songs of beautiful birds, laden with the rich perfume of roses and redolent with the indescribable and unimaginable fragrance of orange blossoms. To him who is blessed with health at such a time and in such a place, mere existence is a supreme pleasure.

CULTIVATING LAGER.

No. 37.

"Is that the was they cultivate lager-beer?" said a man to his companion, both of whom had taken the stage at a liquor-saloon in a small country village. We were just passing a fine field of barley when the remark was laughingly made. The other answered with equal jollity, "It won't be many days before that barley will be in bottles," and then they began to speculate how much lager-beer the field would make to the acre. I began to speculate also. The remark was almost certain to be true that before many days or months, at most, the crop of barley would be in bottles or kegs, and thence retailed, with all the consequences common to beer-drinking. "Is that the way they cultivate lager-beer?" was, too a very suggestive question. I was reminded of an instance of my boyhood. Intemperance was then to my eyes a rarity. There was one of our neighbors, however, whose person and home advertised his ruinous habit, and he was pointed out to the boys as an example to be shunned. At town meeting a strong temperance man by profession, not very charitably began to rebuke him before a group of bystanders, but was suddenly interrupted by the fierce retort, "You needn't say anything to me about this business. I drink beer made in yonder brewery, it is true, but you, and other temperance folks like you, raise the barley and sell it to the brewery where the beer is made. They make your barley into beer, and sell it for the sake of the money. And you raise and sell them the materials for the same reason." On that occasion, at least, the drinking man had the best of the argument, and much discomfited his accuser. The whole occurrence stirred up blessed memories of a sainted father's example and practice. There were many years in my youth upon the farm, when barley was the best-paying crop a farmer could raise, but never was a bushel raised for market in all those years. He would have nothing to do with raising a commodity which in all probability would go, knowingly, to such uses. No customer of the saloon could ever accuse my father of cultivating lager-beer, and I honor his consistency as a temperance man. I would rather have these memories of the dear, good man by far than all the money he might even thus have made.

There is much chance for good temperance work in this line. We may not always be able to prevent what we produce from going to help the traffic, but we certainly can avoid serving them directly if we set about it intelligently. We can refrain from barley and hop raising and hop picking, from selling grain to the distillers and their agents, raising and selling fruit for cider and wine, from making whisky and beer barrels and hop-poles, and from work of all kinds in the hop-yards, as well as work in and for saloons, letting buildings for their use; in fact, from doing anything which will bring to us the money derived from the sale of liquors. We may "do good to the bodies and souls," of the dealers, but we should most carefully see to it that we do not favor them even in that line for the sake of bringing a little more of their money into our purses than we would get by serving people who make their money more honestly.

TEN REFUSED TO BOW THE KNEE.—The Democratic Party of Ohio should rejoice and be exceeding glad that it had ten men in the House, who refused to bow the knee to the Baal of the Liquor Traffic, and voted for the Sabbath of Elijah's God. When the party finds what this Baal proposes to do with it, it will cry aloud to the God of the people to save it from the burdens and torments to be imposed and inflicted by this Bacchanalian Tyrant.—*W. RESTRICTION OF SUFFRAGE.

The RESCUE of April 13th contained a suggestion that in demanding equal suffrage its advocates should ask the restriction of the privilege to reputable women that are good citizens, on the ground that no other is entitled to vote, and as an entering wedge to a similar restriction of the ballot to men that are not outlaws and criminals. It was hoped Miss Willard to whom a marked copy was sent, would act upon the suggestion, and advocate this measure; but the Signal of same date April 13 had a letter from Miss Willard proposing the exclusion of all women who cannot read and write, who drink, who are engaged in any illicit or disreputable calling or who have been convicted of crime. She believes such a movement will secure the applause of the temperance forces and command the respect and influence of the press, pulpit and the pews. It is pleasant to be on the same side and advocating the same principles as Miss Willard, for there is no statesman or politician or public officer in the United States this day to whom history will accord so lofty and honorable place in the temple of patriotism and nobility of character and of eminently useful citizenship.

An advocate of Woman Suffrage objects to this restrictive idea in the Signal of April 27th asserting that a vile woman has an equal right to vote with a vile man. No one can dispute the equal claim, but the vile woman would be apt to vote with her vile male associate every time; and it is to be hoped the restrictive woman's vote will help to rid us of the curse of the vote of the rumseller and the outlaw whose especial business is to pile up misery and agony for innocent womanhood and to burden the community with crime and pauperism incalculable.

COMMENTS ON THE "RESCUE."

"Wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursels as others see us" sang Bobbie Burns, "who was the victim of Scotlands drinking customs."

"Our RESCUE" reflects like the Mirror of Truth, strange people. Your solicitor, with the RESCUE "in hand" approached two young men who were Good Templars, one was pale as the cigarette he was smoking, the other brown and mottled as the cigar he was puffing, both with small frontal brain running up to a steep point resembling the picture in Harpers Weekly of Feb. 25; they were kindly invited to subscribe for the RESCUE, "well" said cigarette without removing the paper engine from his mouth, "no I dont care for that kind of reading matter! no fun in the RESCUE; the Wasp is my kind of of paper; good take offs in that." The cigar smoker replied, "Oh I know everything in the RESCUE when I read the heading, some old story about "Infernal Saloons." Have you read Dr. Richardsons "articles on Alcohol!" urged the solicitor. "Who's Dr. Richardson? is he the husband of that Mrs. Richardson who writes against tobacco in the RESCUE?" Oh no, Dr. Richardson is one of London's leading physicians, Mrs. Richardson is Sup. of Juvenile Work in our own State. "Well its all the same to me," was the reply! "I like the Police Gazette, that is my paper." Indeed, replied solicitor, lately in one of our towns the sheriff of the county subscribed for two copies of the RESCUE for the benefit of the prisoners in the county jail; he afterward stated he was sorry to say, the prisoners preferred to read the Police Gazette. The young men glanced at each other, cigarette dimly saw the application, rubbed his receding forehead and both walked off puffing indignantly.

The next man approached, whose face was bloated with beer, when asked to subscribe seemed to gasp as if he were about to have a spasm; his red eyes glared behind his eye glasses, his bloated beer-soaked body shook like a mould of calves foot jelly. "The RESCUE," he wheezed, "that's the temperance paper, mein gott, I give money for that RESCUE! I want a lager-beer Sunday, I want lager-beer gartens, I want liberty, I am a Leag of Freedom man; Oh take him away I hate American Institutions, you are too strict; you invite us to come to America; what you want, temperance laws, mine gott; we show you water-drinking American fools what we vill do; we vill elect German men, we vill beat you; take him out of my sight!"

The next man invited to subscribe, was a tall six foot American State of Maine young man. He informed the solicitor, and certainly he stood as erect as one of Maine's own pines, clear eyed, clear cut face, without a trace of dissipation, a frontal brain like that of martyred Pres. Garfield. "I am" he answered, "already a subscriber, I will take another copy to send East to my friends. How my heart thrilled when I read that able comment on Mr. Hemphills sermon as reported by the Chronicle. The future of San Francisco, that article alone, was worth the subscription price. Only one dollar and twenty-five cents, its nothing for a sixteen page weekly paper."

The next invited to subscribe was a prominent lawyer, native born, and already well known as a San Francisco advocate, "thanks" he said with a smile, "you already count me as a subscriber and advocate of your principles." Then noting the weary face of the solicitor, "Stay," said he, "I will subscribe for a friend of mine, who needs just such an able paper to arrest his thotless career. "You see," he nodded, "I can afford it, since I spend no money on alcohol or tobacco. My surplus cash goes for literature. I have already collected quite a temperance library. Here are Dr. Richardson's books on Alcohol, and Judge Pitman's 'Alcohol and the State,' 'Influence of Tobacco on the mind,' etc. Altho I can say as did Thos. Carlyle, 'I require no further argument as evidence on the disgraceful traffic in strong drink, still, I read on the subject; it is essential to my practice' and I sincerely wish the people might read more upon the subject. It is the gross ignorance on the part of the public, which is to be feared. Further comment is unnecessary." The character of the people who want the RESCUE, and those who lack the intellectual force to grasp its contents and pronounce it unworthy of notice, involves one of the gravest studies of the human mind. It carries us into problems, which have exercised for ages the highest understandings. Thoughtful people know, there is no subject now agitating the world which can compare in philosophical dignity with the question so ably discussed each and every week in the RESCUE, and yet to multitudes of drinkers and smokers the question falls into contempt, and those so called fashionably, and falsely refined, whose intellectual forces have been destroyed by narcotic poisons so as to render them incapable of mental grasp, since they cannot understand its contents, pronounce it unworthy of notice. Meanwhile what better can be done than to fight the battle courageously, persistently? The ultimate issue of the struggle is certain. If any one doubts the general preponderance of good over evil, he has only to read the history of our own America. The ultimate issue of this struggle is certain, wealth may be against us, the flippant, the thoughtless may deride us, but the enthusiastic energy and self-devotion with which a great moral cause inspires its soldiers have hitherto prevailed and will yet again prevail over any amount of self-interest, or material power arrayed on the other side. Let us circulate our own ably conducted RESCUE, get it into the hands of the thoughtful people and before the aroused conscience of that people wielding the indomitable will of the State, the traffic that sustains vice, tempts innocence, and destroys manhood, shall go down forever.

YOUR SOLICITOR.

CAMPING.

The Howards have invited us to go camping with them. Grandma declares she wont go because Mr. H. is always smoking; she says when she goes into the country she goes for pure air, not poison.

Jennie says she just as lief have the fumes of sulphur puffed into her face as tobacco.

James suggests that the early bigots ought to have thrown a little tobacco into the brimstone of their future torments and thus a wholesome fear would have arisen against its use here.

We are all real sorry, because the Howards are otherwise pleasant people; but the use of tobacco is too great a drawback on comfort, so father writes our regrets and we accept the company of the Fields because they are clean, polite people. And so we start for the country with our chosen associates, the Howards never dreaming why they were discarded.

BETH.

Can you or any of my fellow-workers tell me whether Cinchona Rubra has ever been tested for the tobacco habit and with what success; or can some one tell me of anything that will remove the desire for the weed? I have some hard cases on hand, anxious to reform but shrinking like a girl (?) from the struggle.

D.

The opinion is prevalent that Cinchona Rubra is not much to be relied on. Lots of medicines and remedies have been used and a cure ascribed to them that nature and good care and food and a brave heart would have accomplished alone. One man tries to quit alcohol and tobacco and takes a pledge and tries to quit and succeeds. He praises the pledge. One tries Cinchona and a strong will; is cured and credits the C. R.; another fails with the same two remedies and curses the C. R. and excuses his own weakness. One tries to quit and prays for help from Heaven and attributes his success to the grace of God solely. Another succeeds without prayer and praises his own strong will and perhaps the counsel and sympathy of friends. And all these who have triumphed may at a future time fall by exposure to temptation. The only sure remedy for an alcohol or tobacco diseased body is to quit manfully all sight, smell, contact or approach to the evil. Other aids may help, but that is where the cure is found. It is like avoiding fire; keep away from it; it burns all alike who touch it.

One of the genuine nobility of England a Mr. W. Stanyon of Leicester sends $10 to the Alliance News with his best wishes and adds that he has a temperance advertizement in the daily paper of his town changed once a week, of which the three following are specimens quoted from the Alliance News

READINGS FROM THE "DAILY POST."

March 15th, 1882, "for the 111th time, John Ogden Smyth has been convicted at Chester of drunkenness. He was sent to prison for a month. The Chief-constable estimates that Ogden and his family have cost the ratepayers over $5.000.

Query. Ought the gin-shop and public-house landlords to pay this?

Query. Should they not pay compensation to the poor wife and children?

March 13th, 1882, the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin in a pastoral said drunkenness is a wicked abomination which is the source of all crimes and misfortunes.

Our workhouses, he says, are thronged by its victims; its baleful tyranny is cramming our jails with criminals."

Query. Where are the drunkards made? Everybody knows. In gin-shops and public houses.

March 13th, 1882, "She said her husband had been drinking all the week. He took up a saucer, and said if he struck her he would kill her."

Where was he drinking all the week?

Where else could he have got it but in gin-shops and public houses?

March 15th, 1882, He picked up a chair and rushed at her, striking her on the breast; he struck her across the face with a stick. He struck and knocked her down and gave her a kick.

Query. Why all this brutality? He had been to gin-shops and public-houses.

DOG BITE, DEATH. WHISKY POISONED, DEATH.

Sir,—In the Daily Post, March 30th, you report that William Campbell, 14 years of age, was bitten by a dog six weeks ago; he suffered, and died on Wednesday from hydrophobia.

In the same paper you report a child poisoned by whisky. The mother of the child said she left about a glass of whisky in the bottle, which the child drank. An inquest was held, and the verdict of the jury was "Death from an overdose of alcohol.

Is alcohol poison?
Is it as dangerous as Dog bite?

You also report in the same paper that William Kingerley was summoned by P. S. Keeling for allowing a ferocious dog to be at large on 18th March, and he was fined $2.50 and costs, or 14 days' imprisonment.

Mr. Editor,—All the ferocious dogs that have ever existed in Leicester have not been so cruel in their ferocity, and so deadly in their bite, as the liquor traffic.

Which are the most dangerous, ferocious dogs at large or gin-shops at large?

Ought they not all to be muzzled?

ANOTHER TEETOTAL FANATIC.

Who is he, I wonder? No other than ex-Lord Chancellor, Earl Cairns. What has he said or done? Last Monday, at a Church of England Temperance meeting, Bournemouth, Earl Cairns said "They were met to declare they believed the evil of intemperance to be the source and parent of all other evils, an evil that filled our jails, peopled our lunatic asylums, crowded our hospitals, and our work-houses, and brought in its train misery, and suffering, and want, an evil that wrecked and ruined every house into which it entered. . . . . One of our judges told him, Earl Cairns, that when on an assize in a northern town he had to try 36 prisoners for crimes of violence—six of them charged with the crime of murder, and every one of those 36 cases were directly traceable and were traced to drunkenness." . . . "They wanted to reduce those temptations to drunkenness by a greater legislative control over the hours and even over the number of those places—gin shops and public-houses—which were just so many allurements, and ambushes, so many traps and pitfalls in the path of the working man."

Murder will out, so will the truth. Is Earl Cairns right?

J. W. WEBB.

SANTA BARBARA is a beautiful place, known all over the Union as a health resort. Its climate, situation, production of fruits and flowers and its intelligent and moral people make it very attractive. But so many have come from the East and elsewhere for their health and do not go out of nights that it is difficult to get large audiences to lecture or many heads of families in the lodges. Then wine drinking is too fashionable in many leading circles and dram drinking with public men. So it is a good community, yet a hard place for temperance work. But persistent efforts in the cause are telling. We have two lodges with a fair membership in each, a good many hard drinkers reclaimed and many of the young started on the path of total abstinence and becoming interested workers for temperance. Among the officials we number Bro. A. B. Williams, Co. Clerk; Mr. Kellogg, his deputy; Bro. Garretson, Assessor; Bro. Judge R. D. Smith and Henry Clifton, Deputy Sheriffs; Bro. J. M. Short, Supervisor and Bro. J. H. Kinkade, Dist. Attorney. The preachers of the various churches have at the suggestion of Bro. Fisk in the Ministerial meetings resolved to hold Union Gospel Temperance meetings at stated times on Sunday nights. This enabled me to reach a class of influential and church people that I have seldom met before. Seaside Lodge well advertised lecture, hired Crane's Hall and obtained a good audience and two preachers to assist. At open lodge they had a crowded house an excellent literary and musical program and a speech from Bro. Frank Beckwith. Canvased for names for lodge and obtained several. A good impression was made. Bros. J. J. Eddlenan, P. L. Moore, J. J. Steele, Clio Lloyd and others are earnest workers, while Sisters Higgins, Lloyd, Cook and many young sisters are energetic and faithful. I arranged to have another open Lodge on 16th, Sister May Guthrie to speak to them while I lectured at Cathedral Oaks. The Hall will not begin to hold the people, I expect, for already the leaders are well advertising. On Friday met with Santa Barbara Lodge. This is not making as much public showing as the others, has not as large an attendance or as many young people. But it has a good large membership, money in the treasury and does a good work in reclaiming many slaves of appetite. They are making an effort to get a more regular attendance of members. Judge Smith, Bro. and Sister Thompson, Sister Steele, Sister Buckingham. Bro. Walter Steele and others are the standby's. We have arranged for an open lodge on the 19th with literary exercises, singing by Mrs. Prescott Taylor and others and speaking by Sister Guthrie and Grand Lecturer. We anticipate a crowded house, a revival of interest among the members and a good number of additions to the lodge On Sunday morning the Congregational Church was filled with the best audience I think I ever addressed in Santa Barbara. The Pastor son of Rev. Dr. Beckwith of San Francisco kindly introduced and the attention was all one could ask. Two evidences of good done were volunteered at the close. Mr. Pitcher came forward and volunteered $5.00 for the temperance work, and Judge Huse's accomplished daughter said she gave up the regular Sunday school lesson for the day and gave her first Temperance lecture to her class, and meant hereafter to be found working for the good cause. After dinner Sister Bryant drove me to Hope school house where we had a very attentive audience of young and old. Took a vote as to how many would hereafter work, by precept and example for temperance, and nearly all raised the hand. A Band of Hope and Lodge are among the possibilities here. At night back to Congregational Church for Union meeting of that, Presbyterian and Baptist churches, Dr. Hills leading in prayer and reading. This was a good start in the right direction. There ot to be a good Woman's Christian Temperance Union here. Mrs. Higgins, Huse, Miss Alice Huse, Mrs. Beckwith, Mrs. J. P. Stearns, Mrs. Horace J. Smith and others would take a deep interest in the work. Many who do not care to go into a lodge or to regular night meetings would accomplish much. The Band of Hope I am sorry to say is dead but a W. C. T. U. would make a success of it. At the Public High School, Prof. Snow, Principal, a lifelong abstainer from tobacco and intoxicants, invited me to address the pupils on the "twin evils" as they are going to compete for the Dr. McDonald prize.

Went to Open lodge at Goleta, found a live interest good singing and a large audience. We anticipate a large attendance and stirring times at Dist. Lodge here on 17th and 18 inst. On Monday reached home after a 64 mile stage ride; lectured in M. E. Church and afternoon organised a Home Protection Club.

Next night went to Parisinia school and had a good hearing; same at maple school, lecture at night and sermon Sunday morning. Open lodge at Artesia school; first-class literary program and most patient listening to a long lecture. Bro. H. B. Williamson agent for RESCUE, D. C. Cook's books and papers and National Liberator, made an appeal for subscribers and I hope he will get plenty of patronage. A desire is expressed for a lodge at Maple and another at Childs on the Jonata Ranch. Am not yet sure that it would be for the "good of the Ordor," but if I find it to be so shall gladly institute. Everywhere as I give these final lectures in the southern part of the State, I leave the people anxiously looking for the visits of Sister Guthrie and Col. Goulding.

C. N. GOULDING.

Crescent City is 280 miles from San Francisco in Del Norte county, the most northernly county in the State, is located on a cresent shaped bay from which the city takes its name, and depends on the lumber and farming interests for support; population about 1,000; two churches one school house and twelve saloons. To reach here it is necessary to come by steamer, and enjoy to its fullest extent that mild and pleasant sensation called "sea sickness." I shall not attempt to describe it, it never has been done successfully, probably never will be; it is "quite too utterly utter," and affords all an opportunity of casting up accounts in a manner that would put to shame any professor in mathamatics; it is the most dont-care sensation imaginable, and calls into active use all the five senses and generally all at once, and we realize that we are indeed fearfully and wonderfully made; it is the perfection of human misery.

Have arranged to lecture at Smith's River and have in all eight lectures. The lodge here is in good condition, has held the Fort for 12 years and has been favored with only one Grand Lecturer Bro. Leland, who was here more than three years since. I go from here to Humboldt county, then to Mendocino; will report progress. Think I shall write a book regarding my travels in California; have seen and learned considerable during the last year.

SAN FRANCISCO DISTRICT LODGE.

EXTRACTS FROM THE QUARTERLY REPORT OF THE DISTRICT SECRETARY TO THE SAN FRANCISCO DISTRICT LODGE INDEPENDENT ORDER OF GOOD TEMPLARS.

Once again we have met to-gether in quarterly convocation to compare the records of our various lodges, to learn from each other the best methods which produce success and to plan for better results in the future. The past three months have been the most prosperous that our Order has witnessed in San Francisco for many years and the figures I am about to exhibit will show an increase which is gratifying even to the most indifferent. Nearly all of the lodges have been active and while all present good reports some few have done excellently. I invite your careful attention to the following statistics:

Number of members last report	898
Intiated during the term	209
Adimitted by card	17
First Total	1124
Clearance cards taken	15
Resigned	14
Suspended	62
Expelled	14
Deceased	1
Second Total	106
Present membership	1018
Memberhip last report	898
Net gain during the quarter	120

In the above table I have placed the membership of California, Golden Gate and San Rafael Lodges the same as in last quarter report as no returns had been received from them up to the time my repert was made out. The amount of cash in the Treasuries of subordinate lodges is $498,79. The tbree largest lodges in membership are International with 206, Valley 117, and Life Boat 107. With the single exception of Life Boat Lodge all have made net gains during the quarter. International has the largest number of female members, 113. Life Boat has the largest number of male members 99, and also the largest amount of cash in the treasury, $238,20. Valley has the largest number of third degree members, 61. Headlight shows the largest number of accessions during the quarter, 50; and the best net gain, 34. This is an excellent record for a lodge that began the quarter with but 26 members and closed it with 60, and while many have gained in several ways Headlight Lodge leads this jurisdiction in its increase.

The membership of the lodges whose reports were received is as follows:

Evening Star Lodge, No. 114	96
Headlight, 120	60
Constitution, 130	70
Mission Star, 160	78
Life Boat, 185	107
International, 291	206
Valley, 293	117
Pleasant Valley, 307	44
Spring Valley, 314	63
Crystal, 417	62

The only death recorded during the past quarter is that of Marcus D. Merrick, who at the time of his decease was W. C. T., of International Lodge, No. 291. "Dr." Merrick, as he was called, was well known all over the State as one of the old war horses of temperance. It is owing to his personal exertions more than those of any other individual that International Lodge stands numerically at the head in this jurisdiction. While he had his faults as well as the rest of mankind, we all will admit that by his death our cause has lost an eloquent advocate and our Order a faithful friend.

I hope and trust that the labors of the present session may be harmonious and profitable. Let us leave all petty strifes and personal animosities without the portals of this lodge room and remember that here we are brothers and sisters gathered around a common altar, inspired by a common impulse and working for a common cause. Let no notes of discord mar the peace of our proceedings. Let nothing but the spirit of harmony pervade this halcyon scene and if we have had differences in the past let them now be forgotten and blotted from remembrance forever and let our hands be clasped in fraternal love over the chasm of all our conflicts. Strive with heart and soul to carry out the noble purpose that brings us together here and work with unceasing vigilance for "the greatest good of the greatest number." Above the dust and din of personal ambition rises the majesty and splendor of our Order—the strong right arm of religion, the beacon light of humanity. Around us sheltered by its protecting banners are the men, the women and the children it has restored to the joy and happiness of existence. Before us in the veiled future are opportunities enshrouded and responsibilities unmeasured. It is for us to press forward in this beneficent work and the day may yet come of which poets sing and philosophers dream, when humanity can stand forth "redeemed, regenerated, and disenthralled by the irresistible genius of universal emancipation."

"Bemember the Brotherhood strong and true,
Builders and artists and bards sublime
Who lived in the past and worked like you
Worked and waited a wearisome time
Dark and cheerless and long their night;
Yet they patiently toiled at the task begun
Till lo, through the clouds broke the morning light
That shines in the soul when succes is won."

TEMPERANCE AT THE S. S. S. CONVENTION.

The fifteenth annual session of the California State Sabbath School Convention was held last week at Stockton. Several matters relating to the temperance cause were brought forth. One was the passage of the following resolutions on the Sunday law:

WHEREAS, There is an organized effort to prevent the enforcement of the Sunday Law; and extra exertions are being made to secure its repeal, therefore be it

Resolved, That organized resistance to the law of the land is criminal conspiracy and should be discountenanced and punished.

Resolved, That we recommend to the pastors of the churches and superintendents of Sunday schools that they call special attention to the necessity of observing the Fourth Commandment, and also to advantages resulting from the Sunday Law—the law being in accordance with the laws of God and a benefit to all classes, especially to laboring men.

A resolution was also passed thanking the California W. C. T. U. for a large supply of leaflets for distribution. But the most important feature in reference to the advancement of our work was in connection with the address delivered by Mrs. M. E. Richardson, our State Superintendent of Bands of Hope. Mrs. Richardson was delegated by the Executive Committee to represent the Grand Lodge at the S. S. Convention. She did so and beside rendering efficient service by her well known excellent singing, she gave an address which was not only most admirable and indeed eloquent in itself but was received with marked interest and applause by the large audience. She made a deep impression in favor of our Order as well as for the Orphan's Home, Bands of Hope and temperance generally, as our reader will see when they know that the Convention unanimously and heartily passed a resolution thanking Mrs. R., endorsing her address and ordering it printed with the Minutes. They also passed a resolution recommending and urging all Sabbath schools thruout the State to organize and maintain Bands of Hope in connection with their Sabbath school work.

GEYSERVILLE, May 22nd, 1882.

A grand temperance rally under the direction of Geyserville Lodge No. 163, was held May 20. A choice selection of literary and musical exercises was presented, wide awake prohibition glees were sung by a musical band from over the river under the efficient leadership of Messrs. Doane & Morrell. The lecturer of the evening was the well known and eloquent advocate of reform, Rev. Frederick Fenn. He painted in glowing language the beauties of temperance and vividly portrayed to his interested hearers the drunkards road to ruin. He was frequently interrupted with hearty applause. Mr. Fenn is spending his summer vacation with our people and making himself generally useful. Mr. Swan of Healdsburg, presented the beautiful picture of Mrs. Hayes. All voted our meeting a success.

LODGES, ETC.

TWO ROCK LODGE reports 70 members and prospering.

BODIE. The Lodge had an enthusiastic open meeting May 10, with a good program including an active part and an address by Bro. Theodore H. Woodworth, W. C. T. It affords peculiar pleasure to hear that Bro. Woodworth has been dug up again; his name use to be a household word in the RESCUE, but it has been for years covered up somewhere. A letter of his will appear next week.

BRO. W. S. GRAVES, G. W. C., writes from Deming, New Mexico, May 16th, on his way to R. W. G. L. and round the world for anything known to the contrary. Was to leave by Atcheson and Santa Fe road; last 500 miles traveled a dry and sandy desert. Met at Deming a MRS. Johnson of Red Bluff, friend of Mrs. Mayhew, living there. Deming is a lively R. R. centre; 2 R. R. companies have repair shops and it is the terminus of the A. T. and S. F. R. R. The town has 1 store, 1 drugshop, 1 stable, 2 bakeries 2 restaurants, 3 saloons and 10 dwelling houses. What do they want of so many dwellings and bakeries when there are only 3 saloons? Expect to hear from Bro. G. at R. W. G. L. next, and then up the Nile, and in Persia and India etc. Don't be alarmed about him, he carries enough kind wishes with him to float him ashore if he was wrecked in mid-ocean.

ED. RESCUE:—Last Saturday I had the pleasure of installing the officers of Ojai Valley Lodge No. 422, and afterwards conferring the degrees on five members.

The Lodge is progressing finely, and has a goodly number of the young folks who are always ready and willing to help.

Also attended the Band of Hope Sunday afternoon which was well attended by the children and parents. They are just beginning and seem well pleased and interested.

Only one man in that beautiful valley thinks little enough of himself and neighbors to sell whisky, and he thinks he is doing something extra by only selling it by the bottle, but whisky is whisky and the curse is there, qnantity don't change that. MYRA WALBRIDGE.

Ventura, May 18, 1882.

COLLEGE CITY, Cal. May 20, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—It is probably known that the crops of Colusa Co. are almost a total failure, owing to the dryness of the season, and at this writing a dry north wind shrieks wierdly over our arid plains, serving but to parch the remaining vegetation, and render our once beautiful land still more desolate. A shadow of despondency steals over the face of the sturdy farmer as he gazes on his barren fields, where but a month ago was the flattering prospect of an abundant harvest. But hope bids him cast off the shackles of despair, and look forward to a brighter and a happier day. Don't give up the struggle brother farmer, you may not survive to see another 1882. In spite of failing crops we are a temperance people, and will stand up for God, and the right, no drunkard reels along the streets of our beautiful village, we have none of those inventions of satan "the saloons" to assist in filling the jails. and lunatic asylums, and we should thank God that we have not. We have a flourishing lodge of some 75 active and energetic members, who will do all in their power to advance our noble cause, and tear down the works of satan. Judging from the size of the roll that reaches us thru the Friday mails, I am inclined to believe the RESCUE well patronized in this vicinity, and I think this is an indication of activity on the part of our citizens. We shall struggle on tho we seem to gain but little ground we shall wear the victors crown at last, for God shall win and right shall rule. C. W.

In the North American Review for June, Senator W. B. Allison has a paper on the "Currency of the Future," in which he indicates the measures that will have to be taken by Congress for insuring a stable currency after the national debt has been extinguished. "A Memorandum at a Venture," by Walt Whitman, is an explanation of his purpose and point of view in trenching upon topics not usually regarded as amenable to literary treatment. "Andover and Creed Subscription," by Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, is a philosophical review of the present state of dogmatic belief in the churches. Hon. George F. Seward, late minister to China, in an article entitled "Mongolian Immigration," makes an argument against the proposed anti-Chinese legislation. Dr. John W. Dowling, Dean of the New York Homeopathic Medical College, comes to the defence of the Hahnemanic School of medicine, against a recent attack upon its principles and methods. O. B. Frothingham has a sympathetic article on Swedenborg. Not the least important paper is one entitled "Has Land a Value?" by Isaac L. Rice, it being a criticism of one of the fundamental postulates of Henry George's political ecomony. Finally, Charles F. Lydecker essays to prove that a "National Militia" is a constitutional impossibility.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

COMMUNION WINE.

One of the most learned doctors in the world is Doctor Norman Kerr, of London. Learned in his own medical profession, learned in chemistry, in the ancient languages, and in all the truths that scientific study has revealed from the most ancient days till now. He is a very cautious and impartial man, never gives an opinion on what he has not thoroly studied and never makes an assertion that he cannot abundantly prove. Beside he is an earnest Christian.

He has lately published a book on the wines of ancient times. He proves by history that unfermented wines have always been used at communion somewhere, and have been in common use as a food at the table from the earliest history. In an appeal to the clergy of his country urging them to use the natural juice of the grape at communion, he says:

"It ot not to be forgotten that there are large numbers of Band of Hope children who have been truthfully taut that alcohol is a poison. When on joining the church they are offered intoxicating drink at their first communion, will not their moral sense be shocked? Will they not naturally reason, surely what I have been taut about alcohol being a poison and intoxicating drink poisonous must have been utterly untrue. If intoxicating wine is an emblem of Christ's blood, it cannot be poisonous, it cannot be injurious to the body, and it cannot have a tendency to narcotize or paralyze the mind."

Dr. Kerr and Dr. Lees are perhaps the best authorities and the ablest writers and scholars that have ever examined this question; Dr. Lees having been engaged in his researches for over 40 years. The word wine was never used in the testament in connection with communion, but because fermented wine was in general use for that purpose 50 and 100 years ago, when people knew no better, many people are now opposed to making any change, when we do know all about it.

There always are people and very good people too, who oppose any and every change and want to keep on the old way. When new improvements were introduced in the rigging of ships, lots of old captains and old sailors were ready to fight for the old plans; yes, they said "the old way was good enuf for me for 40 years and I guess I know as much as these young upstarts and fools, that are always up to some tomfoolery," and they always showed that some day the ship that tried on the new thing would sink or blow up or be wrecked some way. But the improvements superceded all the old things in time.

And when you get old and see something new and a great improvement upon what we use now, some of you will fight it, because it is the nature of some people to do so; you will say I went to school and belonged to the Band of Hope and the Lodge and read the RESCUE, and people knew as much when I was a boy as they do now, and they always got along without these ridiculous innovations.

But the testament never says positively and distinctly that the wine was not intoxicating. There is in Asia a palm tree which the natives tap and leaving a dish under the cut, they get a very pleasant sap or juice called toddy which is a wholesome sweet drink when fresh, but if kept it is fermented and intoxicating next day and soon turns to vinegar. They used to bring it aboard ships for sale in India and an old Scotch mate who had been there many times and knew the ropes, used to recommend it to us youngsters as very wholesome; but we observed he let his stand till it had vim enough to keep him fuddled every afternoon, and it got him into a row with the captain and he was discharged and his poor wife and children at his home had to suffer for it.

Now that has often been called palm wine. If that had been used at the Passover, and had it been called every time the "fruit of the palm" in describing the supper, would it be natural to suppose that the Savior used the drunken, fighting, lying kind of fermented palm wine when the fresh and wholesome, and innocent and natural gift of God was at hand and was entirely appropriate in every respect?

TWO CITIES. RUM AND NO RUM.

Guelph in Ontario, Canada, is 54 years old; population, 10,000; 12 churches; 5 public, 1 high and some private schools; 28 teachers. Always licensed the sale of rum. Has a police magistrate, salary $1.200, and a clerk $200. A chief of police costs $750 and a sergeant of police $500, and 2 policemen at a salary of $450 each, and another policeman is asked for.

Its poor rate was in 1881, $1914; crime, drunk 138; disorderly 42; vagrancy 28; larceny 25; keeping disorderly houses 6; street walkers 6; assaulting police 3; malicious injury 2; burglary 3; and 6 other serious offences. A very orderly city compared with those of California.

A Mr. Joseph Ryan, of Guelph, wrote to the Mayor of Vineland, N. J., a town that never had license. The Mayor, Joseph Mason, answers: Vineland is 21 years old; population, 7,000; 15 churches; 4 public, 1 high school and 28 teachers. Mayor acts as police magistrate, no salary. Cost of 1 policeman in 1881, $20. Appropriated last year $800 for poor; there are 9 poor to look after. Crime in 1881, drunk 10; assault 5; larcenies 4.

Vineland votes every year on license and from 1 to 28 votes have been cast in its favor. People there are agreed to have no grogshop. Homemade wine can be sold not less than one gallon, and there are lots of people who keep some liquor or wine in their houses purchased elsewhere. But there being no grogshop or beer dive, drunkenness and immorality are at a minimum; and what little there is, of course is mainly due to the drink purchased elsewhere.

To these we might add a comment on another city. Vallejo. No government or corporation ever expended a dollar in the furtherance of the prospects Guelph or Vineland. But the U. S. government has expended in Vallejo something like 20 million dollars in payment of wages on the navy yard. It had ten years ago, nearly 7,000 people; has now a good deal less. Property utterly unsaleable, and lots close to the city are only worth the price of farming land per acre. It has 6 churches, all except the Catholic withthe smallest congregations, and it has over 80 grogshops and dens of crime well attended; and a list of crime and drunkenness and suffering women and children that if published in detail, the Guelph man would not believe a word of it.

And there never was one drawback to an ever increasing prosperity in Vallejo but the grogshop. But for that it could have had now a population of 40,000 or 50,000. It could have been the first manufacturing town of the State after and probably before San Francisco. It could have been the industrial center of the State. And it could be so yet if it drove out the crime and loafer schools which have always devoured its people and their substance. But no business can thrive there but that of rum and the ruinous vices that are its partners. Its last factory left it lately because its men were rendered useless by the dramshop. The brewer and rumseller have been a damage to Vallejo of twenty times the present value of all the property in it and have murdered many many hundreds of its people in various ways, and have been a deadly moral pestilence beside all along.

TULARE CITY BAND OF HOPE.

The Daily Telegraph gives a glowing report of the B. of H. festival recently held there. After a greeting song by the Band, and prayer by Rev. F. H. Wales, Johnny Lewis gave a declamation very creditably, and Miss Gussie Hall was applauded for an admirable rendering of "Objections to Good Templars." The Band again gave another chorus, and Miss Allie Perkins, in costume, sang in good taste, "Father's a Drunkard and Mother is Dead," and Miss Clara Garrison gave a reading "The Lips that touch Liquor shall never touch mine," and did it so effectively, and seemed to mean it so determinedly that it set some of the young people round to thinking, Miss Gracie Lovejoy and Miss Gussie Hall added each a cheerful song to the program, and then there was a first prize to be awarded to one of the young ladies who had contributed the best cake to the festival. Miss Gracie Lovejoy was the lucky one to get the $50 prize, and the six others were presented with 50 cts. each by those present. Then there was a rousing good time, and strawberries and nice things all round. The receipts of the evening were $28 beside all the other good things. The Band numbers 72, and has 21.40 in its treasury. The above is not in the words of the Telegraph quite, and perhaps that $50 prize is inaccurate, but there was no sum named and the editor of the RESCUE put it at $50 because that was just about the amount he would like to know was handed to Miss Gracie on that occasion. Good for White Lily Band and its spirited captain Miss Clara Garrison.

PICNIC AT MODESTO.

The Modesto Band of Hope held their third annual May picnic on Saturday, the 6th inst. Some 600 people assembled at the grounds where seats were provided for their accommodation during the public exercises which consisted of music by the children and addresses by several speakers. Free entertainment was provided for all members of the Band of Hope, ice cream, etc., being distributed among them. The day passed pleasantly in various amusements. A collection for the Orphan's Home at Vallejo was taken up at the close of the public exercises amounting to nearly ten dollars.

MODESTO BAND OF HOPE.

That Band is a power in the State. It has 153 juvenile and 25 adult members and its name is very properly the "Morning Star." It is a star of great promise, the brightest star that Modesto ever had. A society that watches over and instructs and pledges and unites those 153 young folks to avoid wrong and falsehood and dishonor, fortifies them against every temptation to evil, teaches them and stimulates them in the love of what is good and beautiful and cleanly and noble—is an immense and far reaching power.

It makes every piece of property and every man's business in Modesto worth more and makes Modesto now, and in the future, a far better and safer and happier place to live in. And the training of those children and the adults in sobriety and honesty and their influence for good now and in all the future is going to add millions of wealth to this State and make it a vastly better State every way. There are millions of every good thing in the present and future of that Band and of all other bands; millions of money and prosperity and of every good influence.

Morning Star under its Major General J. J. Porter in company with Bel Passi Band under its Brigadier General, Miss Oda Henderson united on the 6th of May in a grand comprehensive picnic at Garlinghouse's grove, where 600 people were gathered to listen to the exercises. The Rev. E. G. Mathena was President of the day and the Revs. W. S. Urmy and M. D. Gage and Dr. S. M. McLean were the speakers. There were beside the speeches, singing by the children, a delightful time all round for everybody, dinner, ice cream, fruit and refreshments and good cheer and a thoro interchange of good feeling and kindly words and acts, out in the beautiful forest of shady oaks.

What a contrast the scene of that picnic and its worthy promoters, laboring to secure the welfare and happiness of the young and old of the community– presents to the human serpents plotting in their rumholes in Modesto and all over the State to poison the morals, ruin the health, and deprave the habits of the young, and for the sake of a few dimes, plotting to ensnare the happy children of that picnic and of the state and transform them into tramps and doom them to lives of misery and wretchedness.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

TOBACCO AGAIN AND WHY —This persistent hammering away at tobacco, may seem strange to some of the readers of the RESCUE; but it is not only necessary and essentialy the province of the Supt. of Juvenile work, but everywhere, and all the time, Tobacco is the enemy of the Band of Hope, and the greatest obstacle in the way of its advancement. If we are to win the victory we must be ever at our post, we must give the enemy no quarter, we must "fight it out on this line."

It has been proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that the use of Tobacco produces an unnatural thirst and that this thirst is gratified by alcoholic beverages. Years ago only men smoked as a rule, but in our day little boys, almost babes are poisoning themselves with cigarettes. This fact has become alarming, and many prominent journals are attacking the habit.

EXAMPLE STRONGER THAN PRECEPT.—Rarely do

we find a man who advises others to smoke. Nearly all smokers deprecate the prevalence of this vice among youth, and many of them do not hesitate to array themselves on the side of the Band of Hope in principle, closing their remarks with, "now don't do as I do, but do as Isay." My friends, you ought to know that your words are idle if your example does not correspond. And, let me tell you another thing; the better a man is, the more respect he commands, so much the worse is his example (if he uses Tobacco), and the more certain it is that the boys will follow it. The poor degraded, besotted being, equally enslaved by whisky and tobacco, does not lead the boys to ruin. He is a warning.—They do not want to follow in his steps. But here comes a gentleman, a christian, a temperance man, with a cigar in his mouth, or a huge quid of tobacco, and the boys look at him with admiration. He may say "now, boys, don't form the habit of using tobacco, I'm sorry that I ever began, but it is a luxury to me now, and I can't give it up; but boys, don't begin." The boys listen to what he says and store away this thought. What a fine gentleman, but all that talk about not using tobacco is bosh. If he thinks it a bad habit why don't he quit? I'd like to be just such a man as he is, and as a starter, will learn to smoke. He says smoking is a luxury, and if so I'll enjoy it too.

My friends, those of you who are using tobacco, do you not think it right to give up a thing which is having a baneful effect upon the children! And if it is right, will you not do it?

No doubt it is a sacrifice, but you can afford to do it in order that your example may be pure and good in all things. M. E. R.

ITEMS BY J. W. WEBB.

At Ventura a Sister subscribing for the RESCUE said "I shall make this do double duty; after read it I shall send it to my nephew." Said another "I'll pay for it but send it to my boy, if it comes in his name he will be more likely to read it."

The State Supt. of Juvenile Work has a very neat way of putting things. I wrote her about a Band of Hope that had died and whose Supt. had gone back to tobacco using. This is how she replies to it. "It is indeed too bad that a Supt. should back-slide, but the Good Book speaks of the dog that returned to his vomit again and the sow that was washed to her wallowing in the mire, etc. Not a very elegant text but one just applicable to the case." No names.

Lompoc Lodge has received the splendid steel engraving of Mrs. Lucy Webb Hayes—note the middle name—for which we subscribed some time ago. It is to be framed and hung in the Hall. Other lodges should send for copies. It does one good and makes one feel brave to look on the picture of so noble a christian temperance woman. And all the profits go toward circulating temperance literature.

RUM'S TRANSFORMATION.

I sketch two houses in this street. The first is bright as home can be. The father comes at nightfall, and the children run out to meet him. Luxuriant evening meal. Congratulation and sympathy and laughter. Music in the parlor. Fine pictures on the wall. Costly books on the stand. Well-clad household. Plenty of everything to make home happy.

House the second: Piano sold yesterday by the sheriff. Wife's furs at the pawnbroker's shop. Clock gone. Daughter's jewelry sold to get flour. Carpets gone off the floor. Daughters in faded and patched dresses. Wife sewing for the stores. Little child with an ugly wound on her face, struck in an angry blow. Deep shadow of wretchedness falling in every room. Door-bell rings. Little children hide. Daughters turn pale. Wife holds her breath. Blundering step in the hall. Door opens. Fiend, brandishing his fist, cries, "Out! out! What are you doing here?"

Did I call this house the second? No, it is the same house. Rum transformed it. Rum embruted the man. Rum sold the shawl. Rum tore up the carpets. Rum shook his fist. Rum desolated the hearth. Rum changed that paradise into a hell.

I sketch two men you know very well. The first graduated from one of our literary institutions. His father, mother, brothers and sisters were present to see him graduate. They heard the applauding thunders that greeted his speech. They saw the bouquets tossed to his feet. They saw the degree conferred and the diploma given. He never looked so well. Every body said, "What a noble brow! What a fine eye! What graceful manners! What brilliant prospects!" All the world opens before him, and cries, "Hurrah! hurrah!"

Man the second: Lies in the station house tonight. The doctor has just been sent for to bind up the gashes received in a fight. His hair is matted, and makes him look like a wild beast. His lip is bloody and cut.

Who is this battered and bruised wretch that was picked up by the police, and carried in, drunk and foul and bleeding?

Did I call him man the second? He is man the first! Rum transformed him. Rum destroyed his prospects. Rum disappointed parental expectation. Rum withered those garlands of commencement day. Rum cut his lip. Rum dashed out his manhood. Rum, accursed rum.—Talmage.

DEAL GENTLY WITH MOTHER.

Deal gently with Mother, O Time as you pass
With your scythe so remorseless, and fast changing glass,
Smooth softly the hair that was raven in hue,
For the white threads therein were all penciled by you.

Deal gently with her, since in earnest or play,
You've stolen the years of her youth-hood away;
May her days be serene as a sweet summer eve,
And nothing be present to vex or to grieve.

You've chiseled deep lines on that motherly face,
From her step so elastic you've taken the grace,
Her form you have broken with labor and years,
And bathed very often her eyelids with tears.

Deal kindly with Mother, O Time while you may,
And take her not soon from our circle away;
Break not this strong link in our family chain,
But may she with us many years yet remain.

Crown her brow with sweet peace as you've wreathed it with years,
Fill the eyelids with joy you have moistened with tears;
Lift the burdens of care that have weighed down her breast,
And give to her henceforth a Sabbath of rest.

Down life's western slope lead our dear Mother's feet;
May the sunset be calm, all resplendent, and sweet;
May angels swing open the portals of day,
That shall give us in heaven a Mother alway.
—Rev. J. Milton Akers, in Minn. Review.

THE psalm of life is ended, and the poet laureate of America has passed from among the singers of earth to the sweeter harmonies beyond. Naturally we question, "What did Lougfellow do for temperance?" Listen!

"Touch the goblet no more!
It will make thy heart sore
To its very core!
Its perfume is the breath
Of the angel of Death!
And the light that within it lies
Is the flash of its evil eyes!
Beware! O, beware!
For sickness, sorrow and care
All are there!"

"Drink, drink!
And thy soul shall sink
Down into the dark abyss,
Into the infinite abyss,
From whence no plummet nor rope
Ever draw up the silver strand of hope."

Set this over against Tennyson's latest lyric, whose chorus rings out.

"Hands all round! God the traitor's hope confound?
To the great cause of Freedom drink, my friends,
And the great name of England round and round."

Was not our poet true to his kind?—Signal.

TAKING A GLASS.

"Come in, Joe, and let's take a glass." "No, Thomas, can't afford it." "But, Joe, I'll pay for it." "Oh, I'm not speaking of loss of money, Thomas, but of loss of health and energy, moral principle, character, peace of mind, and self-respect."

Statistics have conclusively shown that the average of life in English jails is very much higher than outside of them. This may seem unaccountable, but we think it is explained by the fact that liquor is to a great extent kept from the prisoners. But for liquor the average of human life would be much greater than it is.—Anchor.

MORE TOBACCO.

The following case, it is hoped, will convince some tobacco devotees of the impurity of their habit. A certain blacksmith used tobacco for about sixty years; he became convinced of the filthiness of his practice in the following manner: When working on hot iron there would arise an odor very offensive, yea, almost unbearable. Its character was like tobacco spittle falling upon a hot stove. The English language fails to express the feelings that a clean, sensitive, pure body has when it comes in contact with such fluid. This man could not bear this awful condition of things, and wondered from whence it came. It occurred to him that the cause was in himself. It was hot weather, and he was working hard and drops of sweat would fall quite often on the hot iron. To make the thing certain he put a hoe into the forge, and when it was red hot he took it out, and with his hand he wiped the sweat from off his face upon the hot hoe. And, O! whew, what an odor! Can it be that I am so filthy! He was more than convinced, and resolved to abandon the filth forever. He has been free from it for about ten years. I think that all excessive tobacco consumers are in the same boat, and might be convinced in the same way. Neither is filthiness of the flesh condemned only by the Christian religion, for Mohamed, in harmony with Bible sentiments, anathematizes impurity and in his Fifth Commandment says, KEEP THY BODY CLEAN.—Dr. A. Clark, in the Anvil.

A BOY'S ESSAY ON BEES.

The following comes from the Artesia school, with a request to publish:

"There are four kinds of bees in a hive. There is the queen, hybrid, fighters and drones. The queen is the boss, the hybrid is the working bee, and—I suppose you know what the fighters are, the boys especially—and the drone is the lazy one of the hive. The queen lays the eggs in the cells, and then the workers put in some pollen for feed of the brood. The brood when in the cells look like worms. Bees go a long way for honey. Sometimes they stay out over night, and sometimes they are so heavily loaded they drop down sbout 5 or 6 feet from the hive. The hive is made with a platform for them to light on. Bees, when swarming, all come out of the hive and fly all around in the air; old swarm and all come out. Then the new swarm settles on a limb or a bush; they cluster in a bunch. Sometimes other bees come to rob them of their honey; then the fighters have to work, I tell you. When bees are starved out they will leave the hive and die on the wing. When swarming, if you place a hat in a bush, the queen will go and settle on it.—Howard Lawrence, in Lompoc Record.

RUM AND THE MORGUE.

By far the strongest temperance lecture of the season is the statement of the keeper of the New York morgue, that four-fifths of the five thousand bodies that reach the city dead house every year, are sent there by drunkenness. The jolly fellows who make fun of the anti-liquor agitation as they stand at bars and drink good whisky for of course no other kind is sold—know only the beginnings of what rum can do; but the rough pine boxes, filled with what once was clear-headed, bright-eyed humanity, are just as directly the work of drink as bar-room fun is. There may be cities in the world where men can drink spirits without injury to body and brain, but New York is not one of them. In a city where everybody, from the millionaire to the day laborer, is being continually impelled to begin more work than he can finish, whatever increases physical or mental excitement is a positive curse. The morgue's occupants do not all come from the lower classes, who drink bad rum; scions of honorable stock have been found there too often, for alcohol is as merciless a leveler as death itself.—N. Y. Herald.

WHEN a railroad or a city is in any way instrumental in a man's injury or death, it has to pay heavy damages, but a liquor dealer can injure thousands, and kill hundreds, and there is no penalty or relief under the laws. Is this right, is it justice? I shudder when I reflect that God is just, snd that his justice can not forever sleep.—Railroad.

ANOTHER of the Delmonicos died recently. Like his brother Lorenzo, who died in September, he was an inveterate smoker, and the lung diseases from which he finally died were attributable directly to his excessive use of tobacco. "I have known him," said Dr. Wood, who attended him for a long time, "to smoke as many as a hundred cigars in one day. He was completely saturated with nicotine, and the question of his death was only one of time."—Christian Intelligencer.

DO YOU vote for rum? If a man should come into your town, bringing a lot of handcuffs, and propose to put them on the wrists of everybody, bringing also "chain and ball" for the feet of every one, wouldn't there be a stormy time over such an effort to turn freemen into slaves? That is what the rumsellers propose to do. Vote him down. Vote him into the county jail where people may have the privilege of "handcuffs" to their hearts' content, if they will persist in breaking the laws again and again.—Freeman's Paper.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

ITALY AND WINE.

In the face of such revelations as have been recently made public and patent, the secular press refuses to correct the ruinous reports which have been so largely circulated as promising rich returns from the manufacture of wine in this State.

We know absolutely that wine as good in every respect as any kind that can be made from the rotted natural grape juice, can be made from glucose or sugar cane or potatoes. We know that glucose wine can be produced as cheaply as from grapes at $8 or $10 a ton, and we are told that by the use of glucose a California vineyard can be made to turn out three gallons in place of one and that is not difficult to believe; for all there is of wine is the water and the alcohol derived from rotten sugar or glucose, and a little flavor or "smell" of the grape. After wine has been made from the grapes, the skins and refuse of the grape can be worked over again twice, with two crops of glucose, the alcohol from which extracts a little more coloring and a little more grape flavor or odor from the refuse, and the same wine is made as at first; same in every respect and as good every way.

Therefore, it is the veriest folly to suppose that grape raisers can ever expect to get more than $8 to $10 a ton for wine grapes, (Mr. Harazthy puts it at $8) for glucose wine can be made even cheaper than that. The enormous falsehoods which have been often innocently published by the press should be withdrawn or corrected and the truth given in the interests of the vineyard men, to enable them in time to give their attention to a proper legitimate cultivation of the grape, which gives fair and honest promise of yielding a greater agricultural return to the farmers of our State than has ever been realized here or elsewhere; a business which has no drawback and under any circumstances must be infinitely more profitable than the wildest guesses ever hazarded on wine.

We still hear of the great enriching wine staple to come; but the history of the world fails to present a record of a people whom wine has ever benefited financially or otherwise.

Egypt is about the oldest wine country we know of and after having enjoyed and wasted the grandest of opportunities and most exalted privileges for thousands of years, it has gone down from a first power and first people to a level with about the lowest class of the digger Indians.

Italy of all the rest of the world has had the fairest chance to grow rich and great by wine. It has had about the best climate, the best markets of the world, every advantage that could have at all profited it. And it had to start with, the foremost race of men and women of the world and a universal dominion and all the scholarship and poetry and art and culture of the world. There never was a misfortune that befel its vineyards, its harvests, its wineries or its markets to any extent worth recording. If wine is enriching, Italy has had 3,000 years to lay up wealth and be a banker for all nations. True there have been wars and conquests and internal convulsions, but not one of them ever created an impoverishment that 20 or perhaps 10 years of sober industry should not have altogether repaired.

And what is the result; there is still a powerful nation, with some rich individuals but an impoverished and much degenerated people, vastly inferior to their remote ancestors in physique and in every way. The Government is wofully in debt and exhausting the energies of the nation and centering its wealth in a useless, worthless toy of war, a powerful navy of armored ships and monster guns and a huge standing army of wasted men and depraved industry, to maintain a kingly tyranny against the menacing treason of an ignorant and idolatrous fanaticism led by priestcraft.

What has wine done for Italy? All that we can see is that the ancient seat of learning, the world's once central emporium of art and poetry, now furnishes its quota to the world's concert of industry and commerce and progress—in beggars, in organ grinders, whom its slave catchers own and train and enslave, in a crowd of fishermen and cooks and sailors and rag-pickers and scavengers and dump-scratchers—some gardeners and farm laborers—nearly all daily hard drinkers of the most fiery liquors and when they have the means a very drunken set; and also there come to us some respectable musicians, artists, artisans and worthy people that are sober.

But giving full credit to all the good qualities of the worthy Italians, what a terribly disastrous outcome of their wine making civilization has come to the once grandest nation of heroes and poets and scholars. And whatever the wine of devils has done for the Italians in a thousand years in degradation and pauperization, it would do for California in half a century if unmolested.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

When he vetoed the Chinese Bill, the abuse of the President and burning his effigy was in very bad taste, for it is possible that he acted from an idea that he was doing a proper and virtuous act. And some men said boldly that he was bribed to do so; of this there was no legitimate ground of suspicion, much less of proof, and to accuse any one of taking a bribe who is innocent of that crime is a monstrous iniquity, one of the most cruel of wrongs, no matter who or what the character of the accused may be.

But the President seems anxious to make himself popular with certain people and certain classes whose favor is only secured by the forfeiture of the good opinion of the most reputable, Christian and virtuous classes of the American nation.

His rude rupture of the chaste and virtuous character of the social relations which he found existing in the Executive Mansion, his lofty influence ostentatiously hurled against temperance and decency, his recal of barbarous and drunken usages and practices to the White House after two administrations of pure and respectable and American social policy which had elicited the applause and respectful admiration of the civilized world, was a reckless slap in the face to every virtuous and sober and Christian American citizen in the Union, and was a crime against the nation that will never be forgiven, because forgiveness will never be asked or deserved.

Again a Brewers Convention was held in Washington a few days ago. Without dout some of these brewers were good looking men on the outside, some of them jolly friendly fellows; some of them have good worthy wives, worthy sons, virtuous worthy daughters; some of them would pay a debt or repay a loan or return a personal favor as honestly as the best of men. But there is an absolute certainty that the business of every one of these men is the most vile and infamous the world has ever known; the most far and deep reaching in its influences to seduce, entrap, betray, deprave, debauch the boys and girls and men and women of this country; to introduce into every home in the land the most subtle poison of lust and depravity and harlotry and dishonesty and crime that ever undermined a home and conspired to ruin its inmates.

The transaction of their business is a daily and hourly and unceasing crime of the utmost turpitude and most atrocious cruelty. To the cool atrocity of the murderous whisky villainy, it adds the meanness of the most cunning hypocrisy. If beer was what it pretends to be, it would be a conspiracy against the honesty of every man and the virtue of every woman, entering every ones home in the guise of harmlessness and innocence and then beguiling its victim to pauperism and misery and eternal death.

But the present race of brewers not content with the murderous work of their treacherous potion, have agreed to seek quicker gains by rendering their accursed poison more seductive and murderous and fatal still, by piling adulteration upon adulteration on their original fraud. And now they are doing a thousand fold more extensive and cruel butchery than ever the Thugs of India dreamed of. Every brewer is scattering abroad a viler and more loathsome leprosy than ever came from China and they are besieging every home and trying to pauperize, disease and utterly curse and poison the nation and its life.

And this gang of doubledyed pirates, traitors and debauchers of the public morals and destroyers of the peoples lives and properties, this leag of outlaws, purjurers and professional robbers have the effrontery to meet in the Nation's Capitol and the President of the United States degrades the Nation and himself and offers this ring of miscreants the honor and virtue of the Nation and his own to trample underfoot.

No President of the U. S. ever committed such a grievous prostitution of his office as to fraternize and fellowship with such an iniquitous crew or to address with words of eulogy and approbation, the patrons and manufacturers and dealers and dispensers of the nations harlotry and crime.

And to further drag the the name of President of the United States in the mire of disgrace and immorality he becomes a patron of the horse race and horse cheat and blackleg, an act of heathenism which has not been associated with the office for over 20 years.

It seems as if a most wise and necessary thing for all patriotic men and women to do now, is to register an oath with the solemnity that attended the vow of Hannibal, that never under any circumstances will they permit their vote or influence to aid in the election of any one as President, Vice President, Senator, Congressman or Legislator, who is not from principle a total abstainer and a person of decent habits. The surest way to invoke the curse of God upon our country is to vote for the class of Godless unprincipled men that iniquitous Godless party has hoisted into office thru the votes of honest but unwise men.

GOOD OF THE ORDER.

It cannot be too often repeated that our Lodges should be educational institutions; the Lodge that takes in a new member and especially a young member and does nothing to instruct and elevate that member, forgets its obligation to the Order and to its membership.

It is of very great importance that a Lodge should choose a high level for all its exercises. Not to put on sentimental and sunflower airs and frills, but rigorously to exclude everything which would not be tolerated in what is properly called "good society." And especially should all boisterous and rude and rowdy behavior even in the fun of recess be discountenanced.

No healthy honest Good Templar asks a lodge to sit solemly with arms folded and hands crossed and listen to a funeral dirge, wailed by some antiquated doleful member; but those who have the kindest personal interest in the comfort and welfare of the members, and who have the keenest desire that their meeting together in the Lodge should be always an occasion of the purest and best enjoyment—do earnestly wish that the Lodge exercises should be of such a grade and tone, that no one can truly object to them as frivolous and stupid, or as having a lowering tendency upon the morals of the membership.

There is always something which ot to be amended when a temperance family, who love the cause and order, are uneasy and talk of withdrawing or do withdraw their children from the Lodge because they fear the exercises and perhaps the dancing associations may have a demoralizing tendency upon them. Two excellent girls are now meditating withdrawal from the Order because of the dancing relations that are encroaching upon their lodge, and it has not two members more worthy or estimable in every respect.

If dancing was a good thing to promote temperance, if we could point to a few lodges that grew up into large membership and earnestness and usefulness in the cause because they started a dancing department, and if the dancing drove out the grog-shop and was a helper for education and prohibition, those who now oppose it would advocate strenuously a four hours breakdown every night.

If dancing had never helped to break up a lodge, if it had never harmed a lodge, no matter whether we think it is a proper and moral amusement or not, there would be little opposition to it in the Order. Most of us would say, "People will dance and do dance somewhere and the best place for them to dance is away from the grogshop."

But we never have to discuss the morality or propriety of the act of dancing. There is an immense number of people church members and not church members, who object to the moral aspect of the dance—and because they do, we can count up a long roll of dead lodges that would have been prosperous institutions, but dancing and nothing else killed them dead. And we can point to a roll of still living lodges which have adopted the dance movement and every one of them is dead, or dying out fast, as to any interest or successful work in the cause of temperance.

A dancing lodge attracts an incoming membership who dont care a rap for the temperance feature of the Order and it repels a better class, who would be earnest workers, from ever joining with a lodge, dancing or no dancing—and it drives out an outgowing better part of its own membership who get disheartened and go out of the lodge and Order. And when the lodge has only its dancers left, there is either no lodge any more, or it is no longer a temperance organization.

There is not a single instance of a lodge that was ever helped any way by a dance. Hundreds of lodges have tasted the dance system and found it fatal. If the whisky interest could get one successful apostle of dancing into every lodge, they could afford to give themselves no further uneasiness as to any harm, ever to come to them from our Order.

GROUNDLESS SLANDER.

Henry Ward Beecher. At intervals by no means infrequent, we see in some of the secular papers a fling or allusion to Mr. Beecher, which pretends to take it for granted that he has been guilty of some startling immorality or crime. To make these railing accusations is as mean and despicable a crime as any his enemies ever tried to fix on him. There is no baser or viler act than to steal or murder the character even of an enemy that is innocent.

There was a celebrated and most searching lawsuit about nine years ago, in which the most determined effort was made thru perjury and hired witnesses and hate and envy and malice to affix a charge of wanton immorality not so much upon Mr. Beecher personally, as upon one of the most prominent preachers of Christianity, and there was not a breath of suspicion begotten in any candid, honest mind as to the perfect innocence of Mr. Beecher during the whole trial. Not one suspicious circumstance was established.

The first notice of the assault on his character was made years before the trial by a notoriously infamous fallen woman who declared that "the spirits" had demanded of Mr. Beecher that he should publicly advocate the doctrine of free love, and as he had refused they were going to blast and ruin him. She was an open paramour of Tilton's and a willing conspirator of his against Mr. Beecher. The mere fact of all the conspirators being such notorious villains and criminals ot to have established the perfect innocenee of the accused without any rebuttal of their testimony; for if he had been a guilty, depraved, dishonest wretch like them, they would have loved him.

The Rescue has no admiration for Mr. B. No other living man could have done so much for temperance as he might if he chose. His father was a gallant advocate of it. The son with a thousand times greater opportunity has never helped it for 20 years at least. His acts and words and pen have at various times grievously discouraged and wounded it and have no doubt turned many a young person aside from being a worker in the most important quarter of the Master's vineyard, where there is the greatest scarcity and greatest need and loudest call for laborers.

But whoever accuses him of guilt in the matter of the Tilton scandal is as guilty of crime as if he had of his own unaided malice contrived the whole villainous scheme. No man has a right to make a charge of infamy against anyone without due cause, much less when it has been thoroly disproved. Before the trial the Rescue predicted that should his innocence be ever so clearly established, the enemies of decency who had condemned him unheard, would continue to condemn him right along, same as if he had been proved guilty, and so it has turned out.

There is one class of men who should be charitably considered in this matter; they reason thus: "Had I been in the place of the accused, and opportunity occurred to betray my friend and my friend's wife and act the villian and hypocrite, would I not have done so?" "Certainly I would." "And is H W. B. any better man than I; any more virtuous or honest than I am? No, certainly not." Then the case is clear, "I would have done so, therefore he did so;" and that kind of man who argues thus condems every one that is accused of any sin or wrong whatever; and never believes any one innocent. Such a man needs pity; next time we see such charges repeated, let us pity the utterer in due form and send him kindly and earnest recommendation to cast the devil of depravity out of his own heart, for he sadly needs relief.

SPELLING.

The Emancipator tho a friend to spelling reform thinks the Rescue in error in writing bot, thot, ot etc., as it should be baut, aut etc. The Rescue never pretended to put forward its present method as a system to be adopted by the country at large. A few abominable and glaring excrescences and absurdities are abandoned to show people that it is neither sacrilegious, profaue or sinful to depart from an ancient barbarous custom which can plead no excuse save that it is an ancient abuse.

Thousands of people have never given the matter a thot; they learned to spell once partially, and having learned as children, they have always supposed that to really does spell tu and that cow spells kow whereas all the doctors and scientists in the world must admit that it spells sow; we have accustomed ourselves not only to an absurdity but to a falshood and a great many of them and we are teaching them to the rising generation.

As to bot, there is no need of it being sounded baut or differently from dot. The old English word bought is pronounced in one part of England bout, in another bote and baut and boot; in Scotland boht and boaht. In Britain dog is called doag, doog, doug, dug, daug, according to the locality. There is no necessity for having a dozen dipthong variations of the sound of o in bot, thot, sot. Our language wants urgently some law and authority and common sense in its orthografy. A great many radical changes. It seems a duty to begin moderately and modestly to assail the superstitious taboo which surrounds our Pagan spelling, and to try to induce writers and scholars and printers to declare in some measure their independence of an absurd and to some extent a sinful fashion when we consider the waste of precious time imposed upon the pupils of our schools, has become a duty.

All our writers and printers might as well write hav, giv, gon, definit, prolog, hym, spel, wil, rumatism, tru, blu, tu and leave out those retched ws, ughs, hs and double and silent letters which are of no possible utility, but wofully mar and disfigure the otherwise grandest language of the world. Many people are deterred from doing this by the fear of being thot ignorant, if they dont spell the old way. But a great many would hide in that way their incapacity to remember the old hieroglifics, which is by no means a sign of ignorance any more than incapacity to play the violin is. Of course to write pigg or catt, discloses a lack of schooling, but when people forget how that obstinate bigot Dr. Johnson ruled that we should spell irrelevant, persistence, assistance, adolescence, aqueduct, degradation and a few hundred other words, as people do with very few exceptions, it is no more an indication of ignorance than the inability to repeat the nursery rimes which were sung over their cradle in the long long ago.

TEMPERANCE GROCERIES.

There are two advertised in the Rescue doing business in San Francisco ready to supply customers either in the city or in the country, any where this side of Omaha, and China. No occasion for any jealousy or opposition between the two, for there is business enough for ten more for country trade and fifty more for city custom.

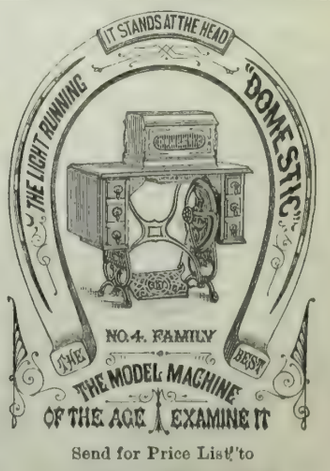
When Good Templars in the country or inland towns have a neighbor who keeps a square temperance grocery and sells at fair prices, the most proper thing for them to do is to patronize and help the business of their own neighbor; but where temperance men in the city or country patronize those who sell liquor or keep a beer den, they are arming the leag of free rum to destroy the Sunday, the liberties, the lives of our people and to reduce our country to the pauperism and degradation of all beer and gin countries.

There are rumselling groceries that would have to give up their ruinous business if all the temperance people withhdrew their trade; and there are dramshops that would have to shut up but for the temperance people who buy cigars there. Some of these characters would have to quit if they lost the $200 or $300 a year derived from the temperance people, and when that is the case, it is the latter who keep up the sources of crime and pauperism.

And there must always be a great saving in dealing with the square honest traders who are advertised in the Rescue; enough to enable you to indulge in the course of the year in a good many little extra comforts or pleasures which otherwise would seem out of place.

Dealing with a temperance grocery is taking an important step in cleaning out the worst sources of the crime and pauperism and misery which keeps us all constantly on the watch to avoid being robbed or imposed upon by frauds. And when we know the villainous attempts that are made to injure and ruin temperance men in business, we should stand shoulder to shoulder and help one another.

519 Post St. or 1901 Bush Street will supply you on the best of terms.



COL. J. T. LONG.

This talented and popular orator labored for some months in Oregon, and all reports coming thence thus far have borne uniform testimony to the excellence and efficiency of his work and to the hearty appreciation he met with there. Large numbers of new recruits from the ranks of the valuable citizenship of our sister State were added thru his efforts to the existing lodges where he lectured, and quite a number of vigorous and populous new lodges were added to the former list. The season was the most unfavorable too for successful work.

In California where he had a favorable opportunity of addressing an audience he was received with an enthusiastic appreciation and made a deep and lasting impression upon those who heard him. In Woodland, Davisville, Sacramento, Oakland and San Francisco, Col. Long will be remembered as an earnest, faithful, eloquent pleader for the emancipation of the drink enslaved millions, for equal human rights, for the claims of humanity and justice; thoroly impressed with the grandeur and importance of the cause he advocated with such hearty eloquence, in thoro sympathy with every honest effort to rid the world of bondage, he wins a ready welcome among the good and true and may always count upon a numerous company of hearty genuine friends among the workers in the golden west, who hope to have the pleasure at some future time of giving him a right royal welcome when his home duties will permit him to make a more extended stay with us. To hear of grand successes in the field of his future labor will be most welcome news to his many friends on the Pacific Coast.

Beatty's Organs.—The two Organs for Butte Co. reported some weeks ago as missing, have reached Marysville, with a freight bill to pay of $45, a rate the consignee says, of about $225 per ton. That is moderate enough seeing it is only about 25 times what it would have cost to send them from New York to China, more than half way round the world. The nation could build a thru road from here to New York and save its whole cost in the savings of extortionate freights in a few years. And that is the only possible way to solve the problem.

The Chinese.—There is one and only one rational method of dealing with the Chinese problem. Shut the grogshops and loose the murderous grasp of the rumseller and brewer from the throat of the white working men, and we want no legislation to sweep away the Chinaman. He is only here at the beck of the rumseller who can't afford to let the white man attend to his work half the time, so John must do the rest and most of it.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

IN MEMORIAM.—Notices have been given at various times that In Memoriam resolutions will not be published in the RESCUE, but still they continue to be sent regularly, without date or place of death, with no intimation whether the age was 13 or 81, and constructed in language and pattern that have been worn out a thousand times and are obsolete. The organ of the order should register the date and place of death, the name, age, sex, standing, record and qualities of every member that is called home from our circle. And the memorial notice should be in decorous terms and shape, and should be respectful to the memory of the deceased, satisfactory to the bereaved and creditable to the Order. It is a very simple affair to write an appropriate memorial notice, but it is impossible to frame one in this office from the material presented in the resolutions that generally come to hand. Therefore, be it understood, memorial notices will be readily inserted, but resolutions that contain no particulars from which a respectful notice can be framed, will in the future receive no attention. Twice during the past year the name of the deceased was omitted in the resolutions sent for publication beside many other irregularities and it is time this matter should receive decorous attention.

OREGON.

OFFICE OF GRAND SECRETARY, I. O. G. T., EUGENE CITY, Or., April 24, 1882.

TO SUBORDINATE LODGES.

The G. L. of Oregon will meet at The Dalles on Tuesday, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

O. & C. R.R.Co. will sell round trip tickets to Delegates on presenting their credentials at their home stations, at a reduction of 40 per cent., good from June 17th to 24 inclusive.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. will return delegates who paid full fare going at a reduction of 80 per cent on presenting my certificate at "The Dalles" ticket office

Remember to purchase tickets for round trip at home for Portland, at all O. & C. R. R. Stations. Ask for return tickets for Grand Lodge, and start Saturday, the 17th to be on time.

Representatives to G.L. must be chosen at the first regular meeting in May, and the basis of representation is one for the Charter, and one for every 40 members or fraction thereof when it exceeds twenty, based on the returns for quarter just ending, and it is hoped that each lodge in the jurisdiction will be represented, as we are assured the citizens of The Dalles will give us a warm welcome and aid us to make this session one of the most pleasant in our annals.

The R. W. G. T. has designated the first week in May as "Banner Week," and requests that every Lodge on the continent of America make a special effort during this week, in Sunday-schools, day-schools, lodge rooms and personal canvassing, to increase the circulation of the "Youth's Temperance Banner," published by National Temperance Society, at 58 Reade St., New York City.

Returns.—Do not fail to send in the returns early in the term, in fact, as soon as your officers are installed, that I may have time to make out my yearly report in due time for Grand Lodge session.

Anticipating a hearty compliance in the matter of returns, and congratulating you all on the continued prosperity of the Order in our own State, I am faithfully and fraternally yours, J. E. HOUSTON, G. Sec'y.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year.

"WINES: SCRIPTURAL AND ECCLESIASTICAL."

The National Temperance Society has just published a new volume, with the above title, by Dr. Norman Kerr, of London. It presents a very complete and convincing array of authorities, ancient and modern, demonstrating beyond question the existence of two kinds of wine—the fermented and unfermented, the former intoxicating and harmful, the latter non-alcoholic and wholesome. It is a most conclusive answer to the unwarranted assumption that Jesus made and commended alcoholic, and, therefore, intoxicating and poisonous wine. It is one of the most valuable and scholarly contributions yet made to the literature of the Bible-wine question, and should be widely read, especially by every clergyman and by all friends of temperance in the land. 12mo, 130 pages. Price, 50 cents in cloth; 25 cents in paper covers. Address, J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

LAW AND LIQUOR.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE.

Now that the battle has begun in earnest, this little pamphlet ought to be in the hands of every man in the State. It is clear-cut and forcible in an eminent degree, is well calculated to arouse the conscience and carry conviction home to the heart.

Every Good Templars' Lodge in the State should send for at least 100 copies for gratuitous distribution, as one has said:

"It will be hard to find 12 pages in any modern publication that will do better work in the cause of temperance, and temperance societies and temperance people will do well to circulate the pamphlet by thousands and tens of thousands."

In view of the great interests now at stake, and with an earnest desire to do good, we have reduced the price to $3 per hundred, postage included.

Send your orders to me at 25 Russ street, San Francisco, J. C. SIMMONS, or to RESCUE OFFICE.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

LETTER FROM NEW SOUTH WALES.

The ninth annual session of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales was begun on Friday April 7th, and continued on the Saturday and Monday following. The G. W. C. T., L. E. Harcus presided, and the other executive officers were all in their places. The Grand Lodge Degree was conferred in an impressive manner upon more than 50 new members, the total number of representatives present being about 60; in addition to whom were many past representatives and others who were in possession of the Grand Lodge Degree by virtue of office in subordinate lodge. The returns for the past year showed that there were 57 lodges in existence, 8 instituted during the year while 6 had ceased working, one charter had been revoked and one surrendered leaving the number of lodges the same as at the beginning of the year's work. The total number of members in good standing was 2,861 a decrease of 321 altho no less than 2,112 had been initiated since the previous session. The suspensions for non payment of dues were 1,621 so that it will be seen that in every part of the world this curse of our Order exists. The finances of the Grand Lodge show a balance in the hands of the G. W. T. of $136 but this apparently favorable result is accounted for by the fact that positively no money has been expended except in salaries and the purchase of supplies. The following extracts from the report G. W. C. T., Harcus will show that he at least realizes the position that the Order should occupy:—

"The G. W. S. in his report will deal fully with our statistical and financial position, and hence it is unnecessary that I should in the slightest degree interfere with his duty in that respect; but we have yet to consider the question of our influence upon the outside world. I am obliged to confess that I cannot regard it with pleasure. So far as I am able to see, it is no greater now than it was two years ago, and to me the reason is plain. Our Order is too cheap. We shall never succeed in reforming the world by simply expending a shilling or eighteen pence a quarter on our lodges. Unless the lodges are placed in funds they cannot work, and unless the Grand Lodge is in the same position we may as well rest from our labor and leave the work to others. I have no hesitation in saying that the financial basis of our Order is a disgrace to the Good Templars of Australasia, for the fault is not confined to our colony. There is not a member in the length and breath of the land who could not if he would, spare 12 cents a week for the purpose of rescuing the fallen, of which one-third might be devoted to extending the Order thruout the jurisdiction. This would give the Grand Lodge an income $6,500 a year, and, with this amount at our disposal some good might be done. The time has now come, as it appears to me, when this question must come under our consideration, and hence I have felt it my duty to introduce it. The Order cannot be worked upon the present basis any longer, of that I am convinced. Some change must be made, and that immediately if our Order is to do the work for which it was established.

"In making suggestions for the future government of the Order I must place first and foremost this question of a revision of our financial system. An income from capitation tax of some $800 a year is absurdly small, and the lodges cannot expect with the extent of territory that we have to cover, that anything can possibly be done in the way of extending and consolidating the Order. With our population we ought to have at least 10,000 members in our midst, but the amount at the disposal of the Grand Lodge Executive is utterly insufficient to enable them to do anything towards the propagation of our principles. Individual members of the Order, at their own cost, have done wonders in the past, but it is not creditable to us that we should expect this to be done in the future. I would recommend that in order to make a commencement in this direction, the Grand Lodge should at once increase the capitation tax to not less than one shilling (24 cts.) per quarter, for I am firmly convinced that no aggressive work can be undertaken for less than that. In my last report I recommended the members of the Grand Lodge 'to make some provision to improve our financial position, so as to enable us to act with the greater degree of boldness against the great foe of the human race;' but, altho this recommendation was adopted as it stood, no action in the premises was taken, and I have accordingly felt it to be my duty to make this definite and specific recommendation now.

"I would also recommend that the G. W. C. T. be required to devote his whole time to the work of the Order, and that in order to enable him to do this the sum of $1,500 be voted him for his support in the interim. At first sight, and in view of the financial position of the Grand Lodge, this proposal may appear to be a somewhat startling one; but it seems to me that it is the only course that can be adopted, failing the adoption of my previous recommendation. If an energetic and zealous brother can be found who will take the work of the Grand Lodge in hand, and, when not otherwise engaged, do his utmost towards the extension of the Order and its principles, I firmly believe that much good will result, and the amount of money thus expended will, before the year is over, be more than recouped to our Grand Lodge Treasury."

It is of course almost needless to state that these recommendations of the G. W. C. T. were not adopted by the Grand Lodge, the "cheap John" policy being just as prevalent at the antipodes as in other parts of the world, but it is satisfactory to know that they received in Bro. Harcus' own words "a very much greater measure of support than I anticipated." The election of officers resulted as follows:—Simeon Brown, G. W. C. T.; G. H. Wigley, G. W. C.; J. P. F. Walker, G. W. V. T.; R. R. Jack, G. W. S.; W. F. McDowell. G. W. T.; Rev. J. Hicks, G. W. Ch.; J. Cush, G. W. M.; W. Pidcock, G. S. J. W.; L. E. Harcus, P. G. W. C. T. These brethren with the appointed officers were duly installed. Bro. L. E. Harcus, P. G. W. C. T. and W. B. James, P. G. W. S. were elected representatives to the Worthy Grand Lodge of Australasia, meeting in Dunedin, New Zealand in November next. The business transacted was of the usual character and the session closed to meet again on Good Friday 1882.

A TEMPERANCE PARTY.

The necessity for political action in regard to the liquor traffic is no longer a question of dispute or doubt. But the best mode of securing the desired action is what divides the temperance hosts. Brother Winchester in an able article in the RESCUE of May 5, shows up the status of the old parties—and his utter distrust that any good results can come by perpetuating either of them in power.

And nothing can be more pertinent nor potent, than his statement—that the Democrats deprived of the Sons of the Emerald Isle, and their whisky, and the Republicans deprived of the Teuton, and his beer, would be like Samson shorn of his locks—and powerless for good or evil.

The purpose of this brief article is to call the attention of the voters in the Lodges and Christian churches of California to this well-known fact, that neither of the old parties dare to do anything that will offend either of the tippling elements above named. It is true there are some good men who are leaders in both of the parties—who wish it were otherwise—but who consider it political suicide to affront so large a vote.

Now how can any sane man expect any action from a party (that is dependent on the drinking element) that will advance temperance or hasten Prohibition.

All true temperance men are working for Prohibition as the goal—the success of Kansas and Maine—and hundreds of towns and counties have proved that Prohibition does prohibit. No man that is posted—no matter what his belief, denies this. Then if the only solution of this question is the passage of a Prohititory law for California—is it wise for any temperance man to talk and work and pray, in the lodge, in the church—everywhere, and then vote to put men in office who bribe voters with strong drink, who manipulate primary and convention by the same means—and then expect us to vote and work for them because we belong to their party?

Who is fooled at every election, is it the liquor men or the temperance people? How many more elections which are scenes of drunkenness and debauchery must we witness before we are satisfied that nothing can be gained for our cause by letting the creatures of the liquor traffic dupe and deceive us, by lashing the people into a white heat every election over some silly party twaddle.

Since Arthur has signed the Chinese bill, what issue is there to divide Republicans and Democrats in California? Is not this a good and favorable time to have a People's party for Sabbath and Home Protection? Is it not high time to have a little common sense exercised by voters, and give the dear people a little show to run the government, while the professional politician be relegated to back seats, to improve their morals and manners?

The Grangers of California—the bone and sinew of the State—the lovers of law and order—in fact, all the better classes of society, who are disgusted with the defiant arrogance of the "League of Freedom," would hail with joy an opportunity to vote for men, who are not slaves to the dominion and power of strong drink.

It is time that some of the "powers that be," made a loud call, to meet in some central part of the State, to form a Party, that will carry out its promises, and be faithful and obedient to the behests of the people.

Our G. W. C. T. in a recent article said that in 20 years, we would win this fight. And I asked myself is it possible that our temperance people have given up, that for 20 more long years, we are to sacrifice the bright boys of California on the altar of Bacchus, before the Fatherhood of our State will assert itself and throw off this yoke of the "League of Hell," that means the ruin and debauchery of their daughters and sons. Some faithless souls will say, we will get beat. Suppose we do—for one I want a chance to vote for principle, and as soon as 5,000 votes are cast for Temperance in California, then we become a recognized factor in the politics of our State—and never will until we vote as we pray.

PROHIBITIONIST.

FROM A MINISTER.

ED. RESCUE:—For some 6 months the RESCUE has come regularly to me. The spirited manner of the paper—not the result of vile spirits—has aroused my attention to seriously think. Is there real use in what ordinarily might be styled such a tirade against the use of ardent spirits, which the whole world in all ages has used? At first I thot not, tho it was plain that an immense good would accrue to the wicked world if alcohol could be banished from it, and as I thot it useless to hope thus, better try on, with all the moral suasion christianity and religion could bring, to reach as many as God in mercy might call out. But to cut matters short, by carefully reading the RESCUE 6 months, in the meantime looking around at the horrid devastation of human beings, laboring with some to try to have them desist, and having my sympathies exceedingly enlisted for the poor, helpless wives and children, suffice it to say, that I am completely, entirely and forever convinced the RESCUE is right and I am willing and anxious to join in "nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law" on the subject. I have joined the Good Templars Lodge in this place, and on last evening presented the names of 6 candidates, and mean to throw my whole influence into the scale of prohibition. The Temperance movement may depend on me henceforth every time, while conducted as honestly, fairly and religiously as it seems to be now, and I shall feel it partly my responsibility to see that efforts are directed in this channel.

I have selected pieces from the RESCUE to read for "the good of the Order" from time to time, and am going to get just as many to take the paper as possible here in this stronghold of Satan.

Many of our Order here, however, are in straitened circumstances. Many alcohol has robbed and ground down in various ways. Some widows and orphans made so and poor, by drink on the part of their natural protectors, now gone, that I simply ask; suppose we get up a club, so a roll of RESCUES can come to one address, can you furnish copies cheaper than $1.25? I feel very thankful to some one, whomever it may be, for sending it so long. I may be able to return the compliment to some one else, and if his heart is anything like mine, he will be convinced.

I wish to add too, that I am almost as much pleased with the course of the paper in standing so strong against tobacco. I have long thot the use of it, as it drains the system of its natural moisture, created a thirst for something else, which naturally led to strong drink. I see that nearly every drunkard is slobbering tobacco spittle. Drunkenness and tobacco using are twin evils.

I have long thot, too, it about time an improvement or reform was made in our way of spelling. So much valuable time taken now to make good spellers, when so much other useful knowledge must be omitted. We have so much now, in this age to live for, that there seems need of a thousand reforms. Yours very truly, ———

May 12, 1882.

NOTICE OF ABSENCE.

The friends and patrons of the undersinged are respectfully notified that he will take his summer vacation during the month of June. His dental rooms, however, will be open as usual; at Oakland, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Vallejo, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, for July appointments. About the first week in June I will start with my family for Yosemite and take one months' rest.

DUE notice will be circulated of Home Protection meeting on Saturday evening, and on Saturday, June 3d. C. N. FOX, Esq., is expected to give the address.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building. grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully. and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street. San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

LADY MANAGERS OF ORPHANS HOME.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. RENEW! RENEW!! RENEW!!!

GREAT OFFER FOR

Renewals and New Subscribers!

AN OPPORTUNITY TO BOTH

GET GOOD AND DO GOOD

WITHOUT ITS COSTING YOU ANYTHING.

Five of the Revolution "Class Papers" sent free---one each to any five addresses for one year for every cash renewal or cash subscriber sent to the RESCUE with $1.25.

The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, of Chicago, publishes eighteen monthly "class papers," as follows:

No. 1. "Our Young Ladies," especially for young ladies.
No. 2. "Our Young Men," especially for young men.
No. 3. "Our Women," especially for women.
No. 4. "The Christian," for any and every one who acknowledges the claims of God.
No. 5. "The Pastor," especially for pastors urging them to do their duty.
No. 6. "The Sunday-School Superintendent," setting forth the duties of the Sunday-school in relation to temperance, and what the superintendent may do
No. 7. "The Sunday-School Worker," intended to induce all Sunday-school teachers to teach temperance in their classes, and otherwise help the cause.
No. 8. "The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner," containing articles from Catholic divines, etc., intended to influence Catholic families.
No. 9. "The Pledge," for reform work; useful at any time.
No. 10. "The Prohibition Banner, for State or local prohibition work.
No. 11. "The Saloon Curse," a paper antagonizing the saloon on the merits of the question, "Saloons or no Saloons," without regard to temperance; especially suited to local prohibition work.
No. 12. "Home Protection," to help women to the ballot on the temperance question, for local or state home protection work.
No. 13. "The People," gotten up especially for the ordinary classes, mechanics, laboring men, etc.
No. 14. "The Railroad," for railroad employes.
No. 15. "The Anchor," for sailors, steamboat men, etc.
No. 16. "The Soldier," for soldiers.
No. 17. "The American Farmer," for farmers
No. 18. "The Freeman, for colored people.

These papers are sent out monthly, each paper addressed, wrapped and mailed separately to each individual named. Each person sending $1.25 cash renewal or new subscriber for the RESCUE will be entitled to the privilege of selecting from the above list, five papers, all of one, or of different kinds, and ordering them sent to such parties as he may choose, monthly, for one year, without extra cost to him.

For your cash renewal, five papers.

For your cash renewal and one new subscription, or for two new subscribers, ten papers.

For your cash renewal and two new subscriptions, or for three new subscriptions, fifteen papers, and so on.

The "class papers" are small, four-page, two column papers, intended to take the place of tracts, on which they are certainly a great improvement. Each contains about 6,000 words in a number, or 70,000 in a year, choice matter, and they can not fail to do good wherever sent.

An arrangement with the "Revolution" makes this offer possible for a limited time only.

Those who avail themselves of this offer must give carefully and plainly the address of the parties to whom the class papers are to be sent, post-office, county and state. And no other premiums or discounts can be made on papers so ordered. There is no weekly temperance paper in the world so cheap as the RESCUE on these terms.

MRS. RICHARDSON reports a fine interesting meeting of Fountain Lodge on Monday evening.

WANTED 25 lodges this week to subscribe for 10 copies each of the RESCUE. Let us reach 10,000 copies by Grand Lodge Session and get prohibition in the state.

Selling whiskey to Indians has recently caused considerable trouble at different points east of the mountains, and we may look for a small Indian war at any time.—Register.

"WE were asked this week to sign a petition praying for the organization of a third party—a prohibition party. No, we can't sign any such petition. Just at this time we are not in the least inclined to throw our vote away:— Ex. If the voter has voted for either of the old parties for the last 8 years it would puzzle him to show that he did not throw his vote away so far as any useful service to the country came or could come from it.

TWO VICTIMS of the Eastern Leag of Fiendom were hung last week in Iowa, one for murdering his wife, the other for murdering a woman with whom he lived.

MR. ROBERT H. WETMORE, of San Francisco, has received a picture and an affectionate address from the S. of T. of Halifax N. S. where he labored in the Order 37 years and was G. W. P. in 1874. It is to be hoped the good Brother is in active service here.

MESSRS. ROUSE AND LAWS, 306 Davis St., is the place to send all your produce to and get all your business properly and honestly attended to. Get square, sober men to attend to your commission business. Temperance people should pull together.

ERRORS.—The poem on second page of this issue should have been credited to some exchange, but by somebody's fault it was omitted and the copy is lost. One-half the pages in this number are wrong too, and it was done by a sober printer.

SUBSCRIPTIONS and renewals this week; Burwood 2; Twilight Lodge Walnut Creek 5; North Westport Mass. 1; Yuba City (J. Hardy) 7; S. F. 1; Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Richardson 103; (San Francisco 75; Oakland 25; Benicia 1; Olema 1; Tacoma W. T. 1;) in all 122.

A HOME PROTECTION MEETING at Y. M. C. A. Hall was addressed on Sat. evening last by the Hon. Warren Oliver of San Jose who gave a most excellent and impressive exposition of the Sunday law question. Mrs. M. E. Richardson sang several songs with much acceptance and the meeting tho slimly attended was a very enjoyable one.

AN EXCHANGE which publishes a string of memorial resolutions all of nearly the same words, has one which says "Resolved, That while we submit to the will of the Divine ruler we feel that our loss is his gain, etc.;" which dont look very well. How very much more appropriate it would be to tell the truth and publish a rational statement of the death and standing and record of the deceased.

JAMES VICK the Florist of Rochester N. Y. is dead. The U. S. owe him a kind and grateful memory. His was a mission eminently for good. He was a very prophet in the art of educating the public taste, beautifying the American home and encouraging the employment of the young folks in adorning and blessing their surroundings in their odd spare moments of leisure. He was an Old Master in the art in which the rum and tobacco odored Oscar Wilde is a daub and a fraud.

AFTER you get your eyes so damaged by quack treatment, that you can't read a six feet theatre poster when you run against it, the wisest thing to do is to go and see if Dr. Paugh, 640 Clay street, can help you. That is where you ot to have gone first, but people like to waste $50 or $100 before they go some place to get cured. It is human nature to do that.

TRUE PATRIOTISM.—The machine party men have always boasted of their loyalty and patriotism. With the Republican machinists the watchword of patriotism was, keep out the Democrats if you want to save the country. But when the patriotic members of the Republican party see fit to cast off the tyranny of the despot Boss Conkling or the despot Boss Cameron or the despot Boss of other States, and set out to make their party serve the country and the people instead of being the hireling body guard of a stuffed autocrat—then the watchword of the bossites changes suddenly to, "There must be no compromise but the regular Republicans must exert all their strength against the Independents," That means it is far better to have the Democrats carry the day than that honest Republicans should be elected who dont prefer the private interests of our spoils ring to the welfare of our country. And the Tammany Democrats and Boss-ring Democrats pursue the same tactics when their Bosses have become obnoxious to their honest brethren.

The Central Pacific road is certainly well managed in general, as travelers know, but its "Depot Saloons" at every station constitute an aggregate evil that is immeasureable. Monopolizing this disgraceful business along its line does not comport with the dignity of a great business firm. It is a shocking immorality carried on solely for money. A conscientious company would use its influence to discourage a criminal catering to depraved appetites. We noticed these saloons along the line with surprise and disgust. Men in high standing in society and having boundless resources should not throw their influence against public morality. It is wicked; it is also beneath the dignity of such a company.—C. C. Advocate.

The Carlisle whisky bill, which has passed the Lower House in Congress, is now pending in the Senate. It is a piece of thoro scoundrelism, intended to put liquor dealers in a position to swindle the government out of the tax due on bonded whisky. Senator Windom vigorously denounced this monstrous fraud, and the friends of honest government hope it will be defeated in the Senate. It was unquestionably "lobbied" through the House. Every man who voted for it ought to be specially marked as unfit to be trusted any more. There was not an honest vote given it. It is a lamentable comment on political honesty. Mr. Windom fears we are to have a renewal of whisky rings surpassing in power for evil anything before known.—C. C. Advocate.

A Philadelphia smoker removed the cigar from his mouth on entering the horse car, but insisted on retaining it in his hand. The conductor warned him to throw it away, as the smoke from it was offensive to the women passengers, and finally ejected him by force. He sued the company for damages, but the verdict is against him, the court charging the jury that he was a nuisance which the conductor had a right to abate. The conductors of our city and suburban passenger railways should also be instructed to eject any man who brings into a car a cigar that had been partially smoked, because a cold cigar emits and fills the car with an odor not only disagreeable, and offensive, but decidedly sickening, and we have more than once seen ladies leave a car, which we believe was because they had been made sick by the sickening odor arising from a cigar held in a man's hand. Another very disgusting thing is the breath of a man who has been smoking. Frequently we have to sit opposite to a man and endure this. If a man must smoke. when he gets in front of another let him breathe through his nose and keep his mouth shut.—The Truth.

THE WHISKY DISTILLERS have 75 million gallons of whisky in bond which the U. S government is taking care of for them till they pay the duty on it which is about 67 millions. They are allowed to leave it 3 years duty unpaid and they were desirous of having the time extended indefinitely by this congress but they have failed. This is a new thing for the whisky trade to fail in any legislation they desire. The design was evident that they intended swindling the government out of the tax altogether. There is every probability that an immense amount of fraud is practiced now with the whisky in bond. Where 1000 barrels are in bond for three years it is quite likely they may be changed five times for others with no more tax paid than a fee to the officers in charge. Later it appears that Senator Bayard the Apostle of the drunkard makers and crime pits in the U. S. Senate is now fixing up another bill to extend the bonding of whisky for five years; the only intent of such bills on the part of the Senator of the whisky ring is to extend the already abundant facilities which are accorded to that great ring of thieves to swindle the government.

OVER THE RIVER.

Over the river they beckon to me,
Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side;
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are drowned in the rushing tide.
There's one with ringlets of sunny gold,
And eyes the reflection of heaven's own blue;
He crossed in the twilight gray and cold,
And the pale mist hid him from mortal view,
We saw not the angel who met him there;
The gates of the city we could not see;
Over the river, over the river,
My brother stands waiting to welcome me!

Over the river, the boatman pale
Carried another—the household pet;
Her brown curls waved in the gentle gale,
Darling Minnie! I see her yet!
She crossed on her bosom her dimp'led hands,
And fearlessly entered the phantom bark;
We watched it glide from the silver sands,
And all our sunshine grew strangely dark.
We all know she is safe on the other side,
Where all the ransomed and angels be;
Over the river, over the river,
My childhood's idol is waiting for me.

For none return from those quiet shores,
Who cross with the boatman cold and pale,
We hear the dip of the golden oars,
And catch a gleam of the snowy sail,
And lo! they have passed from our yearning heart.
They cross the stream and are gone for aye;
We may not sunder the veil apart
That hides from our vision the gates of day;
We only know that their bark no more
May sail with us o'er life's stormy sea,
Yet somewhere, I know, on the unseen shore,
They watch, and beckon, and wait for me.

And I sit and think, when the sunset's gold
Is flushing river and hill and shore,
I shall one day stand by the water cold,
And list for the sound of the boatman's oar;
I shall watch for a gleam of the flapping sail,
I shall hear the boat as it gains the strand,
I shall pass from sight with the boatman pale,
To the better shore of the spirit land.
I shall know the loved who have gone before,
And joyfully sweet will the meeting be,
When over the river, the mystic river,
The Angel of Death shall carry me.

THE NECESSITY FOR A PROHIBITION PARTY.

The great question before the temperance people of this State is: Shall we, as individuals, favor this liquor license system, or the legal prohibition of it? To which shall we give our moral support? Which is the enemy to which we will not give "aid and comfort."

The Prohibition Party of this State was organized to benefit those who favor the theory and practice of prohibition, that they might have the desired opportunity of putting in practice the favorite theory of I. O. G. T. It has been well said that "prohibition was the politics of that Order." There are undoubtedly from 8 to 10 thousand theoretical prohibitionists in the "19,000 strong" of the Good Templars of this State. Would it be possible for 10,000 men who were devoted to the cause of temperance—which is the cause that Good Templars are pledged to support and advocate—is it possible that these could "throw away" their vote by voting with this Prohibition Party? On the other hand, would they not throw away all their temperance by refusing or neglecting so to vote, and bring their Order and their temperance obligations into contempt by trying to beat prohibition at the polls.

This warfare between license and prohibition is a struggle—a contest between heaven and hell. Voters are said to "make their record" when they cast their ballot; it is well understood upon which side they are to be counted. Let Christian men look well to their record; let Good Templars be true to their vow "not to furnish or caused to be furnished;" they are pledged not to drink, not to make or sell or furnish or cause to be furnished any intoxicating liquors. They have been accustomed to discipline rigidly, perhaps kindly the first two classes, but do they ever deal with those who persistently, year after year give their silent consent and sovereign sanction to this gigantic crime of crimes? Whatever guilt there may be in drinking liquor, or in making and vending, there is a deeper and more damning guilt in licensing it; it is virtually the signing of every distiller's, brewer's and dramshop license by the voters of the State; it is actually done by those whom we employ to do it and whom we pay for doing it; we also receive and make use of the money paid for the licenses. What we do by another we do by ourselves. Let us "not be partakers in other men's sins."

The Prohibition Party seeks to gather to itself all such as have a sense of that guilt; who can no longer endure a participation in this "stupendous immorality." It cannot be denied that the great political parties are silent on any temperance reform; and that they are committed to the defence and advocacy of a licensed traffic. 'Tis a matter of little consequence which or what party has the most drunkards; they are but the product at this day of a traffic which has the sanction and protection of the people. It undoubtedly is very distasteful and undisirable to a large portion of the best citizens of the State, and it is therefore hoped that they will accept the opportunity offered this uncleus of a prohibition party. The people should gather together, adopt a party-pledge or test, and unitedly work for the repeal of license and the enactment of prohibitory laws.

For this main purpose was this party organized; and shall it be said that it is not needed? that there is no demand; or shall any say that it is too soon? it is never too soon to do right; and the people are well enough educated when they know they dont want license, and do want prohibition. It cannot be that any Good Templar is ignorant of the relation in which these stand to each other, or the sad effects which license has had, or the benefits to be derived from prohibition. Prohibition is not a new thing; a whole generation has seen—been witnesses of prohibition accomplished. There is, in fact, in this State too much prohibition sentiment, intelligent and true, to be thus lying idle, inert, and dormant; it is not necessary or even practicable that more should be manufactured, to be stupified or paralyzed by masterly inactivity, but that already prepared should be utilised and crystalised into action; it then becomes a temperance force, and the best educative power in the land. In truth no sensible man can persistently work and act counter to, or in opposition to his most solemn convictions without serious damage to his moral character.

It is of much less consequence to an individual that he should lose the effect or count of his vote than that he should lose character as a true temperance philanthropist—to lose respect of politicians than to lose self-respect. A vote cast on the devils side is a terrible loss to a good man. If the Proh. party is working in the cause of temperance—if it is to be counted as working in a righteous cause, (which can be no other than the cause of God) let him beware that works against it.

Can such a party having such a work to do, and striving earnestly to do it and having that trust in God that our revolutionary fathers had, ever fail?

Oh? Brother Templars, as you love the cause of temperance—as you earnestly seek the welfare of mankind—as you desire to discharge your whole duty, "Come out from among them and be ye separate;" say not, "it is not possible to stem the overwhelming tide by my puny efforts." No; but one thing is possible; you can make a right record; you can fearlessly discharge your individual duty, you can refrain from "giving aid and comfort to the enemy;" you have nothing which he prises more than your ballot; give him that and he cares not what else you do; you have no power which he fears more than your ballot. I entreat you then, see to it, that this licensed liquor traffic—this curse of humanity receive no moral support, either by your silence or by your consent.

Good Templar Sisters, I beg of you, as you prise your record for purity of life and purpose, and an unyielding, undying opposition to the dramshop—as you have ever been most faithful and effective in the reform of the victims of this "stupendous immorality" (the legalized liquor traffic.) I beg that you will hasten to the reform of the voters of the state; see that this reform is accomplished tho the heavens fall and the victims will disappear.

WHAT THE WOMEN CAN DO.

No. 38.

"If the women would only take hold of this matter, they could drive intemperance out of the country." That is what the men say about it. They go further and say that the girls, by refusing to go with any young man who tipples, could put a stop to drinking.

Very likely they could, but it does not appear how we could induce the young girls to do this any better than we can induce the men themselves to stop drinking of their own accord. Nor do we see why a young girl should sacrifice her prospects for life by refusing desirable society for such a trifle as that, for so all her immediate relatives may regard it, and she must consult them more or less about it. And why sould she be expected to be independent and self sacrificing any more than mature men who are better able to reason upon the subject? True, it is for her real interest to do so, and I glory in the grit of every girl that does it, and I know she will reap a rich reward for it. But is it not also the true interest of other people to do right? How will it be when hop-picking comes and these very men will want these girls to go into the hop-yards, and help pick the hops that make the beer for the young men to drink. If the girls refuse to do that, there is a great ado about it. We have often seen the effort that is made to get all the women into the yards. Great pressure is brought to bear especially upon the more respectable portion of women, the wives and sisters and daughters of the hop-growers themselves, and often of ministers. Scarcely any one escapes, and if any lady is known to have conscientious reasons for refusal, she is made a special target for sharp sayings. Young girls, above all, are expected to do so much toward making the beer, but after it is made, they must not smile upon the young men that drink it!

Suppose we try the shoe upon the other foot, and say that if all business men would refuse to have anything to do with liquor-making they could drive it out of the country, how many of them, do you suppose, would fall in with the idea and do something like what they ask the girls to do?

If we girls are to do anything about it, we propose to try in our own way. I wonder if we could not put a stop to this hop-raising and picking, at least in our own homes! Suppose we try! There is little danger but that we could get enough else to do, though it might go hard for a while, and we might be obliged to wear our old cloaks and dresses a little longer for it, but in the end we would be far better off, if it would put a stop to the beer-drinking of fathers and brothers, husbands and sons. Even if they do not drink now they may do so soon, at the rate beer-drinking is on the increase. Suppose we join hands and say, "Not another pound of hops will we pick to go into beer to make men drink." If we worked for it, public opinion would soon be on our side. We would sweep the whole hop-growing region before us, then we would be very glad that we stood up for the right. Shall we try it?

EMINENT OPINIONS ON THE DRINK CURSE.

(COMPILED BY PROFESSOR GEO. E. FOSTER.)

If we add together all the miseries generated in our times by war, famine, and pestilence, the three great scourges of mankind; they do not exceed those that spring from this calamity.—Chas. Buxton, M. P., the English Brewer.

Every day's experience tends more and more to confirm me in my opinion that the temperance cause lies at the foundation of all social and political reform.—Richard Cobden.

Love of strong drink is the greatest obstacle to the diffusion of education among the masses of the people.—John Bright.

Intemperance is not only a great evil, but the greatest of all evils, with which social reformers had to contend.—Mr. Bruce, Home Secretary of Great Britain.

There is one disgraceful evil overspreading the whole land which makes havoc of our working men—the evil of intemperance; unless you make distinct and hostile efforts against it, you will be neglecting an evil which is eating out the very heart of society, destroying domestic life among our working classes, and perhaps doing greater injury than any other curse that could be named in this age.—Archbishop of Canterbury.

Of all the preventible evils in the world intemperance is perhaps the greatest.—Dr. Temple, Bishop of Exeter.

The use of strong drink produces more idleness, crime, want and misery than all other causes put together.—London Times.

Intemperance is the undoubted cause of four-fifths of all the crime, pauperism and domestic misery of the State.—Gov. Dix, of New York.

Intemperance has been the most prolific cause of poverty, wretchedness and crime, it has filled the State and country with its destructive influences; and its progress everywhere heralds only misfortune, misery and degradation.—Gov. Gaston, Message to the Legislature of Mass., 1875.

"The drunkenness of England is producing in this country at the present time the accumulated evils of war, pestilence and famine."—Gladstone, in Parliament in 1880. —Crusader.

THE BOSTON Transcript says: "What has all this talk about the measure of brains and lungs and gastric juice got to do with a woman's right to say who shall rule over her and her children? On the same grounds she is refused her vote, she might logically be denied the right to hold property, to be paid for work, or to enter a Christian church."

ADDRESS BY MRS. M. E. RICHARDSON,

AT THE S. S. CONVENTION.

* * * We feel sure that in our great mission of reclaiming the fallen, and saving the young from the snares of intemperance, we are second only to the Christian church. And while we claim, in the grand march of those who labor for God and humanity, the second place, we are in full harmony with Christianity, and for that reason I am here to-day, bearing the fraternal greetings and kind wishes of 19,000 Good Templars. I do not purpose to speak here of our labor of reformation, but there are two branches of our work that I desire to bring before this body. The first is the Good Templar's Home for Orphans, situated near Vallejo, Solano Co. This beautiful building was dedicated 12 years ago. In this work, our Order has expended $150,000, and over 1,400 orphan children have there been cared for, educated and subsequently placed in good homes. There are at present in the home nearly 130 children.

From the name "Good Templars' Home for Orphans," some have supposed that it was designed for the children of Good Templars. This is not so. The only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. A small percentage of those receiving its kind offices have been the children of Good Templars, while a large number have been the offspring of those who have fallen victims to intemperance. In this work we know that we have the sympathy of all Christians, and we would gladly welcome you to our Order to labor with us.

But the most important thing which I wish to bring to the notice of this body, is the Templars' Band of Hope. This organization is composed of boys and girls, and men and women too, banded together under a triple pledge, against intoxicating beverages, tobacco and profanity. The saloon influence is wide-spread and far-reaching, and there is no safety for our dearest and best loved while the doors of temptation in all their glittering allurements stand open on every hand.

A lady told me that last Sabbath, in Alameda, while returning home from church, there was in the car a well dressed and respectable looking boy of about 17 years of age. He was so drunk that he swayed about from side to side, with the motion of the car. All the people in the car were laughing at him, for, unfortunately, too many think a drunken boy only a joke. The lady got up and went into the next car to avoid the sad spectacle, and had hardly seated herself, when this boy stepped off the train and the car passed over him, leaving his mangled body from which the spirit had forever flown. He was somebody's boy. It might have been your boy or mine. We cannot throw too many safeguards round our children. It is so much easier and safer to train them in the ways of temperance, than to attempt the almost hopeless task of reformation after bad habits have been formed. The second clause of our pledge is, "We will abstain from the use of tobacco in every form." It is generally conceded that the use of tobacco so common among our boys is alarming in the extreme. I have yet to find a user of the weed who advises his boys to follow his example. Now I do not know that any Sunday-school teacher here uses tobacco, but if there be such a one, I cordially invite you to join the Band of Hope, and set an example to your class that you will not be ashamed to see them follow.

About the third clause in our pledge, "We will earnestly endeavor to avoid all profanity," no words are needed before this audience.

The Band of Hope is in full harmony with the Sunday-school, and ranks side by side with it. I would like to see one connected with every Sunday-school in our State. Will all those delegates present who have Bands of Hope please raise the hand. That is a good showing, but not enough. Will you not all take steps for organizing on your return home, if you have not already done so? The Grand Lodge furnishes supplies free of charge. A manual containing opening and closing ceremonies, and a catechism on the effects of alcohol and tobacco upon the system; and also a beautiful little badge like the one I wear, is given to each member. I shall be happy to aid you in any way, and on application to me supplies will be cheerfully furnished.

ANOTHER PARTY FOR PROHIBITION AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

ED. RESCUE:—Some one has forwarded me a sample copy of the Pacific Greenbacker. In it I see very outspoken utterances that will suit the "Home Protection Party," as the New Prohibition Party is appropriately called. The associate editors, in their salutatory say: "It will war relentlessly against the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks, believing this to be the greatest, most debasing and destroying curse that afflicts the human race." When we remember that the State Convention resolved to demand of Legislative and Congressional candidates a solemn pledge to work for a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants we see that this is a sincere, fearless and truly Reform Party. I am not a Greenbacker but draw the attention of our State Prohibition Committee to the fact that if this Party and we could unite on able, conscientious men for the Legislature and Congress, we might show the people that prohibition is not so unpopular a question as whisky dealers and political partisans say it is. The Greenback State Convention of Indiana adopted resolutions favoring the submission to a vote of the people of both a prohibitory Constitutional Amendment and Woman Suffrage. The Greenbackers of Iowa have taken the same position. "It is reasonable to expect that they will adopt the same course in nearly all the Northern States as the leaders of the movement are nearly all prohibition and woman suffrage advocates." Thus the world goes on and the sentiment grows apace. PROHIBITIONIST.

FROM THE NATIONAL SUPERINTENDENT OF LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

All hail, for God and home and native land. I am hard at work in the campaign for constitutional prohibition. The country is looking beautiful, fields here and there green, and many freshly plowed, with clearly defined lines where the earth has been turned to meet the sun and rain and dew. My heart fairly bounds in the glory of the early spring, and I sing "Iowa the grandest State in all the Union, shall never see another spring under the curse of a licensed rum traffic. The increase of her richness shall be for meat"—not for poison. I am much interested and greatly solicitous for your decision in Illinois as to the course you will pursue in the coming council at Springfield. I say "you," by which I mean the W. C. T. U. of Ills. Allow me as Supt. ef the department of legislation of the N. W. C. T. U.. to offer the following suggestions for your consideration. I recognise the State-Rights doctrine as set forth by our several annual meetings—that by virtue of it any state may choose her own lines of work; but council and advice has always been regarded as of mutual profit.

From what I know, and am able to infer of the situation in Illinois, I urged that the W. C. T. U. will not give its efforts for any form of local option concerning the liquor traffic—a local option law is a matter of State Statute. Thus in working for local prohibition under the provisions of a local option law you are not giving your support to the idea of local option, but of prohibition.

2. That you will support prohibitory legislation in whatever form it may be deemed advisable to so legislate.

3. That you will actively engage in the circulation of petitions and memorials for Constitutional Prohibition, as the most simple and effective form of expressing the vox populi against the liquor crime.

4. That having so gloriously fought for the abolition of this dreadful crime, by petitions to men, and having also prayed that upon this one question, women as well as men might be armed with the ballot, and having failed to reach either end, tho you have sought them diligently with tears, I urge you to now more vigorously than before, ask for and work to get the whole ballot for woman, that thus you may help to make and enforce both constitutional and statutory prohibition. And further, that if in any issue you should be obliged to give prominence in labor for either constitutional prohibition, or the ballot for woman, I believe the desired end—the overthrow of the liquor traffic— would be sooner accomplished in Illinois, by your State union putting in its first and strongest efforts for the elective franchise. I do not think this would be the ease in all the States, or as a method to be adopted by the National W. C. T. U., but it is my judgement that it is best in Illinois.

5. I am clearly of opinion that our unions as organizations, ought not to be allied to any political party. We have no political existence, and to assume to have, seems to me to be unwise and injurious to our work. I have written freely and fully and without solicitation, but if our organization means anything, it ought to include conference and general agreement as far as possible.—J. Ellen Foster, in the Signal.

HOW THE STATES REGARD SCHOOL SUFFRAGE FOR WOMEN.

In California, women over twenty-one are eligible to all educational offices except those from which they are excluded by the Constitution. In Colorado, women may vote at school district elections, and may serve as school district officers. In Connecticut, they hold the position of school visitors. In Illinois, they are eligible to any office under general or special school laws. In Indiana, those women not married or minors, who pay taxes and are listed as parents, guardians or heads of families, may vote at school meetings. In Iowa, no person is ineligible by reason of sex to hold school offices. In Kansas, women are allowed to vote at school meetings, and are eligible to election as school officers. In Kentucky, widows having children of school age, or owning taxable property, may vote at school meetings. In Louisiana, women over twenty-one are eligible to school offices. Maine limits the eligibility of women to certain school offices. Massachusetts allows voting at school meetings for members of school committees and the holding of school offices. Michigan allows women to hold school offices, and when they are taxpayers to vote at school meetings. Minnesota entitles women to vote at school-district meetings and to hold school offices. Nebraska allows them to vote at school meetings on the same grounds as men. In New Hampshire, they may vote at school district meetings, and be elected on school committees. In New Jersey, when over twenty-one years of age and residents of the school district, they may become school trustees therein.

New York authorizes the voting at school meetings by women resident and holding taxable property in the district. Oregon limits the voting at district meetings to widows with taxable property and children to educate. Pennsylvania gives women over twenty-one years of age the privilege of holding school offices. Rhode Island places women in the school committee. Vermont allows women to vote on school matters, and to hold the offices of town clerk and town superintendent. Wisconsin considers them eligible to any school office except state superintendent. Dakota women may vote at school meetings. In Idaho, widows, or unmarried women of twenty-one years of age, residents of a district and holding taxable property therein, may vote as to especial district taxes. In Washington Ty., women over twenty-one, residents of the district for three months preceeding district meetings, and liable to taxation, may vote at school meetings. In Wyoming Ty., women have full right to the elective franchise and to hold office.—Signal.

WINE.—"An exchange says there are a number of large factories near Paris in which wines are made from rotten apples, damaged dried fruit of any kind, beets and spoiled molasses. But there is not enough of these materials to make as much wine as is required by foreign trade. Turnip juice has been worked over into wine, and American cider is the basis of millions of bottles of champagne, but good apples and turnips are too costly to be wasted on cheap wines, such as Americans buy."

The making of wine out of rotten garbage in place of turning good wholesome grapes into rotten garbage for that purpose, is the less of the two evils. Wine made from turnip juice and a swill barrel and rotten potatoes and doctored with a few flavoring extracts is just the same, just as wholesome as the best and fanciest brand of the most expensive grape wines. It is as good as a substitute too for the "fruit of the vine" as the latter.

A Chronicle correspondent who seems to know all about President Arthur, reports him as having some very objectionable habits, among others that of being "round with the boys" till 3 o'clock of the morning and sitting on the door step talking politics at that hour. If it is true it is a pity. But while nothing is strange in the conduct of drinking men, we can place very little dependence on reports of this kind. The most shamefully and intentionally wicked slanders without a particle of foundation were systematically published regarding President Hayes and his noble wife, in the Philadelphia Times and other papers. Perhaps some carrion bird has a spite at Mr. Arthur.

ON THE WING.

DEAR RESCUE.—Well here I am, in what an English friend used to denominate the state of "Ho-hi-ho," and the transition is so sudden, that it requires a considerable effort to realize that redolent, sooty, busy, Porkopolis spreads itself out before my enquiring gaze.

The beautiful capital city and home—Sacramento, was placed behind and my face turned eastward, on Monday evening the 8. The usual journey thru a dozen states and territories was made in safety and without unusual events.

THE ROUTE

Via the well equipped C. P. R. R. of California, U. P. R. R. etc., has been so frequently and minutely described as to have become monotonous perhaps to the many readers, hence the offence of a repetition of a description of these will not here be committed. But to the enthusiastic and fortunate traveler who is permitted to read natures own and original versions with the glimpses of the snow mantled Sierras glinting in silvery sheen under the first caresses of the rising sun, the limitless plains stretching away off to the horizon, the lowing herds, anon the majestic and awful grandeur of Weber Canyon, the representation of the coliseums of old—in Echo Canyon, the green fields and enterprise everywhere apparent of the sturdy yeoman who tills the virgin soil of the new states and territories; these and the myriad of changing scenes as the great triumph of mans skill, the engine of progress, whirls him by the panoramic display, can never become monotonous nor old. California was crossed, next in succession Utah and Wyoming Territories, Colorado and Nebraska. In the latter state the town of

KEARNEY,

The residence of R. W. G. S. Bro. F. G. Keens was reached at the fourth day at 6-15 A. M.. Here a strong prohibition fight was recently made and won; the knowledge of this, coupled with the fact that the R. W. G. S., was also to take the train here, created a special desire to view the place. Upon arrival at Kearney, a brass band struck up a serenade and a concourse was found to have assembled at the depot. All other passengers save the writer were in the embrace of Morpheus. Curiosity prompted a step to terra firma, to see "what all the row was about" at so early an hour in the morning. About two minutes before the train started, the familiar voice of Bro. Keens was heard to reverberate, like the rolling of distant thunder, "Why! Bro. Katzenstein, where have you been, I have been searching all through the train for you? This is all intended for you, old boy! Our Mayor is here, and the W. C. T. of the lodge has an address to make, and"— before any explanation or reply could be made, the stentorian voice of the conductor horrified the speaker with "All aboard." The speech of welcome, etc., to the R. W. G. T. was not made, but a few very hasty introductions followed, with some amusement at the expense of the R. W. G. S. and W. C. T., who did not get the opportunity to "get his speech off." But the R. W. G. T. fully appreciates the compliment intended, just as much as though the conductor had received the message to run in ahead of time, "so as to hold the train a few minutes," but which he did not; as though the W. C. T. had said all the pleasant things, etc., etc. But a part of the W. C. T.'s speech should be made here, and it is that the new law of Nebraska requires a license of one thousand dollars from liquor saloons in cities of the first class, and five hundred dollars in cities and towns of the second class. The saloonkeepers of Kearney had accepted the situation and deposited their five dundred dollars each for the license. But very recently a town election was held, the question being, "Whisky, or No Whisky." The result was a majority of 36 against whisky, whereupon the new board of councilmen repealed the local license ordinance and refused in toto to issue any licenses, refunded the fees and outlawed the traffic, whereupon every saloon was made to and did close its doors, for which noble example the R. W. G. T. joins all good citizens in an expression of satisfaction and gratitude.

Omaha was reached at 3:25 P. M. In this city more than half the saloons were compelled to close their doors. The Missouri river was crossed and the soil of Iowa was pressed.

IN IOWA,

The battle has already begun, and it will be the next prohibitory battle-field. The resolution of submission has passed two successive legislatures, and on the 27th of June next, the question of the proposed amendment is to be passed upon by the people at the ballot-box. Bro. Geo. W. Bain, whose name is dear to every Californian, has renounced the pleasure of attendance at R. W. G. L. so as to remain in the breach, where he already is, that he may valiantly fight for prohibition until the close of the ballot; on the 27 of next month. May success crown his efforts, and may Iowa redeem herself, and, wheeling into line, stand close up to grand old Maine and noble Kansas!

In due course the fifth day found the train rolling through the State of Missouri, via. the "Cannonball" route, and the sensation of traveling at the rate of speed reached upon this popular route, justifies the appellation. The train was almost literally shot into

ST. LOUIS.

The "ticket agent" of the company called a halt here of twelve hours. Bro. R. R. Scott P. R. W. G. Treas., did the honors of the occasion in handsome style. One of his best carriages was called into requisition, with a "liveried" coachman, and himself as guide, the company was shown throughout the city and environs of St. Louis. Much might be said, did space afford, (and it may find place upon some future occasion) of what was observed. Tower grove park, Shaws botanical gardens, Forest lawn and other points are pictures which have found permanent hangings upon memories walls. Suffice it to say that "Bro. Bob" excelled in his efforts to please and entertain, as did likewise Sister Scott, who also favored the occasion with her attentions and presence. At night-fall the company re-embarked and upon awakening in the morning were landed where this letter is dated,

CINCINNATI,

And 'twas Sunday morning. If this city is famous for any one thing more than its pork interests, it is for "beer" and it was expected to be seen flowing here like unto a mighty stream. But strange as it may seem, the only beverage that was found to be flowing at all was limpid waters from the farfamed Probascus fountain which is one of the finest structures of the kind upon the continent, and which though costing a quarter of a million dollars, was donated to the city. Upon inquiry the reason of this was found to be the strict enforcement by the authorities of the

SUNDAY LAW.

Here was Cincinnati, whose Sundays had previously been a perfect Saturnalia, as described by her old citizens, a city of nearly 300,000 population, with a very large foreign element with all their queer notions of brass bands, beer gardens, and a general hub-ub, as peaceful and quiet as one would wish to see it. It was really "a sight to behold." The city was scanned from end to end, but all drink shops of every description were found hermetically sealed as to the vending of liquors, and particularly the Teutons national beverage, which was wont erstwhile to flow like unto the water from the aforementioned fountain upon the day "commonly called Sunday." Coleridge's "Mariner" was readily invoked and paraphrased into "Lager! Lager! everywhere,

But not a drop to drink."

The "Smith law" as it is called, is a sweeping one. It provides for a thirty days incarceration of every offender, in any event, the fine being optional. Upon the previous Sunday two persons in all that great city kept their liquor business open in defiance of law. They were promptly arrested, tried, convicted, but sentence was suspended upon their promise to comply with the law, the sentence being held to be still pending. The result was a full and exact compliance with the law. Compare this with the administration of the law in the Golden State, and weep oh! ye Californians!

Some grand views of Cincinnati and its surroundings were had, but the length of this communication gives warning that they must be omitted at this time. Dr. M. B. Wolfe, an old time citizen of Cincinnati, extended the courtesies and hospitalities of the occasion assisted by his amiable and highly accomplished daughter, Miss Mary Wolfe. As a former Californian, we have all good reason to be proud of this young lady who was the favorite one recently in a class of 65, to receive the gold medal from the "Pulte Medical College" for the best written examination, the subjects being "Physiology" and "Histology." Their private carriage was placed at our disposal and the party was further honored with the personal attendance of Dr. Wolfe, to whom a grateful sense of appreciation is expressed.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

H. R. HUGHES.

On leaving here passed thru S. S. valley. The little lodge and Band of Hope stationed here are bravely holding the ground. At Chapparal and Evergreen School-houses, religious meetings were in progress and prevented my rendering the aid I desired in passing through to my appointments in Amador and Eldorado. While not working up Old Calaveras, it is my purpose to help all I can, for I wish to see my home county redeemed. The Bands of Hope in these two latter places are popular and doing a noble work. At Comanahe had a fair meeting, all males excepting some of the good sisters who came over from Evergreen. Not a lady or girl of Comanche came out even to hear. I suppose they were afraid of the demoralizing influence of a temperance meeting. Four of the saloon-keepers turned out; they were willing at least to give a respectable hearing to our side. Comanche bears the name of being the hardest town in Calaveras; perhaps the stolid indifference of the women is partly the cause. It is now surrounded by four good lodges, and its capture is only a question of time.

At Lancha Plana met with the lodge and lectured next evening. Mazeppa Lodge is doing well; the young people are deeply attached to it and they are doing a good work.

At Mackville, San Joaquin Co., lectured two evenings, and organized Mackville Lodge with 24 charter members. Night of meeting, Saturday. L. D., John Smith. P. O., Lockeford. It is a new village on the borders of Amador Co., has a good prospect of building up quite a place and are starting out right. The heavy rain and dark night diminished my meeting the last night and prevented my getting a good many more members.

At Buena Vista, had a fair meeting, the weather being still cloudy and threatening. This new lodge is having a hard fight; some of those most anxious to start it have turned their backs on it and on their friends. But it has a faithful and plucky membership. It can never be a large lodge, but it can be a good one.

Last night at this place, met in the hall; a small meeting; the atmosphere of these towns is not healthy for a temperance meeting. It takes about a week generally to get people posted that there is any thing going on—except it be a company of educated horses, but then they are diligent in advertising, and perhaps we temperance folks should learn something from them.

Ione Lodge is bravely holding their own; have a terrible rent to pay. Bro. Carrington is struggling to keep up the Band of Hope and the lodge should assist him.

Ione City, May 26, 1882.

C. N. GOULDING.

I left Crescent City on the 18th inst. for Smith's River, lectured there on the 18th and 19th and at the close of my lecture on the 19th instituted Del Norte Lodge with 46 charter members. H. C. Ranson, W. C. T.; Oliver V. Wallace, Lodge Deputy. I feel confident that this lodge will prove a blessing in that community. On the 20th returned to Crescent City; visited the lodge in the evening and arranged for my lectures there; found each one willing and anxious to do all that could be done to make the meetings a success and the result was three of the largest meetings ever held in the place; 28 names were obtained for the Order; at a called meeting of the Lodge on the 24th, 13 were initiated; 15 will be initiated Saturday 27th, making a gain in membership of 74 in Del Norte county. My visit to this county was opportune and fully appreciated by the members of Crescent City Lodge who have for so many years fought the enemy. Being the most northernly county in the State (on the coast) and depending on two steamers for the means of transportation, it necessitates a "special trip" to reach them, but the results were more than could have been expected and more than compensate the inconveniences of a "sea voyage" with (to me at least) its horrors. Shall labor in Humboldt and Mendocino counties next, visiting each town in those counties; will forward the route for publication when arranged by Deputy W. F. Bromly and will write as usual.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

Colusa Co. D L will meet at Butte City, June 2 and 3, 1882.

Stanislaus Co. D L will meet at Modesto, at 10 o'clock, A M, Saturday, June 3, 1882.

Mariposa D L will meet in Catheys Valley, June 3, 1882.

Butte Co D L meets at Forbestown, June 11th.

DISTRICT LODGE.

The D. L. of Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz met some weeks ago at Salinas, Bro. Rev. A. K. Crawford, D. D. presiding. Salinas, Castroville, Del Monte, Ben Lomond, Pacific, Santa Cruz, Ruby and San Juan, 8 lodges were represented. Much important business was transacted for the advancement of the Order and the cause of temperance. Absolute unanimity of opinion prevailed in regard to the enforcement of the Sunday law, and it was firmly resolved to counteract as far as possible the law-breaking efforts of the Leag of Freedom. Perfect harmony characterized all the deliberations. The next session of the District Lodge will be held in Watsonville on the 28th of June.

A splendid dinner at Cosmopolitan Hotel was next in order, and a public meeting in Central Hall Mr. H. V. Morehouse in the Chair. The hall was well filled. The President opened with a pleasant address and said it was expected no Good Templar would vote for any one not in favor of preserving and enforcing the Sunday law. Mr. W. L. Stevens of Santa Cruz delivered a rousing address and pointed to our triumph in the near future. Rev A. K. Crawford was on hand as usual with an original poem. Miss Alice Underwood gave a reading with unusual grace and much applause; Mr. Ercanbrack, Rev. S. C. Keetch and Rev. Mr. Wayne, Bible Agent, helped to make the occasion a grand success, and Miss Carrie Beeman at the piano and various other musical artists rendered valuable and much appreciated service.

An apology for the non appearance of the above some weeks ago is regretfully tendered. In a pile of papers, letters, scraps, communications, etc., "to be attended to to-morrow," it got mislaid and overlooked. Not so next time.

LODGES, ETC.

Pleasanton with 10 saloons and hotels all selling whisky Sunday and a store that sells it week days is a pretty hard place for a lodge, so says Bro. French W. C. T. That community would find it a great deal cheaper and better to keep up 12 Good Templar Lodges and one store and one temperance hotel, but if they had as many as five or six lodges they would be called crazy. The voters dont consider that among such a hive of man traps it is only a miracle if a boy or girl can be raised to be a good citizen.

Bro. Pedlar, of Gilroy, has been sick, but is happily recovering; he hopes the RESCUE will never grow less radical, and kindly adds, may the Editors shadow never grow less. Bro. P. is one of those whose good words are valuable and highly prized.

Goldendale, W. T., has voted out rum; the Register says the greatest obstacle to success was the greed and selfishness of those who fear to antagonize the whisky element. Those who are too cowardly to oppose what they know to be wrong are the greatest enemies to temperance.

Bro. Whitlock of Paskenta, went recently to hear Bro. King; the hall was crowded and he reports a sound and telling lecture which was enthusiastically received.

Lompoc.—Dr. Z. W. Saunders of Uniontown, Mo., a successful physician of 20 years residence there, comes to Lompoc and 15 persons with him. Good citizens from afar are attracted to a temperance colony and every one of them is worth more to a community than a dozen of the class who attend on either side of the saloon bar.

The Lodge at Bakersfield is doing splendidly; new members coming in every night. That is one of the lodges that began with a RESCUE in every family at Bro. King's suggestion.

THE PRESBYTERY OF SACRAMENTO ON THE SUNDAY LAW.

The enclosed expression concerning the Sunday law etc., wss unanimously passed by the presbytery of Sacramento at its last meeting in Colusa and copy forwarded by the Rev. A. J. Compton.

"Whereas, The Supreme Court having decided the Constitutionality of the Sunday law, and a desperate effort is now being made by the saloonists and others to nulify the decision and to destroy the Christian Sabbath therefore be it resolved.

1, That in view of the approaching election for members of our State Legislature we enjoin upon the members of our churches and congregations to use every endeavor to observe this law, and to have it kept, and the authority of our courts upheld.

2, That we also request so many of them as may be voters to sustain only such nominees as will see that the law is not abrogated but continued and enforced.

3, That in view of the enormities attending the traffic in intoxicating liquors and feeling that intemperance is the sin of the age and the great obstacle in the way of our work as churches and of the salvation of men, we do most earnestly implore the members of our churches to free themselves entirely from the manufacture, sale and use of wine and all other intoxicants as a beverage and to do all they can to discountenance their manufacture, sale and use by others.

4, That the Stated Clerk be requested to send a copy of these Resolutions to each Pastor and stated supply to be read from the pulpit, and that he publish the same at an early day."

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A GOOD TIME COMING.

For many ages there has been a frequent expression of an idea of a future time when peace and good will and prosperity should prevail upon the earth.

We are told that when wickedness had destroyed all men from this world but one righteous family, and when a good and prosperous time seemed to be in store for them, Noah drank wine and was drunken and his one recorded drunken act entailed a curse upon the earth. The father got drunk and the children were cursed thereby, which is exactly so to-day. The guilty sin and the guilty and the innocent are both made to suffer.

As you were told recently in the RESCUE the first inhabitants of Pitcairns Islands nearly 100 years ago observed that rum caused a crime there and they solemly vowed to banish and foreswear and keep out rum from their island forever. And they have been ever since a most happy, moral, virtuous, sober and religious people, having no crime or trouble whatever in all these years.

The family of Noah were not so wise, altho they had as sufficient warning. Had they made the same vow and kept it, perhaps this world might have always been comparatively a paradise of peace and plenty. But they did not. When the temperance reform commenced in earnest about 50 years ago, its originators did not dream of total abstinence from that drink which was more than any other thing on earth worshiped as a good gift of God. They never thot of prohibition but expected to keep men sober and healthy on wine and beer and cider.

As they learned more of this evil they adopted new pledges and doctrines and new modes of warfare. Ten and 20 and 30 and 40 years ago the temperance reformers always thot they knew all about this curse, but they have been always learning and always teaching more truths as they discovered them. And during the last 5 or 6 years and even last year we are learning more and stranger things than ever about this evil.

Read in "Historic Land Marks" on page 466 what Dr. Richardson says of wars etc., caused by wine. We have all been told how nation after nation has perished and dwindled into paupers and savages because of vice and luxury. But we have good reason to believe it was wine or strong drink or some kindred evil that caused the vice that followed luxury and destroyed or ruined every one of these wretched nations.

In our own time in countries that are in the light of christian civilization we find, where wine or beer or rum is used, a worse condition of vice and crime and misery than is found among heathens anywhere; and in Christian enlightened colonies and towns and rural sections and in tens of thousands of temperance homes—when no wine or beer or rum ever enters—there is an almost entire absence of crime and poverty and unhappiness of any sort.

There is pretty good reason to believe that when you come to vote and the Band of Hope boys and girls have grown up into sober, healthy, honest, worthy, Godly men and women and when your votes shall have driven the worship of the Satan of wine from the earth, an era of peace and happiness and prosperity shall dawn upon our country and the world that has never been known before.

The tramp and the cheat and the criminal will disappear, the penitentiary, the city and county jail and police court and hospital and poorhouse and asylums can be converted into useful factories as soon as the wrecks of beer and wine have died off or can get no more drink. All the evils that are caused by vile drinks and vile tobacco will soon disappear when they are destroyed. And then the school and church and happy home and good books and wholesome laws and decorous habits and thoro temperance will bring about an era of universal peace and plenty and perfect contentment. Every man and woman may then serve God and love their neighbor under their own roof. It seems as if the children of to-day are to see the brightest and happiest manhood that has ever dawned upon any generation of the human race. Let us all work gallantly to bring about the funeral of the old serpent alcohol and let the gates of Heaven swing wide open toward this earth.

IN JAIL.

There are a great many more men who have been and are in jail than would be pleased to be told of it. And there are a good many boys getting into jail all the time, who dont know it.

For instance my neighbor is a pleasant, cheerful, honest fellow. He rises every morning early and it would seem natural that first thing he would like to inhale the balmy morning air, and thank the giver of all good for giving us such a pure, clean, delicious atmosphere to breathe. But no, he cant do that; something ails him; he dont want any fresh air; he has lost his taste for that.

He feels round for an old pipe that looks as if it had come out of the bottom of an ash barrel and smelled as if all the evil odors of the world had held a recent three weeks holiday in and round it. He blows into it, beats out the horrible ashes of last nights debauch and draws the nauseating odors thru it; sweeter to his diseased and perverted senses than the air of God's bounty. He fills it with poisonous rubbish that cost him 3 or 4 cents and expends ten to twenty cents labor pulling and puffing at that filthy pipe, defiling his room and the house and his clothes and himself and his soul. He is a close prisoner of that pipe and the pipe is a very nasty jailer.

Then he is let out on parole till he gets his breakfast, when the pipe locks him in its horrible odors again and again before dinner, after dinner, after supper. It follows him round; he is sick all the time and his nerves are in a state of craziness; the only thing for him is to apply to his jailer again and again to paralyze those nerves and stupefy his system and stultify his brain and make his lungs a soot box; so on till he goes to bed, to sleep a restless unsatisfying unrefreshing sleep and to wake in the morn ing with a system depraved and in clamorous haste for more of the stupefier.

He would not do that much work at such a dirty job for a human employer for less than two or three dollars a day but he does it for his jailer free and pays for the privilege from five or ten cents up to one or two dollars a day if he uses that most emphatic fool's badge, a cigar or cigaret.

Now altho the smoker or tobacco eater is not actually shut up; he is as close a prisoner to his pipe or cigar or tobacco pouch as if he was in jail. And think, boys, what a slavery it must be. There are lots of tobacco eaters whom you could hire to work hard all day with a shovel or axe for a month for thirty or fifty dollars, but you could not hire them to stop their tobacco drudgery for a month for 2 or 3 times that much money.

The use of tobacco was only practiced until lately by the dirtiest and lowest races of men and no one who has any respect for himself or friends should ever degrade himself by its use. The Band of Hope boys will have no jailer to hand-cuff on to them.

A MILLION STRONG.

One of the most fortunate things that has ever befallen England is the temperance warfare that has been waged so patiently by its army of patriotic men and patriotic women, its temperance army. At first they were few and looked upon as Christ was when he first preached a new gospel, looked upon with utmost contempt and treated by all classes alike, the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the religious and the blasphemers, with scorn, derision and persecution. But gradually gaining ground, foot by foot, they begin to see the dawn of final and decisive victory.

The strongest promise they have at this time and their highest glory too, is in their gallant juvenile army nearly a million strong. A million boys and girls educated from childhood, to know what all manner of drink is and what it does. They will not be at all likely to be bought and sold or to vote corruptly, or to countenance a wretched and wicked custom, which they have been trained to hate.

And what a grandly noble and honest and truthful and just cause the little army of temperance people have always had, and how it has been blessed of Heaven to have had this grand measure of success; to have made head against the combined opposition of every other interest in the land and against the individual appetite and universal fashion of the nation.

And what a glorious record is in store for that juvenile army of a million in England, and the one or two millions we shall soon have in America. It will be theirs to lead the world to a condition of peace and kindness and fraternity and prosperity, that will prepare and fit it to make peace with Heaven, and to accept God's rule over us and cast down and out the image and yoke of Satan under which so many millions have suffered and mourned and died.

A LETTER TO THE CHILDREN.

THE FOUR TRAMPS UNDER THE OAK.

Two of these were lying on the green grass; the third one was making a fire around an oyster can of water in which he put some coffee. These three were large, stout men, very dirty and badly clad; beard and hair long and not combed once a month. Two of them, good mechanics, had been discharged repeatedly for drunkenness. One was sitting and leaning against the trunk of the large oak and listened very attentively to what was being said. This was a lad about 18 years old, had a good countenance and marks of refined manners and considerable intelligence. On learning that he had left Kentucky very recently and was then wandering in the far away West under peculiar circumstances, I became very much interested and was anxious to learn some of the particulars of the cause of his present condition. So I invited this young man to my house and gave him his supper for which he was very thankful. He then related the outline history of his father's family. He said his father and mother were both Christians and members of a church, and his father and mother both drank intoxicants, whisky and brandy and always kept a bottle full in their house, drank it every day and gave it to the children to drink every day and when any of the children were sick the mother would give them lots of brandy, and his father said it was good medicine. He said, I have found it the worst medicine that ever was made. I will tell you what it has done for me.

My father died about two years ago; my mother was left a widow with 5 children, 2 little boys and 2 little girls and myself. We were poor and had to work hard for our living, and in order to send the little ones to school, she was compelled to sell a house and lot that she owned in another town about 40 miles from where we lived. A lawyer sold it for $1,700, so mother sent me to him to get the money for her. He give me all the money, $1,700 in greenbacks; I put it in my inside vest pocket. I then had to wait 3 hours for the train to go home, and while waiting at the depot, I met an acquaintance, a young man, he asked me to go into a saloon and take a drink. I did so, he gave me an introduction to the barkeeper; he asked me to take a drink and I did; after a few minutes I treated, then we sat and talked; pretty soon I dropped to sleep. When I awoke at 9 o'clock next day, I was in a bedroom in an old dirty hotel. My money was all gone. Oh! my feelings just then. No pen nor brush could ever picture; I knew it was gone, and gone for good; and to go to my poor mother with a drunken story, I could not. So I went to the barkeeper and told him to give me ten ($10), he did so without a word. I then got on board of the first west bound train that left there. With the $10, I made my way to El Paso, Mexico. I have walked from there here. I got a few days work near Los Angeles. I don't know where to go, nor where to stop. I wish I was dead."

My dear little friends, this is the result of parents giving their children strong drink. How must this poor woman have felt when she learned her boy was gone and she knew not where, nor does she know yet. She learned that he had been robbed of all the $1,700. Oh the tears she has shed, and the pangs suffered when she thinks of her bright-eyed boy. But now he's gone, he's gone, and her daily prayer is, God save my boy. Surely it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

MILTON KENNEDY.

"OLD TOM."

On my way down town some time ago I saw some men letting a barrel down into a cellar with the figure of a cat on the head of it, his tail erect, his hair turned the wrong way, his eyes glaring, and his claws unsheathed as if ready to tear everything to pieces, and the words "Old Tom" encircling his head.

I thought it the most appropriate "sign" I had seen for many a day, for this barrel contained some kind of liquor. I have heard and read of men swallowing snakes, lizards and such like things, but what would you think of swallowing a mad tom cat!! Whew!! It makes ones flesh "crcep" to think of it. O, how he would jump, and claw, and bite to get out; and yet thousands of men run after that kind of "Old Tom" caged in that barrel, who are served worse than they would be if they were to swallow a live cat, were the thing possible. I have seen men raging and raving with the wild cat (liquor) tearing at their very vitals. I have seen them screaming and fighting with imaginary fiends from drinking two much. They have swallowed "Old Tom" and he was running them crazy.

Many things might be said of this old prowler that goeth about like a "roaring lion seeking whom he may devour."

Whatever you do boys, never swallow "Old Tom" nor any of his kits or kin, for he will give you "redness of eyes" and "woe" and "wounds without cause" and the worst of all he will keep you out of heaven, for it is said "no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God. J. C. S.

WHAT MATTER?

A story is told of a barefooted, hatless boy who, one hot day in August, 1836, was plodding his way along the tow-path of the Delaware and Hudson Canal. He had forty miles of his journey yet before him when a canal boat overtook him, and he was offered a ride by the driver. On the boat was another ragged lad, the son of a Scotch emigrant, who had just landed and was on his way to the coal mines in Pennsylvania. The two boys became chums on the long, tedious journey, and then parted at Honesdale, the first to find work on the canal, and the other to drive a mule in the coal mines.

Last summer the President of this canal company fell into confidential chat with its general manager, and the gray-headed men recognized in each other the boys of forty-six years ago. In the meantime they had achieved education, power and the sincere respect of their fellow-men.

Such instances as these—and there is no lack of them in American life—are often held up to our boys to show them what may be done by energy and industry in this country, and to stimulate them to exercise these traits of character. Yet they should take care not to confuse success with merit.

A man may put forth all his energies, and labor faithfully, yet conquer neither wealth, fame nor power. Circumstances may inexorably keep him in poverty and obscurity, yet his work may be as well done and as enduring as that of his successful brother.

A great Scotch divine, whose influence was powerful in guiding the thought of his times to higher levels, when congratulated in his old age on the work of his life, replied:

"If I have been of any use in this world, the credit is due, under God, to blind Sammy Lindsay, that taught me when I was a boy. He made a man of me, and put me to work as completely as if I had been a tool of his making. I never shall shake off the influence of that man. When in the opinion of my hearers I have been most eloquent. I have said to myself, 'There's auld Sammy threepin' again!'"

Sammy Lindsay died poor and unknown, but his work lived.

NIGHT LIFE OF YOUNG MEN.

One night often destroys a whole life. The leakage of the night keeps the day empty. Night is sins' harvesting time. More sin and crime are committed in one night than in all the days of the week. This is more emphatically true of the city than the country. The street lamps, like a file of soldiers, with torch in hand, stretch away in long lines on either sidewalk; the gay-colored transparencies are ablaze with attractions; the saloon and billiard halls are brilliantly illuminated; music sends forth its enchantment; the gay company begins to gather to the haunts and houses of pleasure; the gambling places are ablaze with palatial splendor; the theaters are wide open; the mills of destruction are grinding health, honor, happiness, hope, out of thousands of lives.

The city under the gaslight is not the same as under God's sunlight. The allurements and perils and pitfalls of night are a hundredfold deeper and darker and more destructive. Night life in our cities is a dark problem, whose depths and abysses make us start back with horror. All night tears are falling, blood is streaming.

Young men, tell me how and where you spend your evenings, and I will write out the chart of your character and final destiny, with blanks to insert your names. It seems to me an appropriate text would be, "Watchman, what of the night?" Policeman, pacing the beat, what of the night? What are the young men of the city doing at night? Where do they spend their evenings? Who are their associates? What are their habits? Where do they go in, and what time do they come out? Policeman, would the night life of young men commend them to the confidence of their employers? Would it be to their credit?

Make a record of the nights of one week. Put in the morning papers the names of all the young men, their habits and their haunts, that are on the streets for sinful pleasure. Would there not be shame and confusion? Some would not dare to go to their places of business, some would not return home at night, some would leave the city, some would commit suicide. Remember, young men, that in the retina of the All-seeing eye there is nothing hid but shall be revealed on the last day.—Signal.

THE FIG MERCHANT.

"In the name of the Prophet, figs!"
Thru the drowse of the noon afar
Came droning the Arab vender's cry,
As he threaded the long bazar.
With the courage that comes of faith,
He neither had thought nor care,
Tho the lip of the scornful Greek might curl,
Or the insolent Frank might stare.

"In the name of the Prophet, figs!"
A traveler, loitering near,
Half screened in a niche's deep recess,
Turned languidly round to hear.
But scarce had the Arab passed,
Ere a ripple, that seemed a sigh,
Blurred faintly the calm of his lip, and broke
In a haze on his dreaming eye.

"In the name of the Prophet, figs!"
He listened with downcast face.
"This Moslem," he said, "is brave to own
His creed in the market-place;
While I, with supremest trust,
And a hope that can know no shame,
Not once in the midst of this multitude
Have thought of my Prophet's name.

"In the name of the Prophet, figs!"
No vagueness about the way
He honors the slow muezzin call,
When his hour has come to pray.
It matters not where he be,
His worship his faith reveals;
Would I have the manhood, amid these crowds,
To kneel as the Arab kneels?

"In the name of the Prophet, figs!"
It sinks to an echo sweet,
Yet floats to me back with a pungent sting
Of reproach, in this foreign street.
It bids that, with faith as bold
As the Moslem's, I bravely do
All things whatsoever, or great, or small,
In the name of my Prophet, too! —Independent.

GREAT MEN NOT DRUNKARDS.

History tells of no truly great man who was a drunkard; that is, one who became great after he became a drunkard.

Alexander the Great whose tutor was the renowned Grecian law giver, the immortal Solon, died at the age of thirty-two; yes died at the very zenith of his glory, and that too in a drunken debauch. Altho admonished by the great law giver that sobriety would insure him a long and successful life, he became a drunkard, committed a horrible murder and in a fit of intoxication, quarreled with his generals, and brot disgrace and shame upon his army.

All his great and brilliant achievements were done before he became a confirmed drunkard.

AFTER DARK.

Almost invariably boys who have been allowed to roam free at night have come to moral shipwreck and social destruction. The exceptions have been where there was a strong intellect, a wholesome temperament, and peculiar social influences. Men and boys, women and girls, whatever may have been their culture, feel that there is something different in the streets at night from that which is in the day, something which excites apprehension, or creates alarm, or gives licenses. Boys that are demure by day will say things at night that they would blush to utter in the daylight.

The result of our observation is the clear conviction that it is absolutely necessary that parents know exactly where their children are from sundown to sunrise. No boy ought to be allowed to go alone off the pavement of his father's house after sundown. It ought not to be a hard restriction; to a boy thus trained from infancy it will not be. It is unnatural that a child should want to go off to play in the dark with other children. The desire never comes until the child has begun to be corrupt. Sometimes, for quiet, parents will allow their children to go "round the corner" to play with some other children. Sometimes this is allowed thru mere carelessness. We never knew it to fail to end disastrously. We have in our mind one or two striking cases of where weak mothers have pleaded for this liberty for their children and are now reaping the bitter fruits.—Signal.

WHAT A TIMELY WORD MAY DO.

On a Sunday evening, some twenty years ago, a dissipated young man was lounging under the elm trees in the public square of Worcester. He had become a wretched waif on the current of time. His days were spent in the waking remorse of the drunkard. His nights were passed in the buffooneries of the ale-house.

As he sauntered along, out of humor with himself and with all mankind, a hand was laid on his shoulder, and a voice said in cordial tones, "Mr. Gough, come, go down with me to our meeting at the town-hall to-night."

A brief conversation followed, so winning in its character that the young man consented to go. He went. He heard the appeals there made, and with tremulous hands he signed the pledge of total abstinence.

By God's help he kept it, and keeps it yet. The poor boot-crimper who tapped him on the shoulder, good Joel Stratton, has gone to heaven. But the youth he saved is to-day the foremost of reformers on the face of the globe.

Methinks, when I listen to the thunders of applause that greet John B. Gough on the platform of the Academy of Music, I am hearing the echoes of that tap on the shoulder, and of that kind invitation under the ancient elms of Worcester.—T. L. Cuyler.

Point out to the child the clear connection between the glass of social cheer and the drunkard's degradation, and he, like the heathen prince, will scorn the drink "that makes men like dogs." It has been said, "There is needed a thoro drill to be able to tear off the mask and pierce every disguise, and expose the death's head of alcohol, grinning beneath the flowers that festoon the cup." This has been successfully gained in the Band of Hope, so that children have been more quick to detect the evil tendency of the first step than their elders.—Sel.

No man, I care not how he may have fallen, wants his son to become a worthless sot. The children of to-day are reaching out to us and asking for a better future than their fathers had. While we give them better means for culture shall we not do something to save them from lives of shame and finally drunkards' graves. It is well to warn the boys to keep away from the saloons, but what is to be said of the men, most of them fathers, who every year vote for the continuation of the liquor traffic in the nation, with its 200,000 saloons?—D. C. Cook's Worker.

A friend writes: "One of my noble boys of Band of Hope, of about nine years, said, 'I have converted my mother and about converted my father.' A sixteen-year-old son of a former saloon keeper says, 'If my father ever keeps a saloon again I will not clerk for him.' A young girl, daughter of a saloon keeper, a fine musician, is so ashamed of her father's business she can never be induced to take part in any entertainment. A German mother who used to allow beer at home, says, 'Beer and I are sworn enemies from this time.'' A German beer-drinker wishes 'every saloon banished.' Thank God! and take courage!"—Signal.

There is a word we may cast before thinking minds. An army of children is being trained in the school of temperance, morality and religion—well trained—and the feet are marching on, keeping time to the big thots in their minds of "when I am a man or a woman." You hear the patter; year by year it is steadying down to a tramp. A larger army is being drilled in tenement houses, in alleys and slums, with beer, whisky, poverty, starvation and infidelity for teachers. It is no contest of numbers in the future, but of moral forces, and the "survival of the best." But there are nearer powers working now. We read how the great rock was seen lifted one morning, and it was only the power of the delicate, white-shouldered mushrooms that did it.—Sel.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

SUNDAY, AMERICAN OR EUROPEAN.

The American people North and South, East and West, and a large majority of English, Irish, Scotch and Canadian residents of the United States are almost unanimously in favor of a Sabbath rest and very strongly in favor of it. About how people shall rest on that day from labor and from business, whether they shall go to church, stay at home, visit their friends, walk, eat or sleep, there is a large difference of opinion and practice, and each follows his own preference with no desire to interfere with the other's mode of spending the Sunday so long as there is no interference with the peace and welfare of the community and no damage done to the citizen.

The European residents of the United States, some of them, are as earnest Sabbath keepers and Christians and temperate, well behaved citizens as can be found. That class of people make no trouble anywhere, they don't get into court or prison and we don't have to employ a policeman or a jail to keep a million of them in order. They are equal to the best of citizens. Every class foreign and native can choose their own mode of resting and enjoying the Sunday with the most entire liberty, with the exception that our country's laws have always declared that no one shall carry on the business of selling poisonous, crime-making drinks on Sunday, making men silly and crazy and blasphemous and quarrelsome and riotous and causing wretchedness, poverty and misery in the land, particularly on that day.

To this law our own people have always cheerfully agreed and submitted and to our observance of the Sabbath rest, and to the moral and religious teachings of that day, and to the sober habits of our people and the good influences of our sober, quiet homes, we all attribute the prosperity which has attended this country and which has made it a good and pleasant home for the people of Europe to come to. And we all believe that the Sunday of hard work and unusual dissipation and the beer garden and the beer keg and the beer mug and wine bottle are the only reasons why European countries are such favorite places to go away from.

And Europeans who would not go back to their old homes on any account, complain of our being "strict" and "tyrannical" and "bigoted" and "puritanical," because we don't want people to get drunk and fight and kill each other, either on Sunday or any other day. And altho there are many good people of them who have been misled on this subject, and are good, well behaved citizens, it must be admitted that our police and criminal courts and prisons and houses of alms and correction are kept full of business, almost altogether thru the liquor sellers and drinkers who want free rum and free beer and free fight and free drunkenness on Sunday.

Now let us reason this matter: Germany, Italy, France, Austria are as fine countries as the sun ever shone upon, favored with the best of climate, soil and resources and peopled with the most vigorous races of the world. A thousand years of sober economy and Sabbath rest and no beer or wine and a six days moderate wholesome industry, should have made every family there not only comfortable in this world's goods, but owners of a happy home and a competence. They have had a thousand years to accumulate the savings and profits of industry and they have wasted them utterly. The wars and commotions they have had, have never damaged them to an extent that a few years of good crops and prosperous trade would not recuperate. But the war of wine and beer has cost the people of these countries every year more than any year of war ever cost them, and it is fair to say of them, as Mr. Gladstone did of England, that the evils of drink were as great as the evils of war, pestilence and famine all combined.

While the people of this country of Sunday and temperate habits have been reducing the prairie and forest lands to cultivation, bridging the rivers, spending billions in roads and fences and building homes, churches, school-houses, cities, towns, state capitals, museums and public improvements of all kinds, it has been growing richer and better all the time and holding out more and better inducements every year to the people of all climes to come and reap the benefits of American industry, sobriety and Sunday.

During the same time the countries of Europe which have expended little money or labor in opening new lands to cultivation, which had their rivers bridged long ago, their roads and fences or hedges centuries old, their houses and cities and towns and churches and schools and colleges and public buildings built by their forefathers long, long ago, have been under a beer and wine and Sunday-work and Sunday beer-garden civilization, growing poorer and poorer every year; and every year not only poverty but crime and insanity have increased and the government statistics show a serious physical degeneration in the people.

These things considered, it is natural that we should prefer the improving systems which have built up this country, to the destructive systems which have desolated the finest countries of the world. And the American people should be the best judges of what is best for this country. Whatever will make the American prosper will be the very best thing for the German, Frenchman, Jew and every other citizen. There can be no law or custom which is going to be good for Americans and bad for Dutchmen or Italians.

If an American desires a Sabbath observance and a Sabbath rest and a sober community, it is not to help some religion, to please some fancy, to compel some ones opinion or control any ones liberty; it is because he loves his country dearly and in his inmost heart desires that every citizen, American, European, Catholic, Jew, Protestant, white or black, that has a home under the Stars and Stripes, shall have a most perfectly happy home; he wants to see crime and want and woe and jail and penitentiary and poor house done away with and he believes we can accomplish a system of perfect peace and prosperity, when the infernal iniquity of the wine cup and beer keg is abolished.

And when Americans or other citizens desire to see free rum, free crime, free Sunday or a Sunday of hard work and extra dissipation, it is either because of being uninformed and ignorant as to the consequences or because they do not care if this beautiful country should forfeit all its magnificent possibilities and go headlong to ruin and pauperism and utter national degradation and extinction.

There are thousanes of well-disposed, well-meaning foreign-born citizens in San Francisco now opposed to the Sunday law, who would assent to every word of the foregoing, if they would give these subjects an hours serious, impartial, intelligent consideration and they then would become as strenuous adherents of a Sunday rest as their best informed countrymen already are.

THE SUNDAY LAW AND BUSINESS.

The liquor sellers and tobacco traders want to have the Sunday Law repealed or disregarded, because the major part of them can make more money on that day than any other day of the week, thru the drunkenness and dissipation and extravagant wastefulness of the working men and the poor.

But every dollar spent by these classes is a dollar lost to the manufacturer and merchant and storekeeper and factory-hand that sells or makes or deals in food or clothing and useful articles of trade and commerce. Thousands of men get drinking on Sunday with a week's wages in their pocket and gamble or waste every cent of it. Most of these if the dramshop was shut up on Sunday would spend $10 in a furniture store or dry goods store on Monday or would buy shoes and hats and clothes and pay the $5 or $10 they owe to some honest man which they never do pay. The men who either make or sell hats, shoes, bread, meat, fish, clothes, furniture, pictures, photographs, books, farms, houses or any lawful merchandise, can sell exactly as much every year in the six days of the week as they could in seven. They would sell just the same, if all of them would shut their stores two whole days of the week. The people only buy of them what they want or are able to pay for. It is not so with the liquor and tobacco men; they want to have the hat and boot and clothing stores shut on Sunday and all work stopped except their own and then when the working men are idle, they can sell twice as much liquor and tobacco to them as they can on any other day in the week, and in many of the dramshops the largest profits are made picking the pockets of drunken men or robbing them at the card table on Sunday and Sunday evening.

Now, every clear-headed business man engaged in a respectable trade, knows that the community would buy twice or thrice as much of the household necessaries and comforts and luxuries which he has for sale, if they had the money or means to pay for them. And yet some of these business men are hostile to the Sunday law which proposes to shut up the grogshops and beer dives on Sunday and thus stop about four million dollars a year which is spent in them on Sundays, and turn all that money into the tills of the dry goods store the hatter, clothier, shoemaker, market man and every other honest business thru the week.

Every German, Frenchman, Hebrew, Italian, American whose head is not lopsided, and who is engaged in a respectable business, should be able to see for himself that every dollar corralled by the beer shops and whisky mills is a dollar that should go into some honest business man's till and pass from one to another of his fellow traders and help the neighborhood all round—but when the whisky man gets it, the honest traders lose it and it goes right up into the vaults of the rich whisky dealer or maker or is wasted among gamblers and malefactors.

A Sunday law that would shut up every beer and wine and whisky bar and store every day of the year, would do no man a particle of harm or injustice; it would harm no honest business; it would hurt no bad man's business without giving him a far better chance in some honest line of trade. And it would save to the legitimate business of the United States 700 to 1,000 million dollars a year of cash which it now loses; to the State of California 40 or 50 millions and to the city of San Francisco about 20 millions a year which it now loses. And in damages and taxes and fires and accidents and crime that come from drink there is another loss as great to the honest business classes.

The worst injury the Sunday law therefore intends to do the honest business men of San Francisco is to add first about 4 million dollars a year to their receipts and as soon as possible to extend the Sunday law over every day of the year and let the honest business of the city handle 20 millions a year more and give the city a chance to grow and double in a short time in its industries and trade and wealth and prosperity in every direction.

The Sunday Law strictly enforced will add at least $60,000 a week to the cash receipts of the honest business men and women of San Francisco—saved on Sunday from the till of the grogshop.

PER CAPITA TAX.

The Temperance News (Melbourne) quotes an article from the Gem defending Grand Lodges from charges of inefficiency and concluding thus:

"If in the face of all these obstacles, our G. L. officers and lecturers succeed in filling up the vacant places and increase the sum total of our membership to any perceptible degree, we claim they have done all that could be expected from an income of ten cents per member each quarter. Let us keep it at least at that figure."

It is presumed, that was from the N. Y. Gem which a ten cent capita tax and a ten cent financial management starved out in the great state of New York and it was a good paper, a monthly journal at only 50 cents a year. It is bad advice to keep a per capita tax at 10 cents; either raise it to the smallest limit of usefulness and progress, 25 cents a quarter, or lower it to 5 or 1½ cents so as to let the Order die and get out of the way, and let an efficient I. O.

G. T. be established or something useful take its place.

It is not too much to say that every 5 and 10 and 15 cent Good Templar institution in America has been so far a failure. Every jurisdiction of Good Templars that has had no more lodges and members every year than the year before, has been a lamentable failure; every one of them that has ended two years in succession with a declining membership has been a singularly lamentable failure and has exhibited a culpable negligence or a culpable inefficiency. If that is not so, the Order is of itself a failure and a mistake and ot to be abandoned at once and something better adopted.

But we know that it has proved not to bea failure where efficiently managed. And we have the best of reasons to believe that the whole scheme of Good Templarism, before it was tampered with and tinkered by people who had a capacity for pulling down but none for building up, was completely equipped for the extinction of the liquor traffic. The engine lacked nothing but the fuel to get up steam and every jurisdiction that has run on a cheap John capita tax, has been trying to run the engine without any steam or to keep steam up without any fuel.

Good Templars all over the East have come by custom unchallenged and uninterrogated, to believe that a State Jurisdiction that had in three successive years a membership of 11,000, 9,000, and 6,500 is doing admirably or as well as could be expected; there was an election one year and a famine in China the second, and a war in Russia the third; that accounted for the losses; "let us keep on brethern, we are doing as well as can be expected; we will have prohibition by and by in 10 million years at this rate."

It is just possible that owing to some outward circumstances a standstill or a partial loss might occur for a month or two in a well managed institution, but a continuous decline extending over years never had any other cause but a cheap John capita tax and a lack of generalship or judgment to bring it up to a consistent figure. And with a 5, 10 or 15 cent capita tax anywhere, any one who can figure and will do so, can easily demonstrate that a continuous decline and a constant failure to achieve any noticeable results is the only possible outcome. We cannot but be a promise all and do nothing organization, makiug lofty pretensions and accomplishing little, while a Good Templars interest in the work of reform is measured by 5 to 15 cents a quarter.

The mischief has been done by well meaning, honest, worthy friends of temperance. They hoped to make the Order so easy on the pocket that every body could join it; but the mistake was that they made it so cheap nobody cared to belong to it, except the heroic and the enthusiastic who think they ean build a $1000 house with $27,65 and in the attempt waste the $27,65 and get no house.

Brethren, everywhere, east, north, and south, before we try to reform anything else, let us reform our financial systems all round. An Eastern State jurisdiction that shall put its capita tax at 50 cents a quarter and elect good managers to take care of it, will add 50 or 100 per cent to its membership EVERY YEAR and will never have a sick or a dull or a backward spell or a slow spell, till total prohibition is accomplished. "And the Lord said unto Moses, wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel that THEY GO FORWARD."

SAVE YOUR LIVES.

Every week a good many new readers of the RESCUE are added to the list, and for that reason some things are presented that have been more or less referred to before; and same time older readers may profit by new light upon the subject. The U. K. Temp. Provident Institution was established many years ago in England because older companies (think of their folly) refused to insure tetotalers without charging them an extra higher rate than that of drinkers !!!

When it had become a sound, safe and well established institution, insuring only total abstainers, another Section was added and kept entirely separate. It admitted temperate, moderate drinkers, selected with a caution begotten of experience. There are standard tables of mortality calculated from records of all the actual deaths which have taken place for more than half a century in the nation.

In the 12 years from 1866 to 1877 this company expected from this table to have in the moderate class..... 2846 deaths and they had.....2807 deaths
showing that their careful moderates were a little safer than the general public and had 1¼ per cent less deaths.

Of the tetotalers they expected by the same table to have.....1619 deaths and they had only.....1156 deaths

a saving of 463 or 27 per cent. In other words their statistics for 12 years show that where a proportion of 100 of the general public died, 98¾ of the moderate temperate drinkers, died also, but only 73 of the total abstainers. And it shows that of the 2807 of the moderate who died in those 12 years 775 might have been living yet had they all been tetotalers. These figures are worth thinking over very thoroly. In one year too 8 members of the moderate section committed suicide; of the abstainers not one. Whether any of the abstainers assured ever did commit suicide in other years is not mentioned. Again in 1878 an unhealthy year, there was a difference of 23 per cent in the deaths in the two sections.

There are several other insurance societies now operating on the same principle. The Scepter in 16 years had out 9,345 policies to strictly moderate temperate drinkers and 3,396 to abstainers; of the first 5½ per cent have died to 2¾ per cent of the latter; a double mortality among the moderates. In 5 years ending Dec. 31, 1880 100 of the moderates died to only 70 of the abstainers.

In the Wihttington the deaths per 1000 in the two sections were 50 and 23; an advantage of 54 per cent in favor of temperance.

In two of the accident insurance companies of England, policy holders renewing their policies have a deduction of 8⅓ to 10 per cent on their premiums if they affirm to having been total abstainers the past 12 months, because a large proportion of accidents are due to drinking.

SICKNESS.

Dr. Noble, of Manchester, says three-fourths of the disease in the country is caused by moderate and immoderate drinking. Of 8 benefit societies in Preston, the government returns showed the sick drinkers to be 23.3 per 1,000 against 14 abstainers per 1,000. The Odd Fellows, Foresters and Sons of Temperance have to pay for cases of illness per 1,000 each year, 26.2, 27.6 and 7.5 respectively.

And to this vast saving of life and health occasioned by entire abstinence from the most moderate use of beer or wine or any kind of death drops, just add the immense advantage of comfort and peace and good reputation attained by entire sobriety and the vastly improved moral and religious enjoyment possible to the virtuous and undefiled and wholesome liver. And when you have read this over well and considered it well, send in your name to the Good Templars and help to drive this pest and curse and murderous nuisance of wine and beer from the land we live in and which we should love with all our hearts.

THEY DONT THINK SQUARELY.

The larger part of the Germans and others who oppose the Sunday Law, do so because somebody has told them lies about it. If the liquor dealers and tobacco men should always tell the truth, their business would soon die. The people they have deceived, believe that if the Sunday law is enforced they will have to go to church and do lots of things they dont wish or like to do, and be prevented from doing what they like to.

The only things the Sunday law proposes to do and is certainly going to do all over this Union, are to stop making men drunk and robbiug them on Sunday; to stop public fighting and gambling and killing and stealing on Sunday; to protect the working men and the poor from being enslaved at labor seven days of the week by their employers, and from being robbed of what they have earned in six days by the rumseller and beer robbers on the seventh.

The Sunday law don't propose to send any body to church or to any place else, nor to keep them from going where they please. It dont intend to interfere with the liberty of any one; only his liberty to kill and steal.

And the leag of Fiendom don't propose to send any body to church either, but it does most particularly desire to send its friends and customers to the police court with broken noses and black eyes; to the city jail on a stretcher with a knife wound or two; to the hospital and inebriate asylum and lunatic asylum in a strait jacket; to the poor house in rags and dirt generally; to the morgue of the suicide occasionally; and they want to send the whole people and country to the devil universally.

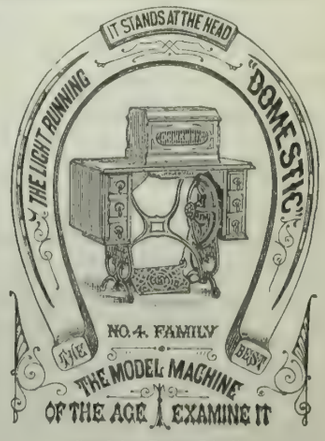
There is no answer that can be made to that; it can't be disputed. The church and lodge and Sunday school and the Sunday and the Band of Hope and the library and bath room and public school, are American institutions; every one of them has been a factor in building up this country and making it the best in the world. Not one of them in this country ever sent a man to jail or poor house or hospital or morgue; never made a man or a woman poor or sick or dirty; never made any one hunger or thirst or fight or steal or suffer or shed a tear of sorrow.

The brewers and wine makers and distillers have blasted and cursed and robbed and pauperized and ruined every country they ever lived in; trained armies of paupers, tramps, thieves, murderers in their own countries everywhere; filled their jails and madhouses and graveyards with the victims of their infernal avarice and cruelty; have filled the world with lost ruined women too, swarming in the streets and jails and in the horrible beer-traps and beer dens and pest houses everywhere.

And now after destroying the people in their own former homes, they follow their better decent respectable countrymen and women who have escaped to this land, and they propose to plunder and degrade and destroy and kill off in this new country, first their own countrymen and then the rest of us. To sell their abominable and poisonous filth at 5 cents a glass and make 4 cents profit, they are willing to turn this country into a pest house and a sink of iniquitous barbarism.

The first and worst and most cruel and only enemies of the German citizens here are the German brewer and liquor dealer. They expect to ruin and kill five of their own countrymen and women for one that they can catch of the Americans. That is what they want to destroy the Sunday Law for; to have a good chance to destroy their own people. There are no people among us who so much as the Germans need the wholesome protection of a Sunday law and a prohibitory liquor law, to make them most happy and prosperous citizens, and to protect them against the brewers pestilence.

THE CHARTER SUIT IN ENGLAND.



Dr. Lees says that "the legal end of the suit is to preserve our name in England, and our connexion with the Order. If the charter belongs to the seceders, then they register as I. O. G. T., and we, by force of law, are deprived of our name as well as property; it will then be illegal to call ourselves Good Templars, or to assume a connexion with the I. O. G. T."

The RESCUE has several times deplored the inconsistency of two temperance organizations going to law with each other, and believed that this instance was a parallel to some of those internal disagreements which sometimes act so disastrously in destroying the usefulness of temperance and religious societies.

If there was a design to prevent the legitimate I. O. G. T. from having a legal existance in England, and to force the members loyal to the genuine Order to disband or to call themselves by a different name from the parent Order, the charter suit on the part of Dr. Lees and the Order was and is entirely justified.

Had it been merely a persecution to harrass the seceders, as it appeared to us at this distance, it would have been matter for the severest criticism. As it is, let the lawsuit decide which is I. O. G. T. in England, but it is to be hoped no vexatious controversies will weaken the hands of either party to carry on the war against the common enemy.

SANCTIFICATION OF SELF.

Extremes meet. Only, such may differ in substance all the more for their nearness in outward claim. It is possible for mortal to arrive at a plane of perfection where temptation reaches not. It is far more likely that he, with the best possible intent, enters a sphere of spiritual, mental and moral hottentotism which successfully shrouds his deformity or even leprosy of sin, to his vision, if he trust to that (inward) serpent voice, "Ye shall not surely die," as an assurance of divine grace and sanctification. It is self sitting in judgment. Such is virtually the confession of faith of Guiteau. It is and was that of every fool, hypocrite and impostor from the beginning. All crimes, horrors and atrocities committed in the name of religion are directly traceable to this creed. All and every evil impulse clamor for justification upon this platform. All and every intellectual babe persists in charging the Christian faith and doctrine with being responsible for the works of those that betray it, or seek to make it subservient to their carnal lust and aspirations.

The major reason why hell cannot be redeemed is embraced in repentance being shut off from spheres infernal. Such cannot enter where darkness prevents sight or thot of "brighter spheres of life and love." Thus the startling fact of one engaged in the liquor traffic claiming sanctification in Christ, simply demonstrates his inability to conceive a loftier and purer ideal of righteousness than common in regions accursed.

We have seen the poorest possible apologies for humanity in sooth, beings in every characteristic but shape, far below brute creation, ready and willing to hazard their lives in defence of their honor; races invite extermination for conceptions of glory a half civilized savage may well be ashamed of; nations choose the most agonizing suicide in defence of creeds and conceits none did care to practice or demonstrate. Why sift like wheat a church member for having reached the normal level of all that believe in the saving virtue of self-exaltation and self-sanctification? Is it not sufficient that we know them by their fruits? Even if this sanctimonious rum dispenser in question has spasms of exaltation in which he thanks God that he is not as other men are, charity (which envieth not) should cover to the public gaze such hights of perfection, lest many be disheartened by regard of such unattainable altitudes of celestial magnificence. J. C. K.

GUADALUPE, May 13, 1882.

ED. RESCUE.—The question has been asked thru the RESCUE, "Why dont members insure in the Good Templars Mutual Aid Association?" I will give my reason for one, and it is the only reason I have not taken out a policy and for the same reason I could not, when a L. D. urge others to do so. I object to the provision that the insured shall keep up his membership in the Order. I think covenant No. 1 of the Agreement is ample, and more than necessary to cover the objection against other Associations of this kind. All that is claimed for this Association over others is, that its members being total-abstainers the risk is not so great and hence the assessments are proportionally less. Then why not admit all total abstainers and only require that they continue as such, with the additional requirement that they shall not engage in the traffic as saloon keepers for the reason that their occupation is the most hazardous of all occupations. It is to the interest of every member of the Association to keep watch of others to see that they do not violate this provision. It is also the duty of the Agent to do so. In case of death it would be a difficult matter to ascertain if the deceased member had violated this covenant to an extent to make a perceptible difference in the risk. And if it should be ascertained that he had escaped the vigilance of the Agent and other members and had broken this covenant, he has paid his assessments but his heirs will receive no benefit. I think the Association would make more than it would lose from violations of this covenant. There are ever recurring causes for losing membership in the Order except by getting an effective card and paying $6 a year for it, which about doubles the cost of insurance and makes it dearer than other societies. And again, the fact of his holding an effective card does not secure the Association against a violation of his pledge. He will violate that as soon as he would the covenant in the policy.

I have remained silent all this time as I did not wish to throw a wet blanket on the enterprise, or prevent others from taking out policies though I could not see my way clear to do so myself. I desired to see the Association prosper but now after a year and a half it seems to be very near a failure. I think it is about time we should speak out and see if we cannot find out what is the matter and seek a remedy. JAMES MORSH.

The easiest and best remedy for any such weak point or objectionable feature in the Mutual Aid was to join it and show up the failure. The clauses and conditions of this Association are not set up as infallible, and the Grand Lodge in session or the members of the Mutual Aid there present, can depend every time that every wrong or error or failure in any part of our machinery is sure as sunrise to be set right, if the Grand Lodge in session understands the question. It would have been a most singular thing if that affair had been put up absolutely perfect and to suit every body at first. But if there had been ten gross mistakes in the plan, the moment they were discovered and proved to be mistakes, the business of every delegate to G. L. would be to get them righted and all would wish to do so.

Some of those who had the preparation of the system in hand, desired strenuously to have it include every consistent assured total abstainer and member of any temperance society, provided the other conditions of the covenant were satisfactory. Others were very positively in favor of making continued membership in the I. O. G. T. an absolute condition, on the ground that people might join the Order purely from the motive of assurance and then, when assured, abandon all living connection with the cause of temperance.

The disputed point was dropped with the understanding that as we should see in practice any clause or condition or imperfection that needed improvement that improvement would assuredly be made by the good sense and sentiment of justice which always decides matters in our Grand Lodge, if the delegates understand the question.

Bro. Morse is mistaken about $6 a year for an effective card, it is only $4 and that may seem too much. And if it were $6 it would not be dearer than in other societies. The exclusives have on their side of the argument that it is worth a good deal more than $4 a year to a male citizen or $1 to a female to be kept for life in active membership with this Order, and that they owe to the cause which has done so much for them and all the world and which will do so much more, that little pittance of assistance in its work.

Our brethren have many of them overlooked the greatest and most important object of our Mutual Aid. For many years men and boys have joined our Order to make them sober and economical, and have been obliged to join another and have chosen to join a third and a fourth to secure a provision for their friends in case of death. If they die they are going to leave a benefit of $1,000 or $2,000 from the other society or societies and a memorial notice from the Good Templars. Therefore they value the other society a thousand times more; the I. O. G. T. has reformed them or raised them sober and now they are safe they think. The monthly dues and weekly meetings come often and the first they drop is the Good Templars. They cant afford to drop a $1,000 benefit. In the other societies many of them loose their bonds of abstinence and are lost to us. And many a good wife and mother, who knows that a dark day may come any time, puts a $1,000 or $2,000 value on her husband's or son's membership in an Order where he is subject to the strongest temptation and puts only a $5 valuation on his membership with us.

It was a sad lack of generalship and financial capacity in the general leadership of our Order everywhere that this Mutual Aid feature was not engrafted on it many years ago. It is of utmost importance that we should give our membership right at home a beneficiary provision which we can give so much better and cheaper and safer than he can get elsewhere.

Whatever is best to be done with the Mutual Aid will be done; the only way to prevent its being perfected and made a speedy success is to keep out of it because of some trifling defect, which is of no consequence and perhaps if not remedied would not touch one member in fifty.

Our members often find fault with ministers and others who refuse to join or help a temperance society because there is some little screw that they think ot either to be loosed or titened up. Bro. Morse would say to one of them every time, "Well, my brother, if you dont approve of that, you should come on the inside and help us to make it right. The Mutual Aid may be made to go slow, but it is in no danger of being a failure.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., May 7, 1882.

ED. RESCUE.—The Cause of Temperance is on a balance. The election is approaching. Politicians are silent. The Leags of Destruction falsely called Freedom are at work and organized for war. They boldly declare their independent principles; will support but one party the alcohol party. The whisky and anti-Sunday party have declared their principles. Now what will the Democrats and Republican parties do. One or both must meet the whisky and anti-Sabbath party. From appearances, the Democrats will be silent, should the Republicans take the course that the Democrats indicate, to be silent what will all moral Christian, and temperance people do? Shall the whisky ring destroy the one day of rest given by law to the laborer, and the long honored Christian, and poor mans Sabbath, and day of rest? This issue must be met and it is best for all persons favoring the Sunday law, and temperance to organize, and make the first fight in the convention of both political parties.

Except we do this, each party will dodge the issue and next winter the Leag of Destruction will have their lobby at Sacramento, healed with their ill-gotten palf. And by means of money and alcohol, bring disgrace on the land of Washington. We are having a big powow over the Chinamen. Alcohol is a greater enemy to all our people than the Chinamen. Alcohol enters every family, he does not only impoverish as the Chinaman does but kills his 60 thousand annually in our country. The man who kills his fellows is by law taken and hung, but the man that kills his thousands is a great general. The Chinaman oppresses the poor, and we propose to fire him out, but alcohol is ruining our whole nation, defying our laws, and he is made General of an army of murderers. If both political parties fail to give assurance on the issue made by alcohol, the friends of law, order and the Sabbath should organize at once and vote their convictions. The issue is forced by the whisky men and if not met by its opponents it is easy to see the result, debauchery and crime will increase. The poor man's day of rest will soon cease. All those wishing to observe the Sabbath will be met at every corner saloon and be insulted by the remarks and gestures of those degraded by the accursed alcohol. Let all good citizens band themselves together. The friends of alcohol know that in union there is strength. They are wiser in this than the children of light. Bro. McDonald and others have taken the right course and if an organization of protection is formed in every county and settlement, we can elect men that cannot be bought with money or alcohol. Yours truly, in Faith Hope and Charity. A. D. BOREN.

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

PARKER'S

SALVATION POWDERS!

—o—

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge of the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills. at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

CHURCHES AND TEMPERANCE.

The German Methodist Episcopal Conference recently held at Columbus, Ohio, passed resolutions endorsing the recent temperance legislation in that State and pledged themselves to assist in its enforcement.

THE Southern Methodist Conference have lately been discussing wine and tobacco at Nashville, Tenn. The wine was condemned but the tobacco was laid over for future consideration.

The committee on temperance of the General Conference of the M. E. Church South, on Friday submitted the following report with reference to the use of alcoholic wines: "Your committee, to whom was referred a paper asking that the general conference take such action as will prevent the use of fermented wines in the sacrament of the Lord's supper, have carefully considered the same and would report non-concurrence, but would at the same time recommend to our people everywhere that they be careful to procure the purest wines for this holy sacrament."—Kansas Methodist.

And when they get the very "purest" fermented wine, it will be and can be nothing put a product of rotten putrid decay, a poison accursed of God and of all his prophets and apostles, an abomination emphatically forbidden to priests during their term of religious service, and most strictly and repeatedly prohibited from being used in any sacrifice or religious ceremony. And it will be as different from the "fruit of the vine" which was used at the first supper as the most fiery whisky is from milk. The only argument for its use is that at some time of the dark ages some of the Catholic churches substituted fermented wine for the true wine of communion, for the use of the priest alone, and the early Protestants ignorantly and in entire innocence adopted that wretched substitute and fraud and gave it to the laity.

The early reformers of Luther's time, never knew what wine was at all, and had no douts or questions about it; to them a thot never occurred as to whether the wine of rottenness was the cup of devils or not; they all drank fermented wine and believed it was food and a mercy and blessing to man, in moderation. They never consulted a bible text upon the subject. Therefore the question now is, were they more likely to be right on a matter of ancient usage and of the translation of the Hebrew and of the interpretation of scriptural commands, than the unanimous christian, sober, scholarship who have specially studied this question for years, have learned all there is to be learned, and have not only much more copious authorities to refer to, but a much higher scholarship than any of the early reformers could have acquired.

The M. E. Church South is unfortunately behind the age on the question of wine and tobacco. But it has advanced very much since the same conference 12 years ago declared temperance "a side issue with which the church has nothing to do." That has been left away behind and in 12 years from uow, that church will look back from its vantage ground gained, with wonder at this singular report of a committee.

SANTA CRUZ.

The Exchange and Mart, published in Santa Cruz, is a most useful paper for people in or out of California who think of purchasing homes in or near that pleasant city by the sea. It advertizes in a conspicuous manner about every thing that is to be bot or sold in or near Santa Cruz, from a 6 x 10 candy stand to a farm or ranch of the size of a European principality. An intending settler coming to California from Michigan or Masachusetts or Alabama might save $1,000 or make a much better bargain in buying a home if he should happen to fall in with a copy of the Exchange and Mart on or before his arrival in the state. Only 25 cents a year, published monthly, and it contains much useful and interesting reading and information. It advertizes wineries and wine lands too, unfortunately; the wine making and wine drinking prospects of this state are a very great obstacle to the coming of the solid, good citizenship that wants sober surroundings. But some of these days the E. and M. will see it all and come out with a rousing ring for temperance.

BENEVOLENCE.

The people of Canada have always been engaged in a keen pursuit of happiness, but in spite of all the efforts of churches and legislatures and writers and colleges and teachers and temperance reformers and railroad syndicates, there was something always turned up missing to complete the sum of perfect happiness to the whole people. There was always somebody poor yet, or in jail, or sick or could not go to the circus or had a smoky chimney or was out of luck somewhere.

But now the missing talisman of fortune has been found and the problem of universal human happiness in Canada has been satisfactorily solved. The something longed for has come. The "Ontario Trades' Benevolent Association" has appeared in these latter days to bless the world. The members of this Society pay a fee as follows: distillers pay $50; brewers large $25, small $10; wholesale rumsellers $10; retailers and cigarmen $3 to $2; any other trader $1.

The Benevolent feature is divided into 2 parts; after paying expenses, 2½ per cent may be used to assist any needy member of the association and 97½ per cent is to be used to fight the Canada Temperance Act (the local option law). If the Benevolents raise $10.000 they may waste $250 on those rumsellers who have fallen into their own trap and $9,750 in defeating the laws of the land which interpose between the benevolent rumseller and his lawful human victim.

Prof. Foster thinks it ot to be a pretty influential Society as its members produced the larger portion of 13,196 crimes for which arrests were made in Ontario, last year.

ADVERTIZING.

The most successful business men in mercantile life have attributed their success to judicious advertizing, not the wildcat random kind. They have made a study of how to word an advertisement, how to display it to the best advantage to have it generally read, and also how to select the best messengers to proclaim their business to the people.

They never told us that the best paying advertizement was a $10 or $20 ad in a directory which lies on a shelf and is never opened except when one wants to find John Smith's number on sixty-second street. They never boasted of the feat of investing a $20 card in a county map to hang up on about 40 tavern walls to be looked at once a month by some poor fellow who forgets whether Benicia is north of Siskiyou or east of Sacramento.

The advertizements that are read in saloons and in corner groceries do the smallest amount of service and if the papers containing them did not go into families snd business houses and reading rooms as well as saloons, the papers would be next to useless for advertizers. Because the saloon readers don't buyanything but beer and whisky and tobacco.

The paper that goes out weekly to the sober, respectable thrifty homes of the Good Templars and Christian people and that advertizes no frauds nor anything which is not genuiue and useful should be and is one of the best advertizing mediums. The RESCUE goes now to nearly 4000 addresses and nearly every one who receives it is able to buy and pay for what is advertized for sale in it, and probably 10,000 people read the paper every week.

ABOVE THE LAW.

THE CROOKED whisky dealers, whose whisky was recently seized by Mr. Hartson, the revenue collector, for having defrauded the revenue by the use of stamps which indicated that the contents of the barrels were syrup or something not subject to revenue duty, are saucy. Of course the Commissioner of Internal revenue, Mr. Green B. Raum, who is a mere creature and tool of the whisky and beer ring, immediately ordered the release of the smuggled whisky, as is the custom of the administration, knowing of course, it had paid no duty. But the smugglers are not content to have their steal covered up and permission given to continue their frauds. They are blackguarding Mr. Hartson thru the press for having dared to seize smuggled whisky or to meddle with free whisky in any way, and are almost threatening his removal from office.

Lucien Curtis was ignominiously dismissed from his office about 13 years ago for having in obedience to his oath and official duty, seized a large quantity of smuggled whisky in this port. Its value was about $750,000, and of course there was wide room for bribery to procure its release. Senator Cole and Rep. Sargent were very active in securing the release of that smuggled whisky.

HIS PROFESSION.

Allow me, Mr. Jones, to introduce to you Judge P., Captain Q., Col. R., Mr. S., our city surveyor, Mr. T., our leading lawyer, Mr. W., one of our merchants, Mr. V., the conductor on the A. B. railroad, Mrs. W., our milliner, Mr. X., the assessor and Mr. Z., the collector of customs, and 50 more Mr. and Mrs. and Misses all with their professions or occupations named, and not one of them would feel in the least affronted; most of them, if not all would be glad to have their business introduced with them and be a little proud of it.

You can say in perfect good taste, this is Mr. C., the locksmith who makes the safest and best keys and locks, etc.; Mr. D., who furnishes us with ice in summer. Rev. Mr. E., who preaches for us every Sunday, Mr. F., who teaches our public school, away down to Mr. O., the undertaker, who does the last services for us, and not one will feel hurt, but suppose you introduce Mr. Hoggershwiner, the brewer, "who is our principal drunkard maker," and Mr. Handifin "who teaches our boys to gamble," and Mr. Flaherty "who trains our wifebeaters," Mr. Peershlobberhimer "who has had 2 pupils graduate on the gallows and 4 in the penitentiary," and Mr. Shaver "who teaches our little boys to smoke," how mad they would all flare up, simply because we had done precisely by them as we did by every man engaged in any decent occupation.

SUNDAY.

The pastoral letter of the Catholic Bishops of Cal. recently issued, strongly condems the desecration of the Sabbath, as follows:

"And on this particular point we cannot suppress a bitter complaint against some (and we hope they are few) who, forgetful of the rights of God and of the interests of their souls, turn the day of the Lord into a day of irreligion, and spend the time appropriated by the Eternal Law Giver for divine worship and acts of religion in dissipation and worldly pleasure, in intemperance and vice. We know no language strong enough to denounce the evil of such profanation of the Lord's day, and we greatly fear for the evil consequences to individuals, to families and to society at large from the spread of such pagan irreligion.

We have no hesitation in avowing the belief that the observance of religious worship on Sundays would be greatly promoted by training the young daily, from their tender years, to a due appreciation of the sovereign majesty of God and of his divine commandments."

That is a timely protest against the terrible evil of Sunday depravity which so disgraces and degrades this State. The Rev. gentlemen were decidedly charitable in the "hope" that the Sabbath-breakers "are few." All the respectable church organizations are against the profanation of the Sabbath on religious as well as sanitary and economical grounds. All respectable thinking men outside of the churches are agreed that the Sabbath rest is necessary to the peoples health and welfare and to the public safety.

. On the other side the leag of malefactors who live by the robbery and slauter of their fellowmen, want to stop the working men from their toil on Sunday, and to have the rum and beer thugs turned loose on them to rob and skin them and starve their families all the week.

It is the interest of every merchant and trader in honest merchandise to protect the working men on Sunday from their enslavers the drunkard makers, and to permit their families to use their wages in the purchase of the food and raiment and home comforts which they need; to let the working men patronize the clothier and dry goods man and the honest trades and industries in place of the grog shop.

BENEVOLENCE—EXAMPLE.

Ed. Rescue:—The time when it could be contended with the faintest hope of success that temperance principles are not better every way than those of an opposite character has long passed away. It is a matter therefore of surprise that a great society existing for charitable purposes should run counter to them.

I was at the picnic of the British Benevolent Society at Fairfax on the 24th inst. which was well attended and where all had a jolly time. It gave me pleasure to think how largely the funds of the society would be augmented and for what a noble purpose they will be expended. But meantime I could not repel a sadness which came over me from the society's having given by its mottoes and conduct a public encouragement to intemperance. Among the words of cheer and welcome hung around the dance hall were these, "And drink each other's health in British Beer" and for the winning side in the "Tug of war" there was a keg of beer. There is no desire on my part to hurt anyone's feelings. And if it can be made apparent that this conduct of the society is not reprehensible I will make an open confession of my fault. It is because I am an Englishman and love all that is good in my countrymen and would help and encourage the B. B. S. that I make this, tho feeble, candid complaint against conduct which all true reformers disapprove. And lest anyone should suppose I fire from ambush I append my name, desiring no favor, fearing no rebuke, but holding up to public view the beauty and chastity of temperance founded in truth and philanthropy and contrasting it regretfully with practices which can only tend to degrade and brutalize.

Respt. Geo. Aspden.

PENNSYLVANIA.

"A resolution calling upon the Legislature to submit to a popular vote a proposed amendment to the State Constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors within the commonwealth was adopted by a large majority."

The Republicans of the liberal type have nominated a State ticket, denounced very heartily the boss and spoils system in politics and passed the resolution above.

If the Republican party would make the national issue of prohibition, they would lose a few whisky votes that do seven times more harm than good to the party, and they would gain a vastly larger number of good, honest, sober voters from the Democratic party, who would leave a party that has a whisky platform, if there was a better one.

CHINESE IMITATIVENESS.

"The police arrests of Chinese on Tuesday night included twenty-one cubic air violators and eight sleepers in hallways. All were sentenced in the Police Court yesterday to ten days' imprisonment, with the alternative of a $10 fine. The Chinese yesterday showed that they profited by the example of the Leag of Freedom by blocking the Courts with jury trials, forty-one cubic air law violators demanding the same privilege yesterday."

A SCHETZEL FIASCO.

"After two days' work in Police Court No. 2 yesterday but eight jurors were secured to try the case of Frank Mitchell, charged by Marx P. Schetzel with violating the Sunday law, and proceedings were brot to a standstill by the exhaustion of the venire. After considerable bickering the defense agreed to proceed to trial with the eight secured. The incomplete panel was accordingly sworn and Schetzel called to the stand, he being the only witness for the prosecution. The witness failed to respond, and after waiting for some minutes, the disgusted Prosecuting Attorney consented to a dismissal of the charge."

But the Chinese were fined $700 and it was soon discovered that Chinamen could not block the courts. There is a remarkable difference between the justice meted out to a Chinese law-breaker and the free license to crime accorded to the rum-selling law-breaker who is tenfold more lawless and a hundredfold more of a public curse and scourge and nuisance than the Chinamen.

IN OTHER STATES.

Work of the Leag of F.—A bill has been presented in the English Parliament to protect women and children from those who beat and wound women and children. It proposes to punish any male over 15 years of age with 4 hours in the pillory for a first and a whipping for a second offence of that nature. It is a little amusing that the bill does not apply to Ireland and Scotland. At Camborn the inspiring fluid of the Leag raised a mob which sacked a Catholic church and made the Irish run for their lives. Nobody punished. At another place the Leag ducked the leader of a religious meeting in the river and the magistrates helped the leag by putting the religious people in jail. At Shepton Mallet the Leag breaks up temperance meetings by brutal violence and the Christian Commonwealth says the devil seems to be marshaling his hosts and nobody seems to be disposed to take him by the horns. The leag is up and armed all over the world but it is like the candle which sends up a brilliant flame just at the moment preceding it final extinction.

The National Temperance Leag of England had a big May Day meeting in Exeter Hall and it was a joyous, enthusiastic audience that filled the hall. The Rev. Canon Fleming presided. Reports were made of the work of the Leag in schools, in medical and other societies, in the army and navy, and with the people. They count 25,000 abstainers in the army and 12,000 in the navy and they count nearly a million children being trained up in the Bands of Hope. The Temperance Hospital has cost $130,000, has 50 beds and is growing fast in public confidence. The Publication House of the Leag has 200 branch depots, has made sales amounting to $61,000 in the last 15 months and has an income of $16,800. A Samuel Bowly celebration fund was proposed to extend over five years; its proposer headed the subscription list with $500 and $3,500 were subscribed and $6,500 more promised on the spot. The importance of a general spread of temperance literature was strongly urged and ministers were specially invited to give their aid and example to the various temperance agencies. That million children in the Band of Hope will prove the most valuable army England ever had.

Russia.—It is reported that the Czar has decreed that liquor shall be sold only in one place in each village by an appointed native who shall receive nothing but a salary and is liable to be imprisoned if any one gets drunk on the premises. When any community becomes notorious for drunkenness the sale is to be stopped altogether. So says the Christian Globe an English paper. It is something gained when the retailer of liquor has no cash interest in making men drunk.

Ireland.—The English Leag of F. report that closing the grogshops in Ireland has increased drinking in Ireland; that is a result that no sane man ever believed possible altho some sane people have believed that witches could stuff an enemy full of pins and needles a mile off.

A Woman in Portsmouth, England, making a legal complaint against a brutal husband, declared that in 21 years married life he had given her a black eye 200 times and had been in the habit of drinking $4.50 worth of beer weekly. Nice diet is beer; usefnl citizens the beer thugs.

"The Globe Democrat sent a corps of fifty reporters last Sabbath to discover who kept the Lord's day and who did not. It was found that 119,498 people attended the two religious services and 23,102 attended Sunday School; and a total of only 20,242 attended the theaters and loafed around the parks and beer gardens." Few people would have supposed such a showing would be found in St. Louis. Had it been San Erancisco it is feared the figures would have been transposed in the first and third census."

The Sunday closing act went into operation in Ireland in the fall of 1878; in the following year the number of offences for punishable drunkenness were reduced 11,000 and in 1880, nearly 22,000 from those of 1877 which were 110,000.

Drunken France has for years been using horseflesh as a regular article of food, and now drunken Belgium is petitioning the authorities to permit dog meat to be sold in the markets. The dog in Belgium does most of the light carting and hauling of the country people. Four dogs and two women make a pretty good team to tow a canal boat, and two dogs and a woman can tote a good load in a dog wagon. Our leag of Schetzel Shaeffer & Co., are aiming to introduce these improvements here,

Kansas with its prohibitory law seems to be a healthy country for churches. There are 357 Methodist Ministers and 135 Presbyterian. The former received into full membership last year 2,242 persons or 6⅓ for each minister, and the Presbyterians admitted 644 or 4⅘ per minister, and in the same year the Methodists received 4,153 and the others 1,238 by certificate; these were doutless mostly new arrivals flocking to a temperance State. While the Methodists only gave 28 cents per member to foreign missions against 49 for the Presbyterians, the former paid $12.06 and the latter $8.09 per member for church and Sunday school support at home.

In West Virginia where they have elected some good, honest Republicans to office, in place of those wicked whisky Democrats, so as to restrict whisky license, they are somewhat surprsied to find the whisky business a good deal stronger under the new departure.

Indiana is moving against the 4,000 criminal outlaws who demand that they shall absolutely rule and play King Stork with the other 1,960,000 citizens of that State, and its Monitor Journal has worked up from a 4 page bimonthly to a 6 page weekly, and hurts some of the saloonkeepers and moderate drinker's corns by saying radical things.

New South Wales has enforced Sunday closing all over the colony. Penalty $25 to $50, and seller and buyer equally punished; that is the law we want. Sydney Police Court has one drunk on Monday morning against 30 to 40 on Mondays under the open dramshop.

The Bishop of Santander, Spain, has got his back up against the "liberal journalists" of that province, and has clapped the "Major Ex-communication" on them all. That is a form of curse in the rituals of the Roman Church adapted to heretics and offenders and has been often pronounced against special individuals and all the heretics in the world in one batch. It so minutely curses every portion of the human anatomy separately and conjointly, and so curses its victim in every act, word, thot, condition, relation, etc., that it is entirely unfit for publication; and still it has never been called "too radical." It has always fattened up and regenerated and improved the health of the Christian apostle who has delivered and applied the apostolic flyblister, but if it ever "drew," or in the least affected or afflicted, in this world or the other, the patient to whom it was applied, no record appears of the fact.

The Rev. L. A. Banks, of Vancouver, lectured recently at The Dalles, Oregon. When he goes for the leag of Fiendom, he makes it a very unsavory association. It is hoped he may be heard all over Oregon.

Mr. Halse, a solicitor and Chairman of the Wartara Water Board, in New Zealand, is reported as having misappropriated $100.000 of trust funds; but there was nothing mean or low about him, he committed suicide like a man when it was found out. A pleasant business stealing seems to have always been. Try it again.

Rro L. E. Harcus lately G. W. C. T. of New South Wales whose letter appears this week, made a strong appeal to his people to adopt our California secret of success—a capita tax of 24 cents and thro overboard the cheap john fanaticism which has for years slautered the Lodges and Grand Lodges and members of our Order all round the world by the thousand, and has paralyzed and tied up and rendered utterly powerless our workers and organizations everywhere. Those that love the Order for the cause will soon want to see it reform and live or else die out in the places where it has slept for 10 or 15 years, and make way for a living society.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

KING ALCOHOL.

The begotten son of mammon together with his sire, are riding rough shod, and side by side over the people of this once Christian land; and those who profess to believe that we should love one another, do not hesitate to worship at the shrine of these demons, upon whose altars hecatombs of human victims are annually slaughtered.

In obedience to the mandates of these moloks, two young men, brothers, and who loved each other when they were sober, met together when under the maddening influence of liquor, and strove to butcher one another. Silently and with hellish fury they drew their knives and stabbed, each at the other brother, and so have drunken husbands stabbed at the wives they loved, and so have drunken wives stabbed at their husoands, and drunken sons have murdered their fathers.

This fraternal murder happened only lately in our city, and yet more than the simple bloody tale the papers do not tell, perhaps because it would set forth too glowingly THE CAUSE, from which they too reap profit. It was Saturday night, not very late, yet they had spent the time since they came from work, drinking up the wages of the week, where men are licensed to deal out death.

One brother stabbed by the other falls weltering in his gore, and but for this accursed enemy of the human race, that haunts millions from the cradle to the grave, this strife had never been; and the victims might have lived, honored, happy and respected to a good old age. The murderer gazed upon his hellish work, aghast with grief and terror. Reason resumed her throne. His love returned, and taking the dying brother in his arms, his own warm blood still streaming from his gaping wounds, he kissed the death damp from his pallid brow and lips —fast growing cold, and in agonizing tones, oh so piteously, begged him not to die. Who can tell the agony of that brother's soul as he vainly strove to staunch the ebbing life blood. T'was alcohol that did the deed and yet we must submit; there's profit in it, and profit rules the world.

But yet how wondrous are the works of God. Let the unbeliever construe them as he may. The wife of the living brother, had seen the picture of this murder in a dream the night before, but without knowing who they were—"A night mare"—says a morning paper. The encounter might perhaps have been prevented only we are taught in these days dreams go for naut? and even those who teach us so, admit that God warned Joseph in a dream; and that Daniel, Jeremiah, Isaiah, Ezekiel and St. John's night mares were visions inspired by God.

How long are we to be accursed by the presence of these hell born monsters, whose annual victims scattered far and wide, are numbered by millions? How long will the vending of these noxious wares, that scatter death and misery be permitted? Are they not worse than poisons? and because these bring death in a few hours, is their sale to the suicide to be prohibited, while this accursed beverage whose ravages are a worse scourge than all the diseases that now ravage this God-forsaken world, is permitted. —C. B. Smith, in the Greenbacker.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

HARD TO BEAR.

In dealing with men who, if they are too pious to lie, are yet too ignorant to tell the truth, too self-conceited to be taught, and too infallible to be corrected; who take to the wrong side of a question as naturally as a duck takes to the water; and who never have any faults to regret, errors to rectify, or sins to confess; it becomes a most serious question to know what is duty in such a case. When men persistently repeat exploded falsehoods, and impose upon the unwary with statements that they have every means of knowing to be untrue; when they offer accusations without evidence, and always insist upon a verdict when only their own side of the case has had a hearing; when they spend their days in producing slanders and misstatements, and meet the expense of publishing them by misappropriating funds which are consecrated to other purposes;—when men seem thus lost to every principle of propriety, and justice, and righteousness, it is exceedingly difficult to know what to do or how to act. It is not difficult to reason with reasonable men; but when men are beyond the reach of reason, and conscience is perverted, and the eyes of the understanding seem blinded, what can be done to open their eyes, and set their feet in the right path? Such persons cause us to repeat the apostle's request, "Brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you; and that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men; for all men have not faith." 2 Thes. iii. 1, 2.—Boston Christian.

CONCORD.

ED. RESCUE:—Accompanied by my wife May 5th, I drove 26 miles to Oroville, met Lodge in the evening. Installed officers and conferred degrees on 8 members; the Lodge is very prosperous. Saturday 6th, went to Wyandotte and met with Gem Lodge; about 60 members present and better looking material for a successful and flourishing Lodge I never met together. Expect to hear good reports from this place. The Sec., Bro Reed and a number of Oroville templars accompanied me to assist in the work. After initiation, installed officers and instructed in the degrees. Then returned to Oroville where we arrived at 2 o'clock A. M. and next morning by sunrise were on our way to Paradise. Met with the Lodge at 1 P. M. This Lodge was also organized by Bro. Goulding and has about 65 members; very earnest in the work and determined to build up a reputation as one of the leading Lodges of this county; had initiation and installation; After a bountiful lunch, we conferred both degrees on the members, assisted by a delegation from Messilla Valley Lodge, led by Bro. Hawkins L. D.; after Lodge, returned to Messella Valley, and home next day, making a four days trip, and a very pleasant one. Thanking the templars for their courtesies, and hoping to meet them again.

SUNDAY LAW VIOLATORS CONVICTED.

In the case of the people against Bullwinkle for the crime of keeping open his saloon on Sunday Apr. 23, the first trial took place on Monday May 7, resulting in a disagreed jury; 9 for conviction and 1 for acquittal, the case was again tried Saturday 13th inst., resulting in a solid full jury finding the Leag man guilty; 21 of the two juries finding him guilty and one only perjuring himself by acquitting. Davisville is not so bad a place as some have thot it to be. Now is it because people are afraid of these leagues or what is the reason Saloons are open in so many places in our State? There seems to be too much lethargy in the matter. The sentiment here is to enforce the law. Will good citizens defer longer?

BOGUS FINANCE.

NATIONAL BRIGANDAGE.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman boasts of the successful issue of Republican party financiering. "The tax on alcoholic drinks pays the interest on the National debt." But he omits to say that to pay that tax costs the people every year, at the lowest calculation, 700,000,000 dollars in cash.

1,000,000,000 dollars in damages.
100,000 American citizens destroyed and killed.
100,000 American citizens led into vice and crime.

Many thousands of people assassinated and butchered in the shambles of the grog shop—PRESIDENT GARFIELD one of the latest victims.

And the first and most privileged civilization of the world converted by the foreign grogshops into the chosen field of the most cruel and bloody crime, and the worst system of criminal violence, debauchery and lawless ruffianism that the world has ever produced.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

GRAND TEMPERANCE RALLY!

A TEMPERANCE

Camp-Meeting

WILL BE HELD IN THE FAMOUS

REDWOOD GROVE,

Near Guerneville, Sonoma Co., Cal.,

JUNE 29th to JULY 5th.

It will be under the immediate control and management of

ENTERPRISE LODGE, No. 356, I. O. G. T.,

And one-third of the net proceeds will be given to the

ORPHANS' HOME

AT VALLEJO.

Every possible care will be taken to make the occasion a pleasant and profitable one to all who attend.

We cordially invite the assistance and co-operation of all friends of the temperance cause.

THE readers of the RESCUE will be glad to hear the R. W. G. T. was unanimously re-elected.

SUBSCRIBERS and renewals this week: W. C. King 18 (Butte City 17, Princetown 1); Oregon (Levi Leland) 6; Colfax (Mrs. S. P. Irving, W. V. T.) 2; Crescent City Lodge 5; Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Richardson 74, (Oakland 7, Alameda 1, Maine 1, San Francisco 65); Columbia 1. In all 106.

MR. SHAW offers to cure the appetite for drink, and believes thoroly that he can; if there were not good reason to believe that his remedy has been successful in San Francisco it could not find a place in the RESCUE. He will make the "no cure no pay" contract with those who desire a trial of his curative method.

Mrs. S. P. Irving of Colfax is the first W. V. T. to respond to the new circular but there are lots more coming. It is of immense importance that we should get the RESCUE up to 10,000 a week and then it would never cost the Grand Lodge another cent and would do 5 times the work it did when it had the most limited circulation and was most costly.

THE CAMP-MEETING at Guerneville will be a grand affair this year. Rev. R. McKenzie of S. F. will deliver the oration on the 4th. Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Richardson, Bro. Webb, Col. Babcock and Col. Goulding will be speakers and no dout many others will be there to take a part. It is to be hoped there will be a large assembly. It would be a nice trip from Lake and Mendocino Counties.

MONOPOLY.—It is distressingly mean to talk about the water rates in San Francisco, when one takes into consideration the fact that so much of the water that comes into the city thru the water pipes goes out in casks and bottles at the rate of $3 to $10 a gallon by merely adding from 15 to 55 cents worth of chain lightning and a little flavoring and coloring to it. The water would not be dear to some of our citizens of enterprise at $1 a gallon.

THE hoodlum element that comes over to Alameda for its Sunday sprees is contributing largely, but of course involuntarily, to our school fund. Last Sunday week they left $95 forfeit, and last Sunday some $30 more. Though this money can be profitably used in our School Department, our people are perfectly willing to forgo such acquisitions if the effect will be to keep the vicious element from our borders.—Encinal. One of the Santa Cruz papers was very much alarmed lest the Sunday Law should deprive Santa Cruz of that kind of religious Sabbath observance, as they would be able to sell no rum to the Sunday piknikers.

WANTED, to find some person, not dead 1000 years ago, but alive and well to-day, and reputable and trustworthy, who can tell the vineyard men of California of any European winemaking people of a village, county, province, State or country that are prosperous, comfortable, well-behaved and of respectable standing as a class. Or any such people where wine making has been in progress for a century where the people are not within a step of starvation, wretchedly poor, ignorant, superstitious, immoral and worthless to the world. Or to show that the wine and brandy business ever did any thing to France but deprave, degrade, disease and impoverish her people.

THERE are a few Good Templars or some who profess to be, who because they never took a temperance paper, do all in their power to prevent anyone else from taking the RESCUE. They say they dont like the way it is conducted and most people will agree that the best way to conduct a paper is to suit those who subscribe and read it, and not those who would not subscribe for any kind of a paper which at all advocates temperance. If a soldier or officer in the late war had disliked something which a general or brother officer or soldier said or did, and had done therefore all he could to cause the defeat of his own army he would have been called and treated as a traitor. And when a member of the Order endeavors to prevent the spread of the principles of temperance, to make the efforts of the Grand Lodge futile, to make the RESCUE cost the Order double what it ot to, he could do nothing more signally untrue to the Order and to his duty and obligation.

MR WILLIAM HOYLE shows by unassailable statistics that the drink bill of Great Britain is every year seven and a half million dollars more than the rental of all the houses and lands of the United Kingdom. The money cost and losses thru drink amount to $1.200,000,000 a year. The people could therefore pay double rents thruout and still be better off in cash if they gave up drink, and beside that save all the loss, tax and damages of drink which is $600,000,000 a year.

BRO. LELAND is in the field again in Polk Co., Oregon, and remembers to work to circulate the RESCUE there. He says they have now 22,000 signers to the petition for Constitutional Amendment and are going right along increasing the number. It would be interesting if Oregon should get prohibition before us. But it has no wine craze; its wise men don't keep writing every day that the wine manufacture—which has thoroly beggared and pauperized and depraved Italy and Greece and Spain and Portugal and Hungary and Sicily, and has effaced older countries from the map and is fast crazing and pauperizing economical and industrious France—is going to make California or Oregon rich. We have that kind of reasoners here.

The Atlantic Telegraph prints the resolutions of the Brewers' State Convention, and says: "Looking over the list of members present, we find scarcely an American name. We thus see that a body of foreigners who came to this country to escape the oppressive despotism and military tyranny of their own land, have the sublime cheek to openly proclaim in the name of 'personal liberty,' that they will politically knife any one who even votes contrary to their views. Talk about bulldozing! What would you call this? Talk about free speech and free vote! It now seems that it is proposed to ostracise every one who does not bow clear to the ground in silent adoration of King Gambrinus. Notice is served 'officially' to the American citizen that he must hereafter vote a certain way or lose all his chances of official preferment. If the spirit embodied in the resolutions does not awaken the people of Iowa and make them show these gentlemen that they propose to be neither bullied nor frightened, then we mistake them. They must now make up their minds to show themselves men, or forever wear a collar of servitude."—N. W. News.

MR. J. W. ROSEBOROUGH, in speaking of the whisky temperance laws of Ohio, says: "Of all nuisances the lager beer nuisance is one of the most vile. Why this indulgence of, and partiality for beer beverages and beer dens? In a recent official report, 'beer houses,' in England, are declared to be the curse of that country. 'Social pests that tend to the destruction of all morals, unmitigated nuisances etc.' That is their true character every where. But in Ohio, for more than a quarter of a century, they have exerted over our legislature a satanical power of fascination, and though their offences and putridity have been so great as to 'smell to Heaven,' yet these pestilential sink holes have enjoyed special and extraordinary legislative protection, and an entire exemption from the ordinary and just treatment meted out to other and less hurtful nuisances. Under cover of these legalized beer nuisances, the less favored, but no more offensive one, that the law professes a desire to abate, is so effectually shielded, that the whole nuisance provision is, practically, a nuisance protector rather than an abater! No matter though at these places wine, beer, ale, and cider are illegally, constantly and in the most outrageous manner sold to minors, inebriates and persons intoxicated, yet are they secure under the above named section from all nuisance proceedings. So say the supreme court, 23 O. S. 556.—Neb. Liberator.

"MENE, MEME, TEKEL UPHARSIN."

BY REV. J. A. MC MILLAN.

King alcohol sat on his lofty throne
And boasted a power that was his alone,
A power to sway the masses of men
And force them to do his bidding again;
"See," said he, "what a king am I,
Seated on golden throne so high;
I speak, and whole nations bow the knee,
And tremblingly fall and worship me.
My will is law and must be obeyed
Nor may my behests be ever delayed;
For when I denounce, in earnest or mirth,
A tremor of fear encircles the earth,
I stretch forth my hand, a wail of despair
In agony rises, mingled with prayer;
But what care I for the God they plead,
For who is greater than I, indeed!
A puff of my breath would hecatombs fill,
I laugh at the thought while thousands I kill.
I fatten on blood and widow's tears,
I luxuriantly revel in mortal's fears;
I give sorrow for bread to famishing hosts,
I people the world with hideous ghosts;
The blessings men get from their God on high,
I turn into curses, and make them a lie.
So drink to my health, ye servants of mine,
We'll laugh at that being they call Divine."
So he sat on his throne, haughty and proud,
And boasted his mightiness long and loud;
While his nobles and lords, an admiring crew,
Applauded his boastings, false or true;
And they said, "Our King is a mighty power,
We pledge our allegiance to him this hour;
We band ourselves to increase his fame,
And the LEAGUE OF FREEDOM shall be our name."
Then they drank again to the health of the King,
And they drank to every lord in the ring;
They drank success to their noble cause,
And they drank defiance to statute laws.
Again the King spoke, "Harken, my lords,
Give closest attention to all of my words:
There are yet achievements I have not told,
And purposes too, that are brilliant and bold,
You know how this nation is ruled, I suppose,
By 'parties' denouncing each other as foes.
Whenever these 'parties' in caucuses meet
I make it a point to be there on my feet.
I'm always sure to make my will known,
Then silently mount the dictatorial throne;
I never beg, nor petition nor pray;
I demand, and the 'parties' haste to obey;
For I simply exhibit my thousands of votes,
And the heart of the candidate flutters and gloats
Over visions of office and a treasury full,
And then I can trust him to give me a pull.
And now, noble lords, come all of you near,
For I want to whisper a word in your ear:
I want you to know it is my full intention
(But this is a secret you never should mention)
To kill this republic and give in its stead
What men call Anarchy, for I cannot but dread,
(And its the only thing I ever did fear)
The advance of knowledge and liberty here—
Liberty such as in Scripture they read,
'Whom the Son maketh free is free indeed;
For where the spirit of God doth abound
Those, and there only, is liberty found.'—
This I do dread; and their puritan laws,
Keeping Sunday, for instance," here roars of applause
Drowned his Majesty's voice, while shouts of defiance
To Nation, and State and Christian Alliance,
Mingled with curses, and blasphemies fit
For lessons instructive to fiends from the pit,
Were suddenly hushed by a vision sublime;
A hand was seen writing on the wall of time.
His Majesty's countenance changed as in death,
His knees smote together, abated his breath,
His nobles and lords all trembled and shook,
And gazed on the vision with ghastly look,
At length, when the King could speak again,
He cried excitedly, "Call the wise men;
I'll give millions to him who interprets for me
The meaning of yonder writing I see."
But of all the King's subjects none could be found
Who could ever reveal such a mystery profound.
It was told him at last that one wise in such lore,
Who had been a slave in his service before,
Could read the dread vision, its meaning divine,
And tell him the writing line upon line.
So Kansas was summoned to quickly appear
Before the great King, still trembling with fear;
And as the young prophet, with stately tread,
Came up to the King he pleadingly said:
"I'll give millions to him who interprets for me
The meaning of yonder writing I see."
"Thy millions give to another, O King,
Yet I will tell thee the truth of the thing;
This is the message that God is imparting,
'Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin.'
The interpretation I plainly will show;
God hath finished thy Kingdom below,
He hath numbered thy days and fixed thee a bound,
Thou art weighed in the balance and wanting art found;
Thy power is divided and scattered abroad,
And thou art dethroned by the power of God."
King Alcohol stepped from his lofty throne,
And boasted no more of a power his own;
His nobles and lords now tremblingly wait
The swift-coming hour of their terrible fate;
For God has pronounced their eternal woe,
And men are now rising to give the death blow.

THE SPENT BULLET.

Never again let this generation, at least, hear one whimper from science against religion. In the long warfare, religion has often chosen her ground with stupidity, selected her weapons with ignorance, and wielded her forces with passionate feebleness; but she never made so pitiful a display and so futile a use of her resources as science made over the death-bed of President Garfield. When the question is of nebulæ, of atoms, of the rock's growth and the earth's age, of the spirit's substance, of life's origin, of the infinite in space, the inconceivable in time, the unknowable in eternity,—science has it all her own way. We cannot bridge the chasm between mind and matter. No man hath seen God at any time, to prove him the Creator. From the grave no being has arisen to our eyes, and from the stars no voice comes to our ears to dispute whatever the wise men may say.

But here was solid ground for science to stand on and demonstrate her power. She had nothing to do with the remote, with the past, with abstractions. Before her eyes, under her hand, lay a human soul in sore strait—a human life hunted into the valley of the shadow of death, longing to come out again into the sunshine of the fair and open day. The whole nation, the whole world shared in the longing. Whatever love and wealth could proffer was ready to the hand of scienoe. Everything that gratitude could inspire, everything that ambition could desire, lay in wait to reward the man who should conduct the august sufferer back thru the gates of life.

And science accepted the trust manfully. The most celebrated and the most accomplished brot to that darkened chamber their highest knowledge with ever renewed and unwearying effort. The railroad and the telegraph were put under their control. No cost hindered any experiment or curtailed any care. The nation stood behind, not only permitting, but urging every expenditure of brains and money; to the same end, urged their own self-interest, patriotism and humanity. Day and night they ceased not to work and watch, and the result was—failure, absolute, thoro, undisputed failure—failure so minute and complete, that only its terrible gravity kept it from being ridiculous, and not even its terrible gravity could keep it from being grotesque.

Science can spin the world back between her thumb and finger a billion years, and we go spinning with it because we cannot help ourselves. Science can locate the soul in the grayish matter of the brain, and we submit because we cannot dig deeper than that grayish matter to search for a deeper soul. But when science comes into a practical realm where we can prove or disprove her accuracy, her keenest scent for truth, her finest touch of skill is to grope till the man is dead, and then find the bullet in a wash-bowl. Nescience could do that. What availed science to Garfield? She never treated or touched the wound which the bullet made, and which she was summoned to heal. She never even found it. She made two ghastly wounds herself, and for eighty days she clawed at them. The bullet which the surgeons could not find, nature carefully encysted. The bullet-wound which they never touched, nature safely and silently healed.

Surgical science is reduced to the pitiful claim that she alone kept Garfield alive for eighty days. This is a suicidal self-relegation to the unprovable. Routed on the tangible field of fact, she flees to the cloud-land of speculation, and again throws up intrenchments. So claimed the pious and thrifty Winchester for bluff King Hal—

"The church's prayers made him so prosperous."

And as grim Gloster thundered back:

"The church! Where is it?
Had not churchmen prayed,
His thread of life had not so soon decayed;"

so in response to this claim, which can never be demonstrated, is it equally irrefutable and perfectly fair to say:

"Had not the doctors preyed,
His thread of life had not so soon decayed."

Nescience has precisely the same right and the same reason to speculate: take a man in perfect health, and give him into the control of surgeons, unwounded, and let them make two such wounds as Garfield suffered at his surgeons' hands, and let them bore into these wounds every day as Garfield's wounds were bored into,—sometimes with seven different catheters of different sizes at a single dressing,—and let them feed the man as Garfield was fed, and furnish him with the malarious air that Garfield breathed and sequestered him as Garfield was sequestered,—and not one man in ten thousand would survive the horror of it for eighty days!

Nor is it surgical science alone that suffers. Electricity came forward,—stimulated by the commo grief, and love, and longing,—with an ingenion scheme to discover the ball by some mystical meta lic affinity. The world was proudly bidden to ben its ear and hearken to the hum and buzz of th obedient bullet responding to the summons of th marvelous machine. How it did hum and buz: We heard it from Maine to California, and did obe sance to science.

But when the weary soul had fled, and this fir and far-reaching science could fall to work like butcher in the shambles—the bullet was not ther It never had been there. Science was so wholl blind to the bullet's location that she took an ho and a half to find it, even in the shambles. Th bullet lay remote, concealed, where kindly natu wove around it the curtain of harmlessness, while malignant and mischievous puspocket was person ting it to the credulous surgeons and laughing sc ence to scorn for eighty days. Life guarded h secret well. Death did but toss up a flattened lea en ball to a useless and senseless scalpel.

I touch upon these dire facts, which all men shu der to remember, not from hostility to the surgeon but in utter repudiation of the vain-glorious boastin of science. I fully believe that the surgeons di with patriotic as well as professional honor, the very highest best. And because it was their high est best, religion has a right to demand of science an infant of days, and now self-proven to be a mew ling and puking infant—to cease her random inte ference with religion, and to give herself exclusiv ly to sharpening her own eyes and strengthenin her own muscle.—Gail Hamilton in N. A. Review.

THE LOYAL LEAGUE.

ORGANIZATION OF ANOTHER SABBATARIAN SOCIET

The Loyal League of California, an organizatio the principles of which are similar to those the Home Protection Association, held its first pu lic meeting last evening at Mayberry Hall. Th President, W. L. Oge, made the address of the ev ning, attacking the League of Freedom in stro language, and reciting the evils which, he claime its rank and file were working upon the laborin population of this State. He then said: "We con before the people without interest in any religio body, neither as a political organization, witho pledge to any political party, nor asking favors politicians. Our aim is to organize and take in our ranks chiefly voters, and we look to the wom to aid us by using their moral influence in furthe ing that aim. Our pledge reads that the membe of this League shall not, directly or indirectl patronize any dealer or tradesman who shall viola the Sunday law by transacting business on Sunda Before the next election," continued the speake "this League of Loyalty to the laws of this Sta expects to have upon its rolls no less than 40,0 voters thruout the State. With this number we c dictate to either political party in regard to this la for votes are what they want. I hope that you w realize that the time for action has come, and th this city will be so organized that every ward w have a Loyal Leag Club, and so thruout the State —Chronicle.

ECONOMY.

It is claimed by the whiskyites and their politic friends that in a monetary view Iowa cannot affo to lose the breweries and distilleries, that they a grand and beneficent institutions because they bu so much grain, pay out so much money. In 18 they used 787,564 bushels of grain. The drinke in Iowa in the same time, spent for liquor the su of $20,000,000. Do you see the nub? Any scho child can take these two sets of figures and sho you that every bushel of grain used in the man facture of liquors cost the citizens of Iowa over $ for each bushel.—Now you see it, farmers; raise t grain and sell some to these fellows for an avera of 25 cents a bushel and you buy it back at a cost $25 a bushel.—Ex.

THE GROG BATTLE OF 1882.

Party lines are now drawn and clearly defined f the political campaign of this year. They sta thus:

Republicans for Decent Grog.

Democrats for Free Grog.

Prohibitionists, Home Protectionists, Woma Christian Temperance Unions, with all who pray they vote and vote as they pray for the suppressi of the liquor crime, on God's side, for No Grog.

It is a conflict in which God and the right w triumph, tho for a time Divine Wisdom may perm one of the grog parties to win a transient succe over the other.—Ex.

ENTERPRISE.

The women of the National Union have gone to work to convert the railroad employees of the U. S. It is a pretty heavy contract but they set out with far better chances of success and under much more favorable circumstances than the apostles did, when they undertook to evangelize the world, or than the pioneers of temperance when they commenced their difficult mission.

They are holding meetings in caboose cars, etc., on various railroads; at Baltimore they report 30 conversions; at Martinsburg they had a revival with 10 converts, 7 of whom are railroad men. They hold noon and evening meetings at hotels, depots and churches; and their converts are converted to temperance as well as Christianity and stay.

The Erie and Grand Trunk Companies have decided to discharge every man in their employ who is not a total abstainer. If they do so, they will have no more strikes and the very smallest risk of accidents.

It would be an incalculable blessing to this State if a few of those women could be induced to come to California and go to work at our railroad men beginning at the top. Beside all the moral and religious advantages, it would be a financial benefit of many millions yearly to this State, if the C. P. R. R. Co. could be converted just enough or be made afraid or ashamed enough to give up the chain of infernal mantraps and thief dens which they have planted all over the State in their depots and on their ferryboats violating the law and the Sabbath and selling death to little boys as well as men.

There is no viler iniquity in Chinatown than this infamy of a company of millionaires who for a few more to them insignificant dollars a year, give their powerful aid to drench and drown the people of the State in drunkenness and crime.

They know it causes them a greater money loss to pauperize the community than the gain they derive from the bloodmoney of their rents, but they know their own grogshops give them the ownership of a vast voting power, which, whether it votes Democrat or Republican, votes for every thing the Railway Co. wants done.

And because people by keeping quiet hope to see a free pass some day, the watchmen on the walls of Zion and in the editorial chair, saving always the C. C. Advocate and the RESCUE are most profoundly and hermetically mute on a monstrous appalling iniquity that half a dozen of the consecrated Godly women of Miss Willards staff would sweep from the face of the earth in a month or two.

ELEVATION OF HUMANITY.

The N. Y. Tribune gives some timely improving suggestions to the churches: "In every church the tendency of discussion and action grows with each year more determinately toward the practical elevation of ordinary life. Here is a suggestive hint for all ministers and their congregations. Intelligent Christian people appear to have pretty clearly made up their minds as to the doctrines which they believe, and do not propose to spend as much time as formerly in wrangling concerning points of doctrine; they see that the real problem before them to solve is not the exact position of the persons of the Trinity or the question of the universal salvation, or even the mode in which baptism should be administered; but how to bring the chance for a noble, useful life which Jesus came to give to the world, home to the child, to the Magdalen, to the drunkard, and to their own daily routine in house, office and shop. If the meetings themselves have become less aristocratic in form and conduct, little is lost even by the clergy who find themselves placed on the same platform with zealous, intelligent laymen. The priest must preserve his superior place by superior zeal and intelligence, not by the prestige of office as formerly; hence, if he is less an authority, he is more a power."

That is very well and it is the duty of the Tribune and the secular press quite as much as of the churches, to work not only earnestly but consistently for the practical elevation of society. As society is at present constituted a very large majority of the educational forces of the day are employed in manufacturing our youth into Magdalens and drunkards as soon as they are able to learn and do evil. And the minority of the teachers and exemplars who are working professedly and sincerely too for the elevation of mankind are trying to operate their improving agencies without doing any violence to the powerful, fashion and custom-worshipped, and money-backed temples of satan which are doing a hundred times more work educating in sin than the good agencies can in counteracting live, active, working, proselytizing, government-licensed and ballot-protected sin, opposed and antagonized by but a fraction of those who recognize the nature and the magnitude of the evil.

The W. N. C. T. U. under Miss Willard and her brilliant staff of officers, the first and ablest and best and choicest of God's servants and man's benefactors of this day have been for some years doing just what the Tribune recommends — not concerning themselves about trivial doctrines of impossible agreement, but attacking boldly the seat of the beast, the throne of Satan, the plain, visible, omnipresent anti-christ, the image of Satan that stands 60 cubits high and sixty cubits broad everywhere around us.

They know that God will never smile on any work done in His name that practices or counsels peace or tolerance of this anti-christ, and that all such work comes to nothing and accomplishes nothing. And they are working with might and main and prayer, laying seige to every root and spring and feeder of this gigantic curse of the world's peace that hitherto has made next to helpless all the agencies of good and has cursed and blasted and destroyed the great mass of humanity and is doing so still.

The women have found the key to the outer and inner door of all reform and are intelligently at work with every educational and political and religious and moral agency which can at all help to destroy this great overshadowing enemy of God and man.

And when we know full well that woman's vote would immediately and forever destroy the dramshop and the feeders and the source of all our crimes and miseries, we must surely concede that the securing of the ballot to women not for them but for men and for our country, will be the most important step in the elevation of humanity.

THE ENFRANCHISEMENT OF WOMAN.

SAN DIEGO.

At the last meeting of Golden Rule Lodge No. 263, I. O. G. T., in this city, the following resolution was offered by Mr. Hotchkiss, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved. That it is the best judgment of the members of this Lodge,—

That, in view of the recent experience of the law abiding people of the State of California, in their efforts to enforce the closing of liquor saloons and bars on Sunday, it is evident that the only certain means of securing the abolition of the rum traffic lies in the enfranchisement of woman.

That we most heartily and earnestly urge all temperance organizations to at once join with us and take such action as may tend to the accomplishment of that reform, by securing the proper constitutional amendment and legislation.

May 29, 1882.

ED. RESCUE.—Please print this above from S. D. Union; other lodges here are moving same way; womans vote is the key to the whisky funeral.

I hope to see the Grand Lodge on record in favor of this. A. B. HOTCHKISS.

Bro. H.; womans equality and equal right and equal intelligence make a pretty subject to talk about and "resolute" upon; but is it not too radical to act upon? What would be the consequence of having women vote and throw all the dramshops and dives and jails out of business at once. Go slow brother, dont cut them off too suddenly. We have not enough church and school room to accommodate all the people that would want to go there if the grogshop and beer garden Sunday dance were abolished. Go slow, and above all things be sure not to go faster than providence wants you to.

NEW SUFFRAGE LEAFLET.

The following extracts are from the new suffrage leaflets donated to Nebraska by the teachers and pupils of Decatur, (Mich.) Union School:

I go for all sharing the privileges of the government who assist in bearing its burdens, by no means excluding women.—Abraham Lincoln.

I do not think our politics will be what they ought to be till women are legislalors and voters.—James F. Clark.

If prayer and womanly influence are doing so much as forces for God by indirect methods, how shall it be when that electric force is brought to bear through the battery of the ballot box.—Frances E. Willard.

All I have done for negro suffrage I will do for woman suffrage.—Ex-Vice President Wilson.

I believe that the great vices in our large cities will never be conquered until the ballot is put in the hands of women.—Bishop Simpson.

Woman needs the ballot for self respect and self protection.—T. W. Higginson.

I have never heard or read of any satisfactory reason for excluding them from the ballot box.—George William Curtis.

Gov. Cornell says that women voting at the school elections in New York has increased the proficiency of the schools.

A man could not argue against woman suffrage five minutes without repudiating the principles upon which this government is founded.—U. S. Senator Hoar.

I hope that woman will yet be accorded her rights. —U. S. Senator Lapham.

Gov. John D. Long, of Massachusetts, says that to discriminate against woman is a denial of right.

I propose to do all I can for the enlargement of woman's rights, while I am governor of Indiana.—Governor Porter.

Every one who wishes and works for a purer civilization is on your side. Every one who longs for the permanency of republican institutions is on your side. Every lover of fair play and equality is with you. The narrow, the timid, those faithless to the principles which underlie our civilization, the ignorant and the evil minded are your opponents. But God rules, and right must prevail.—Wendell Phillips.

It is the great question of the day, as emancipation was 25 years ago.—President Elliott, of Washington University.

John Bascom, president of the university of Wisconsin, says: A full fellowship in civil duties and privileges once conceded to woman, in fewer months than the struggle has already consumed of years, it will be an astonishment to all that society was ever otherwise ordered.

It is a question of time not of fact.—S. P Chase, in 1852.

Justice is on the side of woman suffrage.—William H. Seward.

America's salvation lies under God in America's women. It is precisely because I desire to conserve our glorious past that I plant myself on the platform of woman suffrage.—G. N. Boardman.

If we could have our choice to-morrow between a national prohibition amendment and a woman suffrage amendment, we should unhesitatingly vote for the suffrage amendment.—R. W. Nelson. (The Liberator.)

Ladies of Nebraska: If you will ask your husbands, fathers, sons, brothers and friends to vote for this measure next November, your request will be granted, and the consciousness of having contributed to a victory so fraught with good to mankind will be sufficient recompense to the undersigned for sending ten thousand of these leaflets to you.—Teachers and Pupils Decatur Union School, Decatur, Mich., March 13, 1882.

NOTICE OF ABSENCE.

The friends and patrons of the undersinged are respectfully notified that he will take his summer vacation during the month of June. His dental rooms, however, will be open as usual; at Oakland, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Vallejo, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, for July appointments. About the first week in June I will start with my family for Yosemite and take one months' rest. I. S. HALSEY.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

Mr. H. B. Williamson is agent for the RESCUE in Lompoc. Renewals and subscriptions can be arranged with him.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Should the ballots, on punishment, be had upon a plea of guilty? Yes, the same as conviction.

Is there any restriction in our Order as to nationality? There is not.

Has our Order done away with re-obligation? No.

Is it proper for a lodge in our town to admit to membership persons residing in another, wherein there is no lodge organized? Yes.

Is it necessary to appoint a trial committee on charges, when the accused has plead in open lodge? No.

Can a member who has not taken the degrees be appointed to fill the P. W. C. T.'s chair? Yes; if there are no third degree members present to fill it.

Has a subordinate lodge the power to elect a pro tem W. C. T. in the absence of the W. C. and W. V. T. and all P. W. C. and P. W. V. T.'s? To act as W. C. T. one must have been installed as W. C. or W. V. T.

Can a member who has not taken the degrees be elected a trustee to a subordinate lodge? Yes.

Should those on whom the degrees have been conferred by one not a D. G. W. C. T. be re-obligated? Yes.

Has a member who voted in favor of admitting an applicant for membership the right to divulge his vote? No. If so, all who voted for admission could so state and it would show who voted against it. Our ballot is secret in all cases.

Is it proper to announce the number of unfavorable ballots on application for membership? It is not.

Has a lodge the power to assess its members to aid a sick member or repair a hall? No.

Should the committee on charges proceed to take the testimony and report to the lodge when the accused does not appear? Yes; the right to be present is waved by non-appearance.

Should a lodge proceed to ballot on an unfavorable report of a committee on a proposition? Yes.

Should a lodge allow a member to sever his connection with the Order by requesting that his name be erased from the roll on the first meeting night of a quarter without paying the incoming quarterly dues? Yes.

Is a member eligible for the office of W. C. T. by reason of his having held the office of trustee for one full term? No. He is not an elective officer. (See Section 1, Art. VII., Constitution of Subordinates.)

Is it right for a Lodge Deputy to introduce and discuss questions in the lodge? It is.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

H. R. HUGHES.

May 26, at Carbondale, Amador Co., had a small audience. Starlight Lodge has been troubled to get a suitable place for meeting, but have shown good pluck, and are determined to build up a lodge. No saloon in the neighborhood and none wanted and if hard work will prevent one being built there Carbondale is safe.

The 27, in the afternoon at Forest Home, a pleasant meeting, but many of the brothers conspicuous by their absence. This lodge has also done well, and are firmly attached to their little lodge. In the evening went to Mt Echo, had a crowded house, and the most attentive audience of the trip. This lodge was burnt out but with commendable pluck they never faltered but moved right on though compelled to meet in a private house.

At Hill Top Sacramento Co. had an excellent meeting, this lodge has had a struggle for an existence, but against all obstacles they Hold the Fort.

At Stone School House meeting was not well attended, farmers were very busy, and some not disposed to attend any lecture. Those who would interest themselves were absent, so the attempt was a failure.

At Latrobe in Eldorado Co. I was kindly helped by members of Summit Lodge, Plymouth and Forest Home Lodge, first evening a small attendance—next evening was better—a good meeting and names obtained, sufficient could have been obtained to organize if the matter were pressed, and arra[n]ments made to return. But as so many leave du[r]ing summer, it was deemed best to defer organizatio[n] fall. Great interest was taken last evening [i]n Latrobe can be safely counted on to add one n[ew] lodge to the sisterhood that are destined to red[eem] and save the young men of Eldorado Co.

At Clarksville they have kept up well but du[r]ing the summer months it is all that these foothill lo[dges] can do to get a quorum, as the resident member[ship] is so small, but the courage and tenacity that is m[a]ifested is deserving of great praise.

ITEMS BY J. W. WEBB.

Said a Good Templar sister, a few days si[nce], "twenty odd years ago, I heard that a young [man] had come to teach in my neighborhood and the [next] night after his arrival had joined the Temper[ance] Lodge and was elected presiding officer. I felt as tho I wanted to get acquainted with that kind [of] a teacher, did so, and inside of a year I was his w[ife]. MORAL—pass around your blank applications [for] membership in your lodge, after reading this [the] item.

I lately started a Band of Hope at Pleasant [Val]ley school house, near Santa Maria. Glad to see [by] local paper, that a number of adult members of [the] latter Band have recently paid the younger [Band] a helpful visit. Bro. D. N. Kelsey teacher, is [the] Supt.

San Luis Obispo Lodge has wisely taken the [in]itiative and will soon have a District Lodge for [the] county including Guadalupe and Santa Ma[ria] Lodges in Santa Barbara county. This Lodge [has] contributed $5.00 toward the expenses of carrying [on] the Prohibition fight this fall, and the managem[ent] of the State Prohibition Committee.

Lodges should not forget the RESCUE. Santa Barbara Dist. Lodge voted to pay for 20 monthly copies for the libraries and hotel reading rooms of the county, and $5.00 worth of Cook's papers to be mailed direct to 100 families who read but are not likely to subscribe for temperance literature.

Iowa votes on Prohibitory Constitutional Amendment, on the 27th inst. What a momentous issue! While noble, patriotic men and women there [are] working hard for its success, let all praying people pray that it may carry. The Greenbackers in Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties and [elsewhere] declare they will put only temperance men up for the legislature; the Prohibition Party is at work to get out candidates, and the Home Protection Association is making every effort to work for those men only who will try for retaining the Sunday Law, for local option or Constitutional Prohibitory Amendment. Now can't all these, somehow, join in a judicious and combined attack on the tyrant King Alcohol? How can it be done? Let each one suggest.

ED. RESCUE:—A delightful celebration of the 5th anniversary of Ocean Lodge, No 56, was held last Saturday. The grove is one of the finest, deepest wooded and perfect as nature alone can produce. The Band of Hope children under the training of Sister Souther are a success; they marched to music, sang better than any children I have heard for many a day. Sister Souther is musical, thoroughly trained in voice and fingers and has made a grand success of her labor of love for the children. Sister Richardson sang "King Bibbler's Army" and was encored; then followed a Band of Hope address by Sister Richardson and a talk by myself. In the evening we held another meeting. On Sunday afternoon Band of Hope meeting and Sunday evening, a large audience; result a liberal collection and 22 names for lodge, also a few subscribers for the RESCUE. To-night an open meeting after which initiation. The lodge has succeeded well, one of the oldest on the Pacific Coast; (only one charter member here, Bro. Compton,) and thru much opposition and tribulation has held its own. The men engaged in the traffic were present at meeting on Sunday night; one made a promise to get out of the business. The meeting was enthusiastic and good results will follow. On Wednesday we go to Gregorio and Thursday to Pescadero and probably shall return here on Saturday and remain over Sunday and start for home on Monday morning. The only Temperance hotel in this county is at Half Moon Bay and it is kept by a temperance family named S——. [name illegible.] E. P. STEVENS.

DISTRICT LODGE.

GUADALUPE, Santa Barbara Co., May 30, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—District Lodge I. O. G. T. met at Goleta," this county, on the 17th and 18th inst. A ry good attendance but not as large as should ave been. Lodges represented, "Seaside," "Santa arbara," "Montecito," "Goleta," "Rose of Lompoc," "Lompoc Valley," "Los Alamos" and Vesper;" all reported average membership, which ggregates, about the same as last D. L. Owing to he absence of Bro. Fisk, Bro. Webb presided duriig the entire session. The M. E. Church Ministrial Association, being in session at the same time nd place, joint meetings were held and stirring peeches were made by Bros. Mitchell and Webb for mperance, and excellent essays read by Bros. nighton and Peters, upon Ministerial duties.

Sister May Guthrie, fraternal delegate from Venura reported the cause advancing in that county. t the Open Lodge meeting on the 18th inst., this dy delivered and elegant and affecting temperance ldress, her language is beautiful and her manner ery impressive, in fact, I never had the pleasure of stening to a young lady who could equal her. er endowment is this, that her soul is in her work nd her life should be devoted to the cause; she ossesses rare ability.

The Open Lodge meetings were well attended, nd the exercises instructive. Sister Ayres read a lection on "Habit," and an essay on "Our Influnce." Sister Yoland gave a recitation and a readig. Sisters Loyd and Pierce led the singing assistd by Bros. Eddleman and Ayres. Bro. F. E. Kelgg is the fraternal delegate to Ventura Dist. odge.

A County Home Protection Association was oranized and money appropriated to print the platorm; money was also set apart for the purpose of istributing the RESCUE and Cook's temperance litrature.

On the evening of the 19th inst., the delegates ttended an Open Lodge meeting given by Santa Barara Lodge. The program was good and went off to e pleasure of all and the drooping spirits of the odge revived. We were the guests of Bro. Kelgg at Goleta and Bro. Eddleman of Santa Barbara nd were royally entertained. W. W. AYRES.

GRAND LODGE OF W. T. AND B. C.

The G. L. of W. T. and B. C. will meet at Golendale on Friday June 30th, 1882, at 10 o'clock . M. On account of a fire having destroyed all the opies of the last proceedings, representatives and embers are requested to bring copies with them. alf fare rates of travel have been applied for to the ifferent transportation Cos. Hoping that there ill be a large number in attendance, I am fraternal-

LODGES, ETC.

HANFORD.—The Seventh Day Adventists had a campeeting there lasting two weeks; 17 persons were baptized. rs. E. G. White addressed at 2 P. M. 700 people on "Christn Temperance," and in the evening about 1,000 came out hear her on the same subject. The twin evils were oquently shown up and 60 persons signed the pledge. one of their members can be in good standing and use alholic liquors, opium or tobacco, which does that society uch credit here and no doubt is regarded with much vor in a quarter of more importance than here.

MRS. M. E. CONGDON recently gave an excellent talk at e Christian Alliance in Visalia on "Woman's Work in the emperance Cause." The Gazette reports a prospect of the removal of Mrs. C. and family to Mariposa, which if realized, the people of that town will receive a most valuable addition to their good citizenship. Later a postal states that they have located permanently at Mariposa. The lodge there, Mrs. C. says, has 55 members and only six months in existence; many good solid citizens in it and very appreciative of Bro. Hughes good work in setting the enterprise afloat.

SANTA BARBARA.—The best of people do very hasty things in a thotless manner. Subscribers to the RESCUE even, and they are always the best people, are at times inconsiderate. For instance, a letter comes this week, "Please send my paper to Santa Barbara. John Smith." But our good friend forgot to say whether he had been getting it in San Diego or Washington Territory. To hunt over more than 3,000 names would have been a weary job, but it so happened that the first time the book was opened for another purpose John's name was the first that appeared.

SAN GABRIEL.—Mrs. Laura E. Stuntz, Assistant Supt. reports "a strong opposition but a more determiued will to aid in every possible way the progress of the cause. Almost surrounded by wineries and distilleries, and so many people depending upon work given by the wine dealers, that it is uphill work. The Sunday law and how to enforce it is the chief topic." One would suppose that surrounded by wineries people would be particularly active in getting the young folks into the Band of Hope and shielding them from the coming mischief.

BRO. SNEDEGAR, L. D. reports Burneyville Lodge as running well. It dates only from April 8, starting then with 38 members and taking in from 1 to 14 every night it has 64 now and 9 more on the string, and more to follow. That is an example that might be adopted with good result anywhere.

A LADY subscriber says of the "Hard Times and Why" tracts:—"I have caused them to be read by several men who steadily turn their back on temperance and in every case they have sent me the acknowledgment that it was the best, strongest, plainest argument against the rum traffic that had ever reached them, surely tis something to make men think aright if only for one hour, who had never done so before."

BRO. W. A. BARTLEY reports good prospects in Orange of a prosperous year and people much encouraged. A good time coming for oranges and raisins and temperance.

ED. RESCUE.—Montecito Lodge No. (428) I. O, G. T., held its first anniversary picnic to-day, and a glorious reunion of the Good Templars of this part of Santa Barbara County and their friends it has been. I will not give program as that is of no importance to your readers, let it suffice that we had the usual good time enjoyed at a Good Templars picnic. The grand feature of the day was the introduction of Sister May A. Guthrie, of Springville Ventura County, who for more than an hour held the audience in wrapt attention, even the children ceased their noisy play and drew around the stand, spell bound by the magnetism of the speaker, I would like to give a brief resume of her lecture, but as short stories are in order at the RESCUE office, I will only add, that we consider it a glorious finish up of a year of earnest successful Temperance labor. H.

SANTA CRUZ.—Bro. J. B. Mc Mahon reports open meeting and a splendid time. Lodge now has 35 members. Bros. Albrecht and Waters of International Lodge are a good help; and asks is the lodge entitled to the RESCUE? The RESCUE has gone all along to their post-office.

BUTTE Co has a live D. Secretary who in a vigorous circular calls upon the lodges to be well represented at Forbestown on the 14 instant, and it is a most important thing that the District Lodge should be well attended, every lodge should be sure to have its delegates present.

COLUSA:—Bro. J. D. McNary reports that Bro. Kings lectures in Colusa were very warmly appreciated but owing to sickness and a meeting at the Christian Church the attendance was not large.

IN OTHER STATES.

THE GREAT Dr. Richardson of England has informed the Home Secretary that formerly the death rate among the grecers was very low, but since they have been allowed liquor licenses their rate of mortality has become very high, and he could only attribute the increase to the facilities for drinking afforded by their being licensed to sell drink.

CANON WILBERFORCE is an honored minister of the Episcopal Church of England and like his grandfather of Emancipation fame. is a hearty philanthropist and an active temperance worker. One of his own Reverend brethren, who is an active opponent of temperance, on being recently met with some argument presented by Canon W. replied, "yes he may have said so, but you know Canon W. never makes a public speech without violating the truth." No comment is needed save "Wine is a Mocker."

DR. CROSBY thinks the prohibitionists had better now unite with the temperance people as prohibition has proved a failure. It is news that they have ever separated, or that the Dr. has ever been out of a close and hearty alliance with the whisky and beer rings. The best thing the temperance men can do is to heed no counsel from the attorneys or prophets of the Brewers Leag.

ENGLANDS Shetzel, Shafer leag has been a grand success. It has made there a million paupers; 750,000 habitual drunkards, and many more occasional; 200,000 habitual criminals; 300,000 tramps and vagrants plundering the country and 90,000 lunatics. No dout a few of the lunatics are not chargeable to drink but all the rest are the trophics of the rumseller and soulkiller. The figures above are given by Mr. William Hoyle, the great man of English statistics. Our San Francisco wife-beater's leag can beat that far enough, considering the time they have been at work, and in proportion to population.

GEORGIA:—A great many of the less populous counties of Georgia are under effective prohibitory laws; in one county the local option law framed by an eccentric legislator required the word "joy" on the no license tickets, and "grief" on the nell tickets, and joy won the day. Mrs. M. McClellan, Brown and Mrs. Mosher are making a tour in the South in the interests of the Nat. Pro. Alliance.

GENL. BOOTH of the Salvation Army has had a proposal to hold a service in St. Pauls Cathedral in London. It would be making the very best use of that great building.

THE W. N. C. T. U. has been giving the Dime Collection an experimental trial. Since Nov. 1881 it has collected in the Eastern states $249,45 (including $82 from New York City.) This added to $172,73 from the G. L. of California makes the sum $422,18 which is better than nothing and can be increased tenfold next year with proper effort. The Nat. Temperance Society received from Cal. $194,73 and from other states $358, including New York State $2,01 making altogether $552,82.

CARDINAL MANNING.—It is a very common practice of the doctors who still persist in the darkness of using and perscribing alcoholic liquors, to insist especially on their tetotal patients taking wine or brandy when at all indisposed. One of them is reported as having prescribed wine recently for Cardinal Manning who resented the insult. The poisoning of President Garfield when the pistol wound had entirely healed, the sacrifice of a grand life like his thru an arrogant and ignorant adherence to a long ago exploded medical delusion, should open the eyes of the people to resent the insult of the prescription of an alcoholic beverage.

OUR faithful brother Jerome W. Henderson of Texas writes that prohibition was beaten 46 votes in his county in March. But they were to meet in a state convention in April and organize for the fall campaign and keep up a prohibition contest that can only end in driving whisky out of Texas.

UTAH.—The new constitution for Utah lately adopted by the people by a large majority admits women to equal right to property and to vote and to hold all offices except executive and judiciary; singularly the right to sit on juries is excepted. Three women were elected delegates to the convention that framed the constitution and were actively employed in its committee and other work and acted their part with credit.

GARIBALDI died at Caprera June 2nd. His was a very eventful life. He was an enthusiastic hater of tyranny and imposture in any and every shape.

TOMBSTONE offers $10 a piece for Indian scalps; if they would give $100 for the scalps of their saloon-keepers it would put a stop to all the trouble there. The saloon-keepers commit ten murders for one by the Indians.

A FAMILY consisting of father, mother, two sons and one daughter in England were all sent to jail recently; all had been very drunk and creating a public disturbance. They of course had no money and were sent to jail for 14 days to recuperate for another drunk.

IN TORONTO; the lager beer breweries have raised upon their customers, the retail poisoners. The meanest thing they did was to stop the practice of giving their drivers $2 or $3 a day to spend with the retailers, which resulted in the drivers coming home drunk and raising the particular Cain that beer habitually inspires. The den-keepers threaten to give the people some other drink and boycot the brewers. And they have commenced to blackguard each other and tell the truth that far.

IOWA.—U. S. Senator elect JAMES F. WILSON of Iowa delivered May 7th a telling, ringing speech in favor of the prohibition amendment. We have good reason to be thankful that such a man is going to the Senate of the U. S. He says "if our form of government should ever fail, the historian will have no difficulty in tracing the cause to the municipal government of our cities. And when he reaches that point he will find that the saloon system was the fountain from which disaster flowed." Particularly does that apply to California for the thrice accursed dramshop has attacked and vanquished and beggared every interest and enterprise that has ever been attempted in this State and has converted the gold diggings that paid $100 a day to the hand, the richest silver mines of the world, the factories of industry, the farms and orchards and vineyards of the State, all equally into instrumentalities of turning upon the world a constant swarm of drink crazed and saloon pauperized criminals and madmen.

IGNORANCE.—It has been several times most clearly proved that the entire disuse of alcoholic liquors in the English poorhouses and hospitals resulted most beneficially to the health of the inmates. Yet the London Lancet the great old fogy medical Organ of England said lately "unquestionably the aged inmates in workhouses require beer. It is an act of fatuous cruelty to try to enforce total abstinence on the poor in their declining years and in the days of their humiliation. Dr. Dunlop said beer was a necessary adjunct to the dietary of old paupers and he was sorry to know it had been discontinued. This is our opinion, the result of a judgment matured and frequently expressed. Medical officers are not justified in experimenting in tetotalism on the aged poor." If modern science and the most elaborately tested experiments of the most eminent and scholarly physicians and chemists of the present day are at all to be relied on, the utterances of the Lancet above are the most imbecile chatterings of a champion of beer who is utterly disqualified to give any opinion at all on the matter. It is not a matter that requires a large degree of medical lore to pronounce upon. One has the same right to call it nonsense, as if the Lancet had declared that 3 times 4 are 97. The fallacy of the one is as clearly established as the falsehood of the other. The patients of such doctors are to be pitied.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A DRUNKARD MAKERS PAPER.

There are some men so utterly depraved as to edit and publish newspapers whose sole object is to continue the practice of manufacturing drunkards, educating little boys and little girls too to drink beer and wine and to smoke and swear and lie and steal. They pretend that it is good for the country to have boy traps set at every corner and all along the streets between the corners, to catch boys and young men and make them gamblers and idlers and loafers and fit them for the penitentiary and the gallows and the lunatic asylum and the morgue. And to have girl traps to deprave and ruin girls and teach them to be drunkards and rowdies and to fight and be tried in the police court and go to jail as drunk and disorderly.

It must be a sad life that such men lead, to look on at the little children at the Sunday school and the Band of Hope and the public school and the Kindergarten schools in Dr. McDonalds Hotel—and to say I wonder how many of these innocent, happy, laughing, rosy little boys and girls can we ensnare and ruin and deprave and turn into wretches and thieves and desperadoes.

What an awful thing it must be to be so wofully depraved as to have such wishes with regard to children! How different from the pleasurable anticipations honest people entertain of training up those dear innocent little folks to lead useful and happy lives.

But we were going to discuss the drunkard makers journals. It must be very hard to get up one of them; it is an easy matter to tell the truth, but the truth would wreck a whisky paper as a torpedo would a mud scow. If you and I were going to run a dram shop weekly paper how would we do it? let us see.

"There was a lovely time at Herman Phierynozzles dive last night. There were six barrels of beer sold and Herman made a clear profit of $100 and only $1,50 of it was bogus coin made by our customers who are learning the trade. There were four good fights and one ear and a part of a nose lost in a scuffle which will help out the doctors and improve trade. Judge S. P. V. W.'s two boys were there and spent their money like princes. The widow Nob's nephew and a clergyman's son were present for a couple of hours and engaged a quiet game of faro and champagne with Jenny Pert and Ida Smart and by some means one of them lost his watch and on the way home was arrested by a drunken policeman. Mr Phierynozzles cellar is a very good thing for the city and helps trade and elevates the morals of the rising generation." That is about what we would have to say.

Then again. "It is a beautiful sight to see six or eight small boys smoking cigarets and drinking beer at a deadfall and learning to swear and play pool. These little fellows when they go to San Quentin and Napa and Folsom and Stockton by and by, will be real men; there wont be anything mean about them; they will be proud of their striped clothes and will have a jolly good time while it lasts; and if any of them ever makes a speech on the gallows it will be a real manly speech and he will prove himself a jolly good fellow when the rope is put round his neck. Horace Greeley and Abraham Lincoln and James Garfield and Longfellow and Dr. Holland and William E. Dodge and President Hayes began life the same way; it was smoking cigarets and getting drunk that made them respected." That would not be true but that is what we would have to say.

And then. "The Good Templars drink water and tea and milk and such like nasty things and are always sick and puny and always die very young for want of whisky. They cant enjoy a Sunday cock-fight and their mothers wont let them go to dog-fights and horse-races and walking-matches on Sunday and poor things they have a dreadful hard time of it and they are always sick and never enjoy a good square drink and a night in jail among the fleas and tramps."

That is about as far as we shall go running a drunkard makers paper. It has to be altogether false and wicked or the drunkard makers would not touch it.

The leag of mantrappers have such a paper now but it wont last more than a few weeks.

GOING TO WIN.

An elderly gentleman who reads the RESCUE but who has never been a total abstainer said a few days ago. "Why it does look as if this abolition of the drinking customs is going to succeed after all. I really believe it is going to win. It did not seem that the whole current of the world's daily custom could be stopped or turned, but it seems to look that way now."

"You temperance men are publishing newspapers right and left, sending out lecturers, forming societies and lodges and training the children into a powerful army and navy and holding meetings and gaining ground all the time; and the liquor sellers can't dispute a word you say, they cannot send out a lecturer, can't publish a paper with a word of truth in it without hurting themselves; and the only thing they can do is to sit down behind their bar or in their offices and curse you and call you names; and they do that with a vengeance," he added.

That gentleman is right. The only thing they can do is to curse us and deny the truth. Because every word of truth is a damage to them. And the only way their cruel and murderous traffic could possibly survive beyond a few years would be to kill us and kill the truth or bury it some place where it could not be found. But the only thing they can do is to curse us and curse the truth and violate the laws and try to continue their traffic as slyly as possible.

But it is not strange that we should make progress; it is stranger that people should prate of patriotism and love of country and not care at all that 100,000 of our people are every year meeting a worse death than going over Niagara Falls. It is strange the people should make a fuss about half a dozen Chinese opium dens in San Francisco and be silent about 4000 far worse and nastier and more iniquitous beer dens; strange that people should fear leprosy and smallpox from the Chinese and have no dread of the far wider spread leprosy daily poured forth from the breweries.

But there is no error or wrong that the truth and the right cannot conquer in the end, and we are going to win pretty soon. And when the juveniles of to-day shall be the managers of the future, the way to peace and happiness for all, will not be so difficult as it is now. The great enemy of all mankind, the grogshop, the source of all our crime and misery, will then be banished from earth for ever; and then tears will be dried up and there shall be peace.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

WOMEN AND THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE.—In visiting a Band of Hope not long since, the Superintendent said to me: "You will find in this Band, as in all other temperance organizations the majority are females." Since then my attention has been called to the matter and I find it generally true. Sister Stevens says "the pluckiest man is generally a woman." This also is true. Now, why is this? It is because wives, mothers and sisters are every day bearing heavy burdens, they are crushed to the earth beneath the fearful evil of intemperance. If we have money or jewels, lands or houses, the law protects us in possession of them; but our homes, our husbands and especially our boys, jewels surpassing all that money can buy, for these we have no protection. My boy the staff on which I hope to lean in declining years, may be ruined soul and body, by the rum traffic, and I have no redress. If he be a minor the law says no liquor shall be furnished him, but that law is evaded, and is practically a dead letter. In the Alameda tragedy mentioned in these colums a short time since, the victim was not yet 17 years of age. The law was violated in two points by the saloon keeper who furnished that poor boy with—the glass that was his doom—He sold on Sunday to a minor, liquor enough to overthrow his reason, and the result was his lifeless body over which the cars had passed, leaving him so mangled that the mother who nursed him could n recognize her darling son. Mothers are daily a nightly crying out, in the bitterness of their sou "Where, O, where is my wandering boy?" and o echo answers "where."

All over our fair State, women with hearts fil with anguish, are saying "how long, O Lord, h long." And, those of us who are so happy as ne to have suffered from the traffic, have looked w sympathetic eyes upon our burdened sisters and are working, as well as praying. We are terribly earnest. With our fathers of old, "we have pledg our lives, and fortunes, and our sacred honor" this cause and we go forth, knowing that the God whom we trust, will yet give us the victory.

ON SUNDAY, May 29th, Plymouth Band of Ho was organized in Plymouth Sabbath school w about 25 members.

NEW BANDS are being organized all over the St and the prospect of reaching a membership of 10,0 before next Grand Lodge is good.

Let us all work, not only to get the children i our Bands, but to keep them. If we get them join, that is good, as far as it goes, but we must tain them, if we would have them as men women.

SONG.—Those who would like to get the new so "Where is your Boy," which was sung by Mr. F vin at the Convention, can send to Mr. Z. M. Par at San Jose, who has it for sale. M. E. R

THE WHISKY SCHOOL.

Our liquor dealers circulate talks of educating public in the interest of liquor to prevent prohi tory laws.

The idea of whisky being an educator is inter ing. Whisky turned school master! That is go Whisky is indeed an old professor, and has b engaged some centuries in the business of teachi He has many colleges and universities all over land. All the states have at times granted h charters, and in many instances gave him magn endowments. Yes, whisky is a noted educa Did you ever see his pupils? They all wear bad —red noses and bloated faces, for one class, pale faces and sunken cheeks for another. Whi qualifies his graduator for business. He turns thieves, murderers, wife beaters, and makes wid and orphans by thousands. Its a fine school—t pupils generally learn well and succeed in busin The tuition is pretty high. It costs everything owns to graduate in the whisky school. We h known men to pay down all their money, land, far home—home comforts, wife and children down e to the hungry babe—yes, gave all in payment of tuition in the whisky school. And then comes degree, for whisky always confers on its graduate doctorate—U. D. untimely death. This docum is highly ornamented. It is written in the bloo wives and children by a pen of sorrow. A rattl skeleton, standing in fire and holding hissing serpe in each hand, which entwine the skeleton's n and bite his heart, is the coat of arms inscribed the terrible parchment. We prefer that our c dren should be trained in the school of Prohibiti —Banner, of Little Rock, Arkansas.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS OR WHISKY SHOPS

Which will you have? Both, says the respe ble dram-drinker. But is not that the hight folly? They are entirely incompatible! "Dot a fountain send forth at the same place sweet wa and bitter?" No, it is inconsistent to encour both. Never was there so sharp a contrast as tween these two institutions. The former teac the boys to be honest, industrious and obedie and helps them to become noble men; the la teaches them to be dishonest, shiftless and unfa ful in all the relations of life. The first gives th the word of God that points heavenward; the presents the sparkling wine-cup that gratifies appetite for a moment, but at last "biteth lik serpent" and leads to destruction. The for purifies society, improves the morals and mann teaches economy and thus strengthens the nati the latter disorganizes and debases continually, culcates prodigality and impoverishes the coun The first teaches peace and good will among m to love our enemies, practice self-denial for oth good; the last provokes to quarrels and blood sh nurses malice, and destroys domestic peace and h piness. In the former the Bible is read and sweet songs of Zion are sung, and happy child return to happy homes; in the latter, infidels ga to deride the God of heaven and the Book of boo and instead of the songs of children, we hear maudlin, vulgar songs of the revelers, who ret to miserable homes. The former teaching "temp ance in all things lawful," and "abstinence f evil," develops manhood, mental, moral and physical; the latter giving free rein to lust and appetite, weakens the brain, poisons the blood, and destroys the soul forever. The Sunday-school teacher in the light of God's holy day, seeks to build a wall of protection around the little ones against evil influences of all kinds; while the saloon keeper in the dead hours of the midnight, pulls down that which has been built.—Texas S. S. Worker.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Do you think the saloon is a blessing to any community?

Does the liquor seller furnish an article of any value?

Do you wish your boys and girls to patronize him?

Does the business promote education, good morals or religion?

Do you think it makes people happier, better, or more prosperous?

Do men who spend time and money in the saloon buy many books, good clothes or any of the elegancies or luxuries of life?

Do you think the liquor business helps any other branch of trade?

Would not the men who now squander their earnings and waste their time in drunkenness be better citizens if sober and industrious?

If the drink-shops were closed, would not your town be more orderly, the people more prosperous and happy?

Do you think there are a sufficient number of drunkards and saloon-keepers in your town to keep up the license system, if all the sober Christian people voted against it?

Who do you think is responsible for the sin and misery of the liquor traffic?

Do you not think that it is time for every true man to vote as he thinks?

Will you not think, and take your thoughts to the caucus and to the polls?—Sel.

ED. RESCUE:—Page 467 last RESCUE query "Can a cure be found for the tobacco habit?" I was a slave of the weed for 33 years; tried many times to quit, failed every time, till I joined the Band of Hope and asked the help of the young. Now the smell of tobacco is nauseating.

STRONG WORDS.

UTTERED BY JOSEPH COOK IN LONDON.

Take the wisdom of politics, the wisdom of science, the wisdom of the Scriptures, and join them in one beam of light, and let it smite through and through you while you look into the face of your crucified Lord.

Where are we that we can behold His wounds, and not be willing to give up our little personal indulgences, in order to increase our usefulness with the degraded?

Every church has opportunities of reaching many families which have been afflicted by intemperance; every church ought to draw into it the intemperate. What if the intemperate man comes into God's house, and finds the pew setting the example of moderate drinking? Is that safe? Is that consistency? I proclaim that when a reformed drunkard sits down in a pew and finds his neighboring church-member a moderate drinker, and his pastor holding up the Bible in one hand and the glass of moderate drinking in the other, the struggling converted inebriate has not come into a place of safety; the church is not a fold that is securing him from the wolves; it is not a place where he can repose. But I believe my Lord's bosom is such a place.

Although you may blaspheme him by talking of the wine that he made at Cana, and wine that he drank, I will go to him and I will say I do not believe he ever put the bottle to his neighbor's lips in a way that could intoxicate him. I do not believe he looked on the wine when it was red. I will find safety in his bosom, and will proclaim the necessity of the reformation of the church until safety can be found within it for all His followers.—The Pastor.

DANGEROUS LITERATURE.

It has been the duty of the Journal several times to call the attention of its readers to the necessity of allowing only that class of newspapers, to enter their families, as are soundly moral. A Democrat can safely allow a Republican paper to fall into the hands of his child, for if it should be led away from the politics of its father, it might nevertheless be a very good citizen. A Republican can afford for his child to come in contact with Democratic ideas, because a Democrat may be an honorable and useful citizen; but no man can afford for his child to come in contact with immoral literature, if he can help it. No man should allow a newspaper or book to come into his family that has a tendency to destroy the faith or virtue, or business integrity of the young. There are several reasons why this is true. If we patronize such papers, we afford them the means of subsistence, and men that will stoop to mock at religion, revile God, and ridicule honor, will under favorable circumstances, stoop to do the worst thing in the power of man. They are a dangerous magazine, that once under our roof, may explode and ruin us soul and body.—Hanford Journal.

EASTER CHIMES.

I dream of a beautiful city
Surrounded by olives and vines,
And mountains of wonderful beauty
Resplendant with snow-wreaths and rime.
I hear the sweet murmur of Jordan,
That winds from the Lake to the Sea;
And the coo of the ring-dove is heard from
The depths of the fig-laden tree.
The sunlight is smilingly glinting
Just over the snow-covered height,
And pencils of rainbows are tinting
The whole of the landscape with light.

I dream of the mother's lone sorrow,
Of hope, and of gladness bereft,
Who thought on this dawning to-morrow
To weep where the crucified slept.
And then of the sepulchre open,
And the stone that was backward rolled,
And the seals that the angel had broken,
And the words, "He is risen" are told,
Of the joy of the desolate Mary
That heard from the angel the news;
Like the cloud-wings commissioned to carry
From Hermon his life-giving dews.

He's risen! An anthem of glory
Flows down through the gates of gold—
He's risen! Each face tells the story
Before the glad lips can unfold.
The dawning has now a new meaning,
That gilds every mountain and lea;
A joy is enwreathed in the sheening
That ripples across Gallilee.
No valley than Jordan's was greener,
No birds ever sang so sweet lays,
No atmosphere ever serener
Than Judah's on that Easter day.

But sometime an angel shall roll
The stone from my casket of clay,
And out from its cleft-tomb the soul
Shall fly on its pinions away;
No longer in dream-land's sweet visions
The spirit turns backward o'er time;
But dwells in immortal elysian
Where death never darkens a shrine.
Thrice hallowed thy mem'ries O, Easter
Enwoven with melody's chimes!
But somewhere, a holier, sweeter,
Shall dawn on this spirit of mine.
If we shall remember the brightness
That flect·d every life-billow's crest,
When we shall awake in his likeness
Enfolded in garments of rest;
Then backward my spirit recalling
Some sweetness mid discord of time,
Will point to the peace that was falling
To-day with its Easter chime.

SUCH a wonderful flower-bed! It is a perfect glory—a changing glory; to-day, in the morning, it is a straw-color; by noon it is white; in the afternoon it is pink; and to-morrow it may be clear pink. The cotton flower goes from glory to glory! Did you, who have watched the cotton flower year after year, ever think that the great Master in heaven expected you to go on from glory to glory, in just the same way? He expects your soul to take on a new beauty each day. But how can you grow from beauty to beauty like the cotton flower, if you will allow sin to creep into your souls? How can you expect your soul to put forth flowers, if you let whisky rob you of your life? There can not be the least chance for flowers of love and truth and purity to put forth when the fire of rum scorches the soil of your minds, and leaves dreadful shapes there? Each man, each woman, each child can go from glory to glory, like the cotton flower, if they will.

CHILDREN should be taught that drinking produces moral obliquity of vision as well as physical! It makes persons careless of their words as well as actions. It makes men forget to pay their debts at maturity. It makes husbands forget their marriage vows. It obscures their views of all things, and renders their consciences dull or dead.

WE looked at him in the horse-car—at his red nose, at a "black and blue" love-mark over the right eye, and then we heard his silly, rambling speech. Apparently he was going home. Going home! God save the family whose father is returning to them in such a plight! God save the father, who is a curse to his home!

A ROMAN CATHOLIC clergyman, of Newport, R. I., is circulating a pamphlet among the Catholics, in which he advises them that "to crush and stamp out the vice of drunkenness should be the fixed and determined aim of every individual in society who is not a drunkard himself."

WORK OF THE LEAG OF FIENDOM.—A man named Weber in Tucson employed as night watchman in a store, spent a good deal of the time in a saloon. After drinking some of the leag of freedom's poison he drew his revolver and fired several shots among the people in the street one of whom was killed. The murderer has a wife and 3 children in Nev. Co. Cal., and is a carpenter; but the leag of freedom caut him in their trap and made him a drunkard and a murderer. The murdered man leaves a wife and child in Oakland. Fine business the leag does.

DAVID C. COOK'S library books at 5 cents are all intensely interesting and useful. No. 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the Popular Temperance Library should be in the hands of every one; the Liquor traffic and Sober Citizen, Home Protection and "Diary of the old Lawyer" are worth five times the money asked; only 60 cents a year for 12 numbers.

BAND OF HOPE organized Tuesday, May 23d, at Central M. E. church, S. F., with 37 members. Mrs. Nowlin, Sup't.

CAUTION.

RENEWALS FOR BAND OF HOPE SUPPLIES.

We desire to call your attention to the fact, that, while in ordering Sunday-school literature, one always orders for the then current quarter for "Band Supplies" it is difierent. No matter what time in the year a Band is organized, it is always expected to commence its lesson with the "first quarter," and for the following reasons:

The lessons for that quarter are upon the subject of starting Bands, and commence to teach temperance from the very first principles. Gradually, as the first, second and third quarters are reached, the scope of the lessons widens as the ability of the pupil to understand the subject develops. So on through each succeeding year. Therefore it is essential in ordering or renewing, to state definitely which quarter the supplies are for, otherwise there is liable to be great confusion. It is understood that these suggestions refer to the Band of Hope Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterlies, the "Red, White and Blue," and "Crystal Fountain"; the two last named being companions to the first named. We trust that we shall receive your renewal at the time of expiration each quarter, and that you will kindly assist us by keeping the above hints in mind.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

R. W. G. LODGE.

The reports of the R. W. G. T. and R. W. G. S. have come to hand. That of the latter is encouraging somewhat, as it does not show as general a decline as might have been expected under the wretched financial system which is so prevalent and which is menacing the existence of our Order in many States.

Five (5) Grand Lodges have made important gains in the year past, California, Illinois, Norway, South Africa, Sweden; California having gained 4,264 and Sweden raised from 853 to 6,000.

Two (2) have made a large percentage on a small membership, Arkansas and India having now 985 and 608 members respectively.

Sixteen (16) have had small or very small additions to their numbers, Col., Dak., Ga., Ireland, La., Mass., Montana, Nev., N. B., N. H., N. Y., N. W. England, Or., Pa., Tenn., Yorkshire.

Twenty-two (22) have had more or less sweeping losses. Ala. Dist. Columbia, Ind. Iowa, Kas. Md. and Md. Dual, Minn., Mo., N. J., N. C., Nova Scotia, Ohio, Ontario, R. I., Scotland, S. C., Tenn., Tex., Va. and Va. Dual., Wis.

Seven (7) have had trifling losses. Conn., Ky., Me., Miss., Neb., P. E. Island and Vt.

Twenty-seven (27) have reported a standstill or have not reported at all; mostly small distant jurisdictions.

In sub lodges there appears a loss of 375 and of members 15,849 all told.

In California were we to figure up a year's work and report a loss of membership or no gain or a gain of 2 or 3 per cent we should call it a calamitous years work. But possibly we live too far West to be competent to judge as to what constitutes a success or a loss.

In some of the Eastern States, notably Ohio, New Jersey, Indiana, the Order has appeared to be dying out for years and there is no consistent effort made to prevent its extinction. In those States too where an active political movement for prohibition is in progress we have had a heavy loss the past year under the most favorable circumstances for the largest increase.

The reason is evidently that in this time of eminent need of action, the Order had no funds to publish a paper, distribute campaign documents, send out a circular or put a lecturer in the field, and when the people saw that an organization of so much prohibition pretension was unable to act any part in bringing it about, they naturally turned away and sot some other association or gave up the fight.

There has been no real necessity for a single one of these jurisdictions to decline, except the half-penny finances. A jurisdiction of 2,000 members and upward that cannot keep a weekly temperance paper going and some field work as well, may work very hard and have good earnest workers, but they are making bricks with only straw and no clay. It is only child's play working without a treasury and a finance system.

The vote on substituting for the Regalia a tin ornament or some similar badge, was lost 17,846 to 40,841. It was by no means strange that many of the jurisdictions that had the heaviest losses and the smallest capita tax, gave large majorities for the tin badge improvement. The R. W. G. S. recommends biennial sessions and so does the R. W. G. T. and it is hoped they have done so successfully.

New Jersey has made the most successful year's work in the matter of appeals to the R. W. G. T. having contributed 4 of the 5. That and a loss of about 20 per cent in the lodges and membership is not creditable to New Jersey which once had a grand Good Templar army and made a glorious record for years; but it is creditable to N. J. that it voted manfully against the tin badge.

It is a matter of congratulation that the Order is gaining rapidly in Sweden and Norway and has been introduced into Denmark where there are two lodges. The Scandinavians are very good material and make very worthy members everywhere.

The R. W. G. T. strongly urges improvement in circulating temperance literature, juvenile work, labor among the Germans, the dime collection and harmony with other organizations.

R. W. G. L. PROCEEDINGS.

[The Charleston News and Courier.]

John B. Finch, chairman of the committee on temperance literature, reported, recommending 1st, that this be made a standing committee; 2d, that a standing committee on woman's work be appointed; 3d, that a regular annual collection be taken for the dissemination of temperance literature; 4th, that the money in the hands of the National Temperance Publishing House be placed in the hands of the regular committee of temperance literature.

The question of weak Grand Lodges committed. Committees appointed on Beneficiary System and Prohibition political action and work among the colored people. Plan of work in sub. lodges discussed and a manual of Good Templars work proposed. Salaries of Officers fixed: R. W. G. T., $500; R. W. G. S., $1,000; C. S. Juv. Temp., $300. A badge adopted for funerals. Motion to make the minimum age in sub. lodge 8 years in place of 12, lost. Adopted to make representatives of 5 sub. lodges a quorum in G. L. The $250 of the R. W. G. L. in the hands of the Nat. Temp. Society, was donated in temp. lit. to Iowa to help in the pending struggle there and the Society gives an equal amount.

The jurisdictions of the Grand Lodges are urged by the R. W. G. L. to press the struggle for constitutional prohibition and warned not to be diverted from the real issue by other necessary social and political reforms which can be advanced after this greatest issue is settled. Report of R. W. G. T. endorsed referring to political action. The saloon declared the enemy of all that is dear to the hearts of Good Templars. Members of the Order commended to support heartily the effort for state and National Constitution prohibition—as far as circumstances will allow (!!!). Greeting and good wishes and hopes sent to Iowa for success on the 27th of June. Gov. St John complimented and the people of Kansas congratulated and commended. Clearance card made valid until revoked by the lodge issuing it, except in case of decease of such lodge. The R. W. G. T. was re-elected by the ballot of the Secretary, no other nomination offered. The Secretary, Treasurer and the C. S. J. W. were similarly re-elected and so was the R. W. V. T., several other nominees having declined. J. N. Stubbs, of Gloucester Court House, Va., was elected R. W. G. C. Chicago is the place of next session, May 22, 1883.

Good work reported in Africa. Vote of thanks tendered to Dr. Lees of England for his noble defence of the Order in England. An assessment of one cent on the entire membership of the Order to pay off the R. W. G. L. debt. Declaration made that the charter issued to England belongs of right the loyal G. L. of England. Vote of thanks to Dr. Joseph Yates for kindness and attention to Bro. W. S. Williams of Canada who was very ill during the session. And to the Mayor and Alderman and Good Templars and News & Courier of Charleston for courtesies.

Grand Lodges having less than 1,000 members in Sub. Lodges are to have 1 Representative; 1,000 to 5,000 two; 5,000 to 10,000, three; 10,000 to 20,000 four: thence to 50000 five, and one more for every 25,000 addl.

An annual percapita tax of half a cent on the entire membership is to be levied by the R. W. G. L. for the extension of the Order only. No W. G. Lodges to be in U. S.; a tax of one cent per member per quarter on Juvenile Temple membership, payable to Chief Supt. Memorial adopted of Julius A. Spencer P. R. W. G. S. John B. Finch strongly endorsed as one of the most able advocates of temperance. Reubin Ayliff Rep. of far South Africa thanked the R. W. G. L. for cordial reception and made an affectionate farewell address. The representatives were treated to a pleasant excursion to Fort Sumter and around the harbor, the Mayor of the city and other influential citizens accompaning. And the exercises and amusements and incidents of a most pleasant trip ended with the song "He's a jolly good fellow" by an enthusiastic Britisher assisted by the entire company.

COSTLY GROGSHOPS.

A grogshop fire burned up Tombstone a few days ago to the extent of half a million dollars. That is a pretty big days work for the whisky business, but no dout when there are no fires it damages Tombstone about that amount every two months. Tombstone ot to grow three millions a year but it can't grow a cent with its rum thieves and beer thieves and gamblers and other cut-purses and cut-throats who are the tenders of the saloon; and it could never prosper or amount to anything if gold was a foot deep on the surface as long as it is cursed with the rum hole.

Had Virginia City never tolerated a grogshop, it could have afforded to lose three millions a year by fire for the last 15 years and after all could have been a city with 100 millions of taxable real estate and buildings.

Vallejo was set fire to in six places on Friday morning last by some boys raised in the leag of fiendom Sunday schools and night schools there. Had there been a fresh breeze the town would probably have been in ashes. But if Vallejo had never tolerated any of these thief and pauper dens, the city might have been utterly demolished five times by fire in the last 25 years and could now have had 3 times the population and 10 times the property valuation.

Vallejo has had for 25 years a resource of wealth in the Navy Yard which would have improved its property valuation a million a year on an average but for the gang of nearly 100 pirates chartered and licensed by the city to drug and rob the workmen employed on the yard and the marines every time they come to town, and the sailors from the ships every time they come on shore; to pauperize the poor families of the workmen; to teach the little boys and young men to gamble and get drunk and to smoke and steal and go to the penitentiary, and set fire to the town when crazed with rum and starvation and beggary. Here is a sample:

Vallejo, June 3.—Pat Connolly, crazed by liquor and armed with a large club, visited the soda works of Frank O'Grady and William Tormey, McGettighan's brewery and Coleman's saloon at an early hour this morning and demolished over $200 worth of windows and sashes. He was finally arrested and locked up by Constable McManus, the officer having a narrow escape from serious injury. Connolly was taken before Justice Aspenall this afternoon and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. The fellow claims that he with others set fire to six different parts of the town early Friday morning, over which our people were so excited yesterday. He has been in the insane asylum, and those who know the man are inclined to believe his statement. Later, the charge of arson was lodged against Connolly.—Chronicle.

A teacher employed in the public school of Vallejo ten years ago reports that 3 promising boys of one class have gone to the penitentiary thru the grogshop. And it is not strange; good boys and good girls have been raised in Vallejo and there are plenty more there owing to the influence of good homes, good teachers and good natural tendencies; but they escaped the snares of the grogshop, while lots of others who might have made the best of citizens have been snared and wrecked.

And the consequence is of permttting these dens of iniquity and robbery, beside all the misery and crime and slauter they cause, town lots in the suburbs that were held and valued at $400 to $600 a piece 12 years ago are just worth the price per acre of farming land 5 miles from town, or a very trifle say $10 or $20 an acre more, and are unsaleable at any price. And not even a foundry or machine shop could stay there; the last one of all its industries has had to move away from the groggeries or face bankruptcy.

It seems poor Connolly had sense enough to smash the windows of the places which he knew had ruined him, but in setting fires he was impartial and wanted to serve all concerned in this state of things alike.

Chicago had a 300 million dollar fire, which originated in a place of infamous whisky dens called "Hell's half acre." It burned four blocks and was subdued on Saturday night; on Sunday the firemen were rewarded for their gallant conduct by being made almost universally drunk and helpless; the fire broke out again Sunday night in another rum shanty in the same quarter and before the firemen were competent to do anything to arrest it, it had mastered the city; that great fire was solely and entirely the work of the grogshop, and the crazed victims of the leag of Fiendom were found setting new fires everywhere during the worst of the conflagration. The grogshop is a costly luxury to keep.

BARBAROUS PUNISHMENTS.

A casehardened, degraded, brutalized tramp or rowdy, so tough and hard that a pistol bullet rarely kills him, robs, outrages, beats or kills helpless women and children. Nothing but keen physical pain has either a punitive or deterrent effect upon him. But bad, cruel, devilish, dangerous as he is, he can not be punished at all; for whipping is "cruel and barbarous" and he is comfortably housed, fed and entertained at public expense for a time and sent forth to do it again. It would be cruel to whip a tramp but it is not cruel to let that tramp go out and beat or kill another woman again and again.

An equally degraded ruffian, and equally insensible to anything but physical suffering, makes a practice of beating, bruising, kicking, flogging and maiming his helpless unoffending wife. But it would be cruel and barbarous to whip him; so they house and feed and entertain him in the county hotel and punish his wife and children with the loss of the wages he might have earned during his retirement. And you must not whip the drunkard maker who crazed the wifebeater and sent him home armed to do his satanic work. Give him every chance to do it again and again.

No; the tramp and the wifebeater and the drunkard makers have votes and a woman has none. And a woman's head and eyes and ribs and arms are used to that kind of punishment which is too cruel and barbarous for the dead-beat voters to bear. Wifebeating is an ancient custom too, honored and sanctified by long ages of sturdy approval. And when a thotless, careless, playful, rollicking wilful little boy, with not a particle of malice or evil in his heart, no wish to harm or wrong as much as a fly, or to do the least unkindness to any one, takes a sudden fancy to run with other boys and play truant—or if he overstays his leave when sent on an errand, or happens accidentally to break a window or a jug or a chair—it is by no means cruel or barbarous to inflict upon his tender and sensitive skin and flesh, the agonizing punishment from which the hardened back of the tramp and wifebeater is mercifully exempted on account of its horrible severity.

No; it is not cruel; the boy has no vote and wont have for 10 or 12 years, and his fists and arms are not grown to defend himself. No matter if you make the boy a pirate, it is enjoyable pastime to beat boys and women; a pastime enjoyed by the coward who is always ready to play the part of either slave or tyrant.

If a child undertakes to boss its parents, or a sailor his officers or a soldier his colonel, it may perhaps be necessary one time to apply physical force; but one lesson will in nine cases out of ten suffice; and those who cannot command soldier or sailor or boy without the whip or club or other brutal discipline, should be displaced for incompetence and particularly for the cowardice which is the root of the trouble.

THE GRIDLEY "HERALD."

It affords much pleasure to commend to Good Templars and good citizens generally, and to those of Butte Co. and vicinity particularly, the Gridley Herald, whose editor and proprietor, Mr. C. N. Reed, is under the ban of the leag of rowdyism, on the simple ground that he honestly does the imperative duty of a gentleman, a patriot and a good citizen in upholding and commending the maintenance of the Sunday Law. The words "gentleman and patriot" are used deliberately here, because it is impossible to understand how any journalist can be allowed the faintest claim to either of these titles who is either neutral or co-worker with a crew of outlaws and ruffians who are in active conspiracy and revolt against the law of the country and who make no secret of their intention to subvert the American Sunday and every American institution that does not offer the largest license to crime and ruffianism and drunken brutality. The following is from the Herald of June 2d:

WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

"The efforts of the Herald in behalf of law and order have attracted considerable attention among the respectable papers of the State, and called forth many favorable comments. We cannot spare the space required to republish all of the articles referred to, but give our readers the following so that they may better be enabled to see how public sentiment is drifting:

"Vanity Fair: "The editor of the Gridley Herald has advocated boldly and well the enforcement of the Sunday law. The citizens held an indignation meeting and censured him. After the meeting adjourned they proceeded to a saloon to drink, and spent many a hard earned dollar which was needed at home. The Herald is deserving of the greatest praise for the stand it has taken upon this question. No doubt it will lose considerable patronage, but it will gain in the end. There is no doubt there will be a move made to repeal the law. We do not believe there is a man who can be elected on the Republican ticket who boldly announces that he is in favor of having the saloons kept open Sunday."

Under the heading of "Hurrah for Reed," the Tehama Tocsin says:

"Chas. Reed, editor of the Gridley Herald, had the bold effrontery to denounce in unmeasured terms, men and things that were a blight upon the fair fame of the town of Gridley. These men called a meeting and passed resolutions condemning the paper and ordering Reed to leave town. The Gridley Herald comes out this week, and hurls defiance at the traitors to law and justice, and announces his determination to stay and fight an element that is a disgrace to every small town in this State."

Chico Chronicle: "The indignation meeting held at Gridley last Friday evening to "bull doze" C. N. Reed for his support of law and order proved a fizzle. By actual count the audience numbered 65, more than half being toughs under age. The result has been that the friends of good order and decency rallied to the support of the plucky editor and today his circulation is larger than ever. Brother Reed has cleared his deck for action and he promises to carry the war into Africa with a vengence."

The Orland Times, the Red Bluff Sentinel and the Chico Enterprise are quoted, similarly commending and sustaining the Herald in its war against the drunkard makers, and the Herald adds:

"Law and order people, take courage! The morning star is already appearing! Work earnestly; put in a good word at every opportunity. The storm is brewing! The faction that dares to avow war upon the American Sabbath will vanish before it like snow in the depths of Hades."

There is an idea among a certain class of people that the Sunday Law is going to be repealed by unanimous consent. The brewer and the saloonkeeper and the dive thief and the beer-bloated caricature that sells 5 cent coffin swill and the ragged beggars who are their slaves to do or say any thing for a drink of rat poison, and the tobacco poisoners and Sunday gamblers and Sunday dogfighters and horse-racers, are unanimous in cursing the Sunday Law, and as they never hear any decent men express their opinion, they think the people are unanimous. But when that crowd go to make laws for the people they will find themselves vastly mistaken. The people of California are not utterly depraved as the Fire Noses and ragamuffins think.

MODERATE DRINKING.

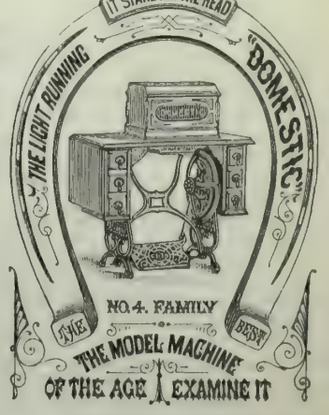
Sir Wm. V. Harcourt, the Home Secretary of England was visited recently by a deputation protesting against some extension of licenses. He informed them that for health reasons he had personally become a total abstainer, and that now he strongly favors any measure calculated to promote the interests of temperance. What a wondrous change frequently comes over a man who BECOMES A TOTAL ABSTAINER, even when he had not been what is called an "intemperate man." His eyes become wonderfully opened and he sees many moral questions in a very different light.

The effects of wine and beer and gin are being daily more and more brot to light. The fact that an appetite once formed in the victims of these drinks, obliterates all regard for the truth, or renders the truth impossible for them, is declared by the members of the Medical Temperance Society of England with singular unanimity. It will not be strange if it is before long conceded that the moderate use of these poisons disqualifies men from exercising a rational judgment or forming a logical opinion upon any question.

We find very frequently that a trusted bank president or clerk or cashier or a trustee of public or private funds has become a defaulter, a forger, a thief, tho for years previously he had been an honest and estimable man; almost invariably the reason, whether published or not, is that the moderate drinker had become a little more than a moderate drinker. Probably when the fact is lacking that he had become an occasional or confirmed sot, the fact of his being a user of these moral and physical poisoners of men even very moderately, may account for the depravity engendered.

It is quite certain that it is unsafe to put such trusts in the hands of drinkers of any stripe for we never hear of these crimes being committed by Good Templars, or any crimes at all by them, unless in some rare case where one of them has been a reformed drunkard and has fallen again before his old crime-inspiring enemy. There certainly is no necessity for trusting drinking men with opportunities to make wholesale financial depredations, for there are plenty of clean, sane, honest, sober men that can be safely entrusted with the grave responsibilities.

If we knew there were 10 or 20 drunkards or hard drinkers in 100 in any legislative body or a similar proportion in any other body of men from 10 up, and if a charge of bribery was made, most men would suspect the drinkers first, and those who bribe men would certainly go for them first every time.



There seems then a good reason why we should begin to study this proposition. If a certain stated quantity of alcohol taken into the system daily or periodically will utterly destroy a man's truthfulness, conscience, honor, honesty, decency, and strip him of every attribute of manhood, how much may a man take of it daily and how long, before any of these effects are produced, which accumulated make him a physical and moral wreck; which destroy all that God made of him and raise a fiend on the ruins. And how far may a man be trusted that travels at all on the moderate drinking road that leads to utter perdition here and hereafter.

The evil effect upon men's morals by daily moderate drinking is particularly to be observed in the fact that in the early days of attempted prohibition every drinking judge decided it unconstitutional and it was only when some of the judges became abstainers that it was decided otherwise. Again in New Brunswick, Canada, a Supreme Court of drinking judges decided unanimously about 8 years ago that a local option law was unconstitutional if passed by the Province, as the Dominion only could pass such a law. And when the Dominion afterward did pass the law, the same men declared it null, because only the Province could pass such a law. Those men doubtless thot they were doing right, for it was the daily wine and the daily appetite which fooled them, as the Bible says it always does.

NO BRIBERY; OF COURSE.

There was an investigation of the liquor ring agents as to their having used bribery to try to pass the whisky swindling bill thru Congress. The negative was very promptly and decidedly sworn to; oh no; they had not thot of bribing anybody. Of course no one places the slightest faith in the oath of any agent or servant or member of any whisky or liquor leag; only this far, that unless in some rare instance, where perjury would not pay or suit the best, one is perfectly sure their evidence on oath is false every time; because the truth as to any of their acts, if told would be likely to send them to join the striped dress brigade. And the truth is as far from them as the poles of the North and the South.

DR. OTIS, who compiled the medical records of the Union army said on the subject of using liquor medicinally. "A few years ago, I shouldn't have agreed with you on that point, but now I do. Since I have compared in this office the health rolls of regiments where the surgeon refused to give whisky, with those of regiments where whisky was given freely, I am so impressed with the proof of gain from total abstinence that I wonder how so many of our soldiers lived through our whisky treatment of them."

LETTER FROM THEO. H. WOODWORTH.

Ed. Rescue:—What has become of the correspondence dept. that in years gone by was such an interesting feature of the Rescue?" I used to think that was the most attractive column of the paper. I was always anxious to learn what our sister lodges, in other localities, were doing to aid and push the good work along, and also to ascertain the causes of weakness in waning Lodges. Therefore, I read the Lodge letters with much interest, believing that by such reading I was better fitted to work for the good of my own Lodge. I think we will all be benefited by reading these brief chapters of Lodge history.

I regret to have to report that Pro Bono Publico Lodge is not prosperous. Plenty of material here to work upon, but the most of it is very hard, knotty, cross-gained timber, and we have very few members who take any interest, and those have become so disheartened that it would seem that the Lodge has about ended its usefulness, and is ready to give up the fight.

This Lodge was organized July 31st, 1880, and up to the present time there have been 112 initiated and 4 admitted by card. In our next returns to the Grand Lodge, we will report about 18 or 20 members, not more than a dozen of whom can be depended upon even under the most propitious circumstances. Beside the Lodge is considerably in debt.

For the terms commencing August 1st and November 1, 1881, a young lady, who filled the office very creditably, was elected and installed W. C. T. That, I am informed, offended several of the members who declared they did not believe in petticoat goverment, and would not attend the lodge while it was presided over by a woman. But none of them have returned to their allegiance during the current term, while one of the sterner sex is in the Chair. Then, last Fall, C. N. Goulding delivered a few lectures here, but his labors did not result in any accession to the Order. The lodge paid his hotel bill, the hall rent and other expenses. That displeased some who had not been frightened out of the temperance fold by the flatter of female apparel and they "quit." It is harder to keep up any organization, and especially a temperance lodge, in such a place as Bodie than in a more settled community. It has been very dull here during the past eight or nine months, and business of all kinds —except the liquor traffic—is languishing. Some 25 or 30 of the mining works are idle, and the 10 or 12 that are running employ comparatively few men. A great many people, including a number who were members of the lodge, have gone to other localities, the population of the camp having decreased fully 60 per cent from the best times and is still on the decrease. (Our daily paper estimated the population three months ago less than 3,000.) Property has greatly depreciated in value, real estate is an unsaleable article. Houses can be bought for much less than the lumber would cost at present prices, and a great many buildings are vacant and going to destruction. It is reported that two or three of the working mines have struck rich bodies of ore which they will open up this season, and that several of the idle mines will start up this spring. If true, times will brighten up again, and people will be enabled to shake off the gloom that pervades them and assume a more cheerful countenance.

Bodie, Cal., April 24, 1882.

PUBLIC HEALTH ASPECTS.

By a Medical Officer.

In a paper, lately read before the Harveian Society, Dr. Kerr of London, in estimating the actual mortality from inebriety, said:—

"1. The government returns of the sickness and mortality of the European troops, forming the Madras Army in 1849, show that the per centage of mortality was, amongst total abstainers, 11.1 per 1000; amongst the careful drinkers, 23.1; and amongst the intemperate, 44.5 per 1000.

"2. If all drinking, limited and unlimited, be taken into account, and if all our 16,000 medical practitioners (in England) had a similar experience to myself, the records of my own practice point to a minimum annual mortality from alcohol of 200,000.

"3. If the opinion expressed by Dr. Richardson, that our national vitality would be increased one-third were we a temperate nation, be well-founded, we lost in 1876, through alcohol, 227,000 lives.

"4. The deathtrate, in the general section of the United Kingdom Assurance Company, from which drunkards are excluded altogether, being fully 17 per cent. higher than in the abstaining section; this ratio applied to our whole number of deaths in Great Britain and Ireland, supposing we had no drunkards amongst us, gives a probable annual mortality from what Sir Henry Thompson calls 'drinking far short of drunkenness,' of more than 117,000 per annum.

When I first saw Dr. Kerr's estimate of the annual death-rate from the use of alcohol, I thought that his enthusiasm had got the better of his judgment; and I did not hesitate to tell him so; but on going over carefully the statistics which he has adduced, I am inclined to think that he is within the mark. When we have, however, to do with such a large figure as 200,000, we need not be particular about a few thousands, and may, therefore, strike off 83,000, accepting the lower and unquestionable figure of 117,000 deaths per annum, in Great Britain and Ireland, as the result of our drinking customs. A death-rate necessarily implies a sick-rate, and I am certain that no one, not even the president of the licensed vituallers association, will accuse me of exaggeration when I say that a death-rate of 117,000 implies a sick-rate of 5,850,000, the estimate being based on a death-rate of one in fifty of those sick.

What do these figures mean? I hope that some of the readers of "The Good Templar" may endeavour to work out the problem for themselves, at least in some of its aspects, as I can do no more than indicate the lines of the research. The question may be considered from a financial point of view, as follows: —Lord Cairns, speaking at Bournemouth, last month, on intemperance, said, "it was an astounding and almost incredible fact that there was spent in this country every year in the purchase of intoxicating liquors 150 million sterling—nearly twice the national revenue." A sick-rate and a death-rate are both items involving large expenditure, which must be forth-coming from the private or the public purse. Taking into account money lost from loss of time, money spent in medical and other expenses, for even a pauper's funeral costs something, we may add at least from 18 to 20 million pounds per annum for direct expenses. Most of the deaths occur at the prime of life, and as a man has a real market value, as much so indeed as a horse or a cow, a premature death represents a clear money loss to the State. Dr. Farr has calculated the value of men at the different periods of life; and, tho I forget his estimate of the value of a labourer in the prime of life, I am certain that I am far below the mark in estimating the value of the 117,000 lives at 23 million pounds. Those who have an aptitude for figures may go into the calculation; but it seems to me that our drinking customs entail on the country an annual expenditure of about 200 millions per annum. The figure seems large; but it would be enlarged to a much greater extent were we to take into account the cost of pauperism, crime, and insanity, indirectly due to the account of our social customs. Our annual drink bill being 150 million pounds. Our annual bill for getting rid of its effects must come to at least 150 millions more.

* * * I can only say, in conclusion, that although the loss of health, the loss of life, the loss of money, involved in our social drinking customs is enormous, and far beyond what people have any conception of, these combined losses are but trifles when compared with loss of character, loss of happiness, the total wreck of human lives. All the combined deaths from all other causes of mortality, do not give rise to such an amount of human misery as this single death-cause—inebriety.—Glasgow Good Templar.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The Home Protection Association of California was incorporated February 2, 1882, under the following Declaration of Principles:

The objects of this association are to obtain and organize means for the rigid enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of intoxicating liquors, particularly the Sunday laws; to secure the enactment of such other laws relating to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as may tend to render existing laws more effective; to obtain such additional legislation as may seem to be most expedient and effectual to protect our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of this traffic, and to diminish the burdens of taxation by further restricting this, the chief cause of idleness, crime, pauperism and insanity; to create by the distribution of temperance literature and public addresses, an intelligent, just and merciful public sentiment, which shall give practical force to temperance principles, and all other things suitable and proper to fully carry out and accomplish the objects and purposes hereinbefore set forth.

One object of the Association is to charter Auxiliary Associations in every town in California. The plan is simple and as follows:

MODE OF PROCEDURE.

Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may sign a request or application addressed to the Home Protection Association of California, for a charter to form an Auxiliary Association in (name of place), agreeing to sign the Register when received, which Register has a printed heading stating the object of the Association as above set forth. All are to pay $1.00 each yearly so long as a member. Five dollars are to be forwarded with the application for a Charter, for which a Charter and a complete set of books with Register sufficient for 600 names will be immediately sent, together with copies of the constitution and all necessary papers. Upon receipt of the charter and books, a meeting should be called, when all the applicants should sign the Register and any others who may so desire, when officers are to be elected and proceed in accordance with the constitution. Of the $1.00 paid by each member, 50 cents of the same is to be paid to the State Association for the payment of Lecturers and Organizers, and the distribution of temperance literature, and all other things which may forward the objects of the Association. The remaining 50 cents is to be used by the Auxiliary Association for expenses etc. The plan is simple and easy. If you feel the necessity for action the thing is quickly done. In half a day 10 or more names can be secured, the $1.00 paid in and the $5.00 sent to the State Secretary for the Charter and books.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

OREGON.

Office of Grand Secretary, I. O. G. T., Eugene City, Or., April 24, 1882.

TO SUBORDINATE LODGES.

The G. L. of Oregon will meet at The Dalles on Tuesday, June 20th, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Oregon Railway and Navigation Co. will return delegates who paid full fare going at a reduction of 80 per cent on presenting my certificate at "The Dalles" ticket office.

Remember to purchase tickets for round trip at home for Portland, at all O. & C. R. R. Stations. Ask for return tickets for Grand Lodge, and start Saturday, the 17th to be on time.

Returns.—Do not fail to send in the returns early in the term, in fact, as soon as your officers are installed, that I may have time to make out my yearly report in due time for Grand Lodge session.

Anticipating a hearty compliance in the matter of returns, and congratulating you all on the continued prosperity of the Order in our own State, I am faithfully and fraternally yours, J. E. Houston, G. Sec'y.

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

—o—

PARKER'S SALVATION POWDERS!

—o—

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge of the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills. at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

LEAG OF FREEDOM.

NOTES FROM THE FIELD.

In one week of one daily paper:

A colored boy of 18 years attempts an outrage, arrested and lynched in prison.....A man named Kitzelman shot his daughter in Ohio.....Editor shot, at Quincy, Ill.....A woman gashes her husbands cheek with a razor in Truckee..... A barkeeper in Portland shot himself because a bagnio girl refused to marry him.....Peter Styce, one of the leags dive keepers at Ross Island, went bathing with three women all drunk; one of the women, "Maude S.," and Pete were drowned.....Akers shot dead by Gilmore, and the latter wounded .....James Mooney, formerly one of Gov. Stanford's horserace employees, stabs Harry Smily, and is badly cut by a bottle in a melee, in Oregon..... William Parry throws his dog from a three story window on Mission St.

SECOND DAY.—A man strangles his two newborn children and deserts his wife.....Jailer at Franklin, Texas, shot dead by a prisoner.....A leag den keeper at Virginia beaten by Robert Carl in a leag fight, and Carl's nose entirely bitten off in the conflict.

THIRD DAY.—Strikes in Pa., Ind., O., and Mo., 35,000 men thrown out of employment. A strike is never known where the leag of grogshops were not there to rob and pauperize and craze the workers .....A San Francisco man "half drunk" in Chicago, robbed of $2,100; drugged by a leag agent.....A drunken farmer in N. C. beat his 6 year old dauter to death for getting drunk on her father's whisky.....Chas. Siebard in New York shoots his wife.....Two teamsters found murdered near Tombstone .....A Chinaman arrested drunk .....Police Court fines last month, $7,038 in San Francisco.....A stabbing affray in cemetery avenue saloon.

FOURTH DAY.—Judge Pillsbury shot, probably fatally, by riotous strikers, near Joliet, Ill.....A Justice of the Peace killed by falling from a window drunk on the leag's whisky.....A U. S. Senator at his post under artificial excitement of the same kind that killed the justice.....Three instantaneous deaths, two of them from whisky, sure.

FIFTH DAY.—The iron workers receiving from $1.75 to $5 a day demand an increase of 10 to 15 per cent and strike because the beer shops pauperize and craze them.....Man hung at Atlanta, Ga., for murder; two were to be hung but one took poison .....Six incendiary fires at Vallejo by the pupils of the leag's Sunday-school for boys.....Five divorces to-day in San Francisco.

SIXTH DAY.—Two women fight in S. C.; one killed the other with a bowie knife. A nameless crime committed by a party returning at daylight from a whisky ball.

SEVENTH DAY.—A San Francisco Leager shoots and kills a customer of the Leag in a saloon fight, occasioned by the Leag rat poison.....A victim of the Leag aged 25 years, crazy with the Leags poison, set fire to and burned seven buildings in Lockford .....Two of the victims of the Leag who committed murder when under the influence of Leag poison were sentenced to be hanged in Sacramento..... Leavy, one of the Leags gamblers, shot dead in a Leag fight in a Leag saloon in Tucson.....Body of a sailor found drowned; when last seen was leaving a Leag saloon drunk.....Four train robbers attack a train in Mo.; one killed.....Three colored men lynched for outrage on a girl.....More strikes and violence reported East.

A WORD ABOUT HOPS.

No. 39.

Hops are used in medicine, in yeast, and in beer. In medicine their use is very limited; and this fact rather discredits the common idea that they add so much medicinal value to beer. For yeast, a very small quantity would suffice the whole country; and if these were all the demands made for hops, about ninety-nine-hundredths of the yards now in cultivation could be put to other uses. This is an important fact, for the hop requires the best of land, and we raise in the United States more than thirty millions of pounds. For more than two centuries hops have been used in beer-making to give a bitter taste to the beer, to fine it and to make it keep longer. Beer would never have been so successful as it is but for the hops. So all the hop-growers may consider themselves helpers in the drink traffic.

The hop is called in "Chambers' Cyclopedia," "anodyne, sedative and narcotic"—in one word, stupefying. If, as some people pretend, the beer is chiefly valuable for the hops it contains, they might use hop tea; but we seldom or never hear of their doing so, even in localities where the hops are raised. Their practice is to send the hops away and get them made up into beer, and when brot back in that shape they take the dose and the alcohol with it. The beer-makers are willing to pay liberally; and as there are in most communities men who are willing to raise anything which will bring them in money, so men can be found who are willing to raise hops for the money.

How does this differ from other branches of the beer-making? We wish to discuss the question fairly, but really we cannot see where the difference comes in. It implies working with and for the beer-makers and sellers, taking their money, defending their beer, and sympathizing with them in many ways. In fact, it enlists the whole community for beer. Beer gives them employment, makes money plenty, and enables them to do and have a great many things they could not otherwise do and have. Beer must be a good thing, and they think and speak well of it. Why should they not? And they quote, with as much gusto as if it were Scripture, the old adage. "Speak well of the bridge that carries you safe over." But suppose that bridge is based on the ruined hopes of thousands, and built up in blood and tears and sighs, should you delight in the thought that you have secured for yourself a safe passage over that bridge to a new house, a fine pair of horses, a snug farm, or even to larger wealth, at such a cost as this to others? The hops you raise make the beer more popular, and more easily kept, and, of course, more widely distributed. Would you be pleased with the thought that for every hundred dollars you have gained by hop-raising, some promising young man, some innocent-hearted girl should have learned to drink? I do not know what your exact share of ruined souls is in this matter, but God knows, and He will be sure to bring it home to you. If we take His Holy Word and find not mere adages, but solemn truths, we find "the wages of sin is death"! If on every dollar of hop-money we should find written by the Divine hand, "Death!" "Death!" "Death!" how many of those dollars would we be willing to take? But it is there, whether we see it or not. Suppose we ask God honestly what we shall do about this matter; and we should do it, very sincerely too, with a great desire to be led right, or we may find in the end that this bridge of ours has led us to a barren and desolate land, or if not to a world of retribution.

MARRIED.—At Paradise, May 30th 1882, by Rev. E. Hoskins, Mr. Wm. U. Adams to Miss Caroline Erwin, both of Paradise, and both being tetotalers there is a bright future for them.

IN MEMORIAM.

JENNIE HALL.

Go thou as goes the morning dew,
Fly with the rose's mounting breath;
Thy home is built in heaven's blue,—
The soul's ascension is not death.

The morning's whiteness is thy dress,
The morning star is in thy hair;
Immortal light and blessedness
Break swift upon thy dream and prayer.

The dewy sweetness of thy voice,
Fed fast from fountains pure and strong,
Shall make those starry ones rejoice
Who fill the corridors of song.

RECORD UNION EDITORIAL.

The following editorial appeared in the Record Union last week. It is hereby respectfully referred to the manager, with a request for its republication as an editorial, with the slight and entirely unimportant variations indicated in the foot notes.

"ANOTHER FAILURE."

(1) Captain Sparks, of the ship Gatherer, (2) has been tried the (3) second time, and again the jury have (4) failed to agree. There is something astonishing about this, even if it be attributed to the phenomenal stupidity of the jurors. There really is not any room for doubt as to the responsibility of the (5) captain for the brutal deeds of his subordinate officers. He was cognizant of and consenting to all their atrocities, and a jury that cannot understand this must be fit for little else than the lunatic asylum. In this case, however, (6) two juries have written themselves down asses by their (7) failure to agree upon a verdict in so clear a case, and when such evidences of congregate imbecility occur in groups it is not surprising that pessimists should foretell the abolition of the jury system, as a necessity of the near future.

[1, The violators of the Sunday Law in Sacramento; 2, have; 3, fourth; 4, acquitted the guilty; 5, saloon-keeper; 6, four; 7, verdicts.]

These charges do not affect the truth of the article which is quite excellent, and they give another application, which is quite as much needed. Would the Record Union dare to make this application?

QUERY.

Sacramento, June 5.

NO USEFUL END.

The Brewers' Convention declared that "prohibition in Maine has failed of any useful end," and some of the temperance people say they knew that was false. It is not right to charge them with falsehood in this instance; they were telling the truth as they see it. They knew that in 31 years of actual trial, prohibition has not caused a single murder or suicide or accidental death, nor a divorce nor a wife beating, or a fight or a burglary to make trade good, nor a fire to improve property. It has not built a single brothel or brewery, nor a gin mill or gambling house nor even set fire to a church. In Maine in these 31 years of sobriety there have been raised scores of thousands of sober, moral, righteous, clean, noble men and women who never tasted liquor but who would have furnished a bountiful crop of drunkards and criminals and tramps and paupers, if the brewers had only been turned loose upon them. Therefore, what useful purpose has prohibition served from a brewers' stand point? Useful indeed! and hardly anyone in jail in the whole State. And what few are there were sent by rum.

FANATICISM.—The Sutter Farmer and the people in its section of the State have become exceedingly fanatical the last year or two on the debris question. They hold meetings and write and lecture and make it a political issue and are almost ready to take up arms about a little simple question of flooding out 15 or 20 thousand people from their homes and covering up their orchards and vineyards and farms with five or six feet of sand and stones. All this fuss and nobody's life threatened. What a terrible purposeless fanaticism this must be, when we consider that the temperance reformers have been solemly declared fanatics for 50 years past for trying to put a stop to a debris system that covers up 100,000 of our citizens every year, six feet deep, face up, dead, drives millions from their homes, puts millions in jail every year and keeps the whole nation building jails, penitentiaries, hospitals and mad houses to warehouse the flooded out victims of this national debris curse.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

Adoption.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

Admission of Children.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphans Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. M. A. Mayhew, Red Bluff; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. E. P. Stevens, San Francisco, G. W. V. GRAND TEMPERANCE RALLY!

A TEMPERANCE

Camp-Meeting

WILL BE HELD IN THE FAMOUS

REDWOOD GROVE,

Near Guerneville, Sonoma Co., Cal.,

JUNE 29th to JULY 5th.

It will be under the immediate control and management of

ENTERPRISE LODGE, No. 356, I. O. G. T.,

And one-third of the net proceeds will be given to the

ORPHANS' HOME

AT VALLEJO.

Every possible care will be taken to make the occasion a pleasant and profitable one to all who attend.

We cordially invite the assistance and co-operation of all friends of the temperance cause.

Dont forget the Temperance groceries. Dont waste money on drunkard makers.

A Reverend reader in Southern Cal. writes; "tho we take ten papers and periodicals in my family the Rescue is my favorite and is the first and most thoroly read." But he is a fast and firm advocate of temperance.

Subscribers this week: Mrs. Richardson (Half Moon Bay 16, San Gregorio 4,) 20; Sheridan and Willamina Or. (L. Leland) 4; Hayden Hill 1; Soulsbyville 1; Forestville 20, monthly.

Samples of the Chromo Cards referred to by Miss Julia Colman can be seen at the Rescue office. They are very beautifully and artistically ornamented and are prizes indeed for the young folks.

Be sure to go and see the stereopticon views of Golden Gate Lodge exhibition on Monday, June 19th. It will richly repay the time and the ticket. The Good Templars should make a full house on the occasion; see the ad. on page 521.

Mr. Litchman, editor of the Essex Statesman, was expected to be in California this week. He is reported as a Greenbacker and an earnest advocate of temperance. It is hoped he will receive a fitting welcome here.

F. J. Culver, makes a canvas of Sonoma Co. before the 4th of July. He is employed by the Guerneville Comm. to work up the camp meeting and excursion. Will lecture under the auspices of the Good Templars as grand lecturer at Valley Ford 15, Bodega 16th, Occidental 18th, Forestville the 19th, Petaluma 21, 22, 23, and Santa Rosa 24, and 25, Healdsburg 27, and 28th.

District Lodge at Catheys Valley was well attended and a large enthusiastic crowd assembled. Temperance is on a boom, and the people are wakened up. One young man walked 40 miles to attend District Lodge session; there is no danger whatever of that man getting his back curved at some trifle and resigning from the Order and transferring his allegiance to the dramshop.

Common Sense.—On the 12th a meeting was called in Eureka, Cal., to nominate a city ticket of best citizens and tax-payers pledged to all needful financial reforms in city government: to raise the city license for retailing liquor to the sum of $150 per quarter, or to such other sum as the best judgment of the Convention may dictate, and to the strict enforcement within our city limits of what is known as the "Sunday Law," so long as the same remains on the Statute Book.

"School Trustees will find a large number of excellent teachers to select from by addressing the Pacific Bureau of Education, 19 New Montgomery St. San Francisco, Cal. No charge whatever is made the District or School Officers, and the Bureau exercises the greatest care in commending only the most efficient men and women, whose moral character, social worth and scholarly qualifications will subserve the best interests of our Public School system.

It is reported on reliable authority that a man named Wood (no way related to the Rescue) organized a division of the Sons of Temperance at Bodega recently and is lecturing in Sonoma County. Also that he considers it a part of his duty to set afloat a ribald volley of abusive lies regarding the Good Templars, the Home for Orphans and the Rescue. It is of course unnecessary to make any reply to his charges or to hold him accountable for them as he is supposed to be insane. It is suggested to the S. of T. that such a man is not likely to do credit to their cause.

The Temperance camp-meeting at Guerneville is expected to be this year the best one we have had. Extensive preparations have been made for the entertainment and comfort of the visitors and it is hoped many will be there to participate in this most eminently consistent and patriotic mode of celebrating the Fourth. Rev. Mr. Mc Kenzie will deliver the oration on that day and the friends of temperance it is hoped will make a grand rallly and induce as many of their neighbors to attend as possible. Many improvements will be made in the arrangements this year, but they wont improve on the genial faces and kindly services of the Hicks family who will superintend the commissariat department and will keep every body good-natured around the tables.

Dr. Richardson says of himself that during the time when he drank daily, as some other people do, a period of nearly thirty years, he never had what might be called truly natural sleep, never with the same freedom from oppression and dreams and nightmares as he had in early life, and as he now has since he has become a total abstainer.

A good thing has been done by the Texas Legislature to protect the public morals. A bill has been passed, taxing all persons selling the Police Gazette, Police News and similar illustrated journals $500 per annum in each county where such papers are sold. This is equal to a prohibition, and the suppression of that class of literature is a public blessing.—Santa Ana Herald. That is an example that should be followed in every State.

Five and ten cent White Labor Cigars.—When you see that printed on a sign, you may rely upon its entire truthfulness. It means that white labor is wanted to smoke them and pay for them, but it was Chinese labor that made them. The white labor smokers are the best friends that the Chinese workers have in this city. Without crediting smokers with any large amount of brains, it is hoped all of them know their cigars 5 or 10 or 20 cent are made by Chinese fingers, nine times out of ten.

Wanted, to find some person, not dead 1000 years ago, but alive and well to-day, and reputable and trustworthy, who can tell the vineyard men of California of any European winemaking people of a village, county, province, State or country that are prosperous, comfortable, well-behaved and of respectable standing as a class. Or any such people where wine making has been in progress for a century where the people are not within a step of starvation, wretchedly poor, ignorant, superstitious, immoral and worthless to the world. Or to show that the wine and brandy business ever did any thing to France but deprave, degrade, disease and impoverish her people.

The Rev. W. C. King is now making a tour of some of the northern counties in the interest of the Rescue department of our Order. To circulate the Rescue in every community of the State would not only relieve the Grand Lodge of all expense connected with it, but it would do without cost a most important part of our Order's work and a part without which if it is left undone we can never hope to succeed. The main business of a lodge is to educate its members and community on the whole temperance question and in no way can that be done so easily, cheaply, and completely as thru the temperance press. Bro. King will also visit Lodges, Bands of Hope, etc., where possible.

According to the Chronicle the Democratic nomination of Mr. Hurst for Governor has been filibustered by a San Francisco saloon-keeper by the use of coin. If he is the R. R. candidate and is to be nominated in the manner claimed and is on a platform of repeal of the Sunday law and free rum, it is to be earnestly hoped he may be left 1,000 miles behind along with Mr. Boruck or any one who goes on a similar ticket in the Republican ranks. There is good ground for believing that by no possible chance could any party be successful in the next State election which proposes to repeal the Sunday law, provided another proposes to sustain and enforce it. And it is hoped that any party that will either do as the Democratic has done or be silent or double-sided on that question may be forever and ever defeated and its camp-fires forever extinguished.

THE DEVIL'S EXPRESS.*

A NEW SONG FOR BACCHANALS.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
As it calls at the cities of pleasure and pain,
For traffic by night and by day.
Hurrah for the devil, the charming guide,
Bowing and scraping to all who ride;
Picking up business on every side,
Every inch of his way.
Hooray!

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
With its classes three of the great insane.
Booked to their master's address;
"Scotchman" and "Dutchman" running a race
For some distant goal on some earthly place,
Creep, as it seems, at a growler's pace
Compared with the devil's express.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train;
Cheer, boys, cheer! there's a smash again,
Smashes each day by the score.
Scores a day wounded, scores a day dead,
Dead with the sins of life on their head.
And fast as they fall their places fed
With more and yet more and more.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train;
With its mad, its sad, its bad, its slain
Always in traveling state.
Pitch out the wounded, pitch out the dead,
He who is driving would fain have instead
The living and healthy to follow his lead,
With a yell, through hell's black gate.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
As it calls at the cities of pleasure and pain,
Steered by his matchless hand.
Hurrah for his stock of barrels and vats;
His rolling stock of drunken flats;
His model stock of starving brats;
His human inhuman band.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
And the jolly set who make their gain
Out of his ruthless skill.
His white-aproned levies who die like sheep
That have swallowed a fluke; his brewers who steep
His malt and his hops; his merchants who keep
His cunning men at the still.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
The revenue reaper that brings the grain
Into the national purse;
The train that must daily and hourly run
With reckless, rattling, wanton fun,
Whatever the devil of mischief is done,
Whatever the ultimate curse.

Hurrah! hurrah! for the devil's train,
With its wounded lists and heaps of slain,
With its fields of death and sin.
Madmen and liars, paupers and knaves;
Sick men reeling into their graves;
Homicides, suicides, traitors, braves,
All that the devil can win.

RIVERSIDE.

BY ELDER M. V. WRIGHT. NUMBER FOUR.

COST OF LAND.

What is the price of real estate? This is one the first questions asked by people in reference to the place to which they contemplate emigrating. The question is not only natural but also very reasonable, on the same principle that the first prerequisite in the recipe of preparing a fish for dinner is to catch it.

Well, when I come to talk to your readers in reference to the cost of land suitable for the orange and raisin grapes, I have no doubt that the hopes awakened in the hearts of some who have become interested in my former letters, will be ruthlessly dashed to the earth.

I will now give you a few facts and incidents in relation to the past and the present price of land here, and I think that you will agree with me, that for the age of the colony (11 years) it is unprecedented any where in the United States.

A little less than nine years ago when I came here I could buy all the land I wished of the Company at $25 per acre, with five years time to pay it. To-day I cannot purchase an acre of the same character of land for less than $125 per acre. At that time I was offered 160 acres of Government land about one mile from our present home, for $500. The same tract to-day, unimproved, is worth over $25,000. Again, I was offered 20 acres for $400, which I refused. The gentlemen who shortly afterward purchased it, set the most of it out to orange trees and within several years from date of purchase sold 10 acres of it for $8,000. Several years past two gentlemen living near us purchased 20 acres for $900. To-day they are holding it at $22,000. Altho I did not fall in with either of the above offers, for once in my life, I was not altogether out of luck. For the 20 which is our home cost me up to title, about $10 per acre. I came to Southern Cal. with a broken down constitution, at the mandate of my physicians, in search of health, not land. The then far famed Santa Barbara was my intended future home. After remaining there a few weeks I came down to Riverside, solely at the earnest and oft repeated request of friends in the East whose relatives here were urging them to come to S. Cal. The said friends desired me to visit Riverside and report my impressions of the place. I left Santa Barbara fully expecting to return there within a month. While there and at San Jose and Santa Cruz I had frequently heard Riverside spoken of, but always in a very disparaging manner. I met several who had been there to spy out the land, and like the spies of old they brought back an evil report. They could literally say with the Isrealitish spies, "The land floweth with milk and honey, and this is the fruit of it," for here, like in the land which they visited, is found the grape, the fig, and the pomegranate. But they all with one accord spoke evil of the country, and said "there be giants in that land," "There dwelleth the God of the winds," Riversiders "Old Norther."

If on the above occasion there went down with them a Caleb and Joshua, the writer never had the good fortune to meet them, or even so much as to hear of them. But what is more probable they were perhaps so charmed and captivated with what they saw and heard especially the latter (for "be it known to all whom it may concern," that Riversiders are blessed with the gift of tongues and pretty long ones too on that everlasting subject, "oranges," however much you may admire their modesty and reticence in a prayer meeting or love feast,) that they forgot what they went after and like your correspondent failed to return. Be that as it may the nearer I got to R. the worse were the stories I heard of it. Its inhabitants were not unfrequently referred to as "that set of fool Yankees down there who think that they can make water run up hill." Well, I had several times before heard of Yankees and some of the wonderful things they have done and was not much frightened at that report. But then there were, they said, those terrible northers, that would blow the very hair off a mans head. Well it is true we have our full share of bald-headed men, but my pen will not permit Southern Cal. to lay under such a slanderous insinuation. It should be remembered that these victims of baldness lived back in the land of tornadoes and cyclones and never came here until they had lost every hair off their head.

One good brother from Ills., who at that time lived in San Buena Ventura County, while a fearful sand storm was raging and roaring around his house, and making so much noise that he had to speak very loud to me, told me in all sincerity that that was a gentle zephyr compared to the wind of Riverside. Well that did frighten me a little, for I was compelled to stay there 48 hours before I dare resume my journey. He further said that he and a friend had been down to R. and that frequently in traveling along they would see holes that had been blown out by the northers large enough and deep enough to bury a four horse team.

Well, this was'nt very encouraging; but still I pressed onward. At last on the last day of my journey, about sundown, I rode to the top of the foot hills about 4 miles west of the town of Riverside and such was the spell and magical influence of the beautiful panorama spread out before me as I looked upon that lovely valley for the first time that not all the stories of the past could fright me from its shore.

I have since seen many of those holes referred to by the above brother; they were not made by the wind, but by the winter rains running into the holes of various underground animals. For the present dear reader "good bye."

SOBER FRANCE.

Professor Walker calls public attention to the book lately issued from the press of Dunker and Humboldt, of Leipsic, in which some startling revelations are made concerning "the reign of alcohol in France." The author, a Hungarian, is a physician, who, during several years practice in the French Capital, especially in the hospitals, has had an opportunity to become intimately acquainted with the various classes of society. He is kindly disposed towards the people, as he speaks of the nation at large, and of Paris in particular, in the most flattering terms. His testimony, however, is that "intemperance is the great national disease of France." He admits that fewer drunkards are seen in Paris than in London: a fact by which foreiners and casual observers are greatly misled. He accounts for it thus:—In England the intemperate especially on Saturday evenings indulge in bacchanalian orgies, and drink until they are arrested by the police, or picked up out of the gutter. Whereas in France they do not so often drink to such an extent as to lose all self control; "but they drink continuously, incessantly, and thus slowly poison their constitution and destroy their health." Of the Parisian workman he says, "though we rarely see them madly or stupidly drunk, they are constantly under the stimulating influence of alcohol. The consequences are to be seen, not on the street nor in the mire, but in the sick room and the hospital." The writer goes on to say, in substance, furnishing the evidence as he goes along, "everybody drinks here, regardless of age, sex, or occupation. Even infants, when troublesome, are quieted with the wine bottle. You meet a boy going to school, and you find him with a satchel and a little basket, the latter containing a piece of bread and a bottle of claret." These statements in regard to children are fully borne out by a late writer in the "Gentleman's Magazine." He says:—"Repeatedly at the hotels in French watering places. I have watched children of five years old and upwards, supplied by their mothers with wine sufficiently to visibly flush and excite them. One little fellow whose age could not be more than six, drank, at each of two consecutive meals enough wine to produce intoxication. After giving various manifestations of his tipsy condition, he sprawled out over the table, and ended by putting his head in his mothers lap and falling asleep."

The author mentioned above goes on to remark, "what has been said about the reign of alcohol among the laboring men, will apply almost equally well to the higher classes. Large quantities of wine are consumed at every meal; "cognac" is taken by many with every cup of coffee; and "absinthe," as a refreshment between meals, especially between the hours of five and six p. m., a period which has received the characteristic title of absinthe hour." He closes a lengthy chapter of this subject with the sweeping assertion that, "it is alcohol principally which fills the hospitals and insane asylums of France, and causes the number of suicides to increase from year to year." He declares that unless proper means be soon employed to check the evil, it will bring about the moral and physical ruin of the French people." And yet this is one of the countries which McDougall, Dodds & Co. put before us as patterns for our imitation in regard to sobriety!—Casket.

Any one who has had an opportunity of observing the habits of the French in their own country and elsewhere will admit that the evidence of the Hungarian doctor is exactly to the point. People may travel in a first class car thru France time and again, or may spend months in a respectable quarter of Paris and never see a reeling or rowdy tippler. The reason is very simple; a drunk would be arrested and taken care of by the police before he goes half a block, and they are carefully prevented by their masters from going out from the wine dens till sober. But the traveler will meet with very few Frenchmen that have not been drinking wine and brandy many times a day and with that disease and the immoderate use of tobacco the French nation is well known to be deteriorating rapidly in stature, in length of life, in physical health and strength and in sobriety and morality.

The facts that all are drinkers and smokers, that one half the young men of France at the age of 21 are unfit for military service and that there were in 1877 only 120 centenarians against 10,332 in 1830 are unanswerable proofs of rapid degeneracy.

And again, in 1881 the conscription in Germany according to Dr. Depierris found only 123,091 young men physically fit for service while 435,582 were too feeble in constitution and were held over to coming years for examination ! ! !

NO SUNDAY

And wine and beer and brandy and tobacco are the the fruitful causes of this most astounding condition of national decay.

And we are asked in America to cast off the sober habits and the Sabbath rest and the virtue and morality and Christianity which have made in this country the highest and best civilization in the world and adopt the rum and beer and tobacco civilization that has spread a pall of pauperism and disease and moral ruin and death over Europe and which emphatically threatens the most vigorous and intelligent races of men with national extinction.

THE OLD PATH GUIDE.—Some time ago the RESCUE particularly recommended the Christian Worker as an excellent family paper. It is now merged into the Old Path Guide a 48 colum weekly at $2 a year. Louisville, Ky. A good, sound religious temperance paper is one of the best, cheapest and most comfort yielding pieces of furniture you can have in your house. One of the best papers our Kentucky friends can order from their old home.

THE PRIZES.

Mrs. Congdon writes: "One effect of the prize essay work is that in one of the High Schools the boys have all quit tobacco and the Principal writes we shall raise an annual fund for the purpose of prizes in this school on the temperance subject. Mrs. C. has received a letter from Pa. The National Union is raising a fund to offer prizes in all the normal schools of the U. S. of which there are 100. We should make a vigorous effort to introduce Dr. Richardson's Temperance Lesson Book into the schools."

Mrs. C. also alludes to a prize of another kind. Somebody there sent a $60 order to a S. F. temperance grocery advertized in the RESCUE and after paying freight figured up a saving of $35. A good many people when asked to subscribe $1.25 for the RESCUE to visit them 52 times a year say they cannot afford it; but it seems when it shows them how to save $35 on a bill of groceries they should be able to stand the $1.25 for themselves and get two or three of their neighbors to make a similar investment. If they dont the G. L. will begin to think some of these days of putting up the price of the paper to $5 or $10 a year; cant afford to have the readers make $35 on one week's advertizement and give them fifty copies for $1.25. There will be a danger of more gigantic corporations springing up.

TEMPERANCE CHROMO CARDS.

One by one we are supplying the wants of the work, tho many things are still lacking. We had long needed something to catch the eye of those not yet ready to read a tract nor even a leaflet, not so expensive as to be burdensome to the giver and yet too pretty to be thrown away by the recipient. It could contain a word in season for a variety of purposes, since,—

"A verse may find him who a sermon flies."

At last we have provided all these in the delicate and attractive chromo cards. Selecting the most suitable we place upon them the saving text, the pungent truth, the witty saying, the pleasing verse, and everybody finds something that he or she can use to good purpose. Here is lofty sentiment for the young, choice sayings for the children, comfort and encouragement for temperance workers, birthday mementoes and tokens of friendship. The cheaper kinds ranging from half a cent to five cents each are used in large quantities in Sunday schools and day schools. Those with animals (2 cents) are especially pleasing to the boys. There are ten varieties with fine mottoes. One picture of handsome horses drinking has this motto:—

"The mill, the engine, boat, and man
And beast (except the sot,)
Derive their strength and motive power
From water, cold or hot."

The floral cards (10 kinds at 2 cents each) are greater favorites with the girls. A cluster of primroses has this motto:—

"We are few, but we are right,
And we wage the holy fight,
Night and day, day and night."

At three cents each a lovely series of roses and forget-me-nots has some mottoes for boys and some for girls. The following is a specimen:

"Whenever you may be asked to drink,
Pause a moment my boy and think,—
Think of the wrecks on life's ocean tossed
Who answered 'yes,' without counting the cost."

A fine embossed series with a piquant verse on tobacco has proved very popular and so have (6) baskets of fruits and flowers (all at 3 cents) with appropriate mottoes.

At four cents is a dainty rhomboid card with a little fellow blowing soap bubbles and anti-tobacco motto. Others of the same shape and size have "birds and butterflies" who drink only water as do the boys and girls who are watching them. Another exquisite series of four cent floral cards bears the inscription,

"Dare to be a Daniel,
Dare to stand alone,
Dare to have a purpose firm,
Dare to make it known."

Some of these have gone from fair hands to strengthen the weak backs of legislators. There are other choice cards at this price as also at 5 cents and at 6 cents each. The prices are less by the dozen throughout. Those at 3 cents each are 30 cents a dozen, at 4 cents, 40 cents a dozen, at 5 cents, 50 cents a dozen, etc. Those wishing an assortment of a dozen at any one price can have them at the dozen price.

Beside these there are fifty varieties at 50 cents, 75 cents or $1.00 per 100. A set of specimens of these at 15 cents. The birthday cards come at 7, 8, 10, 12 or 15 cents each. There are embossed dogs heads, cabinet size, at 20 cents, and a beautiful floral "art card" still larger at 25 cents.

Send a small sum for specimens stating the purpose for which they are desired and ample response will be made.

Address, MISS JULIA COLMAN, 76 Bible House, New York.

BECAME CLEAN.

Tom Collins was an Irishman who came to America in 1863, went to the war and came back a drunkard like so many others. The story continues as told by Mrs. Helen E. Browne in the N. T. Advocate:

Their home was a sight to be seen. No carpets, chairs, tables, bedsteads could stay in it; he broke them to bits in his drunken fury, or pawned them for liquor. And the one room to which they were finally reduced was as bare of comfort as a barn or a dog-kennel; and, as a necessary consequence of his excesses, he lost his situation and became a wretched, drunken tramp.

But an angel of mercy passed that way in the person of a Christian woman. Looking for Sunday scholars, she fell in with this shattered home and wrecked man. Her sympathies were enlisted. She labored and prayed with the poor inebriate, while she helped the suffering wife and children, and was richly repaid when one day, as they knelt in prayer, Thomas declared: "It is enough; I will come to Jesus and be made whole." And the angels in heaven rejoiced over the repentant sinner.

From that morning the course of the household was upward. By degrees they crept back to comfort and plenty. Tears were exchanged for gladness, and the voice of prayer was heard where before vile and angry oaths had pierced the air. Mary, too, accepted the Savior, and husband and wife sang together the song of redeeming grace and undying love.

It was at the end of five years that we, who had just come to know the family, were invited up the four flights of stairs to the upper floor of a tenement-house to see what a "nice Christian home" they had. A small, comfortable suite of rooms they rented—a parlor, kitchen and two bed-rooms. The parlor, with its neat carpet and comfort-giving stove, furnished with a pretty set of furniture, an organ, curtains and pictures; the well-attired bed-rooms; and the kitchen, with its tea-table spread with the nicest of bread, fruit and cake, indicated taste and refinement, as well as abundant means.

"Do you see how comfortable we are!" asked the proud, happy, grateful man. "I want to show you how much further my ten dollars a week go than the forty I used to get; for every cent tells now in solid good. I am not as strong and able to work as I once was," he continued; "those years of drunkenness almost killed me. I can only earn as much in a month as I used to earn every week, and my little daughter here earns a little. But we have plenty for food and clothing and to keep up our housefurnishing. Mary and I reckoned the other evening how much the things round here were all worth, and we counted up more than five hundred dollars, and everything paid for. That's five hundred that once would have gone to the rum-seller. Now it is ours; and we like it," he said, with a shake of his head. "I haven't saved much for a rainy day yet, but I've begun. Let me tell you about it. You used to talk to us about giving up tobacco, and I resisted it. By the help of the Lord I had given up my whisky, but I thot there was no harm in tobacco. And I wouldn't go to the mission sometimes because they said so much about it. But one night, not long ago, I heard Tim Regan give his testimony. He said he'd give up his pipe, because he wanted to be all clean before the Lord; and I asked myself: 'Tom Collins,' says I, 'dont you want to be all clean before the Lord? Sure the Lord has done enough for you, and it's time now you were thinking about pleasing Him!' So when I came out I just pitched my tobacco over the fence, and the pipe I smashed when I got home. That week I put a dollar in the savings, the first I ever put in, in all my life, but it wasn't the last. A dollar, and more too, has gone in every week since, and I'm clean now. My bread and butter and coffee and meat taste ten times sweeter and better than they used to; and when I ask a blessing on our food as we sit down to the table, I thank the Lord that He's taken away the taste for bad things and more than made it up in the taste for the good things He gives. I tell you 'tis a grand exchange. I'm very happy. I'm not rich, and never expect to be, but the little I have goes a wonderful way. I wish poor folks like us knew how far a little, when God blesses it, will stretch, and the peace and comfort he sends along with it."

We echo the honest wish of this Christian man, who, with his ten dollars a week, is reaping joys which the riches of many wicked can never give.

OUR OBJECT LESSON.

Again the Hayes commission comes before you with this subject. The pictures, for which subscriptions have been received, have been sent out, and surely there was never so large an expression of delight from every one; there has scarcely been known one shadow of a disappointment. "Well worth waiting for," "much finer than we anticipated," "lovely," "beautiful," etc., etc., have been the words written. To-day comes a voice from Spain, "We are much pleased with it, and hope that its influence may be for good among the girls of our school, so that it may spread thru the land." John B. Gough, Mrs. Garfield, Dr. Merrick, Mrs. Senator Blair, and hundreds of others, have expressed their gratification with the picture, and the hope it may fill a glorious mission. This it will do when placed in every school-room in the land. If, in each city and town, one energetic, earnest woman will tell the children of this beautiful memorial, and tell them how easily they can raise money for it for their school-room, it will be done, and this lovely object lesson in total abstinence will ever give its monitions. In many places one child has taken it in hand and speedily and easily raised the money. Collection cards for securing the money in small sums, will be furnished on application to the Treasurer, Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City. All subscriptions should be addressed to her, and she is prepared now to send the picture by return mail. We hope thousands will be called for, and that no school-room nor Sabbath-school, no W. C. T. U. room, nor Good Templar lodge will be considered furnished till this charming testimonial looks from its walls.—Our Union.

"MISS KIMBAL writes that she found the W. C. T. U. of Nebraska doing excellent work, and that the success of her meetings is, she feels, largely due to the efforts of the efficient and faithful State Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Jennie G. Ford, of Kearney—who arranged all her plans." It is to be hoped a similar report may go from California some of these days.

THE spirit of prohibition is abroad in the land and marching onward with gigantic strides. It is necessary that we should "rally 'round the flag" and fight our foes—dispute every inch of ground. On the soil of "bleeding Kansas" they have gained a victory which encourages them to strike again. East of us, west of us, the spirit of prohibition is at large—it is even in our midst, and what are they doing! whose trade will feel most the aggression of the fanatical monster?—Anti-Prohibitionist. If we are any judge of "whose trade will feel the fanatical monster," we would say that it would be the saloonatics who are sending our bright eyed boys to a drunkards hell. Sign the pledge and don the blue.—Our Opinion.

MORE INTOLERANT BIGOTRY.—The A. O. U. W. had a picnic recently at Modesto. A gentleman of the leag of Free-Dam was found selling lager beer near the stand. This being contrary to the rules of the Order he was obliged to leave, but he was disgusted with "an Order that deprives a man of his personal liberty." It is too bad; a new National constitutional Amendment should be made at once that would permit no abridgement of the personal liberty of any one who wants to peddle lager beer at a prayer meeting, campmeeting, Sunday-school, wedding, Methodist conference, Good Templar Lodge or Band of hope meeting. We are drifting fast into a despotism, when a lager beer cart cant be driven up alongside of a pulpit anywhere and any day.

"THE people have a mind to work." The people are ready to do more for reforms in government and in society than at any time in the past. Ministers of the gospel are finding a little time to think and talk on the great issue of the hour. Ministers who read the news of the day, as events transpire are keeping alive to the great demand for leaders in the new field. Churches, however since time began or since they began, are the slowest of all organizations to change any habit or custom. Some of the older churches have kept up customs that, to this scientific world, greatly need pruning and revision far more than the bible did.—Neb. Liberator.

HOME AGAIN.—After an extended absence in attendance upon the R. W. G. L. which recently met in the city of Charleston, S. C., the G. W. S. returned to his post and resumed his labors at the desk on the morning of the 6th. Thanks to the efficiency of Bro. J. E Tade, who was left in charge of the G. W. S. office, no interest of the Order was permitted to suffer during the absence of the principal, every order for supplies being promptly filled and every want properly attended to as far as possible. During the four weeks, returns were received from three hundred lodges, and remittances contained in 117 postal orders, 73 express packages and 34 drafts aggregated over $3,000.

RECEPTION TO THE R. W. G. T.—The lodge room of Siloam Lodge, No. 2, of Sacramento, reflected a lustrous scene on last Saturday evening, brilliantly lighted as it was, handsomely decorated with flowers and vines such as only the Capital city can produce, and the seating capacity of the hall severely tested by the large company arrayed in the regalia of the Order. The occasion being in honor of the return to home and friends of the R. W. G. T. The address of welcome was made by Bro. the Rev. H. H. Rice, P. W. C. T., and was responded to by the R. W. G. T., who gave a sketch of the personnel ard proceedings of the recent R. W. G. L. session. The G. W. C. T., Judge Rob't Thompson, of San Francisco, graced the occasion with his presence and extended the greetings and congratulations of the Grand Lodge of California. At the conclusion of the exercises, refreshments were served in abundance. Taken as whole the affair was characterized by a heartiness and unanimity seldom equaled and never excelled.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand L. office was visited by the following members of the Order: Rev. Will C. King, Grand Lecturer, who was on his way to Tehama Co. Bro. King is making a special effort as agent and canvasser for the RESCUE. It is hoped he will be cordially met in his new capacity and that he may be successful in building up a large circulation for our official organ .....Mrs. M. J. Mayhew, P. G. W. V. T., of Red Bluff Lodge, No. 192, who was returning home after having been in attendance at the monthly meeting of the Board of Lady Managers of the Good Templars Home for Orphans.....Judge Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., of San Francisco, who came up to be in attendance at Siloam Lodge on Saturday evening.....Henry Brink, W. C. T. of Victory Lodge, No. 123, Biggs, who visited Sacramento on a brief furlough to his old home and friends.....Brother Pendleton, W. C. T. of Greenwood Lodge, No. 450, El Dorado Co.

The twenty-eighth annual session of the R. W. G. L. I. O. G. T., which recently closed its proceedings at Charleston S. C. where it convened May 22, was in every respect a successful and profitable meeting of that Supreme body. The attendance was unusually large and eminently representative. Great Britain which was to have been represented, sent word at the last moment, of the impossibility of their Reprentatives reaching Charleston in time. The Canadas, Ontario and Quebec, were fully represented as was also South Africa which sent the same genial Bro. Reuben Ayliff, who represented that jurisdiction in 1876. For the first time in the history of the R. W. G. L. the entire Pacific coast Grand Lodges were represented viz California, Oregon, Washington Territory and British Columbia and Nevada, and for the first time also, California noted a full delegation of four representatives present. Forty Grand Lodges were represented by one hundred and one representatives, past representatives and visitors, making an unusual array of the talent and strength of the Order in its Congressional chamber.

The sessions were held, as all are aware, in that quaint old city by the sea—Charleston, an attempted description of which would involve a chapter in its self. The people of Charleston represented by their Honorable Mayor and Common Council, extended a most courteous, cordial and hospitable welcome to the R. W. G. L., especially his honor Mayor Courtnay, who will be held in grateful remembrance for his many personal attentions, by all who were present at the 28th annual convocation of the R.W.G.L.

On the evening of Monday May 22d the eve of the R. W. G. L. sessions, a public reception was tendered to the R. W. G. L. by his Hon. the Mayor and Common Council of Charleston. The reception was held in the Academy of Music, which was furnished at the expense of the municipality as was also the band, which furnished excellent orchestral music thruout the evening. The large building was filled with the best citizens of Charleston who were present at the invitation of the Mayor to aid him in extending the hospitalities of the city.

Mayor Courtney presided and delivered the address of welcome which was appropriately responded to in behalf of the R. W. G. L. by the R. W. G. T. Following these, short addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Eddy of Mass., Hon. S. D. Hastings of Wis. Rev. Geo. Hart of Penn. Bro, Reuben Ayliff of South Africa, W. H. Lambly of Quebec, John B. Finch of Nebraska and Col. J. J. Hickman of Mo. with an orchestral rendition between each address. The addresses were all unusually happy and well timed and if the pleased expressions of countenances and hearty and frequent applause of the vast audience may be taken as an index, the meeting was in every sense a successful one and justified the comment of the Rev. C. S. Vedder D. D. pastor of the Huguenot Church of Charleston, who gave the cabalistic letters of the Order the new rendition of the "Inimitable Order of Good Talkers."

Promptly at the hour of ten on Tuesday morning May 23d the R. W. G. L. was called to order in Masonic Hall, with representations present from the following Grand Lodges viz: Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Maryland dual, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hamphsire, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Ontario (Canada), Pennsylvania, Quebec (Canada), Rhode Island, South Africa, Vermont. Tennessee, South Carolina, Virginia, Washington Territory and British Columbia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. It was resolved to have three daily sessions, morning, afternoon and night, speeches were limited as to time and frequency and the R. W. G. L. proceeded with its work in a manner at once refreshing and vigorous.

The reports of the officers were full and suggestive and received careful attention at the hands of the body. For a while it seemed as though the body would really rend its shell of conservatism, adopt some of the advanced ideas suggested by its officers and bring the work of the Order up to a higher standard. The enthusiasm was good but the necessary courage, after all, lacking; hence in one particular at least, becoming alarmed at having placed itself in a position to do something besides "resolute and talk," it ungracefully receded. Like the proverbial bovine which gave the handsome measure of the lacteal fluid and then kicked over the aforesaid measure, after having laved its hoof therein, thereby discounting its laudable effort in either case, so the R. W. G. L. after meeting the issue fairly and levying an assessment of one cent per member, to free itself from the incubus of debt, which has been bowing it down and preventing consistent and aggressive work on its part, repealed the enactment upon a constitutional question being raised, but failed to re-enact the same in a constitutional manner when subsequently the way was opened therefor.

This means another year of crippled finance and inactivity on the part of the R. W. G. L. and but one year more for the way is clear and the defeated measure will surely be enacted next year.

A decidedly advance measure was the levying of a special tax of one-half cent per capita, the fund so raised to be used exclusively in missionary or propagation work. This fund will scarcely be available, because not accumulated, until next year. But when it does come, with a lifting of the debt, the printing and circulating of temperance literature, the employment of able lecturers, honest and hearty work in the juvenile work, then look out for a regular boom in the grand old Order of the I. O. G. T. The dawning of this day, now seemingly so close at hand, has been so anxiously looked for, that all will await its coming with anxiety, meanwhile working with the means at command to the fullest capacity, so as to be in good practice to observe the command which it now appears will surely come next year, for a general advance all along the line.

It was decided to print in pamphlet form, and to sell to Grand Lodges at cost, two addresses recently delivered in Illinois by that talented brother who ranks all others in this country in point of ability and the manner of handling the subject of a temperance address—John B. Finch, of Nebraska. It is hoped this may be taken as the commencement of the publication of literature of this kind under the auspices of the R. W. G. L. California will order from ten to twenty thousand of these addresses doubtless, as an endorsement of the course pursued by the parent body.

The Literature Committee of the R. W. G. L. was made a permanent committee, Bro. John B. Finch being continued as Chairman thereof, and the provision for the annual dime collection continued, in the hope that all jurisdictions will hereafter join heartily in the movement and furnish the committee with the wherewith to effectively prosecute its labors.

The prohibition contest now being waged in Iowa received solicitous attention and aid was promised, but a resolution to appropriate $500 in aid of the work in that State was defeated for the very good reason that the money was not and would not, under the present financial system, be in the Treasury to appropriate to this or any other forward movement. The literature now standing to the credit of the R. W. G. L. Literature Committee, amounting in value to some $275 was ordered sent to Iowa for use in the campaign in that State, the Secretary of the N. T. S. & P. H. generously offering to double the amount when sending.

The matter of the indefinite extension of a clearance card, so as to make it without limitation was a matter of serious consideration. Years ago the executive Committee of California petitioned that the limitation to one year, of a clearance card be abolished, likewise the initiation of persons who were former members of the Order, likewise the universal adaptation of the effective card system etc. Year after year these matters have been persistently pressed and one by one they have been adopted ending in the final adoption of the last and important matter of doing away with the limitation of a clearance card so that from date a clearance card is valid and in force for all time or until deposited or revoked by the lodge issuing it. "Except in case of the surrender or revocation of the charter of such lodge. In such case the member holding such clearance card shall be subject to discipline by the authorities of the Grand Lodge of the State or country in which such subordinate Lodge is located."

A new and important committee was raised on "Woman's Work" to consider the whole range of woman's influence and work within the Order, with such helps and suggestions as experience may dictate. The task of considering the subject and presenting conclusions was committed to the hands of Sisters Hooper of Ills; Buell of Conn; Westover of N. H.; Finch of Neb., and Simonds of Or. A full and comprehensive report may confidently be expected.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

When has the W. C. T. the right to cast the vote in case of a tie? Only in the ordinary business of the lodge, when he had no right to otherwise vote on the question. When the vote is by ballot he has the same right as others to vote; hence cannot cast a second ballot in case of tie.

What action is to be taken where a member clear on the books, and against whom no charges can be preferred, announcing his intentions in open lodge to dissolve all connection with the Order and requesting that his name be erased from the roll? Simply an order given by the W. C. T. to the W. F. S. to erase the name from the roll.

Can a member who has violated Art. II. be re-obligated in a lodge to which he does not belong? Yes, on the request of his own lodge.

Can a member suspended for over four months for non-payment of dues, be re-instated without a vote of the lodge? No. (See Sec. 17 of Art. XII Con. Sub.)

Should the W. M. examine the W. V. T. and guards at the opening of the Lodge? No. The guards have been examined already and reported as correct and the W. V. T. is presumed to be entitled to remain.

Can a man whose wife in her own right, owns and rents a building for a liquor saloon, join the Order? Yes.

Does the Good Templars' obligation prohibit the use of fermented wine at the communion table? No.

Should the by laws be sent to the Executive for approval, when the amendment consists in changing the night of meeting only? Yes.

What are the objects of cards? The traveling card is used for visiting lodges outside of this jurisdiction and the withdrawal card to change membership from one lodge to another and thereby retain all honors possessed.

Has a lodge the power to require the payment of the initiation fee in advance? Yes.

Has a lodge by unanimous vote, without dispensation, the power to propose, elect and initiate a candidate at the same meeting? No.

Have the members the right to pass out of and into the lodge room at pleasure during recess? They have.

Is there any such a thing as electing a P. W. C. T.? There is not.

Can a member of one lodge join another before he severs his connection with the lodge to which he belongs? No. No one can be a member of two lodges at the same time.

Is there any extra fee for initiation of females by dispensation? No; unless the lodge has specially provided for one by their By Laws.

Is any power taken from the subordinate lodge as to degrees by the formation of a Degree Temple? None whatever—the Degree Temple is formed merely as a matter of convenience in conferring degrees.

Is there any provision for the change of trial from the accused member's lodge to some other lodge of our Order? No.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

C. N. GOULDING.

I arrived in Eureka Thursday June 1st and had the pleasure of visiting Humboldt Lodge (at a called meeting) that evening and thus forming the acquaintance of the members, and make my arrangements for work in the county. Bro. W. F. Brown D. Dpty. having left for Oregon with the assistance of Bro. W. T. Bonstell I arranged the route as published.

On the 2nd went to Arcata (12) miles and lectured to a large audience in the M. E. Church, on the 3d returned here and same evening returned to Arcata in company with 43 members of Humboldt Lodge who were paying a visit to North Star Lodge at Arcata. Left Arcata 11 P. M. rode two miles to the end of the wharf (in cars) where we had left the "Tug Boat" and was there informed by the captain that the boat would not leave until daylight, (owing to a dense fog that prevailed) how that night was passed on that wharf waiting and watching, will not soon be forgotten by those who participated, daylight came at last, and at 5 A. M. we landed on the wharf at Eureka, satisfied "that the best laid schemes of men and mice often gang awa."

It had been arranged by the clergyman to hold a union meeting on Sunday evening (the 4th) and Russ Hall one of the largest in the city was engaged for that purpose, and will only say that the hall was literally packed on the 4, 5. and 6th, and I done the best I could for the cause.

Eureka is cursed with 23 saloons and political influence enough to controll all municipal matters the result need not be told, as one of the beneficial results of the meetings a petition is now in circulation, and has received the signatures of many of the business men, asking for an enforcement of the law in all particulars, as regards these saloons. On the 7th, went to Trinidad (28 miles up the coast) lectured in the Good Templars hall to an audience of 150, obtained additional names for membership. The lodge here propose to hold on, they own their own building and furniture and while not advancing are holding their own."

On the 8th returned here giving up my appointment for the 8th, as I needed the rest. thus far in Humboldt county the work has been successful, I trust it may continue so.

Eureka, H. B., June 9, 1882.

GRAND LODGE OF W. T. AND B. C.

The G. L. of W. T. and B. C. will meet at Goldendale on Friday June 30th, 1882, at 10 o'clock A. M. On account of a fire having destroyed all the copies of the last proceedings, representatives and members are requested to bring copies with them. Half fare rates of travel have been applied for to the different transportation Cos. Hoping that there will be a large number in attendance, I am fraternally, JOS. CHILBERG, G. W. S., W. T. and B. C.

Olympia, W. T., May 29, 1882.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE MODESTO "HERALD."

The Herald deserves credit and that kind of appreciation which finds expression in its subscription list—for being in every respect a worthy and exemplary journal, and particularly for its Band of Hope Temperance Column which is so admirably filled by Bro. J. J. Porter, who has been the Moses and Aaron of the Band all along, but who says nothing about that.

Friend Wagstaff too, the proprietor, is of old a friend of temperance and made the Yolo Mail a power in Local Option times. As a sample of Bro. Porter's temperance department, that of last week is given almost entire:

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE.

As the Stanislaus District Lodge, I. O. G. T., will meet on Saturday next, a few suggestions in relation to the needs of the hour may not be out of place at this time.

Many members of the Order complain that the District Lodge is only a burden of expense upon the Subordinate Lodges, without the return of any good results. And this is undoubtedly true in some instances, as where the District embraces a large scope of territory, including several counties, rendering efficient work impracticable with the limited means at its disposal; and also in cases where District Lodges and their subordinates insist upon using the notorious Cheap John tactics.

The former example does not apply to this District, as it embraces only the County of Stanislaus, and it remains for the members of that body to determine whether they deserve the reputation of being "penny-wise and pound-foolish" temperance peddlers, or generous, open-hearted advocates, who never recognize defeat, but who earnestly and faithfully labor with their hands as well as with their tongues, for the salvation of their fellow beings from the great evil of intemperance.

It will be utterly impossible for the District Lodge to carry out the objects for which it was instituted unless a liberal financial support is rendered by the Subordinate Lodges. A ten cent capita tax per quarter is little enough to carry on the work in a proper manner thruout the District. This amount would enable the District Deputy to spend a portion of his time in visiting and strengthening weak Lodges, which under the Cheap John policy would soon cease to exist, as it would be almost impossible for them to receive any assistance outside of their own scanty resources. A system of visitation among the lodges should be planned out in detail and adopted—one which will not only be adopted but carried out by every lodge in the District at least once in each quarter. This will give the members encouragement to prosecute the work and an opportunity to exchange views and take united action upon any important subject that might arise between the meetings of the District Lodge. The subject of open lodge meetings should be seriously considered, and their importance strongly urged upon the delegates. And in this connection we suggest that a liberal distribution of temperance literature be made at such public meetings. We might just as sensibly undertake to carry on our public schools without text books as to endeavor to carry on the temperance work and educate the masses and mould public sentiment without the free use of sound temperance literature. The RESCUE, which is the organ of the Grand Lodge of California, is as staunch an advocate of our cause as is published in this country or elsewhere, and it will be furnished in packages of twenty or more for a mere fraction of the cost of publication. Also, the Vice Templars should be reminded that they fail to fulfil the duties of their office when they neglect to make a thorough canvass for subscribers to that valuable educator of public opinion once during their term of office.

But the most important work to be attended to is the organization and maintenance of Bands of Hope thruout the county. Every school district should have its Band of Hope, and the District Lodge should supply them, for the first quarter with a full supply of Cook's publications for the temperance education of the children. This is one of the best methods for the distribution of temperance literature and temperance doctrines among the people. And in order to carry out this branch of the work systematically, a District Superintendent of Juvenile Work should be elected by the Lodge, and his powers and duties clearly defined, so that he may go forth unhampered to prosecute the work in the most thoro manner thruout his jurisdiction. He should be a person who has the time to devote to it, and judgment enough to make good use of it. The Bands of Hope are never-failing sources of augmentation to the Lodges, as may be seen by the relative positions of the Lodge and Band here in Modesto, where 150 to 200 members of both organizations are weekly mingled together in their meetings discussing and forwarding the great cause of temperance.

"Save the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves," is a good old adage, which with a little change might be appropriately applied to the temperance work: Save the children and the adults will take care of themselves: or, save the Bands of Hope and the Lodges will take care of themselves. They will not resemble a stagnant pool of water without any source of life or vitality, struggling to sink away out of sight of its own uselessness, as too many of our Lodges do to-day.

Lodges can never be built up and sustained by the inebriates who enter their doors, for their strong appetites will prevent it, if unaided by more solid material; and there is not interest enough shown by the sober people of some localities to carry on the work to any advantage; to them the work is too tiresome after a few weeks of desperate effort; it is too expensive; it takes too much of their valuable time. Therefore those who are really in earnest and mean business should devote their time, energies and means to the raising up of men and women who will not weary and faint under the immense burden of their own shadows when they undertake to do any work for God or their fellow men.

OUR ANNIVERSARY.

To-day, June 1st, is the third anniversary of the organization of Morning Star Band of Hope, and it is exceedingly gratifying to those who have been interested in it from the beginning to know that notwithstanding the many discouragements thrown in its way, even by professing temperance men and women, it never was in a more prosperous condition than at the present time. Its future never presented a brighter picture than it does to-day.

Some of the boys and girls who have grown up in it are now taking the management of it into their own hands, and from the interest and energy manifested by them in the work, we have strong hopes that they will succeed in making it a self-sustaining, permanent and useful nursery for the cultivation of temperance and morality in the hearts and minds of the children of this community. The first year of its existence was one continued struggle to sustain life, and with three or four exceptions it was wholly ignored or neglected by the community at large. But by the persistent efforts of those few individuals, and the faithfulness of the children themselves, it gradually made its presence felt, and continued to increase in numbers and influence until it is to-day recognized by our most prominent citizens as the leading temperance society of the San Joaquin Valley. It is the only society of any kind, that was ever organized in Modesto in which the interest and enthusiasm was kept constantly on the increase for so long a period of time. During the first year its average attendance was about forty; the second year about ninety; and the third year one hundred and forty-three.

The Band enters upon its fourth year better equipped than ever before to prosecute the work for which it was instituted. It is well supplied with temperance literature and all the requisites to educate the children, together with an efficient corps of teachers, consisting of the young men and women members of the "Band of Hope Club," and who represent the life, the light and the strength of the temperance element in this locality, and many of whom have grown up in the Band of Hope, and whose interest in its prosperity has become part and parcel of their being.

Once during the period of its existence has the grim Reaper entered its fold and carried away one of its most beloved members. Mrs. J. L. Armstrong, its first Superintendent, departed to receive her reward in the New Jerusalem, on the 30th of March, 1882, honored and beloved and mourned by all who knew her.

The children of this Band are the handsomest, the cleanest, the healthiest, the smartest, neatest, and best in every respect that Modesto, or any other place, can produce; and it remains for their parents to determine by their actions whether they shall remain so, or be transformed into loathsome gutter-snipes by the rum-fiend into whose hands they have surrendered the government of the county.

U. K. BAND OF HOPE UNION.

There is frequently a page or two of the English temperance papers devoted to reports of the Band of Hope meetings and doings; and they are glorious reports. On May 10 there was a grand anniversary of the union named above, at Exeter Hall and it must have been very enjoyable for the most earnest "devotees" were there from 8 A. M. to 11 P. M.

The proceedings began with a magnificent breakfast in the lower room of Ex. Hall and that would seem to be an excellent plan of opening a Band of Hope day's services. A trained choir of 500 senior members of the Band of Hope were in attendance and rendered the choicest music.

A member of Parliament was to preside but being called away Mr. W. J. Armitage was called to the chair. He said among other good things, he had been in this work 25 years, he thot no man could be better employed than in the Band of Hope work. Drink was entirely banished for years past from his house, because all the household, even servants and children were tetotalers, which he believed was the proper way to bring up a family." The next speech is a very interesting one and is given entire.

"The Rev. Sampson Weaver (Wesleyan Methodist Temperance Committee) said, if he remembered rightly, it was in Leeds, in the year 1847, that the first Band of Hope was formed. As to Methodism he felt justified in saying that all the branches of the Methodist Temperance Church were resolutely resolved to rescue their own children, and as far as they could the children of others from the curse of drink. Almost every school had become a temperance hall; almost every Sunday-school had become a Band of Hope committee, and well-nigh every minister a temperance advocate; and the people had heard this trumpet-call of duty, and scores of thousands had echoed, 'We are ready—lead us on.' Every member of the Salvation Army was a total abstainer, and all the 'little soldiers' were the same. Speaking of the Primitive Methodist Church, they had enrolled 50,000 juvenile members in their Temperance Union. The Methodist Free Church did not give general statistics, and yet they had formed a Connexional Temperance Union, and for many years past had been laboring with all their might in this department. The Bible Christians had at least 12,000 children enrolled, and the Methodist New Connexion, the first church in this country, he believed, to organize Bands of Hope, had about 18,000 children, and others were operating in the same direction that didn't give a report. The Wesleyan Methodists first organized in the year 1877, and gathered in a plentiful crop—thanks to the seed sown by early workers. In their report on Bands of Hope, 202,000 children were given as members, and there were in connection with their 144 senior members' societies, over 9,000 members. Altogether, the Wesleyan Methodist Body had 211,000 children gathered into their Bands of Hope. Taking the various branches of the Methodist Church together, he was quite certain that there could not be less than half a million children now being trained in temperance. Many children had grown up and taken their places as temperance workers in various organizations in the country. Many who forgot their pledge later in life were yet leavened with temperance truth, and were thus ready to respond to such a movement as that of the Blue Ribbon Army. This movement in the Methodist Church had raised such men as J. H. Raper, T. H. Barker, Alderman Barlow, Alderman Charleton, and Wm. Hoyle, and his hearers would see from these specimens of the grapes of Eschol—(laughter)—that it was a goodly land. His own branch of the Church added 25,000 members in the past year, and he had no doubt a similar increase would be reported this year."

Mr. Robert Rae, (President of the Nat. Tem. Leag) in his speech called attention to the matter of teaching temperance in the public schools, saying that many intelligent people were observing that altho a large number of children were brot up in the habit of total abstinence, they had not been instructed in the reasons why they should abstain and many of them believing beer and wine to be harmless got into drinking habits. If we wish the children to be permanent abstainers we must teach them in the day schools why they should let these drinks alone. * * *

Mr. F. Sherlock (Ch. of Eng. delegate) made a plea for temperance literature. He referred to the report of a society, "that had expended $52.55 on teas and 60 cents for temperance literature. There ot to be a temperance book-stall at every meeting and children should be told off to distribute tracts and every Band should have a circulating library (David C. Cook has made that easy in America.) He venerated the old pioneers of temperance who were eminently tract distributors.

Then Major Lawrence, a veteran of the British Army, was there too and said "Drink was one of the greatest obstacles to Christian missions. Had been in India 20 years and an abstainer 9 years. In one battery he had lost one Sergeant and two were disgraced all thru drink; but things are now improving; Mr. Gelson Gregson is doing a mighty work in the Army and 18,000 to 20,000 men are abstainers. He denied that India had an unhealthy climate. It was Bass' ale to which the diseases of India were mostly due. England's rum kills more than India's sun. Many educated and intelligent natives are learning to drink rather freely."

Capt. Scriven of the training ship Shaftesbury was there too. The temperance lesson book is used on board and doing good service. He (the Capt.) was the first man to sign the temperance roll four years ago and four other officers are abstainers. About 600 boys had passed thru the ship since the Band was formed; 300 have gone to sea and he is constantly receiving letters from them; at least 6 of 10 tell him they are true to their pledge. He has a temperance evening every week on board, and a temperance sermon once a quarter.

The Rev. Dawson Burns made a pleasing and cheering address; said it was the sufferings of children that largely led to the formation of the temperance Alliance in England and the first total abstinence societies in England and Scotland were of young people.

Mr. Robertson of the Highland temp leag, said he is the first Gaelic lecturer on temperance. He had pledged 5,000 Highlanders last year and had received much sympathy from the ministers. The children were his best helpers; in one parish in the Isle of Skye, the children got up a meeting in which the minister, ruling elder and every one present signed the pledge.

Now that is certainly good news for the readers of the RESCUE. That seemed to be the end, but it turns out to be only the end of the forenoon session. There was an afternoon and an evening session too. Lots of grand men made grand speeches there. But there is no more room now till next week. Can't we get up something in California to beat that? certainly, some of these days we will.

LET US TAKE SOMETHING.

That is one of the commonest and silliest expressions in the world, and it is generally followed by the most sublimely silly acts by the parties concerned. Your friend used to find this a frequent annoyance among strangers or new acquaintances in various seaports of this world. His answer was frequently a proposal to give a dollar apiece to some charitable institution or to some case of destitution that was always in sight or close at hand; but that was never accepted, not even when it was modified down to giving a quarter apiece to the little boys in the street or to have our boots blacked six times right along, each at the expense of the other. No, but they would have taken six drinks right along in that way.

That used to be a favorite proposition of mine put this way when asked to go and take something: "Now let us call the first boot-black we see and he shall black our boots at your expense and then he shall do it again at mine. And then I'll say, 'Come, Johnny, we haven't met for a long time now, lets have another black,' and by the time we get thru, our friend Harry Johnson will come along, here he is now, and we will say, 'How are you old fellow, what ship, where are you from?' and so on. 'Well, Harry, we are right glad to see you; come have a black with us; "lets take something." Here, sonny, give us another black all round.' And then Harry will feel good, and before we part he will insist on having a first-class shine all round at his expense, and about then Steve Martin, my old shipmate, will perhaps drop along and we will have another shine with—'Stop, stop, that would be nonsense,' the man who wanted to take something would say, 'people would think us crazy.' Why, we should only spend our money for a thing that dont hurt us a particle and our money is going to help a poor boy perhaps to support his mother and sisters; it wont hurt us at all to get our boots shined six times apiece; but if we get drink for our money three or four times, it will do us no good and it will help a bad business to prosper and then people could call us crazy with good reason. Come, lets go and get shined and try how much better it is."

But no, they would not go, not one of them, never. They would laugh boistereusly over it and say it was true, and it was the funniest thing they ever ran against, and they would tell their friends about it, and they would laugh heartily over it too, and then they would not go out and take something from the honest bootblack, but they would take it at the bar of the man that sold blasphemy and blear eyes and broken noses. That was acting crazy.

ONLY A WOMAN DRUNK!

Only a woman drunk!
What of that? 'Tis a common sight;
Fifteen thousand a year of these.
Forty-one locked up each night,
Our civilised Christian London sees.
One taken, while nine in like plight
Sot on, or reel home at their ease.

Only a woman drunk!
But look at the children there,
Trooping behind with callous glee,
Mocking her curses which shrill through the air—
An object-lesson in paganry.
Free school of morals, a prospect fair
When wives and mothers these children be.

Only a woman drunk!
Why not? for a mother's "nourishing" stout,
And the sip of gin for a childish treat,
And the social glass of the "Sunday out,"
And the "drop together" when neighbors meet
In the course of nature will bring it about
That the innocent child grows the drab of the street.

Only a woman drunk!
Did the parents give precept alone?
Was the teacher cruelly dumb,
And gave for the bread of example a stone?
Was the right hand of sisterhood numb?
Did respectable friends merely utter a groan,
And always say "Go," never "Come?"

Only a woman drunk!
But somebody's sister, I think,—
And I had the sweetest of all
Till she married a rascal who taught her to drink—
Then strife—a divorce—deeper fall.—
But why am I drawn to this crowd? and yet shrink?—
Oh God! it is she—that thing whom they call
"Only a woman drunk!"

FALSEHOODS.

There is a certain class of newspapers that are always inventing or copying some funny story that tells an ingenious plot by which some miserable fraud or rascal cheated a victim; how boys cheated their father or school-master or how some fellow got goods from a store under false pretenses. But when these funny things cover up a cheat or a lie, their tendency is bad. Frauds and lies and dishonesties should never be spoken or written of without a serious protest against their wickedness, meanness and shamefulness. To speak of them as jokes or smart things is almost commending young folks to go and do likewise. And people are thus taught evil things which they would never have discovered themselves.

It is fashionable too to make up fancy lies of the wildest absurdity and attribute them to a Leadville man or a Bodie man or a Deadwood City man; where two or three men try who can lie the most and worst. There is no honest fun in a lie of any kind, and if one is so unfortunate as to hear what he thinks is a funny lie, the best thing he can do is to tell it to no one but strive to forget it. We should all be so much better and happier if we had never heard of a lie or a fraud or or a wrong of any kind, that the best thing we can do is to keep away from and discountenance and freeze out every thing of the kind.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Dear friends of the RESCUE. Here we are in a little nook among the hills, with the breath of old ocean wafted to us in health-giving gusts, and mountain and vale wearing the brightest, greenest dress, which we Californians appreciate so much, for we know that soon sombre russet will usurp the brilliant hues that now delight our eyes. Nature has indeed dealt kindly with this section of our coast. Inland new beauties rise in every varying aspect, with every mile traveled, and on the other hand the glorious Pacific in all its majesty and grandeur is spread out before our gaze.

On Sat. June 3rd, we reached Half Moon Bay and found the lodge assembled in a beautiful grove to celebrate its twentieth birthday. The Band of Hope marched to the platform singing a spirited song led by the voice of their efficient Supt., Mrs. Souther, and filled seats directly in front of the speakers' stand. The General Supt. was then introduced and addressed the Band of Hope and closed remarks with a song. After singing by Band, Sister Stevens delivered one of her ablest efforts which was interrupted with frequent applause and produced a profound impression on the audience. Another song by the band which showed that Sister Souther had spent much time in training them, was the closing exercise in the program. A meeting was held for the Band of Hope Sun. P. M. which resulted in 14 new members for the Band and the promise of others. Sat., Sun., and Mon. evenings Sister Stevens lectured to a large and enthusiastic audience. As the result of these efforts 19 members were initiated in Ocean Lodge, $16.50 contributed for Home and 16 subscribers for RESCUE.

Tues., the 6th, a meeting was held at San Gregorio resulting in 6 members for the lodge, 6 subscribers for RESCUE and a collection of $12. An excellent meeting, a very good audience for this place. There are some things in this world of ours that cannot be measured by their quantity, but by their quality. And so it is with these people. They are as good as gold. As unswerving in their devotion to the temperance cause as their hills, and as aggressive as old Ocean. More anon.

M. E. RICHARDSON.

San Gregorio, June 7, 1882.

"Only a glass of beer!" That is only one more dose of poison. The man who dies a drunkard is just as much a suicide as he who dies of opium or strychnine. One hundred thousand persons die thus from drink annually in these United States. If these died of strychnine or opium, think you that the traffic in these drug stores would not be prohibited? One thousand millions of the productive industry of this country is annually devoted to the sustenance of the "Liquor Traffic." This infamous traffic makes no return to industry for this sacrifice but an immense crop of vice, crime, want, misery, pauperism and death. Why then shall it not be prohibited? We ask the voice of the people to respond.—Anvil.

CAUTION.

RENEWALS FOR BAND OF HOPE SUPPLIES.

We desire to call your attention to the fact, that, while in ordering Sunday-school literature, one always orders for the then current quarter for "Band Supplies" it is difierent. No matter what time in the year a Band is organized, it is always expected to commence its lesson with the "first quarter," and for the following reasons:

The lessons for that quarter are upon the subject of starting Bands, and commence to teach temperance from the very first principles. Gradually, as the first, second and third quarters are reached, the scope of the lessons widens as the ability of the pupil to understand the subject develops. So on through each succeeding year. Therefore it is essential in ordering or renewing, to state definitely which quarter the supplies are for, otherwise there is liable to be great confusion. It is understood that these suggestions refer to the Band of Hope Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterlies, the "Red, White and Blue," and "Crystal Fountain"; the two last named being companions to the first named. We trust that we shall receive your renewal at the time of expiration each quarter, and that you will kindly assist us by keeping the above hints in mind.

F. shoots and wounds his comrade and an officer.....Another prize fight on Sunday in New York, lasting 1½ hours.....Mate of a bark kicked to death in San Francisco by a drunken watchman.

That was what got into the papers. The beer and whisky of the Leag doutless committed 10,000 other outrages, cruelties and crimes that did not get into court or into print.

BABCOCK SIDE.

A MAN called to subscribe for another copy of the RESCUE. He joined the Good Templars about 13 years ago; his financial standing at that time was: assets, $4.25; liabilities, $12.75. He has been on the Babcock side of the controversy ever since and now his assets are $30,000 in the Napa Valley and as much more elsewhere.

AN EXPRESSMAN was employed by a poor widow to move her and her only property, a sewing machine, 6 children and a few little household traps to another dwelling. But the Leag men interviewed the expressman, made him tipsy and he broke the sewing machine, but did not pay a cent of damages and the widow could earn no bread till she found a Sunday law man to pay the $2.50 repairs; that was one of the taxes the leag imposes upon the sober citizens. And they had taxed the woman for 12 years with a drunken husband, too.

During the week a vast amount of charitable work has been done by the Sunday-law, sober, Christian people on the Babcock side feeding and helping the poor women and children whose husbands, fathers, brothers and sons have been depraved and poisoned and robbed by the Leag of Sunday-breakers and traitors to the public welfare. Temperance and the representatives of the American Home have been abroad in all parts of the state.

It is confessed that the work of the Schaffer crowd has been more voluminous than the Babcock side this week; but some time will elapse before the votes are counted next fall.

ANOTHER GHOST REVIVED.

"Prohibition in Maine is a failure." Thirty years ago that cry was started and most thoroly proved to be false. But next day it came up as fresh and bold as ever. Every time some miserable anonymous traitor to humanity has affirmed the lie, the virtue and morality and Christianity of that State has most carefully and elaborately proved its utter wicked falsehood. Neal Dow has written volumes disproving it. For 20 years almost, every governor, congressman, senator and respectable prominent citizen of Maine has kept on industriously disproving it. It may be doubted whether there is any thing in existence more thoroly established by the most complete and indisputable evidence, than the positively beneficent results of the Maine Law in Maine. No body knows the name or residence of any person who says a word to deny it, yet every week or two somebody repeats the old ten thousand times exploded donkeyism; but the author hides behind a hedge.

Similarly people act about Scripture wine and communion wine. If there is not evidence abundant to prove that the ancients, Jews and other nations, drank the natural juice of the grape and ate fruit without making it into whisky, if the evidence is not very strongly in favor of the assertion that fermented wine was always accursed and the natural wholesome wine solely used on passover and communion occasions, we have not evidence sufficient to establish the truth or probability of a single declaration of either sacred or profane history.

A few barroom contortions of Scripture were patented 40 or 50 years ago that were quite liable to impose upon innocent, honest people, who supposed the Bible was written in English and is word for word and letter for letter just as God dictated it. If these imaginary contradictions and absurdities were really found in the Bible, if Christ drank the poison of asps and patronized drunken frolics, and elevated the cup of devils, the wine of God's wrath, the chief agent of sin and debauchery and all uncleanness on earth—to the highest place among holy things, there was a terrible dout to be encountered as to the reliability or validity of the Scriptures.

But the moment Christian scholarship addressed itself to the question, every dout vanished; every dark sentence was made clear as day. We know that fermented wine was only used for the purpose of drunken debauchery and devil worship; forbidden at passover and in any and every religious service. Its users were contemptuously classed with gluttons and harlots. It was a crime to use it at the passover, and if Christ knew what it really was, and he must have known exactly, if he was what he professed to be, it was then as much a crime to make that debauching poison, to use it, to commend it, to give it to others, to countenance its use, as it is to-day.

Still we are not positively told that he did not use the cup of devils, but we may well suppose, when innocent, pure, healthful wine, the choicest of the luxuries of Gods provision for man, was present in abundance, that he used that in preference to a poisonous, filthy, criminal artificial product of rotten grape sugar. It is not expressly denied that he gambled or did many other wicked things, but because it is not mentioned, we are not to suppose he did one inconsistent thing more than another.

But after all these things have been explained by hundreds of writers for 40 years, every week or so some prophet comes up who has never heard that the Bible was not written in English and he tells us the same old twaddle that was cogitated out in the bar-room at the birth of the temperance reform.

The latest is F. A. G. who prophesies in the Good Templar Record, (Maine), and corrects the editor of that paper, who has been guilty of telling the truth about communion wine. He says the verdict of the world's highest scholarship "is pure assumption." "That the scholarship of the Christian world is overwhelmingly against the theory that two kinds of wine were in ancient use." Now if he knew anything at all of the matter, he would know that it is only the donkey-ship of the Christian world that is against it. There is not a single respectable, competent scholar who has examined the subject, that is against it, and no man dares to assail it upon any other ground than random, childish, foolish assertions like those of F. A. G.

He says "unfermented wine is not clean nor even savory unless made frequently and it would not be practicable to keep it from harvest to harvest; only fermentation can make it cease to be unclean and unsavory." And the fermented rot "was used in those ancient days for food and medicine." All of which is entirely the reverse of the truth and the writer of it has not one single authority for any of it, but the volunteer assumption of his own uneducated imagination.

He wrings in, too, that old delusion "one is hungry and another is drunken." He has never heard that the word there translated drunken means really satiated and that a man cannot get drunk on bread.

F. A. G. may be a very intelligent man on other subjects. But he is like thousands of other intelligent men, sadly at sea on this one subject; just as far as the editor of the RESCUE would be, if he set about the task of correcting the geographical statements in Stanleys travels in Africa. As far at sea as if he had said the whole Christian world is agreed that a tree never grew in the State of Maine, and saw-mills and ships and the prohibitory law are all "pure assumption." But if he desires to know the truth, he can find it in "Wines" by Dr. Norman Kerr; 25 cents, "Bible Wines" by Dr. Sampson and other works to be had at 58 Reade St, New York. It is a pity for any gentleman in glorious old Maine to be so misled and mistaken and blindfolded.

WINE AUTHORITIES.

A Santa Cruz paper gives a few quotations from writers asserting some good properties for fermented wine. But they are all dead men. What we want is a live man who is at all an authoriey and asserts that wine serves any other purpose than to create disease and crime and pauperism. We want a man who will tell us of any wine or beer country where the wine or beer ever did anything but deprave, debauch, disease and utterly pauperize and kill the people.

Baron Liebig is one of the quoted, but if he did say it was good as a medicine in some cases, he never said it was useful as a food or beverage, for he knew better. And if he had said so his authority would be good for nothing against 100 modern scientists and medical celebrities of the first class and scholarship and experience and millions more of the most intelligent people.

Dr. G. Guyot, whoever he was, is reported as saying that "an artisan will do more work and more intelligently on 2lbs of bread and 2lbs of wine, than on 4lbs of bread with water. If there ever was any Guyot who said that and believed it, he was a very plenteous specimen of the fool. An artisan who uses 2lbs of wine to 2lbs of bread would be an incapable idiot and drunkard, while one with only water to his 4lbs of bread would have a diet upon which he could display the largest amount of activity, endurance and intelligence.

Dr. H. W. Bellows is quoted also; a man who had no greater experience on the subject than that of being a wine bibber and an enthusiastic wine worshipper, and his testimony on any subject connected with wine was utterly worthless and incompetent, as is that of every other wine drinking Reverend or layman. His statements as to France and Germany were utterly the reverse of true, altho a traveler might travel there in first-class cars and first-class hotels and make a similar report from his own mere eye sight, confined to those opportunities.

"After bread comes wine, second aliment given by the Creator for the support of life" is credited to Oliver De Serres. Not being acquainted with that anointed prophet he is accepted readily as a truthful man, because Oliver Cromwell and Mr. Warren Oliver of San Jose have both been strictly honest and truthful men; and of course Oliver De Serres must be so too. But he must have been slightly misinformed; for wine is not next to bread as an aliment; nor is it an aliment at all; nor did the Creator ever give or make a drop of it; nor can it ever support life, except that the water part of it does a little; the alcohol which makes the water wine only destroys life. The rest of Oliver's testimony is all right.

Adam Smith is called on the stand and is made to say that the Spaniards and Italians are the most sober people in Europe. They may possibly be so, and still be very drunken; if they are not the most drunken people possible, it is because their wine production and wine drinking has so tremendously and comprehensively and universally and stupendously pauperized them as a people in body, soul, brains, morals, intellect, character, home, furniture, wardrobe, wages, religion, patriotism—that the little fortune of five cents which is necessary to purchase enough aguardiente to make one drunk—is a most difficult and rare thing for them to raise. And all the sobriety they manifest is the result of a lack of means to get drunk. There can never be much continuous drunkenness in a country where the wages of a laborer are 20 cents a day, half payable in wine; but there will be and is an egregious amount of pauperism and beggary and debauchery and crime.

Then comes Plutarch. Of course we could not dispute anything said about medicine 1,900 years ago. That is taking an unfair advantage of us to dig up Plutarch. If Plut. had only been dead about 300 or 400 years, it might have been allowable to differ from him, or to dout the accuracy of his conclusions on wine. But if anyone supposes the Rescue so lost to all sense of modesty and propriety and decency and so deficient in respect to age and experience as to be guilty of the impertinence of douting the absolute infallibility of anybody who has been dead so long as 1,900 years, it does this journal a monstrous and cruel injustice. If Mr. P. 1,900 years ago really did say something about grapes or grape juice or wine, that ends it and whisky is the only beverage. Noah drank wine too and its effect upon him was delightful. And then there was Lot, he was an expert on wine too.

BREWERS TACTICS.

The drunkard makers pursue their master's favorite tactics of falsehood with a remarkable unity of method all over the Union. During the early period of the rebellion at a time when the Eastern press knew that Genl. Neal Dow was a prisoner of war at Ship Island, a paragraph like this went the round of many Eastern papers without comment; "On Thursday of last week Neal Dow was arrested for (or convicted of?) stealing a number of watches and silver spoons." It did not say General Neal Dow but the whisky collared journals intended to please their masters by leading ignorant people to believe that he was really a thief. It is not known whether the paragraph was a pure invention or whether some arrested thief did assume that name. If any journal was honest enough to rebut the scandal this witness did not hear of it.

Aagin in the absence of any possible argument against the law which seeks to put a stop to the robbery and murder which the beer and rum trades carry on on Sunday, the leag of outlaws found it necessary to embellish their case by blasting the character of one of the most active members of the Home Protection Association, and they fixed upon Col. Babcock. They did prove that Mr. Shaeffer, Grand Lecturer of the F. and A. Masons, and President of the drunkard maker's leag, went to Col. Babcock's office to enter into some Benedict Arnold negotiations with him and was unable to corrupt him. And Col. Babcock had reported weeks previously to three of the leading members of the Association, that the Leag were making or seeking to make overtures to buy him or trade with him.

In Iowa a Mr. C. C. Burnett, recently a minister and claiming himself to be one still, was hired for $1,000 to deliver 50 lectures in Iowa against prohibition. He was to argue the case publicly too with John B. Finch, G. W. C. T. of Nebraska. On the platform he declared he was not hired or paid for this work, but was doing it as a temperance man from consciencious motives and at the invitation of friends. Mr. Finch here drew a letter of Mr. Burnetts out of his pocket, which he had written stating his agreement of $1,000 with the rummies and offering one Sobieski to enter into a similar agreement for Illinois.

This clear proof of his falsehood rather disconcerted Mr. Burnett, but he was equal to the occasion. He now publishes and so do the drunkard makers, a letter of his own to a minister in which he begins, "You and I are both ministers of the Lord Jesus Christ, and personally very good friends," and then advises him not to have any thing to do with Finch who he says was tried for a base and scandalous crime in his own town, Lincoln, Neb. Of course the charge is utterly false and baseless, but the brewers and distillers will use a good deal of the corruption and bribery fund they subscribed for Iowa, in publishing this document over a Reverend signature, with a hope of its helping to defeat the amendment.

By the way it is interesting to note the reverence which the drunkard makers and Sunday outlaws have for ministers. They place such implicit reliance on their reputation for truthfulness and integrity and good judgment, that they greedily pick up a cast off, used up, renegade, expelled, foresworn, characterless, shipwrecked preacher, hire him at a good salary, publish him and his jargon of falsehoods all over the country, as the very highest and most respectable authority and advocate they can produce on their side. "Who can distrust us" they say "when we have hired a minister of the blessed gospel to be our Balaam."

If they have such a respect for an apostate, what a profound veneration they must have in their hearts for the uncorrupted reverend.

SANTA ANA.

The Herald reports a large assemblage of the citi zens at Temple Hall to discuss the Sunday law question. Rev. E. Dunbar, Chairman. Many present freely expressed their opinions, uniting in the belief that "the law is not in the interest of any religion or sect, neither was it intended as an attack on any legitimate business, but that it was simply enacted in the interest of society and of the State, for the welfare of her citizens merely as a civil Sabbath, to secure one day of rest in seven for all."

One party attempted a disturbance "by uttering the most infamous blasphemy against the Christian religion and its author, and by making personal and slanderous charges against the churches, their ministers and members present, yet the party who gave vent to his impious wrangle soon found that he was left destitute of followers or sympathy, and although the saloons of the town were fully represented, to their credit be it said that they manifested indignation at the offender and refused to listen to the slanderous harangue. The following resolution was submitted, and carried without a single opposing vote: Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the interest of society and of the State demand a civil Sabbath law to secure a day of rest independent of any religious or temperance consideration. The meeting adjourned with the utmost harmony and good feeling, and judging from the unanimity of the meeting and from the sentiments expressed, it is safe to predict that any person opposed to a Sabbath law, who, in the coming political campaign will seek the suffrages of the citizens of Santa Ana valley, for any judicial or legislative office will count without mine host."

That utterance does credit to the citizens of Santa Ana. To people seeking a home, a home among a people of that stamp is worth twice the money that a similar one is in a Sunday horseracing, Sunday drunkery community. To bring good, worthy, honest thrifty settlers to Santa Ana that little item well spread abroad should be considered of more value than a blazing two colum advertizement for a year.

It affords a pleasure to count the Herald among the good citizen papers that don't desire this country to be sold out to the Sunday debauchers for a pauper garden.

NEW PAPER.

The prospectus of The National Prohibitionist is received. It is to be a 32 page weekly on a good quality of tinted paper; the pages about 2 inches shorter and 1 inch narrower than those of the Rescue. 50,000 sample copies will be sent out of first number; address 92 Chambers St. N. York City. $2.50 a year. It is to have a division for every division of the temperance army; Radical prohibition will be advocated and the paper will be open to the discussion of all practical reforms, to have a home and childrens dep. science, art and book reviews, a business dep. and a market report. It promises to be a a very thorogoing temperance journal and with the enlarged interest awakened of late in the question of the most important of all reforms, there would seem to be a field for it. Wm. McK. Gatchell and Rev. C. W. Cushing D. D. are editors, and Frank W. Farran business manager. 24 pages of the 32 are to be reading matter.

Brother A. Peterson who is the translator of our work into Swedish, and publishes a Swedish temperance monthly in New York, regrets that some means are not provided for the circulation of Swedish and German temperance literature. He says they would appreciate and accept it, but now having no reliable means of information they side with those who condem us as "too radical." And the temperance advocates among them are so few that they themselves lack the means to instruct the rest, and therefore the foreign rum-sellers are so many, believing it to be an honest occupation, and being endorsed by their friends and countrymen in that opinion.

People in Ventura County would do well to patrotize a thoro temperance man when purchasing furniture, pictures, household ornaments etc., as well as farming machinery of every kind. Dont fail to call on Bro. H. D. Ley, Main St. near Post Office Ventura. He is a subscriber to the Rescue and if any one wishes to see the paper he will show them a copy and gladly take their name and subscription price (only $1,25 for a year, 52 numbers.) W.

THE HOP-PICKER'S SABBATH.

No. 40.

Sabbath desecration is one of the great evils connected with the production of supplies for the manufacture of beer. To say nothing of hop-growing and hop-picking as being in complicity with beer-making, the relation it sustains to Sabbath-breaking demands the attention of Christians and all supporters of morality. The season of picking is especially involved in this evil. As the work must be done on time, a large force of pickers are imported into the community where hop-growing is the prevailing business. Among these are some well-bred, Sabbath keeping people, but the most represent the lower strata of society found in our towns and cities. These people, in numbers from twenty to one hundred, are provided for in the homes of their employers—a fact which will suggest Sabbaths full of business for the employers and of lawlessness with the consumers. The employers no doubt aim to control those on their premises; but the peace of neighborhoods and the rights of individuals suffer.

Hop-picking is not only profitable, but popular; so that nearly all families of the community are more or less engaged in it. The old and the young are in the yards early and late. This leads to a press of household duties, so that in some homes domestic affairs are crowded into the Sabbath—washing, ironing and baking in order that all the members of the family may be ready to start early Monday morning for the hop-yards. Beside this, the hops picked on Saturday must be dried; and this requires the attention of one person. Taking all these things into account, many employers justify themselves and their families for absenting themselves entirely from the church and Sunday-school during the picking season; and ministers have been known to omit the Sabbath service for lack of attendants.

Facts are telling. Only those of an eye-witness will be given, and without exaggeration. Clothes have been repeatedly put upon the line to dry at one home, where all the members of the household attend entirely to hop-picking; and the same signs have been seen near many other houses, while music and dancing may be heard on the Sabbath evening. The conscience becomes obtuse by continuance in practices not in harmony with one's own convictions of right and wrong.

There is a class of hop-growers and of women, connected with Christian Temperance Unions, who engage in picking, while doubting in their own hearts the legitimacy of their business. Their convictions are against the promotion of the beer-traffic and a business that leads to direct Sabbath desecration. If their courage was equal to their convictions, they would soon find their way out of what is admitted by themselves to lead to many evils with their blighting influences.

"He that regardeth not iniquity in his heart," and with "clean hands" seeketh the way, shall be enlightened by the Blessed Spirit, which always worketh in harmony with the conscience and highest convictions of right. May the claims of right and consistent temperance principles gain the victory in all hearts.

WE ARE SICK.

Sick of what? Sick of seeing so much nastiness in our exchanges. Sick of beholding the degradation into which journalism has fallen or rather out of which it has never risen. How few newspapers are there in the land fit to be put into the hands of youthful innocence and purity! Instead of being a sweet and refreshing fountain of pure delights and noble sentiments, the Press to-day is rather the universal gutter through which circulate all the filth, poison and moral leprosy bred in the lowest cesspools of human abandonment and vice. Young minds, whose ideas are chaste, can not drink in this flow of pestilential poison without becoming moraly diseased, without losing their reverence for things sacred, without acquiring a debasing familiarity with the ways of gross sensuality and depravity. If the journals of the age were disposed to put the world before us fairly in all its phases, high as well as low, good as well as bad, the evil would not be so great. But no! A noble hearted philanthropist endows an orphan's asylum with a hundred thousand. The fact goes a partial round of the Press in a few short and obscure lines, as if it were of little consequence. But let a miserable brute in human form accomplish the disgrace and ruin of some frail girl and immediately the scandal is heralded in minute detail and in flaming headlines. Upon such an affair will the journalistic scavenger pounce with the rapacity of a vulture upon the putrifying carcass of a dead sheep. The nastier, the more revolting and cruel the circumstances, the keener his delight. How flippantly he spins out with vulgar directness the details of the sad and unholy affair, picturing it in a way to pander to lustful thoughts without evoking a tear of compassion or a sentiment of righteous indignation. "But," says the journalistic vulture, "the people demand such reading and they call upon me to supply them with it." If this be true, an immoral Press has aggravated and stimulated this vile popular passion for scandal by continually nursing and feeding it. The editor who shamelessly acknowledges that he only follows in the wake of the common rabble and never aspires to direct or to mould public sentiment for the better, disgraces the noblest and grandest of professions. The world is filled with dishonorable callings that flourish upon the weakness and vices of humanity, and it makes us sick at heart to think that our beloved profession should adopt the parisitic and debased characteristics of such vocations. As for us, when we find that it does not pay to run a clean newspaper we will abandon the business to those who chase the almighty dollar with greater avidity, and who take less pride in the record of an honorable life.—Lodi Sentinel.

PROHIBITION IN KANSAS.

The following is a copy of a letter just received from Gov. St. John by Rev. J. R. Bowen, of Sears, Mich.

State of Kansas, Executive Department,
Topeka, May 16, 1882.

Rev. J. R. Bowen, Sears, Mich.—Dear Sir:—In view of the fact that I receve, on an average, at least a half dozen letters each day making inquiry in relation to prohibition in Kansas, it is impossible for me to reply to each in detail. Suffice it to say that the last year of license sent to our penitentiary 109 more convicts than were received there the first year of prohibition.

Prohibition has closed 25 or 30 breweries, a large number of wholesale liquor houses, and has driven the last distillery from our State. Such a good result was never accomplished under license laws. The increase in the valuation of taxable property in the State has been very great.

Our people have been enabled to pay up their taxes more closely under prohibition than under the old license system.

The A. T. & S. F. R. R. Co., one of the largest corporations in the West, increased its earnings about 43 per cent the first year of prohibition. We sold on an average 45 acres more school land each day of 1881 under prohibition than we did for 1880 under license. Out of the 81 organized counties of Kansas, it is safe to say that in at least 65 of them the prohibitory law is as faithfully enforced as any other law on our statute books.

We are having splendid immigration. Kansas was never more prosperous. The friends of temperance in this State are exceedingly well pleased at the result of prohibition. It is a success, and the whisky ring of this country knows it; otherwise it would not be expending hundreds of thousands of dollars of its ill-gotten gains to defeat the measure here and in other States. You need have no fear of the result here.

Kansas never takes any steps backward.

Our cause is just and the victory will be for the people.—John P. St. John, in the Lever.

The Western Brewer makes the following prediction in regard to the result in Iowa, next June, of the vote on prohibition: "But the Christian pirates had determined to confiscate the trade in Iowa, and coolly proceeded to their game by adopting the bill to the people in November. Here they have rested on their arms. As regards the outcome at the polls, it takes no prophetic eye to forecast the result. The Christian pirates have determined to confiscate the property of the brewers, the lawful accumulation of years of industry. Will the liberal citizens of Iowa, of the United States, stand by and allow this spoliation? Probably. For over it floats the banner of religion, and the all-powerful Church and preacher is in the background. It is, nevertheless, as despicable and unlawful a piece of robbery as was ever committed on earth." The above is a choice specimen of the manner in which the apologists of the saloon interests treat the friends of temperance. Let the brewers turn their great buildings into manufactories for something useful.—Mo. News.

The Rowdyism and mob law instigated by the Leag of Fiendom is active in England as in this country. The leag there hires mobs to assault and stone the Salvation Army (because they preach temperance) and the rum appointed magistrates take the part of the mob. The latest in this line is the arrest of an officer of the S. Army for selling the War Cry (the Rescue of the Army) in the street, claiming that he obstructed the thorofare; the magistrate remanded the case which was an actual sentence of imprisonment, but of course the case coming up before a more respectable judge was dismissed. It has made much comment in London that the magistrates should take part with the whisky mob and suffer the arrest of a party for selling a religious paper in the street. This is only one of many instances of magisterial persecution and Sir Wilfrid Lawson and others protest against these outrages. It is the temperance feature not the religious that is persecuted.

Sir W. Lawson and his Tenant.—The Cumberland papers print a story respecting Sir W. Lawson and one of his tenants. The honourable baronet's steward reported that one of the farms had been recently re-let on a ten years' lease, at an increased rental of $400 per annum. Sir Wilfrid inquired who was responsible for the improvement, and was told that it had been effected by the tenant, upon which he wrote out and sent to him a cheque for $4.000. The act reflects honor upon the worthy baronet, and we heartily wish that every landlord in the kingdom had the will and the means to act likewise.—Live Stock Journal.

The Rev. H. Landsell in a book on Siberia says that in some parts of Russia a confirmed hopeless drunkard is reported to the Government by his fellow citizens to be sent to Siberia, and unless he can show good reason to the contrary, he has to go. That is a good paternal Government like ours; charters drunkard mills all over the country and then punishes the poor wretches that are caut in its own traps.

OREGON.

Office of Grand Secretary, I. O. G. T.,

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

PARKER'S
SALVATION POWDERS!

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

ALL CAN BE SAVED FROM THE TERRIBLE APPETITE FOR INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge of the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills, at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

REVOLUTION!

GREAT BOOK DISTRIBUTION OFFER!

To induce the scattering of temperance literature, temperance books furnished for a song, and sent by mail direct to individuals societies, or interested individuals, sending us the names and addresses of parties together with name of the book they wish sent to each. Saves society distributing; books more likely to command reading; more systematic; costs less, etc. We will send any two or more of the books mentioned below, each to a separate address, for 8c. each; five or more, 7c. each; twenty-five or more, 6c. each; fifty or more, 5½c. each; one hundred or more, 5¼c. each; two hundred or more, 5c. each. This price includes the book, cost of mailing and everything. The books are either original or choicest reprints, in paper covers, of book worth at prices charged by others in cloth covers, from 75c. to $1 50 each.

Drinks from Drugs.—An immense book for the temperance cause—none like it.

The Liquor Traffic and the Sober Citizen.—The effect of the liquor traffic in a new light.

The Liquor Traffic and Crime.—Reprint of Richmond's celebrated "Leaves from the Diary of an old Lawyer," in telling prohibition work.

Rachel Noble's Experience.—A very effective temperance tale. Relating the experiences of a governess in a brewer's family.

The Curse of Telfourd.—An original story of practical temperance work.

Digging a Grave with a Wine Glass.—A most thrilling and effective story; better than a whole volume of sermons.

W. C. T. U. Organization and Work.—All about starting and successfully working a Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Liquor Laws of Illinois, with decisions touching them in various States; everywhere helpful in the enforcement of law.

Any other books published by the "Revolution" sent at same rates; send for a complete catalogue. Sample copy of each of the above books sent to one address for 40c., postpaid; single sample, 10c.

An Appeal.—We want to reach temperance people with our catalogue—such as will be likely to assist in scattering temperance literature when furnished for so little. Please send us names of any such; it will cost but a postal card and a little time. Address, The Revolution Temperance Publishing House, 148 Madison St. Chicago.

SNUFFED OUT.

A clipping received which appears to be from a recent California paper, name unknown, says the temperance question threatened at one time to be an issue in politics, but the charges made by the Leag of F. against one of the leading Home Protectionists "have snuffed it out."

In all the disgusting and blood-stained catalog of the demoralizing and brutalizing effects of the liquor traffic upon our people, there are none more alarming than the miserable whisky-generated slavishness with which so many journalists will repeat and endorse and publish any defamatory lie which they think will tend to injure the cause of temperance. The most openly self-evident impossibilities and falsehoods are published to falsify the results of prohibition in Maine and Kansas and all truth on the subject rigidly suppressed; and the lowest wretches of the gutter can bring without the least shadow of foundation or probability a charge of infamy against an advocate of temperance, who was never in his life tainted with a breath of suspicion; and the scavengers of the press who wear the dog-collar of the beer-barrel will herald it as undoubted truth without a moments hesitation.

And there has been no baser act in the history of unprincipled and dishonest journalism than the affirmation of guilt passed upon Col. Babcock by a portion of the press on a mere charge of an individual who had the strongest interest in concocting a villainous plot, who had not a particle of evidence or probability to support him, and who would, in any country but this, be in the penitentiary in a striped dress, had he there been guilty of the crimes in which he glories here to-day.

And when a malicious slander has been thoroly exploded, the slanderers keep repeating it just the same. Had the charges against Col. Babcock been true, it could have in no wise affected the Home Protection Association or its purposes in the judgment of any honest or decent person. But the wife-beaters and drunkard-makers leag concocted the infamy, thinking it would injure the cause, and when they take snuff, their buzzards of the press obediently sneeze.

PROFESSOR GARDNER ON HARD TIMES.

"Dis mawnin,' ez I war walkin' out among the sun flowers in de back yard,"began Bro. Gardner, as the janitor of the Lime Kiln Club finally got thru sneezing, "Mister Darius Green, the white man, come 'long, and dare was a powerful sad look on his face ez he leaned ober de fence and said:

'Mister Gardner, this sufferin' hez got to come to a cease!'

'Hez ye got de shakes an' chills? I axed.

'Wus dan dat, Mister Gardner, Ize workin' all de long week for ten shillin' a day 'an whar de money goes I can't tell. De ole woman wants new clothes, de chillin wants dis an dat, de rent runs behin,' an' Ize gettin' despirit.'

'Shoo! now let's make some figgers on de fence,' I tole him. Now den you chew terbaccer?'

'Yes, I chew 'bout ten cents worf a day.'

'Dat's seventy cents a week. An' you drink lager?'

'Wel, of course I drink a glass now and den—maybe fifteen glasses a week.'

'Dat's seventy-five cents moah, sah. What d'ye do on Sundays?'

'Oh, go up to the beer garden.'

'An' you spen' a dollar at least?'

'I guess so—maybe two of 'em.'

'Say twelve shillins' an' dat makes two dollars an' ninety-five cents per week. I reckon you frow away at least free dollars ebery week, sah.'

'Frow it away.'

'Yes sah, dat money would pay your rent an' buy your flour.'

'But a feller must have some comfort.'

'De same, sah. De greatest comfort in de world am to see de rent paid up, de table loaded down, an' de ole woman able to go to church. You frow away free dollars ebery week, sah, an' den you go roun' cussin' de times, de wedder an' de man who hez saved his money.

Gem'len, dat white man called me an ole black fool an' a dog stealer, but dat didn't alter de case a bit. He is frowin' away one-third of his weekly wages, an' den blowin round dat he's gettin' desperit an' am ready to head a riot. Doan' let me heah eny member of dis club spinnin' dat yarn, case if he does dars gwine to be a committee of investigashun, an' dat committee won't whitewash wuf a cent!'

NO PUBLIC-HOUSES.

Mr. E. O. Greening, in the Co-operative News, gives a description of Saltaire from his own observation. He writes: "Sir Titus Salt turned the waste steam of his factory and the spare steam power to account to wash the clothes of his little colony of 800 houses, and so relieve the wives and daughters of Saltaire from the slavish drudgery of the washtub, and their husbands and fathers from the nuisance of 'washing days.' I cannot really find space to describe the churches and chapels, with their school-rooms and institutes; the Horticultural Society, with its flower shows; the Angling Association, for which a well-filled trout stream is provided; the fire-brigade and rifle corps, which have their appropriate buildings; the cricket club, for which there is a proper field of five acres; the various musical associations, the sick clubs, or even the fine public park of fourteen acres, inclusive of the cricket ground. Suffice it to say that in this park there are pavilions, bowling greens, croquet lawns, tasteful flower beds, masses of shrubs, pretty walks, and in fact provision for every kind of outdoor summer recreation.

But I must ask you, before we leave, to walk with me down some of the streets or avenues of the town, and peep into some of the dwellings. No single-room or two-room abodes of crowded discomfort here. The houses are of various sizes, but all are pretty and all contain at least one kitchen and scullery for work, one parlor for leisure, and three good bedrooms. You hear the people inside practising their musical part-singing, or laughing and talking in equally tuneful tones. No dirt, no discomfort, no squalid women, no unshaved men in shirt sleeves, no uncombed, barefooted children, and —no public-houses! No, not one in all Saltaire! A Permissive Bill in actual force in an English town of 4,500 inhabitants. I recommend the solemn-sides of Parliament, who repeat, parrot-like, every session—as tho they were talking the essence of unutterable wisdom—that "you cant make men sober by Act of Parliament," to spend a portion of the present recess at Saltaire. After they have studied the results of surrounding men and women and children with conditions favorable to sobriety and virtue, they will be hardened indeed in the 'practical' wisdom, if they do not pause before the solemn mausoleum of the great good 'theorist' who lies buried in the midst of his people and of his glorious works, and recant before that hallowed tomb somewhat of their confident no-faith."—Temp. News.

"The suit brought by Marx P. Schetzel, the Sunday Law man, against Justice Ryan and the Kreling Bros., to recover $10,000 damages for alleged malicious prosecution, will come np this morning before Judge Lawler for trial."—Wifebeaters Organ. That is a sample of the methods of the convicts at large who tried to bribe Col. Babcock and now accuse him of dishonesty. To call Schetzel "the Sunday Law man" when he is the own hired tool of the ring of outlaws and conspirators who want to break up our Sunday for the sole purpose of drugging the working men on that day, stealing their weeks wages and sending them home to beat their starving wife and children. The wife beaters organ makes an outcry against the Chinese too, as if everybody did not know that the beer dives and rumholes are an infinitely nastier and meaner plague and nuisance and leprosy than ever came from China. These ruffians who try to blacken Col. Babcock ot to know that if he was really guilty of the infamous charges they make, he would still be a mile above their grade of moral ragamuffinism.

The beer bill of Germany begins to excite comment at home. A member of the German parliament observed that the "armed peace" from 1872 to 1880 had cost five milliards of marks ($1,250,000,000), whereupon the North German Gazette said that in the same time six and one-half milliards worth of beer and nearly a milliard worth of brandy had been consumed—a drink bill of $1,800,000,000.—Leavenworth Times. And yet we are told that in Germany, where beer-drinking is universal, stronger drinks are not used. One of the notable features of the prohibition agitation in Iowa is the fact that it is advocated by large numbers of Germans. They are late converts but will be stickers. The Germans are the most rational race on earth, and the day is not far distant when they will be as universally teetotalers as they were freesoilers in the old days.—Kas. Nationalist.

Chicago leads off in the anti-polygamy movement. This is well. Chicago doesn't care how many wives a man may have, so long as he divorces one before he marries the next one. The spread of polygamous doctrines would destroy a very important Chicago legal industry.—Burlington Hawkeye. But the idea that Chicago should utter a protest against anything in Utah is refreshing. Of course there are many most excellent people in Chicago but that a movement should be made there to reform a people so immensely superior in morality to Chicago, or that any one would think of going out of Chicago to reform anything is surprising. It would be quite consistent for the Utah people to send a band of missionaries to try to reform Chicago.

Evacuation Day, New York, May 3.—"The Historical Society will ask the city to co-operate on November 25, 1883, in celebrating the one-hundredth anniversary of the evacuation of the city by the British." How much better it would be to celebrate at that time the evacuation of New York by the enemy that occupies the beer-dens and pauper factories and thief and criminal schools, and murder mills, that destroy and kill more men, women and children every year in New York than the whole British army did in the seven years revolutionary war. A glorious thing to celebrate the disarming of a popgun 100 years ago and be silent under the present fiery hail of ten thousand rifled cannon charged with ammunition that kills both soul and body.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated Feby. 2, 1882, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of liquors, particularly the Sunday law and to procure the enactment of such other laws as are or may be necessary for the protection of our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of the liquor traffic.

It is desired to charter auxiliary associations in every town of California. Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may apply for a charter. The membership fee is $1.00 a year, and charter, with full set of books and register for 600 names costs $5. Of membership fee one half goes to the State association for the general work. Apply for information and all particulars to the State Secy.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

E. H. BOSCHER, Druggist,
169 Main Street,
jan1-82-1yr Stockton, Cal.

NOTICE OF ABSENCE.

The friends and patrons of the undersinged are respectfully notified that he will take his summer vacation during the month of June. His dental rooms, however, will be open as usual; at Oakland, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Vallejo, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, for July appointments. About the first week in June I will start with my family for Yosemite and take one months' rest. I. S. Halsey.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

Mr. Shaw offers to cure the appetite for drink, and believes thoroly that he can; if there were not good reason to believe that his remedy has been successful in San Francisco it could not find a place in the Rescue. He will make the "no cure no pay" contract with those who desire a trial of his curative method.

Mr. H. B. Williamson is agent for the Rescue in Lompoc. Renewals and subscriptions can be arranged with him.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

GRAND TEMPERANCE RALLY!

A TEMPERANCE

Camp-Meeting

WILL BE HELD IN THE FAMOUS

REDWOOD GROVE,

Near Guerneville, Sonoma Co., Cal.,

JUNE 29th to JULY 5th.

It will be under the immediate control and management of

ENTERPRISE LODGE, No. 356, I. O. G. T.,

And one-third of the net proceeds will be given to the

ORPHANS' HOME

AT VALLEJO.

Every possible care will be taken to make the occasion a pleasant and profitable one to all who attend.

We cordially invite the assistance and co-operation of all friends of the temperance cause.

El Dorado Lodge has 33 members and 6 more in prospect.

Mr. Aikin, late publisher of the Christian Herald of New York, called at the Rescue office last week on his way to Japan and India.

Those who should receive the Rescue may rest assured that every copy is in the P. O. before noon every Thursday. And they should all get it on time and every time.

The Sunday Chronicle says opium kills 160,000 people yearly in China. It might as well have added too that beer and whisky kill 100,000 people a year in the United States.

Ex-Governor Stanford and his partners sell rum and beer all day Sunday on their ferry boats and at their depots; when they count up Sunday night it amounts to a good deal.

The Rescue is the only paper in the State that has given correct information about the comet. It said nothing at all about it and that is just what has come to pass. Better take the Rescue everybody and keep posted.

The Lodge in Pleasant Valley say they dont get the Rescue. It is very certain that it has gone to their post office every week properly directed. At least it has never failed to go from here regularly; it is for them to make euquiry at their P. O.

The Rescue has crawled up to over 4000 circulation now; this week and last 4080 have been printed and next week a larger number is expected to be required. It wont take much work to run up to 5000 now and then that must be doubled.

The new beer dens are driving every other business slowly and surely out of Montgomery St. Whenever an honest business is starved out by the drunkard factories it is succeeded at once by a beer dive as if the poisoning of our people and landing them in the morgue was the most solemly important business of the city.

Temperance Groceries.—A perfectly reliable authority reports from Mariposa county a saving of $35 on a $60 bill of groceries after paying freight from San Francisco. That $35 was made by ordering from a San Francisco grocery advertised in the Rescue. That should be a pretty good card for both the paper and the grocery.

Subscriptions and renewals this week: San Gregorio, 1: Ocean Queen Lodge, 10; Pescadero, 5; Hornitos, 1; San Francisco, 43; Alameda, 2; East Berkeley, 1; Old Town, Me., 1; all by Mrs. Richardson and Mrs Stevens 64; Santa Barbara, 1; Rev. W. C. King (Red Bluff; 14; Tehama, 13); 27; W. P. Burnett, San Louis Obispo, 3; Middletown, 1; Plymouth (Miss M. M. Blower,) 10; Stockton, 1; Elder Webb (Santa Barbara, 20 monthly; San Luis Obispo, 21; Arroyo Grande, 3: Cambria, 1; Cayucos, 2;) 47. In all 154.

Petitions.—Bro. W. D. Gould has sent out far and near petitions regarding the Sunday law and liquor law. There is room for only a few names, but sheets of paper can be pasted on to enable them to carry 100 or 200 names if necessary, but the names should be only on one side of the paper. These petitions are now out in good time and the time should be industriously improved, so that no one who is willing to sign them may be missed or forgotten. Here is a field of active usefulness for all our Good Templars.

A conviction has been made of a stationer for violation of the Sunday law. It is a remarkable and unaccountable fact that a temperance man who as a favor went into his store and sold Schetzel (Mr. Shafers' agent) a bottle of blacking to enable him to go to church with his boots in good shape, was found guilty with the greatest case. Then a thousand liquor dealers openly violated the law but not one of them could be convicted; the law is a perfect failure. Then a stationer is convicted easily and the law is valid as ever. But if the stationer had sold poison all day Sunday and had he employed half a dozen painted, rotten female tigers to entice and drug and rob the victims of the Leag of Freedom all day for 17 Sundays he would have been honorable acquitted in our courts. The courts and police seem to be merely protective attachments of the drunkard making business.

Uses of Wealth.—A correspondent of the Chronicle gives a moral elevating description of a house of ill fame of huge dimensions and most expensive and artistic furniture and embelishments in New York. He states that it cost $150,000 to furnish it and the whole affair was a present by a wealthy young Hebrew merchant to a favorite courtezan. These peculiar institutions of all classes are getting into every street and block in New York which is an inevitable result of tolerating the beer and whisky shops and beer gardens.

Champagne.—Gath in writing up his war reminiscences says of McClellan and his generals, "I used to admire the head quarters and tents, so neat and trim, with such good food, with buckets of champagne and chunks of ice in it and the fastidious way in which the young Napoleon was kept quiet" etc. No wonder that the history continues "that night the army got to the James River all cut to pieces yet with a grim desperation to stand and fight at last." The army was all right but under champagne and whisky generals it fared ill when assailed by the sober Jackson.

Grinnel, Iowa, a temperance town has been visited with a terrific tornado which appeared to extend 25 miles in length by half a mile in width. About 150 buildings including Cornell College were leveled; 41 persons killed, 150 wounded, many fatally, and property destroyed to the extent of $700.-000. The village of Malcom, 9 miles east of Grinnel, was destroyed and 17 persons killed. These visitations are yearly becoming more frequent and more dangerous. It will probably be determined, some of these days that these are gaseous meteors which flying thru space around the sun come in contact with this globe and expending their force upon its surface are dissipated in the atmosphere.

Dry Season.—There are in many parts of this State complaints of hard times in prospect owing to dry winter and short crops; quite frequently people make that an excuse for not taking a temperance paper but we never heard of any single one saying, "this is such a hard year that I have had to give up using tobacco." The harder the year and shorter the crops, the more reason for taking a temperance paper to pursuade people to avoid drink and tobacco and all unwholesome habits and to lay down before them the declarations of science from all parts of the world as to what things are good and wholesome and what are not so. Many a man has saved hundreds of dollars a year by having taken or read a temperance paper.

More whisky bills.—Right atop of the disgraceful bills for liquors running into thousands of dollars, in connection with the National funeral, comes another, less disgraceful, perhaps, on account of surroundings, but more shameful because of the amount. It is a bill presented for $23,000 expenses of a Congressional drunk going down to the Yorktown celebration. A Washington despatch after describing the debauchery of the excursionists on board the steamer, speaking of the bill says: It is reported that about half of this amount is for whisky, wine, cigars and other luxuries in the Commission boat, The French and German visitors, and the Cabinet and President were on the other boats. The sensation of the season is promised when the bills are called for in the House.—W. Va. Freeman. The voters who elect drunken rowdies and gamblers to congress should pay all the whisky and gambling debts they incur. They are very many of them elected by the most outrageous corruption and let the people take the consequences.

[illegible] upon seeing a statue of Hazel Miller by Charlie Ahern.]

She carved from the pure white marble
A beautiful girlish form;
The face so gravely expressive,
Breathing from marble's rough storm.

She saw never her finest work,
The last with the touches fine,
When the vision had gone forever
A memory was the past.

Sculptors will plod upon it,
With cruder or poorer vision,
But never will be known to humanity
What might have been perfection.

A feeling of sadness takes me
As I ponder and thought[illegible] pass
What had I ever accomplished
Who else this memory has?

Then I thought of the little creatures
Whose hearts I carry or train,
The voice is to command,
That they may live wings gain.

And a wish it grew unbidden
From my heart's deepest core that they
The God to me had given
The love for which I pray.

Like marble is the religion,
So many worship at the
Of graven art created Father
That I may carve for them.

May each of these living statues
Receive from my hand touch
These virtues that will make them better
And prepare them for the future.

Then my work will last the ages
To look at glory in
For all to see their love Christ
The masterpiece we have done.

—E. J. Ballard, in the Union.

GOOD TEMPLARS MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION

Ed Rescue.—The suggestion has been made by one of your correspondents that membership in the Mutual Aid Association should be open to all total abstainers. Most correspondent is a Good Templar, says he has not pleased and could not urge others to join because continued membership in the Order is required.

Now whatever can be shown to be really for the interest of the Mutual Aid Association I would most heartily approve, for I belong to it and hope in time that every member of my family will also. I say this to show that I am personally interested in its success.

It has always appeared to me that continued membership in our Order was a very wise arrangement both for the Order and for those insured in the Mutual Aid, and I still think so. At present I think both would suffer were any change made. The Association, as the name indicates, is for Good Templars. As far as I know, the other beneficiary Orders insure those only who are members in good standing with them. Any one who does not maintain his membership with them would lose his insurance. If this be so, why should the Good Templars exercise a generosity or liberality which those societies do not? It seems to me that at least during the experimental years, the limitation to members of our Order should continue. If in the hereafter good and sufficient reason can be shown for extending the benefits of this branch of our Order, well and good.

But permit me to say a few words on extending the usefulness and securing the prosperity of this department of our work. I think that with an Order so numerous as ours in this jurisdiction, there should be from 5,000 to 10,000 members assured. To obtain this it should be shown as I think it most truthfully can be, that the rates of insurance are the most economical of any insurance agency in the world and that the risks are fewest. With these showings, the Mutual Aid should rapidly advance to unparalleled prosperity, and it will if our members instead of holding back will come forward and join it as they should and as it is to their own interest to do.

Hoping for the increased prosperity of our Order and of this department of its work, I remain, Yours Fraternally, George Morris.

JUSTICE.

The C[illegible] Times is indignant because "Chinamen pr[illegible] the public prosecutors by calling a jury [illegible] man accused of violating the [illegible] a like protest from [illegible] side of the bay" when the whisky men in Oakland, and all over the State determined to test the Sabbath law by calling a jury in every case? Which is the greater evil, Chinamen breathing bad air, or thousands of men selling poison every day of the week in defiance of law? Why don't you speak out plain about that "stinking" of the courts? Let us be consistent. Down upon the Chinaman and peddle the whisky man. One of the most shameful spectacles on record in this country is the open violation of law by the wounded lung of freedom. Courts are choked, juries locked contrary to all law and testimony. Suppose the Chinaman is tried by a jury, he does not stand a ghost of a chance of acquittal. It is only a little more delay and trouble, but whisky will make a jury vomit a most witness oath with no stinting. We are most decidedly in favor of the strict enforcement of sanitary laws and police regulations towards all classes in our State without discrimination of race or color. Let there be no evading on dodgy pleas of economics. But all this nauseous effort from by a Chinaman, while, when committed by others, is passed without a word.—Punch.

FINANCE.

Mrs. S. A. McLees in Our Union propes a toning up of the financial machinery of the W. C. T. U. and the raising of the membership dues 10 cents a month or $1 a year if paid at once in advnce. One half the amount to be used for local and te remainder to be divided equally between coun and state Unions, the latter, contributing 5 cts. pemember to the National Union.

Under the old plan of 50 cents a year, te expenses had to be made up some other way or me of the branches of effort were curtailed. It was not strange that the W. C. T. U. should havearly fallen into the error of following to some exte the defective financial system which has led every mperance society that has been organized either toutter inaction or to the verge of ruin.

A treasury has always been the first cosideration in every other society that has had an edcational, a political, a social, a financial, a commerci, a religious or a reformatory purpose. If a reliefrom taxation, the ill treatment of a donkey or the nendment of any abuse or the institution of any eform was ever in question, it has always been ctomary to figure the cost and provide for it. But in te temperance warfare, to remove the greatest mas of iniquity and injustice and cruelty that has ever afflicted the world and to acquire a blessing of ore transcendant importance than can be lookedfor in any other direction, the question of financias either been unprovided for altogether, or the prvision has been so inadequate as to render the effo made almost a nullity in results.

Whatever has been done in the Sons f Temperance or in the Good Templars by the funs provided for the advancement of the cause of temprance it is pretty safe to say that ten times as muc has been done either by eflort altogether unpaid nd unsupported, or the needed means have been sucribed by individuals who have contributed 100 or 500 times their fair proportion. And the same no out is true of the W. C. T. U.

If all the gratuitous work that has ben done by temperance workers, and the gifts and hes and the horse and team hire and the visits and ltures and writings and unpaid Secretary and canvsing work and lecture work etc., that have been contibuted by the few most unselfish workers, could be ounted up and fairly valued it would amount to anncredible sum. And in most instances the free wkers and free writers and speakers have been ose who profited least by the fruit of their labo. While the merchants and property owners and stekeepers whose customers we sobered up and madgood pay, whose hopeless debtors we reclaimed and ade honest and capable, and whose business we oubled in value by making the community sober a thrifty, have held back and in most instances give us not so much as their sympathy, much less havethey paid their proportion of the cost of the tempeince work which has so benefited them.

And there is no need of this sacrifice, vth a competent financial system; putting our ownmembership's shoulder to the wheel and showig that we are proceeding rationally and mean buness, not play, we can go to the men whose monied interests we are going to benefit so much more tha our own and say "here we have $250 which we a going to disburse in improving your business an property and you business men must make it $100

There is not a temperance society outsid of the I. O. G. T, of California whose financial stem is in the least adequate to promise any progresve work. There are State jurisdictions which have o utterly mismanaged the temperance movement s to have in the main been losing ground for 8 or 10 ears and only standing in the way of something eful, and because they dont prosper without a centf money in the treasury, they have come to belie that an organization that gains a little one yeand then loses ground for ten years running, is doing a perfectly healthy business.

WHICH?

One of the objections frequently urged against the Woman's Suffrage movement is, that the enfranchisement of our sex would invest with the ballot a class of women whose exercise of that right would to an extent neutralize the vote of the Christian Temperance women. In an unprejudiced view of this objection would it not be well to waive contingencies and briefly contemplate realities as they exist? It is an indisputable fact, tho perhaps not widely known, that there are women who will and do exert a power for evil in the political caucuses of our country. They are notably of two representative classes. One of these is the claim agent—the office brokeress who buys claims and speculates upon them as so much stock. She takes claims on commission, regardless of the principle involved, deluding her clients with the assurance that her influence with Senator A. or Senator B. will secure their successful passage. And she rarely fails. She waylays first one Senator, then another, in the reception rooms during sessions of Congress, in the departments, in the Capitol, and fairly bull-doses them into compliance with her demands. She is a skilful diplomatist, is devoid of womanly conscience or susceptibility—has voluntarily revoked every claim to the respect of good people—has but one purpose in view and that a purely mercenary one. That she is a potent and dangerous factor in politics cannot be denied. As such, however, she shrinks into insignificance when compared with the woman who establishes herself in our halls of Legislature as a queen, and who with gleam of jewels and shimmer of silks, and siren voice, and seductive smile, bewilders men thru the outworks of their senses, and transforms them into mere creatures whom she sways at will by the Circe-like charm of her beauty. She is a subtle power in the lobbies. She, too, has a measure to carry—she has come avowedly to secure a coveted position for some man. For this she will receive a princely sum. She throws the glamour of her smile around some political Achilles, she besieges him with her alluring eyes, she dazzles him, she captures him, he yields to the fatal spell of her beauty, he promises her his influence—she carries her measure, and pockets the golden price. These are not the groundless assumptions of a temperance fanatic by any means. They are serious statements for which she is indebted to a woman whose opportunities of observation and unimpeachable character render her unquestionable authority—Mrs. Mary Clemmer Ames of Washington. Doubtless a judicious application of thumb screws might elicit from more than one magnate hitherto above suspicion, a similar deposition of facts. Be that as it may, the question that should engage our attention is no longer, "Shall women participate in politics?" or rather, "Shall a few wily women at the instigation of unscrupulous men, covertly manipulate the highest prizes in the Government, or shall the clean Christian wives and mothers and daughters of their country become a controling element for justice, for purity and morality in its political affairs?"

MARY A. GUTHRIE.

Miss Lucy E. F. Kimball, Supt. of Sunday school work of the W. N. C. T. U., is in Utah last accounts and may come to this State where she should receive a most cordial welcome and the most efficient co-operation in her mission of peace and blessing.

The following is clipped from a letter of hers in Our Union. * * *

"Thus far, in Gentile and Mormon Schools, we have been most cordially received.

At Ogden, where the Mormons have one of their best schools, and the finest building, Prof. Munch received us most cordially, and said: "If you come to Ogden again, come into our school. Any time I shall be glad to have you speak to the scholars." He is also Superintendent of their Sunday-school, and took my plan of work, saying he should be glad to cooperate with us, and would appoint some one to report the work done. Yesterday, by invitation, I spoke in the Mormon University of Salt Lake to the entire school, about 180 young men and women, who gave the most polite attention. At the close, Dr. Park, the President in behalf of the students, thanked us for our visit. I give those facts, because our friends in the East, and some here feared these schools would not be open to us. They are only evidences of the good hand of our Lord upon this work, and proof of the opportunity offered. This afternoon I have spoken to the Episcopal school, St. Mark's. At the close of the session, the entire school, 300 in number, of whom five-sixths were of Mormon descent, came into the chapel, and here, again, I found a most interesting audience. In all these schools I have asked the adoption of the Temperance text-book, and in every place visited I have secured a Committee for State Work and a Superintendent for State or Territory, and the assurance that this can be done.

I came in the interests of my own department of work, but find myself equally interested in other lines, especially the educational. I trust Mrs. Barnes and Hunt, Miss Greenwood and others will take note, and repay the same when they come to this "New Nest, as I hope they will before long.

Our work will be in the various Sunday and day-schools; public meetings in the evening conferences with workers, etc. We hope to organize a Territorial W. C. T. U., and reorganize the Union here, which is auxillary and not a W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Mary Barnes Green, my traveling companion, is a most efficient helper in Utah, as she has spent two years in Salt Lake with her brother, Rev. Walter Barnes, who was formerly the pastor of the Congregational Church here, and both were greatly beloved.

We hope to do somewhat to help establish the relation so much needed with our National Society. How I wish Miss Willard and our other noble officers could journey this way. The consecrated touch of womanhood must be laid upon this great evil, and with God's blessing it shall crumble beneath that gentle but mighty influence."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May, 1882.

AMITY, Oregon, March 15, 1882.

SISTER WINSLOW:—I feel impelled to write you in reply to the communication of I. Simmons, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The good brother is evidently honest, but it seems to me he is in the condition of the man who "saw men as trees, walking," and that when the cloud of mist has been scattered he will see clearly that it was impossible for women to continue on their knees and sing songs for days and weeks and months, in the vain hope of exorcising the demon. He would see also, as many loving mothers and sisters have seen, that "faithful, loving work with the young" is all in vain while so many allurements are held out on every hand, and while so many good and respectable men set the example of moderate drinking.

He thinks "healthy laws" can be "secured by male votes while women pray!" I don't know what the good brother means. Males having had the exclusive right of the ballot all these years, have yet utterly and entirely failed to accomplish the overthrow, or even to obstruct the progress of this evil. Indeed its progress is so rapid that our homes, our institutions, our country, our all, are just upon the verge of an awful gulf. But the morning dawns, and those women who stood weeping at the grave of departed hopes have been met by an angel, and have been assured the "Lord is risen, indeed, and goeth before them," and the commission was given them: "Go and tell my disciples, and Peter; and they went, Jesus met them and renewed the commission." These women of to-day find an obstacle in the way of accomplishing much good; they have no voice in making or administering laws; they see men either cannot or will not legislate against liquor, and they ask to be permitted to give their aid in the work of redeeming our country from the rum curse.
—Mrs. S. A. McKune, in Our Union.

DAY OF PRAYER.

Tuesday, June 27th, has been appointed by the Legislature of Iowa as the day when the question of the Amendment to the Constitution, forever prohibiting the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors shall be submitted to the people of that state.

The liquor interest is prepared to make a vigorous fight, and money and speakers are already pouring into the state from all quarters. The enemy is vigilant and determined, lest Iowa should be added to the list of states which have said to the liquor traffic, "thus far and no farther"; but that the amendment may be adopted is of the utmost importance, not only to the W. C. T. U., but to the work in every other state, and it behooves us to do all in our power to assist in this great struggle.

Our trust is in God and the righteousness of our cause. In the past he has led us to many a victory, and we still have the promise of an abundant future.

We should, therefore, ask that every local Union in each state observe the 27th day of June as a day of prayer, and, assembling in the usual place of meeting, pray mightily for the triumph of our cause in the State of Iowa. FRANCES E. WILLARD,
President W. N. C. T. U.

CAROLINE B. BUELL, Cor. Sec.

IN A fashionable hotel in Minneapolis 450 young men were counted going to the bar in one hour of a recent Sunday. But it was a respectable place and it would not harm any one perhaps to get drunk there on Sunday.

Returns Received.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged:

Nos. 64, 97, 141, 178, 237, 350, 408, 413.

D. G. W. C. T.s COMMISSIONED.—The following commissions have been issued and forwarded from the Grand Worthy Secretary's office during the past week:

LODGE DEPUTIES.

Wm Simmons for No. 216, Dutch Flat

DEGREE TEMPLARS.

H A Frost for No. 216, Dutch Flat

DELINQUENT LODGES.—Quite a number of lodges appear upon the delinquent list because of the non receipt of their Quarterly Returns for the term ending April 30th last. The Lodge Deputies of all these have been notified of this delinquency during the past week by circular from the G. W. S. office. Next week, the list of those remaining delinquent at the close of business on Saturday, will be announced. So that lodges or their Deputies desiring to avoid this uncomplimentary announcement would do well to forward their delinquent Returns immediately, or assign some good reason for not doing so.

ANOTHER RECEPTION TO THE R. W. G. T.—Not to be outdone by its sister lodge, Capital Lodge, No. 51, planned and carried out a successful reception to the R. W. G. T, during its regular meeting on Tuesday evening of last week. Siloam Lodge had been invited and attended in numbers, thus filling the hall to overflowing. The lodge-room was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens tastefully wrought into mottoes and the emblems of the Order. Over the W. C. T.'s station in evergreen letters was the inscription, "WELCOME R. W. C. T." During the course of the evening five candidates were introduced and initiated. The R. W. G. T. was introduced officially and received the honors of the Order. Bro. the Rev. I. E. Dwinell delivered the addresss of welcome and congratulation, to which the R. W. G. T. made extended reply. At the conclusion of all, refreshments were served by the sisters of Capital Lodge. The occasion was pleasant and sociable to a degree and reflected great credit upon the managing committee and the membership of Capital Lodge.

ANNIVERSARY DAY.—The 17th day of July has been set aside as the anniversary day of the Order. It is hoped that every lodge will arrange to appropriately observe the day, and to this end preparations should be made at once. Lodges intending to celebrate the day should announce the fact and invite the public. It affords a good occasion for a special and interesting "open lodge meeting."

"BEZIRKS."—The capital city was visited last week by an army of the disciples of Bacchus and Gambrinus known as the Pacific Turn Bezirk, delegations being present from Marysville, San Jose, Oakland, San Francisco and other points. Their arrival was made an occasion in Sacramento on Saturday evening for the blare of brass instruments, the burning of fireworks and the consuming of much vile beer. The worthy Mayor of the city who could not be induced upon a recent occasion to countenance a "Law and Order" or "Sunday law meeting" either by his attendance or presidency was willing enough to make himself a conspicuous portion of Saturday evening's procession, and to welcome these people and their proclivities in a speech made to them at Turn Verein Hall. The programme of exercises for the week, distributed about the city, contained the advertisements of sixteen wholesale liquor establishments, beer breweries and saloons. The programme for Sunday, June 18th, was a street parade at 8: 30, A. M. Commencement of prize competition in gymnastics at 10. Calisthenics and Tacto exercises at 2. Concert music and dancing throughout the day and a social party in the evening at Turn Verein Hall. All sandwiched and soaked with beer! beer!! beer!!! All of which, according to the Mayor, was a good thing for the city over which he presided. And if good for Sunday the 18th of June, why not good for every other Sunday. Politics, political ambition and policy make "respectable citizens" do queer things sometimes, and of course Mayor Brown is not an exception to the rule.

PERSONAL.—Bro. George Bramall, of Haywards called at the Grand Lodge office during the week. Bro. Bramall is a veteran worker in the cause and is just now devoting himself to the task of aiding the Order of Sons of Temperance as the Grand Lecturer of that institution.....Bro. E. W. Culver of Newcastle Lodge No. 339 and Bro. Gregg of Summit Lodge No. 125 of Plymouth also called and reported their Lodges as doing a good work....Bro. C. Stahl, of Constitution Lodge San Francisco also honored the office with a call.

(Concluded.)

The committee on political action reported as follows:

We cordially endorse that portion of the report of the R. W. G. Templar which relates to prohibition and political action, and congratulate the Order upon the progress of its fundamental principles relating to the prohibition of the liquor traffic. We believe that the saloon is the enemy of all that is dear to the hearts of Good Templars, and we rejoice at the success of any and all efforts to destroy its influence and its existence. We submit the following resolutions,

1. Resolved, That we recognize State and National Constitutions prohibiting the liquor traffic as the next line of battle upon which the hosts of temperance are rallying, and we recommend the members of our Order to give a hearty support to this line of action, so far as circumstances will allow.

2. Resolved, That we send cordial greeting to our friends in Iowa, with the hope that their efforts for a constitutional amendment will be crowned with abundant success at the ballot box the 27th of June, and we earnestly urge every member of our Order in that State to devote that day to this cause, that by prayer, good works and ballots the State may be freed from the legalized liquor traffic.

3. Resolved, That the gallant fight made by Governor St. John and the friends of prohibition in Kansas commands our warmest commendation, and we extend our congratulation and sympathy to them in their desperate struggle with the entire liquor interest of the nation.

4. Resolved, That we hail with great satisfaction the passage of the bill for a commission of inquiry into the results of the liquor traffic by the Senate of the United States, and we heartily authorize the R. W. G. Lodge officers to petition the house of Representatives to adopt the same, that the commission may be speedily appointed.

An amendment to the Constitution of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge was adopted making the basis of representation of Grand Lodges as follows: Grand Lodges having under their jurisdictions less than one representative, one thousand to five thousand two representatives, five thousand to ten thousand three representatives, ten thousand to twenty thousand four representatives, twenty thousand to fifty thousand, five representatives, and one additional representative for every additional twenty-five thousand. So that if, as is confidently expected the Grand Lodge of California shall have a membership exceeding twenty thousand at the time of the next session of the Grand Lodge, it will gain an additional representative.

The committee on memorials presented an excellent and appreciative report on the life, services and death of Julius A. Spencer, P. R. Worthy Grand Counselor and P. R. W. G. Secretary, which was adopted by a rising vote.

A funeral badge to be worn upon all funeral occasions in which the Order appears or takes part was adopted. The new badge consists of a white rosette with a black crape star and pendants forming the center.

Seven thousand copies of the journal of proceedings was ordered published so that one copy may be furnished to every subordinate lodge, which will be done as speedily as possible. Until these are printed and distributed the foregoing synopsis of the more salient points of the proceedings will doubtless be deemed sufficient.

The officers elected and appointed are as follows, for the ensuing year, and were impressively installed by Hon. S. D. Hastings, of Wisconsin, P. R. W. G. Templar:

R. W. G. Templar, Geo. B. Katzenstein, of Sacramento, Cal.

R. W. G. Counselor, J. N. Stubbs, of Gloucester Courthouse, Virginia.

R. W. G. Vice-Templar, Mrs. A. A. Brookbank, of Jeffersonville, Ind.

R. W. G. Secretary, F. G. Keens, of Kearney, Neb.

R. W. G. Treasurer, Uriah Copp, Jr., of Loda, Ill.

P. R. W. G. Templar, J. J. Hickman, of Columbia, Missouri.

C. S. of Juvenile Temples, Mrs. C. Evelyn Gilbert, of Gaffney City, South Carolina.

R. W. G. Chaplain, Rev. James P. Pinkham, of West Branch, Iowa.

R. W. G. Marshal, W. H. Lambley, of Inverness, Quebec.

R. W. G. D. Marshal, Mrs. C. B. Buell, of East Hampton, Connecticut.

R. W. G. Messenger, Col. York A. Woodward, of New Orleans, Louisiana.

R. W. G. I. Guard, Mrs. M. A. Butler, Providence, Rhode Island.

R. W. G. O. Guard, Samuel T. Fisher, of Baltimore, Maryland.

The R. W. G. L. adjourned to meet again on the fourth Tuesday in May, 1883, in Chicago Ill.

At the conclusion of business on Friday afternoon, His Honor, the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Charleston, invited the R. W. G. L. to an excursion, which was accepted and participated in by the members of the R. W. G. L., the Common Council and a score of specially invited guests. The steamer Planter and a brass band had been chartered for the occasion by the Common Council and at four o'clock P. M. the Planter steamed down the harbor, landing first at historic Fort Sumter, where an interesting visit was made. Soon after leaving Sumter refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cakes and lemonade, were served and enjoyed. On the way down the bay in passing a British vessel the band played "God Save the Queen," and the vessel dipped her flag in token of recognition, while the Representatives from Ontario, Quebec and South Africa instinctively raised their hats.

The company, at the request of the R. W. G. T., assembled in the cabin, when Past R. W. G. T., Theo. D. Kanouse, moved the following resolutions which were seconded by Representative Reuben Ayliff, of South Africa, and adopted by a unanimous vote:

Resolved, That the sincere thanks of this Right Worthy Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., are due and are hereby most heartily tendered to his Honor, Mayor Courtenay, and the honorable the Council of the City of Charleston, for the courtesy of this excursion, which has afforded us so great pleasure.

Resolved, That we shall carry with us to our homes, scattered thruout this wide world, the kindest remembrances of Charleston and her honored Mayor and Council, and will indulge in landing the "Sunny Southland" as seen and enjoyed through "Palmetto eye-glasses."

His Honor, the Mayor, on behalf of himself and the Council, expressed his appreciation of the resolutions in befitting words, and in manner so peculiarly pleasant and ready with the truly Southern gentleman.

An admiring and enthusiastic Britisher struck up the refrain of "He's a jolly good fellow" in which all heartily joined,

After steaming up and down the harbor and the two rivers which flow upon either side of the city, the company was safely landed amid the sweet strains of "Home sweet Home" rendered by the band all uniting in their praise of the delightful occasion.

NOTES.

P. R. W. G. S., Bro. W. S. Williams of Napanee, Ontario, came to Charleston to be in attendance at the R. W. G. L. Upon his arrival he was prostrated by a relapse of disease from which he had recently suffered, and was not only unable to leave his room during the session of the R. W. G. L., but was still confined when the Representatives separated. He received every care and attention requisite, personal and medical, and was in a fair way of recovery sufficient to warrant his removal to his home within a few days after the departure of the greater portion of the representatives.

During the excursion of the Steamer Planter down the harbor, His Honor Major Courtnay personally handed the refreshments being served, to Bro. Fisher R. W. G. O. G., the colored representative from the Grand Lodge of Maryland. This little act of especial courtesy, though unostentatiously performed was witnessed by a number and flatteringly commented upon.

In all the South but one grasshopper was seen. and that in the streets of Augusta Ga., and it soon found refuge by hopping upon the shoulder of G. W. C. T. Brown of Kansas. Some one has written something about a fellow feeling making us wondrous kind etc. The question as to how that little hoppergrass knew that Bro. Brown came from his native heath, or where he most doth flourish, is "what no fellow can find out." K.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

J. W. WEBB.

After the campaign at Santa Barbara, went to Cat Canyon and Pine Grove. Local societies are doing well and preclude possibility of lodges just yet. Started a Band of Hope. No liquor sold in a large section of country. Visited all schools in these parts.

GUADALUPE has a hard fight for it is a miserable whisky town, but substantial good has been done there by our Lodge and the little Band determine to hold on. Result of well attended lectures, several names and two good collections. Bro. Morse; a most unselfish and untiring worker, arranged a meeting at Oso Flaco and took me out. His son-in-law Bro. W. W. Ayers, the druggist, well known in Santa Cruz, Stockton and San Francisco, and the first Grand Scribe of the Champions of the Red Cross, went with me and did some excellent singing, I was the Moody, he the Sanky.

AT SANTA MARIA had good meetings, the writing school adjourned and Bro. W. A. Higgins, the teacher came over and helped us, playing on the organ and singing. The first rate Brass Band turned out in uniform and gave your lecturer a most complimentary serenade. I tell you I felt as big as Sister Stevens "or any other man." Obtained a number of names for lodge, a handsome collection and revived the interest. Spent one night at Pleasant Valley where the W. C. T., Bro. D. N. Kelsey, teaches. Started a good Band of Hope, he Sup't. The Band at Santa Maria still lives, and has some never-say-die friends.

LOMPOC.—Stopped at home lodge and held some public meetings in town and with the Valley Lodge and had good, grand meetings. No talk of saloons coming in or liquor selling by the stores. Good Samaritans have started two lodges, I started a third Band of Hope, so now we have four adult and three juvenile temperance societies and ought to hold the fort, now and for all time.

SANTA RITA has lost some members from lodge through dissatisfaction over a case of discipline; but they and a number of outsiders went into a Samaritan lodge and we have more workers for temperance than ever, and I trust all will work in harmony in the righteous war on the old tyrant, King Alcohol, till we have him killed and buried. Started a promising Band of Hope with 42 members and had the pleasure of initiating four members into the lodge and conferring degrees on a number. No liquor sold here.

CHILDS is on the Jonata Ranch of R. T. Buell, the proprietor of the Pacific Greenbacker. I have paid this two visits and given two speeches and hope soon to institute a lodge. No liquor sold here even for medical purposes; a clause in the lease of the store prohibits such sale. Mr. Buell, as a Greenbacker, is in full accord with that party as to prohibition and shows his faith by that clause in the lease.

SANTA BARBARA.— Here we clinched the nails driven by the previous effort by having an open meeting at each lodge, at both of which Sister Guthrie made very effective speeches. She wins golden opinions the more she is heard. She also spoke at the D. L. at Goleta, of which a report will be sent to the RESCUE. Revs. Mitchell, Uren and Woodcock helped us. We were all handsomely treated by the Goleta brethren and citizens and the meeting was a success. Since that, Sister Guthrie has spoken most acceptably at the Anniversary of Montecito Lodge, which is doing very well. Hope she will visit other lodges following my appointments in a few weeks.

LOS ALAMOS next claimed attention and the members rallied and we had good meetings and certainly made good impressions. Lodge recently initiated several, Lawyer C. E. Pond among the number. It will grow as the town grows without doubt. Bros. Revs. Whitmore and Mitchell, Judge Curtiss and wife, Joel Hilton and wife, Bro. Peter Coiner, owner of the New Hall, and others can be relied upon.

POINT SAL is the shipping point for a large section and gave me a good meeting, a good collection and a Band of Hope. Capt. Averill and family, old Maine Good Templars, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clark, strong temperance people, and Mrs. Whittock, the teacher, seconded all our efforts. We had visitors at lecture from Berkeley and Santa Barbara. On my way to San Luis Obispo Co., where I am now laboring, called at home, visited lodge, spoke at Artesia school and held a rousing meeting in the M. E. church at which sisters Fannie Fields and Dille gave us good music, and Miss Rudolph and Lizzie Webb appropriate readings. I reserve report of San Luis Obispo Co. till next week but pause to say that at the county seat the saloons are closed on Sundays, and a violator has lately been fined $50. To-day, a school election was held and Dr. Hathaway, a prominent Good Templar, beat the whisky men's candidate, tho they ran hacks all day and made a big effort. San Luis Obispo is on the up grade materially and morally. We'll carry it yet for prohibition. John Woods lives in this county.

H. R. HUGHES.

Since my last report, I gave Shingle Springs another trial, but they are so wedded to their saloons and winery, that no interest is taken in temperance reform. Some of the parents apologize for it by saying that there is no place for the boys to go excepting to the saloons.

At Eldorado the Lodge is prospering finely, have bought a fire proof building and converted it into a comfortable Lodge room. At Open Lodge a large delegation were present from Placerville, in spite of Sherman's circus and its attendant excitement.

At Diamond Springs had a fair meeting, this place is so near Eldorado that it is not deemed advisable to organize.

At Upper Placerville had a good meeting and organized a Band of Hope with 35 members. A. L. Anthony (an old Petaluma friend) Supt., and Mrs. E. Isbell, Secty. of the W. C. T. U. assisted.

At 6 mile house a small meeting, a few very anxious to get a lodge, but not enough as yet to insure success.

At Coloma, had a good meeting, found Marshal Lodge doing better than any one had expected. A great change has come over the place.

In Greenwood, found the Lodge had been doing good work, they turned out in regalia and we had a very pleasant meeting. In this place containing, about one hundred inhabitants, the Lodge has 42 members and yet there are 5 bars and a brewery! Of course most of their patrons come from the miners on the outside.

At Spanish Dry Diggings, so many left the place, the lodge had to surrender, but they keep up their Band of Hope, and an open temperance meeting once in two weeks, they are good temperance people and good workers, circulate David Cooks' literature.

Georgetown, June 16, 1882.

W. C. KING.

Several weeks have passed since my last was mailed at Orland, Colusa Co. A Lodge could have been organized there but for the drouth. If a lecturer can visit that and other places in Colusa Co. next fall, several Lodges can be added to our Order. At St. Johns I succeeded in discounting Bro. Gouldings smallest audience of his life by one, for I lectured to 11 persons including children.

It impresses a lecturer as folly to try to gather people to a public meeting, where the physical conditions render a respectable hearing impossible. St. Johns is on a grant and the few citizens are scattered over many miles of territory. At Germantown I found a village without a single male citizen who is an abstainer. The business places were nearly all saloons and the people "joined to their idol" lager beer. The owner of the only place

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

U. K. BAND OF HOPE UNION.

It is hoped our Juveniles and their teachers gave due attention to the article on this subject in last week's number. It should be intensely interesting to know what is being done by a successful Band of Hope organization in a far off country.

At the afternoon session, Admiral Sir William King Hall, K. C. B., a grand old sailor man, who has been knighted for his good record, presided. He said as the father of ten children he could not sufficiently dwell upon the importance of bringing up the young as total abstainers. "He had been 52 years in the navy. One of his sons is First-Lieutenant of the Druid; has been a total abstainer all his life. The Druid has 220 officers and men, of whom 63 are total abstainers, and abstaining men usually become Christians." The Admiral has two sons in Australia, one of whom lately wrote his brother in the Druid that they never could be too thankful to their father for bringing them up as total abstainers, as the curse of drink in Melbourne is something awful. He gave interesting accounts of having induced many young and other persons to avoid drink for life. (What a pity all admirals and naval officers are not just like him.)

Then that great apostle of medicine, Dr. A. Carpenter (please remember him) contended gallantly for training the young to be abstainers. He said people taking daily a small quantity of alcoholic liquor could not possibly be in a perfect state of health. And he had no hesitation in making that assertion. For in the general benefit clubs experience shows that the older men get, the more days sickness they have in the year, but with the Sons of Temperance it is exactly the reverse. Till about 30 years of age the average of the days of sickness in the year are about the same, but afterward they decrease in the Sons, in place of increasing as they do among the drinkers. (And that is something for temperance people to note and remember with especial care.) He said total abstinence would much help the funds of benefit societies. The Dr. then answered some questions asked, and was complimented by the Admiral, chairman, upon the ability with which he had done it.

Among other discussions was one on the evil example set before children by smokers.

In the evening the Band of Hope Choir, 500 strong, elicited much applause by their excellent performance. Mr. Samuel Morley, M. P., President of the Union was in the chair, and made a splendid opening address; no effort for the well-being of society is so full of promise as the work of the Band of Hope, in which over a million children under Christian guidance are being trained as total abstainers. (This is worth remembering, too.)

The Rev. Forbes E. Winslow, M. A., spoke on "How Christian Workers May Promote Temperance Work," said he was "getting ashamed of the sentimental Christianity that sees itself face to face with misery on every side and will not stir hand or foot to help the poor out of their fallen conditlon; receiving blessings from God, they are at no pains to communicate them to others." It pleased him to hear reformed men testify, but he could not help thinking how much better it would have been to have prevented their falling. He had secured to the total abstinence branch of the Church of England Temperance Society, 500 members last year; he did not run the other branch. He was a Rechabite, too, and had then joined the Good Templars and after that had put on the blue ribbon (and they cheered him deservedly for that). There is no weak point in the temperance question socially, morally, financially, commonsensically or biblically.

He was glad the public conscience of England was aroused. The national honor is at stake and "we are determined, with God's help, to win. It was in consequence of the local Band of Hope Union that Mr. Booth went to Brighton and it was owing to the children that 22,000 people put on the blue ribbon and 12,000 signed the pledge there. Parents should be abstainers if not for their own sake, for their children's."

Then a Rev. H. Sinclair Paterson, another M. D., commended the work of the Blue Ribbon Army and the Salvation Army for temperance. He thot if the churches would take some of the earnestness of the Salvation Army and of its zeal for saving souls, they could change off a great many other things which they have and not be losers. "There are advances everywhere in religious, social, political life and a gain for temperance. Now the first of men in every department of Christian life and science are broadly proclaiming themselves on our side; formerly few men of position would do so. Hardly a church now but has a temperance organization of some kind connected with it; formerly they were jealous of us; associated temperance with atheism and as taking the place of the gospel whereas it is because we have faith in the gospel that we teach men to be temperate in things helpful and to abstain totally from things injurious.

"He was sad to think so many got into jail who had passed thru the Sunday school; it is because the Sunday teachers deal with them one or two hours on Sunday and the dramshops deal with them all the rest of the week. The teachers are now alive to this fact and are trying to remove this evil and guard them against drink.

"As a medical man he had always maintained that alcohol had only one use, viz, to make people drunk; science declares it is always injurious in health and only useful in disease to dull and deaden the senses if that is necessary; but for curative purposes, to bring the body back to health, it is absolutely worthless." He said our great hope now is in the Band of Hope, and to keep always going forward, never to rest satisfied with the present success."

He stated that the teachers in the schools are now far more commonly tetotalers than four years ago. And in the schools when those who belong to the B. of H. are asked to hold up hands, seldom less than one-third did so; generally one-half and sometimes two-thirds did.

Other men of high standing also spoke and altogether it was a meeting of the most excellent influences. It should help us much in California and Oregon to know what great things are possible with the Band of Hope and what a magnificent prospect there is in consecrating the children of the land to God in the early days of their innocence and at the age when they are most susceptible to good influences.

AN ELDER BROTHER OF THE B. OF H.

If we ever owe anybody a debt for his good wishes and best endeavors to aid us and do us good, the children and the old folks of California will always be in debt to Dr. C. S. Haswell for his pioneer efforts in and for the Band of Hope. He was more of a prophet than most people 15 years and more ago; he saw then the best work of temperance and the most work should be with the children. Most other people who loved the cause of temperance and worked for it, did not think so. The children had no votes and before they would have any, they were going to have all the old folks reformed and have whisky voted out, and what was the use of fooling with the sober children when there were so many grown people in real danger.

But Dr. Haswell was always bombarding the Grand Lodge sessions to have something done about the children and the Band of Hope and whenever he said "Band of Hope" he brot it out so full and strong and with so much determination to fire it into us that he swelled out till his vest buttons were in peril. Some of the good workers thot it was a pity to lose time to hear the Doctor's report about his hobby, the Band of Hope, at Grand Lodge when there was so much else to do; and some of them regretted that his entreaties to push that arm of the service, did not meet with a heartier appreciation. But he kept on year after year and now we find he was altogether right at first and those who called it a hobby were altogether wrong. There is no discredit, however, in coming out of a wrong course and doing better, in giving up an error and embracing the right; the discredit is in clinging to what is wrong and defending it.

The children of those days have grown up and some, many of them have embarked on the voyage of ruin, that might have been saved had our Band of Hope been 10,000 strong then. Now we must look forward for success, and backward only for the instruction derived from experience. And one of the most instructive lessons I can recall from the early history of our juvenile work was the persistent, patient, unrequited and unappreciated labor of Dr. Haswell, canvasing and bombarding the delegates singly and in groups and imploring them to organize and watch over a Band of Hope when they returned to their homes.

No dout if his other duties had permitted he would have been all along at the head of our juvenile organization. We have now a much increased and more powerful institution and it is under the best possible management. And now while we look to others to build a lofty and mighty structure on the foundations all ready to their hand and as we call upon new workers every week and every month to help us build higher and broader and stronger, every member of the California Band of Hope should remember that Dr. Haswell, the good friend of the children of this State, more than any other individual in the state, watched over this institution in its earliest cradle, gave his time and labor and talent and influence and eloquence and prayers, all that it was possible for man to give; to nurse it into shape and growth; to seek out the best mode of instruction for it; to devise the best and happiest form of management and in every way possible to throw around the children of this State then and now and in the future, the most tender and beautiful and loving silken cords of affectionate guardian angel care, to pilot them away from the pitfalls and quicksands which beset the path of youth and to point and urge them in the days of their purity and innocence to choose the sweet and fragrant pathway of temperance and truth and Godliness, which is made ever joyous with the company of Angels here and leads its faithful wayfarers right up to the presence and dwelling place of God in the hereafter. Let us never forget to ask that the best and choicest blessings may surround the Doctor who has been so great a blessing to our Band of Hope.

ONE OF THE TRICKS.

In England it is a very general custom for employers of working men to pay them their wages on Saturday afternoon in a gin tavern. The ginshops pay the employers a small commission for this or furnish them their own drinks free as the case may be.

The workers who receive their pay in this manner feel themselves under an obligation to purchase drinks and treat their mates, because it would look mean to pick up their money and go home without repaying the landlord for his great kindness in letting them come in to get their money. While waiting their turn to get paid, the landlord generously lets them treat on credit till they are paid and they have to stand another treat for that; and thousands after thousands of the poor fellows who intend to go home sober, get drunk every Saturday and spend every cent of their wages before they stop.

And the wives of these men used to come to these places to get a portion of their husband's wages away from them, to get Sunday's food before their husbands got drunk. So they got in the habit of drinking too, till now thousands of them go to the grogshops to get drunk with their husbands and help them spree out their wages and then starve thru the week, themselves and children.

That is one of the tricks contrived by the sellers of beer in England, to defraud the families of the working men of their food and clothing, and the custom has been very much adopted in some trades in San Francisco and the result has been to make the men reckless and dissipated and their families and children destitute.

A law is now before the British Parliament to put a stop to this iniquitous practice and to give the men a chance to carry their money home to their families. Of course they could have done so before, but custom and fashion and the fear of the ridicule of dissolute companions and the temptation to drink, are more binding often than law.

Under all circumstances the grogshop is a most dangerous institution to go near at all. There are a great number of the best people in the world who would no more enter one of these soultraps than they would a pest house. And the worst and vilest of men are there all the time if possible; so it seems best never to approach one for any purpose.

It is dangerous. A party who had never for three years put his foot inside a grogshop, was on shore, accompanied by a friend in an Australian port. The friend who was to return with him in the evening requested to be called for at a rumshop where he had a matter of business to settle. He called there, and at the moment of entering found some roughs picking a quarrel with his friend; sudden result, an indiscriminate bar-room and street fight, dispersed by the police. A bystander informed the caller next day that he might consider himself very fortunate that he had not got mobbed and beaten and mashed up and then fined $100 next morning on the evidence of the roughs who would have sworn he started the row. He figured up then, if a call for a friend at a grogshop once in three years by a man who don't drink, is liable to produce such consequence,s what risks must those run who go there every day. How often they get shot and stabbed and killed.

THE ENEMY IN CHICAGO.

Our young friends should well understand that the temperance people are laboring to save them from intemperance, that they may grow up wholesomely and lead happy lives. Not one of us ever expects to earn or make or get a dollar or a dime from the children by making and keeping them sober and clean and respectable; but it will make us feel very happy to know and see that the young are going to be happy and to make this world better.

But they should also know that the people who deal in creating vice and sin and crime and every style of human misery and woe, are intensely anxious to teach the boys and girls to adopt vile and wicked habits that will now and in all their future make them degraded, vicious and wretched, always growing worse and of course growing more miserable and poor and suffering more as they grow worse.

The object of these people is to sell the young folks liquor and tobacco, to make a little money by the ruin of each one of them and by ruining hundreds to make a good deal of money.

In Illinois as well as most other states there is a law that prohibits and punishes the crime of selling liquor to boys and children; but wherever they sell that horrible thing to men they sell it to boys all they can just the same. For they know if the boys did not learn to drink, the men would not be likely to learn.

The temperance people of Illinois, particularly the active women of the W. C. T. U. are trying very faithfully to diminish and destroy the dramshop business there, and are anxious to prevent the sale of liquor to boys and girls. And all at once the saloon keepers of Chicago pretend to want to help them. They ask for an ordinance to punish with heavy fines any minors who shall drink in saloons or play cards, dominos, dice or any games there.

This looks at first sight as if they wanted to have the boys kept away from the drink. But it is an awfully wicked fraud. Now when boys are found there, they are made to give evidence in court against the men who sold them drink. But the drink sellers believe that if the boys will be fined and punished for drinking and gambling in those places, they will commit perjury when put on the witness stand, and will deny on oath that they drank or gambled.

This is a heartlessly wicked plot; but it is not worse than selling liquor to children and teaching them to drink—and that is not much worse than selling liquor to men and teaching them to commit crime and murder. The boys and girls should understand what a horrible enemy the saloon is to them and how it is every ones duty to try to have the last one of them forever obliterated from the land.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

The work in which we are engaged is one that inspires every worker to his best efforts. In entering a Band of Hope and looking at the bright, eager faces, upturned for instruction, and thinking of the plastic minds so ready to yield to good influence, one must feel that this is the work that will leave its impress upon the coming age; this is the field that will yield a hundred fold for every effort at cultivation. True there are discouragements, not every path of duty is strewn with flowers, and the thotless indifference which is sometimes shown by those who ot to be most interested, the parents, is always disheartening; but let us rise above these surroundings, and remember that we work for God and humanity. Do not forget that children must be not only interested, but instructed. Too much pastry makes children sick but a judicious mingling of solids with the sweets is not only palatable but strenghening. So with our Bands of Hope. At every meeting they should be taut something, and it should be impressed upon their minds in such a way that they will not forget it. But we should also give them something to amuse them. Let us labor "with the spirit and the understanding also."

Object Teaching.—The most successful Bands are those which have illustrated lessons, either by blackboard or by experiments. Julia Colman's Teachers Manual is full of object lessons, and anything is impressed so much more vividly upon the mind by the aid of the eye. We must do all in our power to teach the dear boys and girls under our care, of the evils against which we would protect them, and in this way they will be fully fortified against them.

Tobacco.—Not one man in a hundred, of tobacco devotees would ever have commenced the habit, had he known what our Band of Hope boys know of its effects upon the human system. It is hard to give up this vice, but thank God many men are giving it up and trampling appetite under foot for the sake of example.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these little ones, ye have done it unto me." M. E. R.

ENDEAVOR.

A moaning cry, as the world rolls by,
Through gloom of cloud and glory of sky,
  Rings in my ears forever,
And I know not what it profits a man
To plow and sow, to study and plan,
  And reap the harvest never,
    "Abide in truth, abide,"
    Spake a low voice at my side,
  "Abide thou, and endeavor."

And even though, after care and toil,
I should see my hopes from a kindly soil,
  Though late, yet blooming ever;
Perchance the prize were not worth the pain,
Perchance this fretting and wasting of brain
  Wins its true guerdon never,
    "Abide in love, abide,"
    The tender voice replied,
  "Abide thou, and endeavor."

Strive, endeavor: It profits more
To fight and fail, than on Time's dull shore
  To sit an idler ever;
For to him who bares his arm to the strife,
Firm at his post in the battle of life,
  The victory faileth never.
    "Therefore in faith abide,"
    The earnest voice still cried,
  "Abide thou and endeavor."

YOUNG ABSTAINERS UNION.

That is the name of a society founded in 1879 in England. At the close of 1880 it had 30 branches and 1,700 members. In 1881 these were doubled and April 30 1882 there were 72 branches with 4,520 members with an average increase of 286 per month.

It had a meeting at Exeter Hall too May 11th. Distinguished speakers were there; Cannon Elison, Rev. Dawson Burns, Cannon Wilberforce, Mr. J. H. Raper and Sir William Collins an abstainer of 51 years made excellent speeches.

This is something like what the Morning Star Band at Modesto have started in. They seem in England to be attacking the monster evil in every assailable point. Let us try to follow their example and get ahead of it if we can.

BAND OF HOPE PERSONALS.

Our Band of Hope is becoming well represented abroad. We have members in Kansas, New York, New Mexico, Nevada, and in nearly every section of our own State; some of them, like Noah's doves, to return to us no more. Still we hope their lots may be cast in pleasant places and their feet wander in green pastures under the Tender Shepherd's care. During the past week two more of our faithful little ones have left us, but we hope not for ever. Miss Rosie Sherman left this morning with her parents for Tehama county, and Miss Allie Cutler, on Tuesday with her mother and sister for Santa Cruz Co.

We hope these little ones, so kind and faithful while here, will never forget the principles taught them at the meetings of Morning Star Band of Hope, and as they scatter seeds of kindness, temperance and love in the pathways of their fellow-beings, so may the great giver of every perfect gift supply them with every needed blessing both for time and eternity.—Modesto Herald.

ITEMS FROM EXCHANGES.

The Out-Go Tax.—"We'll abolish the income tax," said a political agitator the other day. His forlorn appearance suggested the idea, "Why not abolish the out-go tax?" What's that? Listen! On one occasion a deputation waited on Lord John Russell, respecting the taxation levied on the working-classes, when the noble lord wisely remarked, "You may rely upon it, but the government of this country durst not tax the working-classes to anything like the extent to which they tax themselves in their expenditure upon intoxicating drinks.

The people who drink and sell alcoholics are in such terrible earnest that they invest billions of dollars every year. Christ's followers are so lukewarm that the majority of them do not contribute a dollar a year to promote the temperance reform.

Do you pray? "Yes, every day," says the tempted man. Why does he not succeed, then, in fighting down the devil? Because in the hour of battle he puts forth no will himself. Grip the old tempter and wrestle him down. Then, prayer will back you up wonderfully.

If the devil were to choose a trade, it would not be that of schoolmaster, for he hates light and knowledge; nor of a blacksmith,for he eschews hard work. But to keep a beer saloon would give him plenty of both idle time and opportunities for mischief.

Praying for the suppression of intemperance, and voting for individuals who not only advocate free whisky, but get drunk themselves, would be considered by some as inconsistent and hypocritical.

The Queen of Madagascar has prohibited the liquor traffic in her own dominion. The reason she gives for this course is that drink makes the wise man a fool and the foolish more foolish.

It is our firm conviction that the temperance pledge is more for church members, children and good citizens,than, as is generally supposed, for the victims of appetite.

It is the mission of the government to prevent as well as punish crime. Let the state begin at the front door where the man goes in innocent, and not at the back door where he comes out guilty.

Intemperance more than any other vice is now luring our youth from the path of rectitude. To fit them to withstand temptation they need special instruction.

It is no more necessary that a boy should do wrong, in order to be a genuine boy, than that a man should do wrong in order to be a genuine man.

Drink means poverty, sorrow and death. Sobriety means wealth, happiness and eternal life.

Dont ask God to deliver you from evil, and then go and vote for the worst evil in existence.

Beer is legislator for the country. The masses drink it, and under its influence choose our rulers.

CAUTION.

RENEWALS FOR BAND OF HOPE SUPPLIES.

We desire to call your attention to the fact, that, while in ordering Sunday-school literature, one always orders for the then current quarter for "Band Supplies" it is difierent. No matter what time in the year a Band is organized, it is always axpected to commence its lesson with the "first quarter," and for the following reasons:

The lessons for that quarter are upon the subject of starting Bands, and commence to teach temperance from the very first principles. Gradually, as the first, second and third quarters are reached, the scope of the lessons widens as the ability of the pupil to understand the subject develops. So on through each succeeding year. Therefore it is essential in ordering or renewing, to state definitely which quarter the supplies are for, otherwise there is liable to be great confusion. It is understood that these suggestions refer to the Band of Hope Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterlies,the "Red,White and Blue," and "Crystal Fountain"; the two last named being companions to the first named. We trust that we shall receive your renewal at the time of expiration each quarter, and that you will kindly assist us by keeping the above hints in mind.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

RAILROADS.

Mr. Beerstecher, successful Sand-lot canditate for railroad commissioner, is not asking for a renomination. His entire time will be occupied in attending to his vineyard property in Sonoma. There is a large cloud of other mosquitoes now buzzing around the Democratic party, who want vineyards. Governor Stanford has gone into the vineyard business himself; perhaps he thinks it will be cheaper to furnish his railroad commissioners with ready made vineyards.—Argonaut.

A joke of large dimensions used to be retailed long ago touching the astuteness of Massachusetts legislators. An act was once passed that no colored man should be allowed in the street after nine o'clock P. M. "without a lantern." Result, every one of them carried a dark lantern in his hand. Next legislature amended the act to read "a lantern with a candle in it? So the law was obeyed; every one arrested had a lantern and an unlighted candle. Thus it required the efforts of three legislatures and a period of three years to enact one simple effective law to carry a light.

Just as futile will be all the acts of State or national legislation that provide for railroad commissioners elected or appointed by political or official influence. It is nothing but making the railroads pay a fine or make a purchase that is to them the merest flea bite; and meantime the spoliation of the people continues, the corporation is taking deeper root and becoming more irresistible every year. There is one perfectly easy, simple, just method of settling this vexed and much vexing railroad question; that is to build and equip a national road from ocean to ocean and that will put an end to railroad commissioners being pensioned off with vineyards and estates, to compensate which the railroads will only have to pile on a little extra tariff on their 50 per cent annual dividend extortions.

More roads will be needed in any case and no valid or competent argument can be urged against the good policy of a Government railroad, that will not equally apply to a government postal system. The one argument against this policy that used to have force will soon cease to have any; it was objected that drunken political thieves would run the roads and commit wholesale robberies and abuses. But it seems quite likely that the era of drunken statesmen and drunken officials will not long survive the present administration.

By the time a railroad could be completed we shall have a large majority of sober honest officials; the Star route sneak thieves, the post trader Indian butchers, the Indian ring and the whisky ring will be overthrown. A national railroad will do no one a particle of injustice; will stimulate trade and industry; will settle up the wilderness; will reward and elevate and not enslave honest labor, and will be a blessing to the whole people beyond any other national enterprise the government could undertake.

Those who cannot see that the present monopolists will always be able to buy and own and control every competing road or steam line that can be undertaken; must be blind indeed. And it is an equal folly to suppose that commissioners will not always be their obedient vassals and attorneys. There is not a vestige of hope that any reduction of the present iniquitous tarifs will ever be made after the Cape Horn fleet are driven from the sea and that last remnant of opposition to the Sovereign power destroyed. No hope except in a national highway belonging to the people; and if the people cant have that, they deserve to be relegated to slavery under the tyranny they have ressurrected and nursed into power thru their own indolence and inefficiency and the treachery of the whisky politicians they have delighted to honor.

IMMIGRATION.

We hear of an immigration society's work at times, and promises are made of something to be done soon to induce people to come in and settle up the State. But it is time some little work was done to make this State a fit place for settlers to come to. They used to come here in immense numbers, but when they found that the country was owned by the beer and whisky dives and that white labor was slave labor under the whip of the saloon-keeper in this State, they either went to Oregon or Washington or returned East.

A good many efforts at bringing recruits to this State have been tried, but no sensible one if ever proposed was adopted. Lies as stupendous as Mt. Shasta have been industriously circulated in the East, leading people to believe that if they could get here with a few dollars left, they could step right in to a fortune. The evil reports that have been carried and sent back by those who found themselves bitterly defrauded and wronged after having come here, have made people elsewhere very suspicious of any California information.

There is something else that will succeed far better than 100 immigration societies in bringing good settlers to this State. If the people already here will combine to make this State a fit country to live in and to raise a family in, the facts will publish themselves without societies to scatter them.

The main industry of this State ever since the first $1,000 of gold was found in it, has been to make it the hardest of countries for both the present settlers and the incomers. As soon as a mine was discovered, a farming industry established, an industrial enterprise of any kind whatever set in motion, there has been a horde of human vultures camped upon it instantly; a circus of whisky-sellers, brewers, beer dens, gamblers, thieves, hurdy-gurdy hags and harlots have settled down upon it like a plague of locusts and have devoured everything in sight. A clear sweep of the earnings of each day has been raked into the plunder box of the unclean vermin and no matter how magnificent were the opportunities of wealth and happiness it was a beggared community if not every night, at least every Sunday night.

There are hundreds, no one can tell how many, desolated ruins of hamlets, camps, villages in this State that developed wealth enough from their resources to have laid a comfortable and sure foundation for centuries of prosperous, busy, populous and ever accelerating and improving progress; but when the mine got slack or gave out, every body on the spot gathered up his wreck of bad debts and blasted hopes and drifted off flat broke to the next camp that the saloon and its buzzard attachments had not yet quite consumed.

Hundreds of places which nature intended to be very beautiful are reduced to two or three shanties and a grogshop; and they might have had but for the vulture brood, a population of thousands of happy, busy people in the cosiest vine-embowered homes. And hundreds more communities of 50 and 100 up to 1000 are struggling along in poverty and perennial hard times because the whole industry of the place is devoted to the maintenance of a den of thieves to every 10 to 30 people; the main object appearing to be to educate the young in drunkenness and every thing that is evil and disreputable.

The mines of this and other new States and territories are not for the industrious miner or laborer or enterprising immigrant; none of these have any lot or part in them. These things are the sole property under our present system, of the brewer of beer and harlotry and violence and the thieves and outlaws that hang to his skirts. The American citizen has no interest or rights there; he is a builder up; there is no encouragement for him; the class we encourage is the destroyer, the defiler, and we have to-day 10,000 to 12,000 establishments in this State whose sole aim and effort and result, is to pauperize and deprave and kill off our present population; to make the State the worst place in the Union for a sober, honest, worthy settler or working man; to drive out our good citizenship and to make it an inviting resort for the evil doer of every class.

The only immigration society we need is a prohibitory law. We never needed any thing else. But for the grogshop there is good reason to believe we should now have had a population of 3 or 4 millions and twenty times the present amount of wealth. The grogshop and its belongings and nothing else have prevented the accumulation of the savings of labor to the probable extent of $20 for every $1 that has been saved by the laborers. Perhaps it would be within the truth to say $100 in place of $20. The printers, the longshoremen and miners, have previously to 1879 evidently wasted more than $100 for every $1 they used to save beyond their board and clothes.

MORE COOLIEISM.

The Chronicle reports Senator Miller as highly pleased with the prospects held out by Mr. Stanford of a line of steamers to be run from European ports to New Orleans to connect there with the Southern Pacific and bring over swarms of Italians, Southern French and Germans to take the place of the Chinese and make wine here to ship to Europe. The fare is expected to be only $25 from New Orleans to San Francisco for these people.

If the presence of the Chinese is an evil and the R. R. Co. have done their best to create and continue and perpetuate that evil, with a view to the promotion of their own selfish interests and to the detriment of the common weal, it must be a weak statesman that will unhesitatingly accept and applaud their next move when their Chinese importation game is blocked.

Whatever was the object of their former movements, it may be taken for granted, that their present intentions are as nearly identical as possible with their former ones. If they were desirous of having coolie labor, the labor they are now after will be as near coolie as possible. The ruling grand motive of this philanthropic movement of the great company is to get the steamboat fare and the $25 a head for as many white coolies as can be induced or hired to come and to flood the country with an illiterate, intemperate foreign element, antagonistic to free institutions, that will be the blind tools of designing dishonest leaders, and thus become a far more dangerous and unmanageable elephant than the Chinese.

There are some advantages in it that appear so conspicuous to the railway magnate as to blind them to any other view—thousands of $25 to $40 emigrant tickets swelling their dividends and a large addition to the population who will work for starvation wages, patronize the railroad gin-mills, never accumulate a dollar, work the company's vineyards, vote the company's ticket, and be to all intents the company's serfs.

Genl. Miller says the population of the State may be increased from 800,000 to 8 or 10 millions. And what would California be with even 2 millions of Italians, Portuguese, Greek and Southern French and Germans of that class; all Anglo Saxon and American settlement stopped and all the Americans and Anglo Saxon people compelled to leave it for an American State somewhere—voted out, hooted out, drowned out with beer and gin and pauperized out with the general drunkenness and misery and beggary that would be entailed upon us by Mr. Stanford's and Genl. Miller's millions of servile incompetents who would be gladly sent out by their governments or who would be imported as contract slaves.

The last thing but one this country wants is to be flooded by hordes of Chinese and Malays, and that one is to be similarly flooded by hordes of ignorant, barbarous, incompetent, incapable, intractable, dangerous hordes from the Mediterranean. If we want millions of brute labor, the Chinamen and the mule and donkey are the best brutes we can have. A starving horde of ignorant paupers from any country under the sun to this State could not but be a calamity, even if it came from the eastern States of the Union.

But a civilized sober German or Frenchman or an educated Italian who has not been a loafer and a failure in his own country and who chooses to come and can come, will meet with no discouragement. Such will not flood the country but will assimilate with and become a part of the American people.

There was a general craze once for Chinese immigration; grand thing for the country; industrious people; cheap labor; develop the resources; build railroads, etc. Now the belief is all but unanimous that people were then unanimously wrong. And it will be discovered some day in the future and it can be discovered by any studious thinker to-day that it is a great mistake to suppose it is necessary to fill up this country in a great hurry with an indiscriminate rabble of immigration, with no regard to selection of the material that is to be a part of our national structure.

The privilege of American citizenship is so valuable, and its responsibilities so grave that it should be as carefully and jealously guarded from deterioration and degradation as the family circle of the private home.

THE SEWING SCHOOL.

On Saturday last the Pacific Street Sewing school met for the first time in its new quarters—in the Silver Star Hotel, corner Pacific and Sansome—The children mustered about 300 strong and led by their teachers marched from the old school room to the new in high glee and with their Bunker Hill flags flying.

The room is 69 feet long by 39 and has already about 400 seats and when classes are arranged will readily seat 500 little folks if necessary and have roomy passage ways left. The exercises were very interesting and at their conclusion each of the little folks was presented with a much prized picture lesson paper, and filed out to carry the news of their new conquest to their homes.

The hotel contains 65 rooms beside this, which are being furnished and fitted for lodgers. The premises were purchased by Dr. McDonald for the sake of securing this large school room, and the returns from the rooms when let will be used in promoting the interests of the school. In the Pacific street front, there are quarters for a restaurant, and a shop or two. In the olden time one of these was of course used as a dram shop but never will again.

Mrs. May who was for some time Matron of the Home for Orphans is in charge of the rooms and premises as house keeper, and when the rooms are fitted up in a few days more, those who want a quiet lodging place can be accommodated.

It is suggested that the next session of the Grand Lodge can be very comfortably accommodated there, quite a number of the delegates can get rooms and it is within one block of two lines of horse cars. The friends of humanity will wish the Doctor a grand return for his investment. It wont come in dollars of course, but it will in something infinitely better. Good impulses, lessons of love and kindness, heavenward aspirations, holy ambitions and examples and precepts of honesty and truthfulness and cleanliness and virtue and good citizenship are being planted and cultivated and tended with loving care, in the hearts and lives of 500 children—most of them otherwise friendless and helpless and liable to become the easy prey of the 4000 soultraps and boy-deadfalls and girl-snares, which the fathers and voters of San Francisco have chartered and license to entrap souls and lie in wait for the lives of the occupants, young and old, of the homes of this city.

There is a band of generous, noble, unselfish teachers too who care for these children-waifs on Saturdays and Sundays, whose helpful work is of vast importance. If one could estimate the money value of the good, christianizing, elevating influences which shall be carried from this school into the lowly homes of this city and repeated and reflected and multiplied in all the future; the value of many precious lives saved from their surrounding defilements and guided into channels of happy usefulness; the sins and curses and tears and woes that have menaced hundreds, averted and replaced with the thankful hymns and blessings and purified enjoyments of happy homes; the missionaries of good tidings who are to receive their first baptism of holy aspirations in this school and go forth to wage war with sin and misery—if all this can be expressed in figures and compared with the fortunes of Vanderbilt and Gould in U. S. government bonds, as both shall be rated in the market reports of the future kingdom in the far beyond, the latter will doutless cut a sorry and miserable figure. The servant who buried his Master's one talent and returned it unimproved found himself in a most lamentable plight. How much sadder the lot of those must be who have been blessed with a million tal ents and forget or neglect to save for the Master even that one buried one.

AS A MEDICINE.

A brave woman in this city with no capital but a broken sewing-machine and six young children from 1 year old up to 13, has been for some months entirely deserted by a drunken husband, gone she knows no where. She says the family got along well till her husband had the misfortune years ago to break his legs in Sonoma County; with her needle and a fair share of tailor's skill she supported the family nicely during his long illness, and with a light heart, in view of his expected recovery and of better days to come. But the doctor ordered the patient, who had never been a drinker, to drink bottled ale and porter every day TO STRENGTHEN him!!! The wounded limbs of course took a long time to heal and never healed perfectly, having been broken again very easily in a logging enterprise. The porter he did not like at first but when he could work again he was unable to give up the drink and soon became a drunkard and has been ever since. That porter given to cure, retarded the cure, ruined the patient's life and has given a good woman ten years of torture and misery.

About the year 1853 the writer had a leg broken with a log of timber. It was in a Newfoundland port; the doctor who set it was an elderly man and was so much intoxicated that he was almost unfit for duty; people did not mind that so much then; a doctor was very drunk before they douted his judgment or capacity. He ordered a pint of rum to wet the bandages but said he, "don't drink a drop of any kind of liquor, mind that." Not much danger, doctor, I have not tasted a drop of any thing of the kind for years. Ha, said he, then that is three weeks sooner out of bed for you, and so it seemed, for when the vessel was ready for sea, the cripple got on board with crutches. The Dr. Bliss Koumiss treatment had not come into vogue then. Certainly the Newfoundland Dr. had never heard of it.

LONDON TEMPERANCE HOSPITAL.

This institution has lately cost $130.000 for a new building. The hospital has been in operation 9 years and no alcoholic drinks or medicines or tinctures are used. Last year its rate of mortality was under 4½ per cent and that is just 4½ per cent lower than any other hospital which takes the same run of cases. During the year past the temperance hospital has had about 350 indoor and 1700 outdoor patients. They have had 21 cases of typhoid fever without losing one. A London physician proclaimed in the Medical Journal that they were endangering the lives of these patients. But Dr. Edmunds invited him to publish his mortality tables and compare, which he of course dared not do.

Cardinal Manning was there at the annual meeting and was delighted with the success of this hospital, adding its testimony to convince the world of the absurdity of using a fruitful cause of disease to cure a disordered system. He said that within a few days the following case had come to his notice: A lady educated, wellborn, young, temperate in the highest possible degree until an illness occurred, when medical advice constrained her against her will, to take alcoholic drinks; the taste was so hateful to her that she resisted and refused until it was sugared and forced upon her; and having taken it, a habit was formed so irresistibly strong as to bring her to sorrow and misery and even to open shame.

The great Dr. Edmunds who has charge of the hospital says, every day mothers bring their children of the Band of Hope to him to enquire if they must break their pledge to preserve their health in obedience to their medical adviser, but he had never met with a case that presented any justification for such advice. There was a time when such prescriptions were excusable on the ground of ignorance, but ignorance now upon this subject on the part of a medical man is not excusable.

Dr. Ridge submitted as a palliation for the course of doctors prescribing alcoholic beverages that their failure to do so would often prevent their being employed the next time, which is no dout a frequent serious obstacle in the way of proper treatment.

MORE DIME SWINDLERS.

A very smart looking paper comes to hand called "The American Poultry Adviser" published at Zanesville, Ohio, monthly 8 page $1,25 a year, 15,000 circulation. It is of a size that is usually put at 25 to 40 cents a year for a monthly. Its name appeals at once to humane people, for we all know how much our wayward and improvident and frequently unscrupulous American poultry need an adviser to keep them from poaching on garden plots and flower beds. It has a colum editorial titled CHICKEN CHOLEBA NO LONGER TO BE FEARED; that arouses our humane impulses again and as two large printers hands in red ink point to it imploringly, one is sure to read it. It tells of a Siberian corn that once planted anywhere, chases to the Arctic regions or somewhere every vestige of chicken colera. (It dont help it to put an h in that word). Editors are asked to publish the joyful news this week as a public benefit and readers are invited to send name and address and a silver dime to pay postage to and from Zanesville, and the adviser will send a package of seed to plant, and you are to promise to return the same amount of seed to the adviser out of your crop, to be returned "to the owners" who only lend the seed to you as a favor. That is ingenious to play upon very green people, but Rowells newspaper directory just published has not heard of the Poultry Adviser, and it always reports any existing journal long before it gets a 15,000 circulation at 5 times the ordinary price of a paper. The copy received is folded and wrapped and addressed by a party or parties who show by their work that they never before did such work.

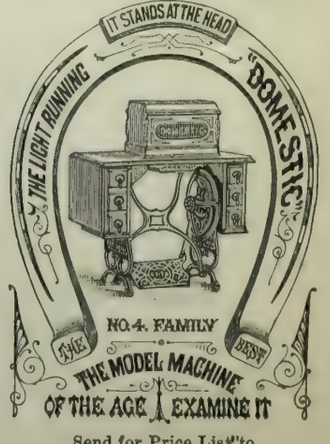
THE SHAFER-BABCOCK CONTROVERSY.

SHAFER SIDE.

A rather smaller number than usual of murders, suicides, poisonings, batteries, stabbings and divorces have rewarded the business enterprise of the leag duriug the past week; but the immense number of drunks daily seen in the street, especially last Sunday, testified that the concern is in full activity. A babe under a year old was discovered covered with rotting sores from head to foot thru the neglect of a father and mother who are both constantly under the inspiration of the leag, which means drunk all the time, and obedient, devoted members of the new Shaffer American church. Altho general business in the leag line was dull in spicy murders, woman beating shone up with more than usual brilliancy. Next week the beer will perhaps be more lively.

BABCOCK SIDE.

Active business in Sonoma, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Butte, Sutter, Yuba, and the southern and many other counties of the State in forming and strengthening the temperance voting sentiment and preparing for the drowning out of the thug conspiracy. The imported doctrine of wife beating, the beer-garden women-slavery and Chinese women-slavery, the starvation of children and the packing of the penitentiaries and lunatic asylums with the manufactured goods of the leag of beerdom is becoming unpopular. Good Templar stock advancing everywhere.



STATE PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

A State Convention in the interests of Prohibition and Reform will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, 232 Sutter St., San Francisco, on Tuesday, July 11th, at 10 o'clock, A. M. The attendance of delegates from every part of the state is desired. To this end, every lodge of Good Templars, every branch organization of the Home Protection Association, every division of the Sons of Temperance, every Loyal League, every W. C. T. U., every Band of Hope, and, in fact, every temperance organization favoring prohibition will be entitled to one delegate each.

It is earnestly hoped that every temperance or political organization in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic will send its duly elected representative to the Convention, as very important matters for the interest of the cause will be discussed. Ministers of the Gospel, Protestant and Catholic, in good and regular standing are also invited.

By order of the Executive Committee of the PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has gained the approval of all the drunkard-makers, outlaws, blackguards, gamblers and thieves of both sexes by his re-opening the White House as a dram shop; but we may be pretty sure that he has not gained by that act the affection or approval of one really respectable citizen.

THE GOOD TEMPLARS HALL ASSOCIATION OF STOCKTON.

That the members of the I. O. G. T. are not asleep, poverty stricken, nor backward in using every means in their power to advance the cause in the City of Stockton, will be evident to all who visit their new, and handsome Halls, in Austin's building, on Main St., just finished, furnished, and occupied by them, Outside of San Francisco, more roomy, conveniently arranged, or handsomely furnished Halls, would be hard to find. The Order in this city has always been at the mercy of other Societies in the matter of obtaining a place of meeting, and has had to remove from place to place, at the will and pleasure of others, without having a home of its own. In Feb. last they again had notice to remove, and were unable to procure other rooms suitable for their purposes. Two or three members consulted, and finally determined to take a bold step, and either build, or lease, and furnish a Hall of their own. At the same time they determined that no indebtedness should be incurred until they were assured that they had the means to make it a success, pecuniarily. A meeting was called of some dozen of the working members of the Order, and it was decided to organize a Joint Stock Association, and ask the help of all citizens who favor the cause of temperance. A prospectus was issued of needs, aims, and objects, and a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to the Capital Stock. The citizens of Stockton so promptly and nobly responded to their call, that in a few days a meeting of the subscribers was called, and enough stock was taken to justify going ahead with the good work. A Board of Directors, and officers were elected, and the Association incorporated under the laws of the State, for the term of fifty years; Capital Stock of $30.000, divided into 6,000 shares, of $5.00 each, non-assessable for any purpose whatever, but paid up in full on receiving the certificate of stock, to buy, and hold real estate, lease, rent, or build, and furnish a Hall, or Halls, in the City of Stockton, for the purpose of sub-letting it or them, for society or public meetings, and with a provision that it or they, shall never be let, for any purpose antagonistic to the cause of temperance. It was decided to sell only 500 shares, reserving 5,500 shares to be disposed of in the future. Mr. W. B. Austin on being informed of the purposes of the Association, granted them the most liberal terms, giving the Association $1.000 in cash, (to be expended in fittings,) and leasing the west 50 feet front by 75 feet on one half, and 100 feet on the L of the second story of his building, for the term of ten years from May 1st 1882, at a monthly rental of $30. Plans, etc., were drawn, contracts let, and the work proceeded with all consistent speed. On Saturday, the 27th day of May, the stockholders held their first meeting in their new Hall. On Tuesday, May 30th, Stockton Lodge No. 182 moved in. On Thursday, June 1st. Mount Vernon Lodge No. 254 followed suit, and on Saturday. June 3rd, Stockton division of Sons of Temperance No. 302 took possession of their new quarters. All were more than delighted with the change, and with the arrangements made for their comfort and convenience, and above all, thankful to have a home of their own, from which they could not be ousted, The Lodges, as Lodges, have no authority in the government of the affairs of the Association, but as the members of the different Lodges are nearly all stockholders, and as those who are not members of any temperance society, are all well known to favor the cause of temperance, all may rest assured that the management of the business of the Association will always be conducted in such a manner as to promote the interests of all temperance effort in whatever direction. The building has nine divisions. First, a Society Hall, or Lodge room, that is 60 x 29 feet, with 18 ft. ceiling in the body of the Hall, and 16 feet over the platforms and rostrums. At the lower end of the Hall are four folding doors 12 feet high and 12 feet in width, of double thickness to intercept all sound. These doors can when necessary, be opened so as to throw the reception room and Hall into one. The reception room is 15 x 25 feet. thus making the lodge room 75 feet long when the doors are thrown open. The reception room is fitted up for the ladies use, and also as a room for candidates before being admitted to the Lodge room, which they enter through a different door from that used by the members. It is also fitted with janitors, property, lumber, and toilet closets. There is a platform around three sides of the lodge room four feet in width, with spacious rostrums at both ends, and sides. The rostrum at the lower end being movable. It can be used as a lodge room, a lecture room, or as an Amateur Theatre, as there is a sectional stage fitting into the reception room, when the folding doors are opened, that has also a handsome drop curtain, and scenery. The wainscotting, and other wood work throughout the building, is handsomely grained in oak, while the doors, stands, altar, desks, etc., are finished in walnut. The floors of both the Hall and reception room, are laid with a rich looking, heavy, and excellent brussels carpet, it taking about 325 yards for the two. The chairs for members are oak arm chairs, with maroon colored, patent fibre seats, and are very comfortable. The desks for Secretary and Treasurer are large, and handsome walnut ones, with drawers for each Society, and furnished with Yale locks. The official chairs are beautiful specimens of the cabinet makers work, and also miracles of comfort. They as well as the canopies over the four official rostrums, are upholstered in the best all wool rep, trimmed with brocaded silk plush, with cord, braid and tasseling to match, and with the mouldings, are all in the latest style of art. The chairs and canopies at the upper and lower ends of the Hall, are in maroon, those at the sides in blue. Picture moulding runs around the ceilings of all the rooms, and there are patent lifts to all the transoms. Also gas cutoffs, by which each Hall can be darkened at pleasure. One of the principal features in the adornment of the Lodge room, and a novelty in this city, is a fountain at the upper end of the Hall, with a basin about 3 feet square and a handsome vase centre piece, throwing 6 jets of water into the air. When this fountain is decorated with evergreens and flowers, and throwing its sprays of clear sparkling water into the air, it is a perfect picture, and is admired by all. The basin has also a ledge for glasses and faucets to draw water from for drinking purposes. The fountain can be removed at will, if not desired by any Society occupying the Hall. The gas fixtures are also very handsome, and there are enough burners to make the building one blaze of light if desired. The social Hall is 50 by 20 feet in size, with 20 foot ceiling, with woodwork finished off in oak and walnut The diuing room is finished off in the same way, and will seat 70 persons comfortably, and 90 can be accommodated at once if necessary. The doors opening into the dining room and hallway are of black walnut, and double, made to swing both ways. The kitchen is partitioned off from the dining toom and furnished with a Magee range and all appliances.

The inner ante-room has property and regalia closets, and with the center ante-room hall-way, dining room and kitchen, are all laid with the best English linoleum.

The windows facing the street are all fitted up with Fitzgeralds patent sliding inside blinds, a great improvement over the old style slat blinds, while the windows in the back of the building are frosted. There is also a letter box and drop, on the lower door, locked, and in charge of the janitor who distributes all mail matter intended for any Society, on the desks of their respective Secretaries on their nights of meeting. Each Society has a desk-drawer and closet of their own, under lock and key.

The partition walls between the Halls from front to rear of the building are all deadened. The ceiling of the Lodge room is arched, and the acoustic properties are excellent, either for speaking or singing. The entire workmanship of these Halls is excellent, and reflects credit upon those who executed it, and the charges have been most reasonable. Mr. Jerry Robinson furnished plans, etc. Joseph H. Bell had the contract for carpentering, Theo. T. Parks for plastering, Robt. Rowe for gas fitting and plumbing, L. M. Mayer carpet sewing and laying, S. H. Fickett & Co. desks, stands, and dining room furniture, Sylvester & Moye, mouldings and officers chairs, and Mr. Deacon, (also with Sylvester & Moye), the upholstery. To Mr. W. B. Austin we are further indebted for a receipted bill of the rent for the month of May, which according to the terms of the lease, we should have paid. To Wm. P. Miller and M. J. Nightingale for favors received, and accommodations granted to help us through, and to the citizens of Stockton who came forward and lent us a helping hand, to enable us to accomplish our purposes, we owe a debt of gratitude which we hope to repay morally, by striving with renewed strength and energy, to promote the interests of the temperance cause in this city. That we shall be able to pay dividends there is but little doubt, as the Lodge and reception rooms are now rented for 3 nights per week, for $5.00 more per month than our rent, and we still have 3 nights more to rent them, while we have 6 nights per week to rent the social Hall, dining room and kitchen, to say nothing of Sunday for both Halls for religious exercises. W.

P. S. The total cost has been $3.300.

The Mrs. Hayes pictures ordered have all been delivered; so our good sisters of the W. N. C. T. U. report. If any one entitled to one of those pictures thru the Rescue, has by any possible oversight been omitted and has not received it, please notify this office at once. Would rather make the mistake of sending five too many than omit to send one promised. Lots more pictures to be had of Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, N. Y.

"WATCH."

This is a temperance concert exercise prepared by Hope Hazel for Sunday-schools, Reform Clubs, temperance organizations, etc., and published by the National Temperance Society. 16mo, 16 pages. It consists of selections from Scripture, responses, recitations, and hymns bearing upon the subject of "Watch and be Sober," and will be found exceedingly interesting and instructive. Price 5 cents; 60 cents per dozen. Address J. N. Stearns, 58 Reade Street, New York.

"THE OLD TAVERN."

"Fife and Drum Series." 12mo, 72 Pages. Price 10 Cents.

This is a new story, No. 6, in the celebrated "Fife and Drum Series" of cheap temperance tales now being published by the National Temperance Society and written by that most popular writer, Mary Dwinell Chellis. Like all her other stories, this is one of intense and thrilling interest, showing the curse which comes from rumselling in the "old tavern" and the blessings which a life of abstinence and honest toil brings. Everybody should read it.

For further particulars apply to G. W. S., Sacramento.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated Feby. 2, 1882, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of liquors, particularly the Sunday law and to procure the enactment of such other laws as are or may be necessary for the protection of our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of the liquor traffic.

It is desired to charter auxiliary associations in every town of California. Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may apply for a charter. The membership fee is $1 00 a year, and charter, with full set of books and register for 600 names costs $5. Of membership fee one half goes to the State association for the general work. Apply for information and all particulars to the State Secy.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S Wade, State Secretary. 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

NOTICE OF ABSENCE.

The friends and patrons of the undersinged are respectfully notified that he will take his summer vacation during the month of June. His dental rooms, however, will be open as usual; at Oakland, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Vallejo, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, for July appointments. About the first week in June I will start with my family for Yosemite and take one months' rest. I. S. Halsey.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

PARKER'S
SALVATION POWDERS!

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

ALL CAN BE SAVED FROM THE TERRIBLE APPETITE FOR INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge of the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills, at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

for public meeting is a saloon keeper but he treated me with courtesy—lighted his hall and aided in securing a hearing which was generous and listened attentively.

The Lodge at Willows is meeting with many discouragements. Bro. Jones is a devoted worker and firm friend to the RESCUE. May he have abundant success.

On Sunday P. M., May 21, I met as fine a company of children at Maxwell as I ever addressed, and at the close organized a Band of Hope with Miss Lou Odum as Supt. Bro. Mapes, the efficient L. D., is working earnestly to make this new lodge a success. He ought to have more assistance.

From Maxwell to Colusa where two public meetings were but slimly attended. The hot weather, etc., etc., etc., being easily pressed into service as excuses. Butte City lodge has an enviable local reputation, and deserves it. The meetings there were not wholly void of good it is hoped and surely gave me new zeal and faith. During the last days of May paid my new lodge at Arbuckle a visit, and conferred degrees, also attended a very successful festival from which they realize over $100 so report says. June 2 and 3 were the days fixed for Dist. Lodge at Butte City, and with Bro. Liening I returned thither in time for the evening session of first day. It was an enthusiastic meeting. On Saturday A. M., the lodge opened with a large delegation present—nearly every lodge in the Co. being represented. Close attention was given the business of the hour, and when the members of B. City lodge invited us to repair to a basket dinner—the attention was still maintained to the close of the dinner hour. This was in no way remarkable, however, for the repast spread was attractive, and every way worthy a hungry company's notice. During the P. M. very important business looking to political action was considered, and a Co. Central Com. was appointed consisting of one member from each lodge, which is to meet in Colusa on the 17th inst, and decide upon a plan of work. They are authorized to employ a speaker to thoroughly stump the Co. during the campaign and given the authority usually vested in Central Committees of the political parties.

A lecture at Princeton on Sunday evening finished my work in that Co. I left it much saddened that so little had been accomplished when so much was hoped for at the outset and bearing with me many pleasant memories and choicely treasured friendships.

By instructions from the "powers that be," I am now a "rover"—detailed to special RESCUE work and have just completed a plan of work for the canvass of Tehama Co. Bro. Jeffries has rendered me valued assistance and is much interested in our paper and my special mission. May his shadow never grow less.

Red Bluff, June 9, 1882.

WM. CROWHURST.

Placer county was well worked during our trip there. Dr. J. C. Hawver deserved great credit for his earnest endeavors to make the trip successful. Nearly every lodge in the county owns its own hall, organ, etc. We have just heard from Dutch Flat that the boom started there—59 names in one night—has not ceased, but is going steadily forward, and the Band of Hope we organized with 35 members and into which six weeks afterward we initiated the 108th member, is still going forward and giving thorough temperance instruction.

At Colfax, the Order is steadily advancing and doing good work among good people. At Iowa Hill, the 39 we obtained in twe nights are still faithful and are having constant additions. In Auburn, the lodge is preparing to build its hall. Throughout the county the work is moving onward. It has delighted us and cheered us in our sorrow to learn from all over the county that we have hundreds of very warm friends, and to receive letters and compliments from all directions, together with many words of sympathy in the great grief at the loss of our dear little daughter. Thanks to our many, many sympathizing friends and brethren and sisters.

At Truckee we are informed of constant accessions in addition to the 41 obtained during our three days' work. Cheering accounts all along the line are what we like to hear. Permanent prosperity continual increase, deep-seated work, we feel to be of more real value in every way than the few paltry dollars gathered here and there. For though they help in doing our work, etc., yet permanent prosperity, strong lodges, good temperance sentiment, working members, enthused hearts, etc., eventually bring in a larger revenue with which to push forward the battle until we shall rid the State, by constitutional prohibition, of the accursed monster, the hydra headed liquor traffic.

While working around the bay several pieces of peculiar work were given us by the Grand Worthy Chief Templar. Among them was to comply with the request of the Loyal League which sent a committee to procure the services of one who had been "in the field" and had seen something of the Sunday law fight. In response to the selection of ourself, we gave them the address of the evening, which was received with constant rounds of applause and bursts of enthusiasm. We could not speak on such a subject without implicating the liquor traffic. Four reporters were present, all took extensive notes, but next morning not a word was said of the Good Templar Lecturer's address. The Mission Journal, a weekly paper, published on the side of right, was the only one that gave a fair report of that meeting. The Chronicle very carefully repressed one of the most important parts of the whole meeting; hence its report is not to be relied on. A Loyal League was formed. This second will soon be followed by others in the city until hundreds of voters will be enrolled who will give neither votes nor business to direct or indirect knowing violators of the law.

Bro. Butler presided admirably, and Bro. Oge clearly, eloquently and fearlessly put forth the objects of the League. The meeting was a good one and aided in deepening the growing sentiment of the Mission of San Francisco.

SANTA CLARA D L meets at Champion Hall, San Jose, June 23d at 2 P. M., and Saturday the 24th.

MONTEREY D L meets at Watsonville, June 28th. Public meeting in the evening. Sunday law must be preserved.

STOCKTON.

The opening social at the new hall of the I. O. G. T. at Stockton June 6, was a pleasant and sprightly affair.

"It is estimated that between five and six hundred persons were in attendance, as every chair and settee was occupied, and those who could not get seats had difficulty in finding standing room in the aisles, on the platform and on the rostrum, while many who could get no farther than the door were turned away. The floral decorations were tastefully arranged, flowers and plants being placed in various parts of the hall.

A TEMPERANCE ADDRESS.

The exercises opened with remarks by the Rev. W. T. Fleenor, who congratulated the earnest workers of the temperance cause for their success in fitting up so handsome a hall. He said he hated whisky in all of its places and forms, and he denounced it as the most deadly foe that curses and abuses the human race. Had he the power he would wipe it from the face of the earth. The reverend gentleman stated that he had always had a high regard for the officials of our city, but in reading the proceedings of the Council he saw the announcement that three more saloons had been granted licenses to sell liquor, and that there was

NOT A SINGLE PROTEST

From any member present. It was strange that not a man protested. "Had I been there," he said, "I would have had my name recorded as protesting against the issuance of such a license." He spoke of the poverty which is caused from drunkenness, and said: "What is poverty if a man is upright and honorable, and has the respect of his fellow being? When a man makes a brute of himself and brings on poverty, then poverty is miserable." He was not sorry that the people were taxed for intemperance and drunkenness, and he wished that the tax would be increased until the people would rise up and declare that they would do away entirely with the liquor traffic.

THE KANSAS STRUGGLE.

He said the liquor dealers of Kansas predicted a defeat for the Prohibitionists in that State, but he told them that if such defeat came he would preach the funeral sermon for Kansas, taking for his text: "Blessed are the Dead that Die in the Lord." Defeat did not come. As it is now, they have liberty, protection and prohibition in every city in the State but three. Two great events are to occur during this month. One is the election in the State of Iowa, June 27th, when the speaker predicted a victory for the Prohibitionists, and the other is the hanging of Guiteau on June 30th. He was in favor of giving those who are cursed by the liquor traffic the right of legislation, and he wanted to see the women vote, saying that when the time came and not till then, would the American people be free from the curse. Do anything that is honorable and right to rid us of the evil."

The musical and literary exercises which followed were highly appreciated. It is evident that nothing is wanting to the success of ihe Order in Stockton, henceforth provided the talent and influence in the Lodges is utilized and the good of the cause made motto in chief. The clipping above would have been credited to some Stockton journal had it been known which one to credit.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—June 15, 1882 at Azusa, Los Angeles County, Cal. Celia K. Bobannan, an active, faithful member of Azusa Lodge No. 485, I. O. G. T. The customary ceremonials were observed and appropriate resolutions passed by the Lodge in respectful kindly memory of the deceased sister.

REV. J. J. POWELL, a worthy and constant member of our Order and a minister of the Gospel died recently at Salt Lake. He was for many years the pastor of the Congregational Church at Rio Vista and a pillar of the Order and a wholesouled advocate of temperance, who saw the necessity of the removal of the kingdom of Satan from the country as a condition of a successful gospel. He was a native of Wales, a country whose sons will compare most favorably with those of any other in morality, christianity, uprightness and in all the traits of character that go to make up good citizenship—if their Good Templars, their Christians, their Shipmasters, their Sailors and their Miners whom we find abroad in all parts of the world, are fair samples of their people.

DIED—May 22, at San Jose, Nathan G. Gilmore, aged 17 years. Attempting to board the cars while in motion he fell under the wheels, was crushed and died same day. He was an abstainer and was attending school at San Jose. His sister and aunt are members of the Lodge at El Dorado and he was cousin to Jas. H. Gilmore L. D. of that Lodge. El Dorado No. 462 passed resolutions of tenderest sympathy with the bereaved family in their most distressing affliction.

GRAND LODGE OF W. T. AND B. C.

The G. L. of W. T. and B. C. will meet at Goldendale on Friday June 30th, 1882, at 10 o'clock A. M. On account of a fire having destroyed all the copies of the last proceedings, representatives and members are requested to bring copies with them. Half fare rates of travel have been applied for to the different transportation Cos. Hoping that there will be a large number in attendance, I am fraternally, JOS. CHILBERG, G. W. S., W. T. and B. C.

Olympia, W. T., May 29, 1882.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

David C. Cook has removed his great establishment to ELGIN, Illinois, which is about 40 miles from Chicago. Send in your orders to Elgin and they will be attended to promptly. It is presumed some advantages of manufacturing facilities led to the removal.

VARIOUS matters crowded out, some of them 2 or 3 weeks old.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

GRAND TEMPERANCE RALLY!

A TEMPERANCE

Camp-Meeting

WILL BE HELD IN THE FAMOUS

REDWOOD GROVE,

Near Guerneville, Sonoma Co., Cal.,

JUNE 29th to JULY 5th.

It will be under the immediate control and management of

ENTERPRISE LODGE, No. 356, I. O. G. T.,

And one-third of the net proceeds will be given to the

ORPHANS' HOME

AT VALLEJO.

Every possible care will be taken to make the occasion a pleasant and profitable one to all who attend.

We cordially invite the assistance and co-operation of all friends of the temperance cause.

Bro. Webb expects after 4th July to visit Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Benito counties and hopes they will be prepared for his lectures, etc.

The petitions sent out by Bro. Gould for signatures are not a private affair. They were ordered by the Grand Lodge and prepared and issued by the Ex-Committee thru Bro. Gould. The petition will appear in the Rescue next week.

Mrs. K. S. Hart has opened a lodging house at 706 California St., for temperance people. See ad. Enquiries are frequently made by visitors to the city for lodgings away from the bars which so infest the hotels. Cars to and from the ferry.

The Mariposa Gazette says the Methodist Conference in session at Memphis prohibited the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors by any member of that Church. If that is so it will pinch some of our good friends in California, perhaps.

Temperance Groceries.—A perfectly reliable authority reports from Mariposa county a saving of $35 on a $60 bill of groceries after paying freight from San Francisco. That $35 was made by ordering from a San Francisco grocery advertised in the Rescue. That should be a pretty good card for both the paper and the grocery.

The comet which was to be a very brilliant object in May and then in June has not been punctual. But there was one thing which the astronomers did calculate right and with an absolute precision. This feat of hairbreadth accuracy of computation in marking out the path of a comet visible only with a powerful telescope, will rank among the very highest astronomical achievements. They prophesied that it would not strike this earth and it has not.

Crowded.—No dout people get affronted at the non appearance of reports and communications; last week there were three full pages left out, much of which had to be condemed as stale; nearly as much is crowded out this week. Some people are treated unfairly because it cant be helped. But in future articles of any description that are unnecessarily long will have invariably to be the first crowded out or published in part. Yuba and Sutter D. L. report is to hand but too late.

Subscriptions and renewals this week: Oroville (W. S. Read) 2; W. C. King (Henlyville 16, Riceville 2, Elder Creek 2, Paskenta 11, Olimpo 1) 32; Springville (Miss Guthrie) 4; Farmersville (Rosa M Johnson W. V. T,) 3; Guerneville 1; J. W. Webb (Adelaida 2, Paso Robles 3, Cambria 1, Cayucos 1, San Miguel 1, Visalia 1,) 9; Mrs. G. Gilbert W. V. T. (Plymouth 4, Forest Home 2) 6; Little York (W. Crowhurst 1; Stockton 1; San Rernardino (Miss K. Shaw W. V. T,) 2; Troutma N. C. 1; Amity Oregon 1; L. Leland Oregon 6; in all 69.

The Controversy.—Some of our new subscribers may not understand the pictorial controversy in this number. They are informed that some time ago Mr. Shafer, president of a Cal. leag of outlaws, endeavored to fix a charge of treachery upon Col. Babcock of the Home Protection Association, in which he signally failed. The Chronicle called it the "Shafer-Babcock controversy": and as such it is being continued in the Rescue. It is barely possible after all, that the whole affair was an ordinary case of jimjams, and that the sufferer in his mania got it into his disordered head that he was a Babcock-extinguisher, and was innocently carrying out the delusion so far as he could.

Anti-Sunday law.—The friends of temperance will be surprised to find the Rev. Mr. Barrows heralded thru the State as a supporter of the principles of the Leag of Beerdom—Anti-Sunday law and Anti-Prohibition. Many who hoped for better things of that gentleman will be disappointed and regretful. It will give courage to the leags of drunkeness and vice to have him proclaim that prohibition dont prohibit, and is an obstacle to the progress of the temperance reform in Massachusetts; but those who want to know the truth, will please observe that in making that assertion Mr. Barrows gives the square black lie to all the respectable ministers and Christians and temperance advocates who have testified on the subject. In short he asks us to believe that the Christian temperance men of New England are the most persistent and universal falsifiers.

Our National Union Magnet of Toledo, Ohio, is another claimant for national temperance patronage. It is a 4 page monthly 50 cts a year. The more the better perhaps; but it would seem that about the first duty of Ohio temperance people should be to make a double success of their very excellent weekly the Delaware Signal. Ohio could have had successful prohibition long ago if the temperance people there had not starved out their temperance papers; and they don't repent much yet.

A Champion.—The rummy faction of Chicago have a Mayor of their own choosing; some of the beer organs have called him the best Mayor Chicago has ever had and he is the best for their purposes. He welcomed the conference of the liquor thugs recently; said that he recognized the drunkard makers and man slayers as one of the grandest interests of our country. Their opponents the sober people are fanatics. There is a cup of beer in the apple. Beer is in the barley and you only hasten the operation in extracting it. That is only a little of his imbecile twaddle. And such men as that are put up by politicians as Mayors of cities and men vote for them in this age of the world.

One of the most sensible things that could be done by the Women's Protective Leag would be the establishment in this city of some good, sober, capable women in laundries to do a good deal or all of that work which is now done by Chinamen. There are lots of good, industrious women whom Mr. Shaeffer's Leag have robbed of their husbands and left them with helpless children to support, who would do laundry work better than the Chinese, who would like to get the work at the same rates and whom the people would gladly employ if they knew where to find them. But it would be no use to set out beer-drinking women in that business. A worthy, industrious woman with six children is now trying to start an enterprise of that kind and if she succeeds, hundreds more will follow.

In the North American Review for July, the leading article is a profound and sympathetic study of "Emerson as a Poet," by Edwin P. Whipple. The author has scarcely a word to say about forms and modes of expression, and cheerfully concedes that Emerson had command only of two or three metres; but he brings all the resources of his extraordinary critical acumen to prove that as a seer, as one who has intuition of the deeper truths of nature and the moral universe, in short, as a poet in the highest sense of the word, Emerson must take rank with the greatest geniuses of all time. In "Hydraulic Pressure in Wall Street," a writer who withholds his name but who manifestly is no novice, exposes many of the tricks and devices by means of which ficticious values are created, and the unwary lured daily to ruin. Desire Charnay contributes the eleventh article in the series on "The ruins of Central America," and records the crowning triumph of his exploring expedition, namely, the discovery of a great ruined city in the hitherto unexplored country of the Lacandones, Guatemala. There are two papers on the civil service question; one "The Things Which Remain," by Gail Hamilton, who labors to relieve the civil service from the aspersions cast upon it on account of Guiteau's crime: the other, "The Business of Office-Seeking," by Richard Grant White, who forcibly portrays the moral ills that come from the perennial strugle for place. Finally, Francis Marion Crawford son of the eminent American sculptor, writes of "False Taste in Art," and indicates certain directions in which art culture might be developed under the conditions of life existing in the United States. The Review is for sale by all booksellers and newsdealers generally.

THE COMING THIRD PARTY.

We want another party, sir,
And it is coming surely,
To put the liquor traffic down,
And keep it down securely;
The whisky bondage long enough,
Has cursed the home and nation,
And made the people insecure
From high to lowest station.

To put this second slav'ry down,
Sustained by present party,
All thoughtful people are aroused,
And giving aid full hearty,
While whisky politicians croak
Of losing the election,
Which last, amounts to nought upon
A moment's calm reflection.

What boots it to third party men,
Which whisky party govern,
Since only by the liquor vote,
Can either one be sovereign?
If one engage in selling rum,
The other sells the license;—
Which is as near the truth, as it
Can be expressed in my sense.

We cannot see like you, sir,
When you pronounce it handy
To swell the nation's revenue,
By selling beer and brandy;
For just as one the greater grows,
The fuller grows the prison,
The lock up and the almshouse,
While tax to load is risen.

There's nothing made, but millions lost
Each year from licensed liquor;
And, as the stills increase their gains,
The crime and death grow thicker;
To every honest, life pursuit,
The sale of drink is rival;
And where it reigns, we need not hope
For business true revival.

How can it be, when drinking dens,
Their coffers full are filling,
By taking from the working man,
Perchance, his only shilling—
The daily wages that should buy
His children food and clothing,
And then when ruined, turn him out,
With taunt and curse and loathing?

Ah! Fatal habit! Curse of Rum!
Must you go on destroying,
While Christian men vote heedless on,
No helping hand employing?
Vote whisky down; no compromise
With whisky parties blending;
Stand firm, third party men, and soon
This curse will have an ending.

A HERO DOUBLY HONORED.

Plain John G. Richardson, a Quaker, and that is a most honorable name, who owns the town and linen factory of Bessbrook, and who has most satisfactorily solved the labor question there, and has built 4,500 Irish people into a paradise of temperance and virtue and peace, is one of the greatest saints and prophets and philanthropists, not only of this but of any age. The Queen of England, at Mr. Gladstone's suggestion, or Mr. G. at the Queen's suggestion offered to make him a Baronet in recognition of his noble record, but he honored himself by declining, and made use of his opportunity to urge Mr. Gladstone to give the people the long-promised local option law.

MR. GLADSTONE TO MR. J. G. RICHARDSON.

10 Downey-street, Whitehall, April 21, 1882.

Dear Sir:—I have received the permission of Her Majesty to offer you a baronetcy. It gives me much pleasure to propose to you an honor which I trust will not be disagreeable to you, and your acceptance of which will, I am confident, gratify all those who have had an opportunity of appreciating your personal position and your public services. I remain, dear sir, faithfully yours, W. E. GLADSTONE.

To J. G. Richardson, Esq.

MR. RICHARDSON'S REPLY.

The Woodhouse, Bessbrook, 4mo., 24th, 1882.

Dear Mr. Gladstone:—I have duly received your kind letter offering me, by permission of our beloved Queen, the title and position of a baronet, for which I feel as grateful as if I could accept the honor. You are aware that I belong to the Society of Friends, some of whose members in early days resigned their titles for conscience sake. I cannot say I feel as strongly as they did in this matter, but I feel as if the acceptance of your offer, on the ground of my having tried to do a little for the benefit of my fellow-men, would detract from the satisfaction I have found in so doing. There is one distinction I should covet above all others—that of being able to influence the great and noble mind of W. E. Gladstone to add to his invaluable services the adoption of such a decided measure in favor of the temperance cause as would free our country in some degree from the curse of strong drink. For many months past, in my most thoughtful moments, I have been strongly convinced that your appeal to the conscience of Parliament and of the nation would ensure the Divine blessing and command the support of the best men of both parties. As I feel confident that the offer you have made me is intended to gratify the party to which I belong, you will perhaps allow me to let them see the correspondence.

Believe me to be yours faithfully,
JOHN G. RICHARDSON.

WHAT IS LAGER-BEER?

No. 42.

Lager-beer is lying beer, in other words stock beer—beer that has been kept some time in stock. It takes its name from the German verb lager, to lie, because it is supposed to have lain some months since it was made. We find in a liquor-dealers paper, an article, quoted approvingly from the New York Star, giving a romantic account of the origin of lager-beer. It says: "The legend is that lager-beer was discovered by accident in Austria during the French war. Before that time the Germans drank new beer. One day, a family, alarmed at the approach of French soldiers, buried their beer and decamped. When they returned, two years after, and dug up the beer, in order to use the barrels again, they found that it had ripened into delicious lager. Since then all German beer is kept in stock, and at Munich the beer cellars are only opened, under the superintendence of State officials, when the lager is supposed to have acquired sufficient age. In this country we are always in a hurry, and our beer is made into lager for us at the breweries by chemical processes, although connoisseurs assert that it never attains the perfection of the genuine "stock" of Germany. However this may be, American lager is good enough to win medals away from German brewers on their own ground, and it has found its way into countries which would never tolerate the original German drink." So whatever benefit is supposed to come from the lying process, the American brewer unblushingly asserts he can and does imitate so successfully, by his chemicals, as to deceive the very elect of the beer-drinking fraternity, and take the palm from the genuine article. Not that we think the genuine German drink wholesome, or that any amount of lying could make it good so long as any alcohol remains in it. The blindness and fascination of the people are just wonderful. They believe the lies about the wholesomeness of lager, despite its villainous taste, its abominable make-up, and its general bad effects. A young matron, with a charming babe in her arms, in the cars toward the close of a long summer day's journey, complaining of thirst, asked her husband to bring her a cup of milk or of tea, and he brought her instead a swimming glass of lager, with the excuse that it was the only thing he could find at the station. She tasted it, and looked up at him pleadingly. She did not like it, but getting no response she pathetically added she supposed it was good for her, and making up a brave face she swallowed the larger part of it. And during the miserable sick night that followed, for herself and her babe, she never seemed to suspect that the beer had wrought the ill effects.

A literary man, of unusual acumen and acquaintance with the natural sciences, speaks always approvingly of lager-beer, though he says he cannot drink it, it does not agree with him, and his eldest daughter, once a noble young woman, is becoming a fool with it. A party of both sexes at a summer boarding-house recently, finding it the fashion to drink lager, had it placed upon the dinner-table. They tried hard to drink it, but its emetic and cathartic effects so interfered with their comfort that they were obliged to desist, though they kept the lying poison on the table to look at, and as a sort of exponent of what they would do if they could. Why did they not expel it, and cry out against it as they would against any other poison? Yes, lager-beer is lying beer in more ways than one, and we Americans are very foolish to allow ourselves to be deceived by the villainous stuff.

A DRUNKEN INCENDIARY.

BURNS 10,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY IN LOCKEFORD—DETAILS OF A GREAT CATASTROPHE.

"Whisky has added another diabolical crime to the list of its constantly recurring outrages against the peace, dignity and rights of the people. We will undertake to prove, to any one that may dare to deny the proposition, that the damnable stuff, whisky, within the last ten years and within the narrow boundary of San Joaquin county, has robbed the people of more money, destroyed more property, committed more murders, and ravished and debauched more innocence and virtue than ever did Jesse James with his entire gang in all his depredations thruout his whole carreer of blood and plunder."

That is the Lodi Sentinel's introduction to its report of the act of a drunken pupil of the Leag of F., who on being refused more drink in a saloon in Lockford went into a stable in the rear and set fire to it. The stable, a saloon and the blacksmith and carriage shop of Mr. Stacy were destroyed; Mr. S. losing $10,000 of property (including 17 vehicles) only $3000 of which was insured. The citizens generously subscribed $1500 to help Mr. Stacy rebuild, for which they deserve every commendation. Now it would be a still more commendable thing for them to put up $500 or $1,500 or $15,000, whichever of these sums is necessary to drive out the grogshops which may produce just such another and even a far worse catastrophe than this any day of the future that they are permitted to pursue their vile satanic business.

LETTER FROM THEO. H. WOODWORTH.

(Concluded.)

There are a great many enemies to our Order in this section, and a very strong opposition to the general temperance movement, that keeps the cause in the back-ground. I do not know that any Protestant church members, or church goers, are using their influence against us, or are opposed to the Order. If not, very few of them manifest their friendship. A large class of people here, men and women, seem to have no regard for temperance principles. Many men seem to have lost all regard for morality, not a few express themselves as prefering to donate five dollars to start a saloon or hurdy dance house, to giving one dollar for the benefit of a temperance society or to help erect a church. They seem to look upon this mountain fastness as a place where they can throw off all restraint of religion, temperance or morality.

The visit of Oscar Wilde to this coast did not disturb the equilibrium of the Bodie people in the least. The weather was too, too, utterly, awfully cold for the cultivation of the lily and sunflower, or the display of the requisite knee breeches, and the Bodie girls require something more substantial to appease the cravings of hunger than to gaze at a lily. Yet a number of our citizens are engaged in cultivating highly colored blossoms of huge proportions upon their nasal organs. They find plenty of liquid here for irrigation, for with our reduced population there are 48 places where liquor is sold by the glass, besides three breweries. To offset this supply of the unneedful beverage we have two bakeries and three butcher shops. I wonder what the people want of so much bread and meat when whiskey is so scarce.

The saloons are all in full blast every Sunday, no attempt made to enforce the Sunday Law. There is no church building in Bodie, but the Catholic priest and the Methodist minister hold services every Sunday, in Miners Union Hall, the former in the morning and the latter in the evening. This hall is used for dancing school, balls, shows, public meetings, church, Sunday-school, etc., etc. On the drop curtain behind the minister, such mottoes as "Teakettle Whisky," "Mono Brewery," "Parole Saloon," "Cognac Brandy," as advertisements, greet the eye of the church goer.

THEO. H. WOODWORTH.

F. N. F. asks in the Scientific American how in smoking to prevent the tobacco oil from oozing thru the pores of two meersham pipes that "are nicely colored." The best way to do so is to lay them on a flat stone, to reduce the nasty pizen things to powder with a hammer and when ground up fine, use them to fertilize a cabbage plant instead of using them to sterilize a cabbage head.

NEW YORK.—In Trinity Church, N. York, there is an inscription "To the glory of God and the memory of Wm. B. Astor," and conspicuous in the Church of the Strangers in New York, is another, "To the glory of God and in memory of Cornelius Vanderbilt." There ot to be an explanatory note to tell the reader if an 1 was left out or what God it was, whose glory was so intimately associated with the memory of these two eminent worshippers of mammon.

Mrs. G. S. Abbott, Oakland; Mrs. John McNear, Petaluma; Mrs. M. A. Nash, Santa Rosa; Mrs. W. R. Spencer, Grass Valley; Miss W. Bell, San Jose; Miss Sarah P. Morrison, San Jose; Mrs. J. B. Hill, Alameda.

Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Congdon, 314 Sutter St. S, F.

Assistant Secretary, Miss M. J. Havens, Blake House, Oakland.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Wickersham, Petaluma.

ORIGIN AND OBJECTS.

The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, with its twenty-four auxiliary State Unions, is the largest Society ever composed exclusively of women, and conducted entirely by them. So far as reported (the returns are very incomplete), there were at the close of last year, 1,654 local auxiliaries, with a membership of 34,317, and 494 juvenile organizations. It is the lineal descendant of the great Temperance crusade in 1873–74, and is a union of Christian women of all churches for the purpose of educating the young; forming a better public sentimeut; reforming the drinking classes; transforming, by the power of Divine grace, those who are enslaved by alcohol; and removing the dram-shop from our streets by law.

TOPICAL METHODS.

It was not a large Union, but there was much to do for the Master. The twelve churches all used alcoholic wine, and they afforded no safe home for the reformed men, so that this line of work was prosecuted first, and counsel was taken to secure the help of tracts. The workers procured a supply of Union Leaflets No. 17, "The Lord's Table: a Plea for its Purity." The leader of the regular Goepel Temperance meeting, one evening, opened the subject by relating cases where great harm has been done by alcoholic wine at the communion table. Others readily followed in the same line, awakening a deep interest. Some extracts from the leaflets were read, with the announcement that it would be distributed at the door. Then the general plan of action was proposed. A church was to be selected and made a subject of prayer, in this respect, for one month, and this leaflet was to be given to the minister, and sixty copies to the members. At the end of that time, a written request from the officers of the Union would be sent asking that intoxicating wine be put away from the Lord's table, and the leader added. "We will begin with my own church." Prayer was offered at once.

The plan was carried out thoroly, but kindly, and their request was granted. The next month they took up another church, in the same manner, distributing the leaflets, thru one of its members, and at the end of the month that church yielded. The third month saw them pursue a like method with a third church, and with a like result. The fourth church, thus selected, yielded at once, and the remaining churches then wheeled into line without waiting for solicitation. Such is the majesty of active, persistent confidence in the power of truth—eminently becoming to the children of such a king. "By this we conquer." (Sec. Is. xl., 28–31).

This is a fair illustration of the method and the legitimate effects of "Topical Distribution." It shows how immediate, tangible results were actually obtained—names can be given— from a judicious use of tracts in connection with other efforts, and to accomplish definite purposes. It is true, that all this implies labor, but there is no hope that such a mighty work as the Temperance Reform can be accomplished without labor. This method of working with tracts is much more effective than merely asking the minister to make a change in the use of the wine, because it secures the co-operation of the members, who will be likely to continue the reform, even after a change of ministers, and so with other lines of work. There has never yet been devised any effective machine which shall, like a heathen windmill, turn out either our prayers or tracts without personal, intelligent effort. By giving out but one kind at a time, and talking about it in such a way that every one wishes to read it, and not repeating the distribution, we shall command the confidence of the public for our tracts, and they will be read and become effective. But, if we make a miscellaneous scatteration, we shall be likely also to scatter and lose the good results.

Whatever your line of work, send a small amount for specimen set to the Department of Temperance Literature, 76 Bible House New York City.—By Julia Colman, in Our Union.

TWO MORE RECRUITS.—Last Saturday evening the only son of G. A. and E. A. Babb, and the oldest daughter of A. O. and V. A. Rix were initiated into Washington Lodge, 386. Eleven years ago they crept and played together upon the Lodge room floor during the sessions, and attended regularly as long as the law allowed them to go. Many a Saturday night they went to bed very much grieved because they could not go to Lodge again, "and they never would be twelve;" the time to them seemed so far off. They really understand all the requirements of our Order and are prepared to elevate themselves as rapidly as they are capable of promotion. They have been steeped in temperance all their lives, and if they do in some unguarded moment forget their obligation, their parents can not blame themselves for any neglect in that direction.—WASHINGTON CORNERS, June 8th, 1882.

About 11 or 12 years ago, Washington Corners was considered a wild place. But a lodge of 11 members turned zionward. They set out in earnest; it was do or die and they determined to do. Bot a saloon and fitted it up as a hall; cost when complete either $500 or $750 the latter it is believed; and they prospered. At the end of a year they invited the G. W. C. T. of that time to their anniversary festival. They had contributed and paid $50 to the Home for Orphans then in its infantile struggles and the Lodge with over 50 staunch members was out of debt and in the very highest tide of prosperity. For some years Washington Lodge was away up among the first of the most energetic, aggressive, industrious and effective Lodges of the State. Vallejo, Beacon, Washington, Enterprise, Mt. Guard, Rising Sun, Valley Ford, Miners, Athens, Alpine, Excelsior, Woodland, Carbondale. Newcastle, Lakeport, June, Taylor, You Bet, Nil Desperandum and others made always a splendid showing. Some of them have slowed up a good deal. two have gone out and some are still holding out grandly. Let us have a boom in all of them now again. In looking over an old file of the RESCUE of 1874, Weaverville is credited with a club of 32, and Washington 34 subscribers to the RESCUE. Neither of them takes over 30 copies now, but they both are going to some day. A generous welcome to the two young apprentice children of the Order who have just graduated into full membership. We may all rest assured that theirs will be a life membership under all circumstances. If all parents would appreciate the importance of training their children in this manner, the shipwrecks daily occurring everywhere around us would be vastly diminished if not wholly prevented.

THE RUMMIES OPPOSE WOMAN SUFFRAGE, THEREFORE TEMPERANCE PEOPLE WANT IT!

At a recent Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in Chicago and presided over by the noble Miss Francis E. Willard, a resolution was unanimously adopted after Mrs. Hagans had read the brewers' resolution, adopted last October, which was as follows:

"Resolved, That we oppose Woman Suffrage everywhere and always, for when woman has the ballot she will vote solid for prohibition, and the womans vote is the last hope of the prohibitionists." Therefore "We the W. C. T. Unions are constrained in conscience hereby to Resolve, That we favor Woman Suffrage every where and always, since, when woman has the ballot she will vote solid for prohibition and because the woman's vote is the last and blessedly assured hope of the Prohibitionists."

The following voter's pledge was adopted for circulation thruout the State. "We voters of Illinois, hereby pledge ourselves to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that we will, in primary meetings and conventions work for the nominations of and at the polls for such candidates only as will promise to vote for the submission to the people of Illinois of a constitutional amendment granting equal franchise to woman as a weapon of defense against the liquor traffic, and for the protection of her home." J. W. W.

WHAT GEO. W. BAIN SAYS.

GROWING IN GRACE.

I am growing in grace on this woman question. I am tired of the sentiment that "the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." If she did, two hundred thousand rum-fiend vultures would not be soaring over the cradle-homes of this country. If woman could keep the world in the cradle, she might rule it. In the cradle the boy is mamma's baby, coos when mamma coos, smiles when mamma smiles, and goes to sleep under her lullaby, but out of the cradle he is papa's boy, smokes if papa smokes, swears if papa swears, and drinks if papa drinks. If papa does neither, then the world, ruled by the hand that never rocked a cradle, comes in with licensed schools of vice to teach boys how to smoke and swear and drink. In the name of millions of disappointed, broken-hearted cradle rockers who sleep under the green sod, and many living, I hurl back as a cold and heartless computation of the wrongs the hollow sentiment, "the hand that rocks," etc. Until I can commend the men of the eighteenth century for pledging their lives, their sacred honor, and their all against the tyranny of taxation without representation, I will not complain of, but support, the women of the nineteenth century who cry out against the same tyranny. Ay! more than that tyranny, for besides property taxation, the assessment of a husband, father, or brother is made by this cruel tyrant– the rum traffic. The tax is collected, and woman is left with no other representation than a prayer to a legislator who gets his office by ballots, not prayers, and on whose conscience woman's prayers too often fall with about as much effect as morning dew on the back of an alligator.

THE CURSE OF DRINK.

The appetite for strong drink in man has spoiled the life of more women—ruined more homes for them, scattered more fortunes for them, brot them to more sorrow, shame and hardships—than any other evil that lives. The country numbers tens, nay, hundreds of thousands of women who are widows to-day, and sit in their hopeless weeds, because their husbands have been slain by strong drink. There are hundreds of thousands of homes scattered over the land, in which they live lives of torture, going thru all the changes of suffering that lie between the extremes of fear and despair. because those whom they love, love wine better than the women they have sworn to love. There are women by the thousands who dread to hear at the door the step that once thrilled them with pleasure, because that step has learned to reel under the influence of the seductive poison. There are women groaning with pain while we write these words, from bruises and brutalities inflicted by husbands made mad by drink. There can be no exaggeration in any statement in regard to this matter, because no human imagination can create anything worse than the truth, and no pen is capable of portraying the truth. Dr. Holland.

OUR OBJECT LESSON.

Again the Hayes commission comes before you with this subject. The pictures, for which subscriptions have been received, have been sent out, and surely there was never so large an expression of delight from every one; there has scarcely been known one shadow of a disappointment. "Well worth waiting for," "much finer than we anticipated," "lovely," "beautiful," etc., etc., have been the words written. To-day comes a voice from Spain, "We are much pleased with it, and hope that its influence may be for good among the girls of our school, so that it may spread thru the land." John B. Gough, Mrs. Garfield, Dr. Merrick, Mrs. Senator Blair, and hundreds of others, have expressed their gratification with the picture, and the hope it may fill a glorious mission. This it will do when placed in every school-room in the land. If, in each city and town, one energetic, earnest woman will tell the children of this beautiful memorial, and tell them how easily they can raise money for it for their school-room, it will be done, and this lovely object lesson in total abstinence will ever give its monitions. In many places one child has taken it in hand and speedily and easily raised the money. Collection cards for securing the money in small sums, will be furnished on application to the Treasurer, Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City. All subscriptions should be addressed to her, and she is prepared now to send the picture by return mail We hope thousands will be called for, and that no school-room nor Sabbath-school, no W. C. T. U. room, nor Good Templar lodge will be considered furnished till this charming testimonial looks from its walls.—Our Union.

CHRISTIAN MAN.

Think of it. All the gamblers—all the pimps; all the whisky-sellers; all the lewd and deeply depraved; all the drunkard makers, on one side clamoring for the right to make a drunkard of your son; clamoring for the privelege of making drunken sots of the husbands of your daughters; and you offer apologies for them; nay, you are voting for them. Yes, joining with them. No, oh, no, we misnamed you, you are not a Christian man.—Neb. Liberator.

A $20 CIGAR.—That is too expensive a cigar to smoke. A young lady recently went to arrange for music lessons. Everything appeard satisfactory, competent instructors etc., terms $20 a quarter if paid in advance. Next day she went to pay the $20 and take first lesson. The gentleman in charge received and escorted her to the practice room smoking a cigar; she concluded at once that it was not a fit place for lady pupils and left to find a clean and respectable teacher of the anti-tobacco sex. It would afford peculiar pleasure to record 50 similar acts reproving in so practical and effective a manner the growing iniquitous brutality of spitting tobacco smoke into the faces of cleanly people.

IF any one desires to get up a dime collection to pay for a Mrs Hayes picture, send to this office for a collection card. A package has been sent here of cards with 50 stars which one by one are crossed off for each dime received and are very useful for juvenile collectors. Cards free.

TRACTS.—Mrs. Mary G. Leevitt has just issued a four-page tract of great value, entitled "Heredity and Alcoholism." It is published by the National Temperance Society, 58 Reade street, at $3,00 per thousand.

Returns Received.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged: Nos. 135, 153, 158, 169, 172, 182, 245, 263, 275, 284, 341, 315, 375, 384, 501.

NEW LODGES.—Since last report, institution returns of the following new lodges have been received at the office of the G. W. S., completing a record of 76 new lodges recorded during the present fiscal year:

Hidden Treasure Lodge, organized June 18th, at Sunny South, Placer county by Fred. B. Ellsworth, special Deputy, 22 charter members; night of meeting, Sunday; L. D., Henry M. Power; P. O., Sunny South.

Earnest Lodge, organized June 21st at You Bet, Nevada Co., by Wm. Crowhurst, Grand Lecturer; 18 charter members; night of meeting, Tuesday; L. D. Mrs. Fena Blue; P. O., You Bet.

Magnolia Lodge, organized June 21st at Eureka, Humboldt Co., by Col. C. N. Goulding, Grand Lecturer, with 22 charter members; night of meeting, Thursday; L. D., A. C. Dauphiny; P. O., Eureka, H. B.

HOME FOR ORPHANS SCHOOL-DESKS.—Contributions of $7.50 each have just been received from Rose of Lompoc Lodge, No. 178, of Lompoc, Santa Barbara Co., and Valley Lodge, No. 293, of San Francisco, in payment of a school-desk and bench each in the new Home for Orphans school-house. The receipt of these contributions makes it opportune to mention that there remain but six of the desks to be secured. A number of lodges and individuals who pledged themselves for a desk during the last session of the Grand Lodge, have not responded in coin as yet. The desks meanwhile have all been purchased, placed in position and use, and are now awaiting the amount of contribution pledged, when they will be marked with donors name upon a silver plate. So few desks now remain to be marked that the rule of "first come, first served" must be invoked. Hence, those who desire to be inscribed upon this grandest "roll of honor" should forward their $7.50 at once to the G. W. S. office.

DR. HALSEY IN YOSEMITE.—The many friends of G. W. T., Dr. I. S. Halsey, will rejoice to learn of the pleasure and benefit he is deriving from his visit to California's great wonder, the Yosemite Valley. A lecture on Yosemite, during the next session of the Grand Lodge, by the Grand Worthy Treasurer, might be a compensating feature for the feelings of envy he has created and imaginations he has excited. A letter written under date of June 20th by Bro. Halsey, from "Yosemite Valley under the North Dome" concludes as follows: "'Twere vain to attempt a description of what we have seen and are now beholding. This great wonder of the world must be seen to be appreciated. Large parties from all portions of the state are constantly arriving. Services will be held in the chapel to-day. Bro. the Rev. E. R. Dodge, of Sutter Creek, officiating. The Orpheus Club of Vallejo, will sing." The Dr. and his family were blessed with good health and intended starting upon their return trip the 27th.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the Grand Lodge office has been favored with calls from the following members of the Order: Bro. Thos. Oxnam, formerly of Mono and Tuolumne counties but more lately of Eureka, Nev. Bro. O. is an earnest temperance worker wherever he is located, hence the members of Iron Clad Lodge are to be congratulated upon this occasion since the brother intends settling down at or near Drytown. Bro. O. was accompanied with his bride, and it is pleasant to know that she is as ardent a worker in the temperance cause as is her husband.....Sister Mrs. M. Anderson and son, of Forest Home Lodge, Amador Co., who reported her lodge as prosperous and doing a good work.... Bro. D. K. Zumwalt, chairman of the Grand Lodge Finance Committee, of Visalia, who came to attend the nuptials of his neice, Miss Addie I. Eskridge, formerly of Constitution Lodge, and Mr. E. H. Tryon. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother, by Bro. the Rev. I. E. Dwinell on the 22d inst. The wedding tokens and presents were numerous and choice. The best wishes of all who know them attend the newly wedded couple with the hope that they may be spared to enjoy a long and useful life.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh B. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

J. W. WEBB.

SAN LUIS OBISPO COUNTY.

After leaving the hospitable roof of Bro. J. E. Mosher, the efficient Lodge Deputy of Arroyo Grande, and putting myself under renewed obligations to Bro. John S. Rice, I started for the County Seat. I shall return on 20th. inst, to Open Lodge meeting at Arroyo, with a good delegation of helpers, I hope from its "big brother" the lodge at San Luis. Then I hope to get a number of subscribers for the RESCUE. The lodge has sent for some hundreds of tracts, books and papers from D. C. Cook and our State paper must not be neglected. I obtained 3 names and those few who do take it highly appreciate it.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.—On the road stopped at three schools and found a Good Templar teaching each, so was welcomed to speak on temperance, anti-tobacco and profanity etc. Bros. Whittemore and Meredith, the gentlemen teachers referred to, take the RESCUE and are active Templars. The former teacher is Lodge Deputy—W. P. Barnett's Dist. With two such men, no wonder that several of the pupils and adults came in 4 miles to lodge and lectures. Visited public school in San Luis where P. W. C. T. Woods is Principal. He has wisely been urging the forming of Dist. Dodge. And, tho it will take two lodges from my home county (Santa Barbara) Dist. Lodge, viz. Gaudalupe and Santa Maria, I cannot but recommend it if I keep in view "the greatest good of the greatest number." Hope to be present on Sat. 23d itst. to insist in instituting it. As this Lodge numbers 200. they elected 20 delegates. Good attendance at Lodge; earnest, business-like and very sociable. Very many young people, especially ladies, with a good sprinkling of heads of families such as Judge Steele, Past master of State Grange, Dr. Hathaway, S. D. Triplett. the preachers, Deputy Co. Supt. W. Beckett, who makes an A No. 1 W. C. T. and others. But they need yet more of the leading citizens. It is to be regretted that Sheriff Oakes has "gone back" on the Order; maybe after election he may return—but I did not meet any one who thot he would be "Sheriff" Oakes then. Had the pleasure of initiating several; Bro. Fitzwater (I spell as pronounced) will make a very influential member. I recollect him particularly because of his enthusiasm and encouraging words at every meeting. The influence of this lodge is being felt in quite a pronounced manner. The temperance men nominated and elected Police Judge C. L. Woods, a subscriber of the RESCUE, a strong temperance man, ever ready to speak in public for the cause tho not a member of the lodge. Hope he may soon be. He can be depended on to enfore that wholesome, moral and sanitary measure, the Sunday law. Indeed a most marked moral as well as material improvement is noticeable in this town and in the county generally. Here the Sunday law is not a dead letter. Saloons are compelled to close on that day. Lately a saloonist violated it, was arrested, tried by a jury that convicted in 10 minutes after getting the evidence and Judge Woods fined him $50. Next Sunday he started to violate the law and defy the officers again but the Sheriff or Marshall remarked to him that on the sale of the first glass of liquor he would be arrested and locked up till Monday. And he thought prudence was the better part of bravado. So I was informed on what seems good authority. Now those who knew San Luis Obispo 8 or 10 years ago, proverbially "the worst whisky town out of San Francisco," will note the change with surprise and pleasure. At the election of School Trustee, Dr. Hathaway, an outspoken Good Templar, was nominated; then the whisky men put up a candidate in opposition, ran hacks and made a big effort but were beaten three to one. For the Assembly, last election, the Democrats put up Pat Murphy, who is supposed to be invincibe because of his bar'l of money and bar'ls of whisky. Yet Bro. Judge Steele came within 17 votes of beating him. With such a happy change in public sentiment aud political action one can afford to encourage the tide of good immigration that is now setting into this beautiful, prosperous and promising county. Sorry that one of the leading physicians is everywhere complained of for almost universally recommending intoxicants as a (medicinal) beverage. The other, Dr. Nichols, sent his name into the lodge some time ago and I hope will soon be initiated. He is a genial whole-souled man of much influence and we need him. He subscribes for the RESCUE, Open Lodge was held at the theater which was well filled to hear a man from "Lompoc Temperance Colony"!—An utter impossibility such a greeting would have been a yew years ago, here. The lodge furnished fine music and much disappointment was expressed that Sister Standifer, wife of the editor of the Tribune, also a member of the Lodge, was unable, from poor health to give a reading. I have never had the pleasure of becoming acquainted with the lady but every one speaks very highly of her work and interest in the lodge. Bro. D. M. Meredith presided, and Bro. Rev. R. M. Kirkland was chaplain. How good to see our teachers and preachers standing at the front? On Sunday, addressed both Sunday schools and preached in both churches to very full houses and never had better attention. Pastors in each case led the services,and Presbyterian Church adjourned and came over. Many young people and children were present and the good deportment could not have been better. The Tribune never reported one word about those meetings. Strange for a news-paper. The Mirror did. On Monday night Bro. L. D. Triplett held a public Band of Hope meeting and was in his glory for the Band showed to great advantage his careful training since I instituted it and left it in his charge, a long while ago. As a S. school Supt., also, he is a success. Whatsoever his hand and heart find to do he does with his might. "Take the RESCUE." Of course he did as soon as I asked him. Sister Vincent, who so ably aided Sister Stevens in canvassing for the RESCUE, obligingly went with me and soon we had a score. She promises me further help on my return and the editor will make a red mark opposite my name—but a good deal more than half the credit is due the good Sister. Bro. Hathaway started with me very successfully but soon whispered, "Get Sister Vincent. She can excel us all in this work." Oh for just such a sister as vice templar in each lodge. The paper would soon be self-supporting. This lodge voted $5.00 towards clerical and advertising expenses of the Prohibition State Central Committee, and there is strong talk of a Home Protection move. Then the Greenbackers declare they will nominate only temperance men for office. It is hoped that Bro. Judge Steele will be named by the Republicans for State Senate, and Bro. J. D. Fowler, formerly of Hollister, is spoken of for sheriff. In their hands the Sunday Law would be safe. Am arranging for Sister May Guthrie to lecture here soon.

WM. CROWHURST.

At Santa Clara and at Los Gatos, we delivered anniversary addresses. The Lodge at the former place held a procession through the streets, and was accompanied by many members of sister Lodges. The meeting was large and very enthusiastic. At the latter place, the stage and speakers stand was one mass of handsome floral decorations, from floor to ceiling—a perfect display of exquisite taste. The meeting was large and enthusiasm prevailed. A storm continuing all day prevented the attendance of neighboring Lodges, except the one from Saratoga. At Rockville, Solano Co., another enthusiastic meeting was held and the membership manifested earnest determination in the cause of right. Rev. Bro. Renfro, and others hold on, insisting upon advancing temperance till the whole community shall be redeemed and then enlisted in capturing the State from the grip of the liquor forces.

In Noe Valley, San Francisco, under the auspices of Pleasant Valley Lodge, a rousing meeting was held in Edwards' Hall. An excellent program was rendered, and was not devoid of temperance teaching in songs as well as speeches. We afterward visited the Lodge and found it working well, and bidding fair to do excellent service in its community. Bros. Downing, L. D. and Davis, W. C. T., aided by other earnest workers, propose to let Pleasant Valley Lodge be second to none in usefulness.

At a public meeting of International Lodge the speaker being compelled to disapoint, we were called into service and addressed a very large audience. The results were—good and reveral names were obtained. This Lodge now has over 220 members in good standing.

In Alameda County, our work around the Bay was not what we should have liked, owing to church revival meetings in progress. At these meetings, however, much good was being done.

Successful meetings were held under the auspices of Athens, Fountain, Brooklyn and Prohibition Lodges. These meetings were held in the town of Alameda, but from very peculiar causes, little was accomplished. Two afternoon meetings were held and a Band of Hope organized as the result, by Sister Richardson, G. S. J. W.

Sister R's singing aided very much and gave more interest to the meetings which she attended. Her work was not thrown away.

From accidental causes, our program for the interior had to be considerably changed. In one place the Governor was to speak on the same night, in another, a S. S. Concert was to be held, in another a Philharmonic concert,in Washington Corners, Sister Rix was sick, and Bro. Rix suffering from Pneumonia, and not expected to live; and so on in other places.

Wild Rose Lodge was instituted in the town of Newark as the result of work done there. After the fruiting season, a lodge will probably be organized in San Lorenzo.

In Livermore "the announcement that Prof. Wm. Crowhurst would deliver a lecture on temperance at the Presbyterian church, last Sunday evening, attracted an audience greater than the seating capacity of the building could accommodate. Prof. Crowhurst is an eloquent speaker, and an earnest and effective worker. He denounced the so-called League of Freedom as an inurrection, ahd called upon all law-abiding citizens to aid in its suppression, as well as to encourage the enforcement of the Sunday law. A pleasing feature of the evening was the singing, several selections being rendered by the choir, and Mrs Scott singing a solo "Where is My Wandering Boy To-night" with telling effect. At the close of the lecture a committee was appointed to procure the names of those in the audience desiring to joln the Good Templars and sixteen names were reported."

Nevada City, Cal.

C. N. GOULDING.

I wrote you last from Eureka, upon my return from Trinidad on the 8th inst. Friday the 9th, lectured in Freshwater school house (located half way between Eureka and Arcata) to an audience that completely filled the building. Considerable interest was manifested, and an invitation extended to come again on the 11th, drove back to Eureka that night, and Saturday evening the 10th, went to Arcata and found the M. E. Church crowded, and delivered my lecture "Saloons what they are for." It had been previously arranged that I should lecture in Arcata Sunday evening the 11th, but it was deemed advisable for me to lecture in Eureka instead and I made the change, much to the regret of good Bro. Chrisholm, and the members of our order, but it was for the interest of the order that I done so. Bro. and Sister Stearns very kindly entertained me at their "Yankee Home."

Sunday 11th returned to Eureka, and at 3 P. M. lectured at Freshwater and at the close of my lecture organized a Lodge with 34 Charter Members, G. W. McCoy, W. C. T., James Parks, Lodge Deputy, returned to Eureka, and lectured in the M. E. Church, at 8 P. M. (making my fifth lecture in Eureka.) Monday the 12th left for Table Bluff, lectured to a large audience in Grange Hall, and Tuesday morning Bro. Woodward, Pastor M. E. Church at Ferndah came up for me and we were soon in Ferndale (located in the beautiful Eel River Valley) lectured in the Congregational Church that evening 13th to audience of one hundred and fifty, (gave up the appointment at Port Kenyon, as it was useless to go there, the Lodge there died for the best of all reasons, "want of people."

Up early on the 14th and off to Petrolia 35 miles, after twelve hours hard riding, found the town, lectured to an audience that filled the church, and on the 15th, went to Upper Mattole 13 miles, was kindly entertained by Bro. and Sister Parkhurst lectured to an audience of 25 (which was about all in that neighborhood) and on the 16th, returned to Petrolia where I delivered my second lecture. A terrific wind, prevented a few from attending, still we had a good meeting. Any particulars regarding the force and power of the wind can be furnished by Bro. Simpson as the new hall he was building was blown down, and then it was that the California trait of character "benevolence" was manifested for in an hours time 250,00 was subscribed to rebuild the hall. 17th, came to Ferndale lectured in the M. E. Church to a crowded house, again on the 18th, in a large hall, (Union Services) and an immense audience, (3 P.M. 18th, lectured in Grizzly Bluff); at the close of my lecture Sunday evening 18th, tried in vain to organize a lodge. The Champions of Friendship and Temperance, have an organization in Ferndale that is doing good work, but the success of the cause in Eel River Valley is largely due to Bro. Woodward, who is constantly Sowing Seed by the Way Side; with Bro. Woodward in the southern, Bro. Chisholm in the northern, and Bro. Rhoades in the central part of Humboldt county the cause is safe, 19th, came to Rohnerville lectured there 19 and 20th, crowded houses, on the 21st. went to Eureka and organized a lodge with 22 charter members, Bro. C. A. Dauphney Lodge Deputy, this lodge became a necessity,and will prosper;for the first time on the 19th, at the City Election the Temperance people "gave battle" and while not successful, yet the whisky ticket was not entirely so, as the drunken Police Judge candidate was defeated,a Temperance Judge being elected. Also a Councilman and Library Trustees; slowly but surely we are "pushing them to the wall." On the 22, lectured in Hydesville, and to-day 23d, came here, Bridgeville, and working my way down shall visit Blocksburg, Garberville, Willets and Ukiah, and hope to meet the "assembled hosts" at Guerneville on the 1st July and make my report of the lodges and their conditions in my next.

Bridgeville, June 24, 1882.

H. R. HUGHES.

At Georgetown, the Lodge has about 60 members, a number have withdrawn recently for various reasons, but I feel confident that the faithful few, are there to keep it up.

I had a fair audience at the church, but the enthusiasm manifest last winter was conspicuous by its absence.

At Bear Creek, the young people still keep up their Blue Ribbon club. There are not, enough of them to sustain a Lodge.

In Spanish Flat, Sunday afternoon—had a small meeting—and the same in the evening at Garden Valley. In working up a county, I aim to take in every little place that will give me even a small audience, so that all may be reached. These old mining camps are very hard fields to till.

But these immortal souls, so long neglected are precious in the sight of Him, with whom we have to do.

At Kelsey I had a good meeting. I think we can organize here in the fall. The 20th at Placerville "Open Lodge," they had a full house, Eldorado Lodge sending a large delegation. Placerville Lodge has over 60 members and are slowly but surely gaining ground.

At Pleasant Valley the little lodge (mostly young folks) have held out bravely against great discouragements and seem determined to persevere in the good work. At Grizzly Flat, the lodge was compelled to suspend meetings during winter on accouut of the snow and cold.

Their last W. C. T. has left the place, their L. D. has become discouraged, and until some one qualified to lead can be found, it seems useless to try and do anything in so hard a field.

At Mt. Aukum, the lodge is doing well, had a very pleasant meeting. It is a pleasure to work in a community like this, where all work together harmoniously. This ends my tour of Eldorado Co. Considering that the first lodge was planted only last August, I feel we have reason to rejoice that the order has taken such firm hold, and we feel confident that they will soon rival the brethren of Amador Co. in zeal and good works.

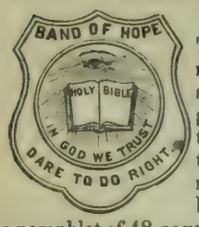
DISTRICT LODGE.

Tehama County District Lodge convened at Red Bluff, June 16, 1882. There being only four lodges represented, but little work was done except election and installation of officers: J. R. Whitlock, D. D., W. B. Ballard, Dist. Secy.



An adjourned meeting was called for July 17, 1882.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A LESSON FOR THE BOYS.

Some time ago, just before the prizes were offered in the public schools for essays on the twin evils of alcohol and tobacco, a school pupil of San Francisco stated in conversation at her home, that when the boys talked of what they were going to do or to be, a good many would say, "I shall go into the wholesale liquor business, or into the whisky business; that is the way to make lots of money and get rich."

That is what a good many grown people think and have always thot, but everybody that has done so has been blinded and led to ruin. Your friend has had a large opportunity of seeing and knowing how people fared in the past, who went into the liquor business to make money. He was acquainted long ago with most of the hotels and taverns and stores that sold liquor along a coast of about 200 miles. Acquainted so far as to know where they were, who kept them and to know the proprietors by sight and knew many of their families. They were all making money apparently and having a nice time.

Returning to that country 10, 15, 25 years after school days, ruined hovels most commonly marked the site of the old taverns and hotels and wayside inns that were once making money. And the ruined hovels in almost every case truly represented the ruin that had come over the families that once occupied them. The old folks had met with general disaster; husband died of delirium tremens, wife in a lunatic asylum, sons, one in the penitentiary, one ran away, some died worthless, dauters married to drunkards, and some of them keeping a hereditary ginmill or other disreputable haunt.

Here and there an exceptional reform had taken place. One son had started out on a different track and become an honest, useful citizen, while his brothers and nephews perhaps with a college education went to ruin or death from whisky at an early age. How perfectly the word of Scripture is realized in the fate of the liquor sellers, "But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction; bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days."

In some places of this world that I have known, a rumselling hotel in a country village or county town has ruined and destroyed three or four different families, perhaps more, that have tried the money making business one after the other. "The wicked is snared in the work of his own hands" says the Bible.

Many a time a young man or an older has commenced business in a store, a grocery or a hotel and acknowledging that drink was an evil and rum selling a sin, they said they were obliged to sell liquor; could not help it because their customers wanted it, etc. And about every time the wicked who sot to snare his neighbor for money, was snared in the work of his own hands. To say they had to do it was a lie of the evil one.

There was about the year 1850 a new street built in Liverpool along the line of a new set of docks that were opened. American ships went mostly to those new docks. Lots of people started business there to get the custom of the Americans. About every time an American captain or mate or steward bot a pair of socks or a tin kettle or a chart or a sack of potatoes or a dozen of table spoons there, he was asked to go and take a drink or 2 or 3 at the dram shops packed close among the stores and dwellings. Every dealer wanted to treat his customer and to go out and drink with him. When the customer got half drunk he would buy twice as much and the dealer would make money. But the wicked fell in to his own snare. In 15 years time almost every business there had changed hands two or three or more times; when the dealer got fond of drink, the sheriff always closed him up and another fool would set the same snare in the same way and come out stripped. Except the grogshops; how they fared better or worse is unknown to me; we never got acquainted enough to speak.

To-day a firm of two who keep a very fashionable deadfall in San Francisco, frequented by very high-toned gentlemen, is in trouble. It has ruined souls without number in a course of more than 20 years. No doubt it has made money. How long the present proprietors have had it is not known, or how many proprietors it has killed; but one of the two disappeared two weeks ago on a drunk and has not been heard of since. The other has been nearly a week on a spree. Both will shortly die the death of dogs. Will fall into their own trap.

Would these men be at all better off if they had 10 million dollars apiece? Not at all, they would live just as wretchedly and die as miserably. But you say, "if I was one of them and had 10 million, I would stop drinking and live respectably and happily." No, you would not, not when whisky gets hold; you could not. Did you ever see an ox hauled up by a chain and windlass to the ringbolt where death is waiting for him? Did you ever see him thro off the chain and go home and live happily? No, and the chain of the drunkard is as hard to break; it drags its victims right up to the slauter ring and they can no more stop than the helpless ox.

The safe and easy and happy way is never to begin.

SPAIN.

Spain is one of the most delightful countries in the world so far as its soil, climate and natural features and productions can make a country healthful, pleasant and beautiful. The Creator made it and fitted it in every way to be the dwelling of a perfectly happy healthy race of people. There are no rigorous winters like those of New England that involve costly stoves and fires and extra clothing and double walls and windows. It has in most of its territory a soil that is exceedingly productive and it yields almost every necessary of life in abundance. It would be very easy for a sober, virtuous, industrious people to acquire a competence from the resources of the country and accumulate a surplus in every generation to improve their dwellings, develop manufactures and create a commerce with the rest of the world. Spain is almost surrounded by the sea and is well watered in the interior with streams and rivers.

It is very often asserted by unwise people in California that wine making is a profitable business, but the people who say that, either know better or are entirely ignorant in that respect having been deceived by the false reports of others. Spain has had the very best opportunity of all the world to be a great rich prosperous country, if a wine country could ever prosper.

The world has been deceived with the idea that Spanish wines were delicious, wholesome and necessary luxuries, and a bottle or case or barrel of real Spanish sherry or other wine was a most precious thing to get or have. Nobody knew till recently that the same liquid as the most highly prized and costly wine that was ever made in Spain, can be and is made in a San Francisco cellar for 15 or 20 cents a gallon merely by mixing together some alcohol and water and flavoring drugs. But all over Europe and other countries people have been for centuries paying a big price for Spanish wines: five times their cost value and more often, and yet Spain is one of the most pauperized and ignorant and demoralized of nations.

Spain, outside of its wine, has had everything to make it a highly prosperous nation. If wine and brandy was a good thing to raise, the people have received enough money for those things to have made them enormously rich. But the drunken habits and the idleness and vice and gambling generated by wine have made the people enormously poor. Of a population of 17 millions, there are nearly one million of "Hidalgos," or gentlemen of noble ancestry, who are most of them very poor, and there are almost or quite as many beggars and paupers, half a million of them being maintained in more than 1,000 charitable institutions.

Three centuries ago, Spain was about the most powerful nation in the world. Their armies and fleets were considered invincible; their soldiers and sailors were brave, vigorous, active, enduring warriors; the Spaniards were the foremost of the world in enterprise and in conquest. Now they are so poor and insignificant that when the nations of Europe consult together about international questions, they dont think it worth while to notice the existence of Spain as a power at all.

Some inconsiderate people will tell you the reason of this decline from power and health and affluence to weakness and indolence and pauperism and ignorance was their superstition and religious bigotry—But under precisely the same religious influences and practices they grew up into their former prosperity, so that reason will not serve. If any one claims that idleness, vice, ignorance, dancing, gambling, bullfighting etc., have pauperized Spain it must be admitted that these things are all the especial fruits of wine. And one thing more, the Spaniards have during the time of their decline been most inveterate smokers as well as drinkers.

As smoking and wine or beer drinking are never failing causes and the most potent causes of pauperism, physical and intellectual weakness and degradation, it is idle to pretend that the degeneration of the Spaniards, Italians, Portuguese, Greeks, etc., is due to any other cause. Or that wine and tobacco if they obtained the same mastery in California would not in a few generations make our people entirely rotten and worthless.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

Reports.—On the 15th, of March blanks for reports, were mailed to every Band of Hope in this jurisdiction, accompanied by circulars requesting an immediate return of report. A few Bands have failed to comply with this request, and it has become necessary to declare them delinquent, and no further supplies can be sent them, until their reports are forwarded. It is absolutely essential that reports shall be received from every Band during every term. Since blanks have been printed, it makes it a very easy matter for the Supt., to fill out and return to this office and it should be done promptly.

Election of officers.—The last meeting in June is the proper time for election of officers for the six months ending Dec 31st. The terms in the Band of Hope are six months each and the officers should be installed the first meeting in July. In election care should be taken to conduct everything in a business like way, and instruct the children in the proper method of nominating and voting.

The San Diego Band always uses written ballots and it is without dout a good plan to make the children familiar with the process.

What One Little Band of Hope Boy Thinks of God.—While stopping with a friend not long since, her little curly-headed boy of four years was seen to be limping around. She looked at the little foot and found quite a sore made by his boot. He looked at her while she washed and attended to it, and when the process was finished, with a gentle sigh of satisfaction he said: "I dess Dod must be awful busy to-day." "Why?" said his mother. "'Cause, I asked him to make my foot well this morning, and He didn't hear at all; but I dess He's busy reading." "Why, Johnnie," said his mother, "what makes you think God reads?" The blue eyes opened their widest, and, with a look of astonishment, he said: "'Course Dod reads His own book, the Bible; of course he does." M. E. R.

ITEMS BY J. W. WEBB.

P. T. Barnum, the great showman introduced me to the celebrated General Tom Thumb when I was a little boy in England. He lifted me on to the platform and let me sit in the chair given the dwarf by Queen Victoria. He told him to kiss me but the little man said he kissed only ladies, saluting my sister in that way, but said he would take wine with me, and a bottle of champagne was accordingly opened and we drank to each others health. So whenever I see Barnum's name as a temperance man and occasional speaker I think how little either of us thot of ultimately being temperance lecturers in America. Now I see we are probably both Band of Hope boys. I infer it from the following anti-tobacco incident:

A Clown Elephant.—Among the many curious things done by the trained elephants in the London show is a scene where one elephant, dressed as a clown, walks into the ring and sits down on a chair. Reaching out his trunk he picks up a dinner bell on the table in front of him and rings it for dinner. A servant enters with a loaded tray and places a "square meal" upon the table. The clown elephant then helps himself gracefully to the various dishes, picks up a champagne bottle filled with water and empties it into his mouth. He then takes a napkin and wipes each side of his mouth. The servant removes the tray of dishes, and the elephant picking up a palm-leaf fan with his trunk, leans back in his chair and leisurely fans himself. Professor Arstingstall, his trainer, proposed teaching him to smoke a pipe of tobacco, but Mr. Barnum remarked that his performers and army of employes were men of exemplary character, and his clown elephant should not be permitted to demoralize them by setting them bad examples. Bridgeport Standard.

A young lady of fifteen summers writes me from Gilroy thus: "The Sunday law is being enforced here; not a saloon open last Sunday. A minister overheard some whisky men the other day declare that if the law was enforced, churches would be very thinly attended, for then we wont go! Isn't it funny! They seemed to think the churches could not live without the help of those who are doing all they can to hinder churches.""

FROM THE SIN OF TOBACCO.

* * * * *

"The victim was exactly of my own years, and a companion from early boyhood. For thirty years at least he had been a daily smoker of the choicest cigars, but in all his other habits temperate and regular, and of excellent constitution—one who of all men would have laughed at the suggestion that tobacco was killing him. A week ago last Sunday night he was stricken with the progressive characteristic of nicotine, and on Sunday night he died. His death was most pitiful. First sight was lost, then speech, then motion of the neck, then motion of the arms, and so on throughout the body, and he lay for a week unable to move or make a sign, save a pitiful, tongueless, inarticulate sound, which sometimes rose to almost frantic effort, all in vain to make known what he wished to say to the family and friends, for his consciousness and mental faculties were left unimpaired until two hours of the last, to aggravate to the utmost the horror of his situation—a living soul in a dead body. The sense of hearing was left unimpaired, so that he was conscious of all around him, while as incapable of communication with them as if dead, save by a slight sign of assent or dissent to a question. The doctors were fully agreed that tobacco was the sole cause of the stroke.

Amaurosis is also frequently induced by the use of tobacco, It is commonly confined to one eye. It is generally curable, but not always, by giving up the habit. J. W., a coach builder, upwards of fifty years of age, had smoked for thirty years, generally two ounces of tobacco a week, when he became so blind as to be unable to work, or even walk through a crowded street. He applied to an eye dispensary, where the medical man who is considered a good oculist, told him that he labored under amaurosis, and prescribed accordingly. After following his treatment for some time, and finding himself no better, he visited a neighboring city, and consulted another oculist, who instantly detected tobacco to be the cause of his blindness, as if the obnoxious stench of the weed had led him at once to this conclusion. J. W. instantly threw away tobacco forever, visited a relative in the Highlands, where in a short time his vision gradually returned, became clear, and enabled him to return to his business quite cured. A skilful English Physician states that out of thirty-seven patients suffering from loss of sight by paralysis of the optic nerve, twenty-three were inveterate smokers.—Rev. Albert Sims, in the Sat. Anvil.

YOUTHFUL VICTIMS.

The writer having occasion to call at a neighbors not long since, was struck with the dejected and sickly appearance of the lady of the house, who was entirely alone. The secret of her affliction, however, was soon revealed; for an allusion being made to her only son, she pressed her hands heavily on her throbbing heart, as if to prevent it jumping from her bosom, and exclaimed, "Oh, Brother Eddy, my trouble is killing me! The rum-sellers, in spite of all that I can do, are murdering my dear boy!"

As soon as she had somewhat recovered her self-posession, she related her personal interview with the dram-sellers—how she, with tears, remonstrated, begged and prayed that they would desist from selling or giving liquor to her son; but all to no purpose.

Another case has just come under our observation. A man living in Indiana said: "Well, temperance is all right enough, but there are matters of more importance before the people now." Two nights after he made the above remark, a spring-wagon stopped in front of his house, about one o'clock in the morning. He was called to the door. His wife looked out of the window and saw six men carrying something on a door or wide board. She guessed what it was in an instant, and giving a wild, frantic scream, cried, "My boy, Oh, my boy! What shall I do? He is dead! I have been fearing this would happen by that cursed whisky!"

Sure enough, it was her son brot home nearly dead. He had been drunk and engaged in a street brawl. He had been beaten into almost a shapeless, unrecognizable mass, and stabbed in the right side. But why should we refer to one or two instances of the crushed hopes of broken-hearted and almost crazed mothers? While we are writing, doubtless, there are thousands of mothers and others enduring similar agony, which they try as best they can to conceal; and could we hear their involuntary outbursts of grief, their exclamations would be substantially the same.—Pittsbnrg Christian Advocate.

A DEVIL'S ELIXIR.

There grows no wine
By the haunted Rhine,
By the Danube of Guadalquiver,
Nor on island or cape
That bears such a grape
As grows by the Beautiful River.

Drugged is their juice,
For foreign use,
When shipped o'er the reeling Atlantic,
To rack our brains
With the fever pains,
That have driven the Old World frantic.

To the sewers and sinks
With all such drinks,
And after them tumble the mixer,
For a poison malign,
Is such Borgia wine,
Or at best, but a Devil's Elixir, —Longfellow.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL.

"How can I be beautiful?" Every boy and girl, man and woman, wants to know that. Here is Mr. Emerson's beauty receipt: "There is no beautifier of complexion, or form, or behavior, like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around us." Do you suppose that receipt will work? Think of the most beautiful people you know. Ah, I know some one would say "mother." Do you not think these people are those who try very hard to make others happy? I know very many beautiful people who would have remained very plain had they sought only to please themselves.

We want to try Emerson's rule for becoming beautiful, so it will not do to forget that "There is no beautifier of complexion, form, or behavior, like the wish to scatter joy and not pain around us."

But we would like to have him tell us what things last the longest.

He is all ready to tell whoever wants to know: "Beauty is the quality which makes to endure. In a house that I know, I have noticed a block of spermaceti lying about closets and mantle-pieces for twenty years together, simply because the tallow man gave it the form of a rabbit; and I suppose it may continue to be lugged about unchanged for a century. Let an artist draw a few lines of figures on the back of a letter, and that scrap of paper is rescued from danger, is put in a portfolio, or framed and glazed, and, in proportion to the beauty of the lines drawn, will be kept for centuries." And there are beauties of heart, mind, and character; that do not meet the eye, but are none the less powerful in "making to endure."—Julia E. Sargent, in St. Nicholas.

THE CAPTAIN WAS DRUNK.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

John McNulty, the steward of the ship "Screamer," that sailed from Philadelphia for New Orleans recently with a cargo of one thousand tons of coal, and which foundered on the fourth day out, arrived at his home, 611 South Front street, a few days ago, where he related the story of his shipwreck and rescue.

"If the captain had been sober," said Mr. McNulty, "not a man would have perished nor a life been in danger. The captain was notified of the shifting of the cargo and the leaking of the vessel, but took no step towards securing the safety of the crew. One man attempted to hoist the signal of distress, but the captain would not allow it to go up. Two ships passed us while we were fast sinking and it was only when the third hove in sight that the halyards were cut from the captain's hand and the signal hoisted. It was three hours from the time the brig was signaled that our ship went to the bottom, and had she not been signaled all on board would have been lost. Myself and the cabin boy, whom I took with me from Philadelphia, were the first to jump from the sinking ship and we were the first picked up by the crew from the brig. After the ship sunk I was struck and bruised by the timbers that came to the surface and was carried on board insensible. Eight of us were picked up, the other three went down with the ship. The fourth man whom we lost had drifted away with one of the boats and, I am afraid, was never picked up.—Bloomsburg Journal.

A HEARTLESS FATHER MADE SO BY DRINK.

"Don't take my Kismass money, papa," tearfully pleaded a little three-year-old of Montreal the other day. Her father was once counted among the respectable residents of the city, says the Gazette, but while his daughter piteously cried, he heartlessly abstracted from the little tin bank her first Christmas savings of twenty-six cents. The bank was a present from a relative. In gleeful anticipation of all the nice things they would purchase by-and-by, the little miss regularly dropped therein the small coins as she got them, until it seemed to her the bank contained untold wealth. Her father was generally kind and loving. But now he listened to his child's heart-breaking appeal with indifference, and an hour later his wife found him at the neighboring saloon in a state of boisterous intoxication—drunk on liquor bought with his baby girl's first Christmas money.—Chicago Daily News.

Let us teach the children all to hate and fight the accursed drink, the children's worst foe.

The entire productive industry in this country in the census year amounted to $7,000,000,000. There went into the liquor traffic $1,493,000,000. The laboring classes received that year $1,100,000,000. It cost to clothe the American people $398,000,000. The public schools cost $100,000,000. The churches cost $48,000,000. For each of our 80,000 churches there are four grog-shops, and for every one of the 90,000 ministers there are six bartenders!

There are 80,000 churches
There are 320,000 grog-shops
There are 175,000 public schools
There are 275,000 public school teachers
There are 90,000 ministers
There are 540,000 bartenders.

Will you do anything for temperance? Will you teach the pupils the ruin this is bringing to the human race?—N. Y. School Journal.

CAUTION.

RENEWALS FOR BAND OF HOPE SUPPLIES.

We desire to call your attention to the fact, that, while in ordering Sunday-school literature, one always orders for the then current quarter for "Band Supplies" it is difierent. No matter what time in the year a Band is organized, it is always expected to commence its lesson with the "first quarter," and for the following reasons:

The lessons for that quarter are upon the subject of starting Bands, and commence to teach temperance from the very first principles. Gradually, as the first, second and third quarters are reached, the scope of the lessons widens as the ability of the pupil to understand the subject develops. So on through each succeeding year. Therefore it is essential in ordering or renewing, to state definitely which quarter the supplies are for, otherwise there is liable to be great confusion. It is understood that these suggestions refer to the Band of Hope Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterlies, the "Red, White and Blue," and "Crystal Fountain"; the two last named being companions to the first named. We trust that we shall receive your renewal at the time of expiration each quarter, and that you will kindly assist us by keeping the above hints in mind.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

CAUTIONARY SIGNALS.

Under this heading the N. Y. Tribune refers to the recent decision of the Textile Fabric Association, to curtail the production of the lower grades of their manufactures to one half its volume. The reason assigned is that the Jeans and lower grades of cotton are in small demand, while the high priced goods are in such demand that large imports are made from England.

The Tribune then goes to show that our American "women" have taken advantage of recent good times succeeding a long depression, to deck themselves in fancy clothes, to be extravagant in household decorations, expensive cookery, equipages, jewelry and every outlet into which money could flow, and the lavish recklessness of their husbands and fathers has incited and led them on. None but the highest class of goods is demanded by the fastidious public in every line of trade."

Then it declares that the reason is that American workmen have barred out their own sons from learning trades and left the door open to foreigners, and it goes on to with a sequel of similar twaddle.

Neither the Tribune nor any of the great papers to which people look for an explanation of any business troubles, has ever once given a deliverance on the subject that would do credit to a 16 year schoolboy. They will sometimes in a fleeting interval of temporary intelligence declare the liquor traffic a monstrous tax upon industry, a worse calamity than war, pestilence and famine combined, an unmitigated evil, corrupting our political and social life, leading to poverty; and pile it up as a monstrous evil, but they never once attribute bad trade or hard times or high taxes to it.

They cheerfully tell us whisky and beer cost the consumers in the U. S. $700.000.000 a year and create three-fourths or nine-tenths of the crime, pauperism and insanity in the country, but they never can reach up to the extraordinary arithmetical possibility, that a little waste of 700 millions a year and a greater consequential loss occasioned by the use of that drink, could possibly at all affect the trade of the nation or the financial condition of its industries and its people.

But they are so immensely sharp as to see plainly that high taxes involve every body in ruin; that one million a year in excessive national taxation is enough to produce bad trade and hard times; two or three million a year in female extravagance is ruinous and five or ten millions or fifty millions a year added to or taken off the tariff is a consideration upon which our national existence may be alarmingly imperiled.

Suppose one of our representatives in Congress should introduce a bill requiring every citizen of the nation of every age, sex and color to buy $1 worth of bricks every year from the brickmakers association of his vicinity or one dollars worth of David C. Cook's temperance literature or to subscribe one dollar to buy bells for the churches; there would be a terrible newspaper outcry against it, particularly on the ground that this extravagant tax would ruin the finances and terribly damage the trade and industry of the whole nation. That would involve a sum of 50 millions paid by one class of honest citizens to another honest class, and no more harm done.

The financial and commercial journals of mighty brain power could discern terrible results to come from that one dollar a head; but they cannot see a particle of harm to come from a tax of $14 to $20 a head that involves a harm and damage and loss of another $14 to $20 a head.

It is time the people rebelled against being fed any longer with this haytea rubbish. A journal whose daily financial and commercial articles are nothing but a hash of the most transparent and miserable falsehoods is of no use to the country.

The reason why there is so little demand for the cheaper grade of manufactures of every kind is as plainly to be seen as the sun at noon day. The proportion of the 10 or 12 millions of working men who consume the largest portion of ten hundred millions of beer, liquor and tobacco, use very little indeed of the cheaper or any other cloths and household goods. They who buy beer, buy very little more of any other goods in flush times and high wages than they do in the hardest times. When wages go up, the more beer and the more expensive tobacco and cigars are used, and the home market which should be the most valuable to our manufacturers, is speedily overstocked with any increase of production.

At the same time the few working people who do not spend their money wastefully are customers of honest industries nearly to the same extent in good and bad seasons. And the same drinking and pauperizing processes are going on in all other countries with which we have commercial relations. Whisky and beer pauperize or incapacitate or make poor customers of enough people in this country and in countries that buy from us, to destroy something like one half the trade we could otherwise have in textile fabrics and in all the varied industries that are employed in providing the necessary comforts, adornments and proper luxuries which should belong to a virtuous, sober, prosperous home in this or any other country, and which might but for the curse of rum.

Surely every adult reader of the Rescue will readily see the immense absurdity of the Tribunes "Cautionary Signals" when it presents as a reason for a coming crash the terrible fact that 22 million dollars worth of these fancy goods come from England, that might have been made here; and it winds up thus.

"Immediately before the last crash, it will be recollected that the cotton mills of the lower grade stopped, and for precisely the same reason as now. There was demand only for the costlier line of goods. It was the straw which then showed that the current of universal extravagance and folly was about to result, as it does every ten or fifteen years in this country, in shipwreck and misery. The sign which has proved correct once may serve again. Is there yet time to take down sail and make ready for the storm ?"

Just think of that; a storm of ruin coming because 22 millions of goods are made in England for wealthy people that our people ot to be able to make here.

But the 600 or 700 millions a year wasted in beer and rum that ot to be invested in every kind of goods both cheap and costlier, does not threaten the least disturbance. Such asinine reasoning makes us feel that the principle of evolution has been very partial as well as gradual in its operation.

It is but just to say the Tribune is not behind the majority of the high secular press in financial intelligence, notwithstanding its sublime ignorance genuine or feigned.

THE CASE OF GUITEAU.

Ed. Rescue:—It has occurred to me to ask of you to "help me out" on the evidence of Guiteau's alcoholism. I haven't any doubt in my own mind that his "crankishness" is the result of the use of alcohol by himself or his ancestry. I think his behavior—his actions—the turn of mind is characteristic of alcoholism. It is also affirmed and emphatically asserted that 90 per cent of crime in general is the product of alcoholism. But on the other hand it is said that not one word of positive proof was brot out during the trial either by defense or prosecution; and that had there been a shadow of a suspicion it would have been especially appropriate in his case to have produced it, inasmuch as he set himself up as a moral and religious as well as political teacher. Now what is the direct evidence that he was a moderate or occasional drinker? The supposition is, that in prison he must be denied its use, and if so, does the ruling passion, the appetite assert itself? Perhaps some answer in the Rescue would do something to satisfy a certain class of temperance (?) people who are pert in assuring their circles that "the Rescue is too, too fanatical to be true"—too violent to be depended upon. I have held that no one can be instigated to such deeds only by the prince of devils, alcohol; if I am wrong I wish to be set right; I wish to "give the devil his due." J.

The Rescue has never claimed that Cain was drunk when he slew Abel, or that crime and sin would not exist to some extent were alcohol swept from the earth. It has invented no theories on the subject. The radicalism of the Rescue is not its own: it is merely the relation of facts declared by thousands of judges, jailers, ministers, lawyers, statesmen, doctors, patriots, as having come under their actual observation. These evidences are nearly unanimous that nine tenths of all crime and pauperism is due to drink: some more moderate put it at three fourths. And it cannot be denied that the grogshop has made murder so common, the awful crime so familiar, that sober men at times are suddenly tempted to shed their neighbors blood. It is folly to accuse temperance people of exaggeration, for as the good Dr. Holland said, no pen was ever able to adequately portray the horrors and ravages committed by the drink traffic. But if Guiteau was not a drunk or never tasted liquor, the traffic is only responsible for one less murder of its millions.

When Guiteau was captured, the reports said the jailer recognized him as having come there two or three days before drunk to look at the quarters for prisoners. That was not disputed. Frequently thereafter he was reported as a beer guzzler, a swindler, a drunken loafer, a deadbeat around the beer dives. The murder was claimed to be the work of a drunken ruffian. No one ever thot of disputing these reports till after the trial was concluded. Gath tells of a man supposed to be Guiteau, taking an enormous drink at a bar a few moments before the shot was fired and saying he had a big job to do.

After the trial, somebody asserts he has never used drink or tobacco. The temperance issue has nothing to gain or lose either way. Many hundreds of murders just as cruel and wicked have been committed since then by drunken slaves of the bar-room. It was not temperance men that got up the reports of Guiteau being a beer-dive bummer. If it was false, it was not our falsehood; but it is submitted that the evidence that takes up the defence of rum in any shape is not worth a vestige of credence or respect.

The rum press has been for years and is yet loaded with the most monstrous lies regarding Maine and every place where a prohibitory law exists. It has in the most infamous manner declared that Pres. Hayes drank always all the whisky he could get for nothing, and that Mrs. Hayes while in the White House received plenteous gift boxes of gin and whisky; its denial of Guiteau's drink record is most probably false, and if true does not at all affect the veracity of any position ever assumed by temperance advocates. There never was a time when a lie or an exaggeration could have helped the advocacy of temperance or could have failed to hurt it; if a temperance reformer had been addicted to falsehood, he never could have invented a lie that could have helped the cause or that could have exaggerated the horrors of the drink business.

And there never has been a time when anything but a lie could help the drunkard-maker's side of the argument; never a time when the truth would not sink them like a stone; and only two or three times in the last 40 years has ever a defender of rum dared to take the public platform, and that was when an extra fool like C. C. Burnett tried it on a few times. The author of the traffic is the father of lies, and the great lights of medical science in England declare that the drink habit and appetite once formed, its victim loses all will or power to tell the truth.

Some paper has stated that the mother of Guiteau was a bedridden invalid thru all the years that covered the birth of several of her children including the assassin; and a child of such circumstances might well be a monster without any aid of rum. Neither party on the trial had any interest in alluding to Guiteaus drinking habits. To do so would have weakened the insanity plea of the defense and would not have at all assisted the prosecution. Probably most of the lawyers and spectators of the trial adjourned from the courtroom to the other bar as they do here, and it is well known that the truth in such matters is almost invariably suppressed by general custom, when it would at all favor temperance or disturb the rumsellers.

We know it was a pupil of the grogshop that butchered Lincoln and if it was not another who murdered Garfield, we had every reason to believe it was, from the universal report of the circumstances of the murder, made by those who were by no means friends of temperance.

The friends of temperance who are led by the secret enemies of the cause to believe that the RESCUE is too fanatical or violent to be true, are young in the faith; if they would ask the mischief makers to point out a single untruth or perversion of truth that has appeared in the RESCUE, they would be immediately disarmed and their treachery discovered. Such people come into a lodge sometimes and as soon as they have inoculated the young folks with the virus of disaffection and distrust take a final leave.

THE SCHAFER - BABCOCK CONTROVERSY.

SCHAFER SIDE.

BABCOCK SIDE.

LESS POLITICS, MORE PATRIOTISM.

Of course it is akin to sacrilege for a temperance paper to criticise the conduct of an intellectual giant like Mr. Gladstone; but greater men than he have had one or more vulnerable points. The great Premier has declared that the evils of drink, in his country equal those of war, famine and pestilence combined. And he has never done any thing to curtail that monstrous evil. Nearly or quite two years ago his government and parliament voted that the people of any district should by right be empowered to restrict or prohibit the drink traffic within their boundaries; and a year later the same vote in parliament was repeated by a larger majority.

But Mr. Gladstone never introduces the promised and desired measure, pleading more important business in the Irish troubles. If, however, there was a little war on England's hands that would employ two ships and 1,000 soldiers altogether, Mr. Gladstone would find time to introduce a measure respecting it before two days elapsed. If a pestilence threatened the possible destruction of 1,000 lives in England and if the government could do anything about it, Mr. Gladstone would see to it without a moment's delay. If there was a famine in the Island of Jersey or the Isle of Man which might starve to death 100 people, and Mr. Gladstone did not see to it inside of a week, he would be held up by his people as a monster of cruelty.

And here this worse than war, pestilence and famine is starving more thousands to death every year than a serious famine; carying off more victims by disease than a terrible pestilence would; and keeping more men armed to commit crime and to watch and punish crime, causing more wounds and violence, keeping more prisoners in jail and filling more graves than a first-class war could; and because the question might embarras the political chequerboard or endanger the supremacy of his party, it is deferred from year to year and no intention is manifested of taking it up. Let the 117,000 British people, men, women and children who are the yearly victims, guilty and innocent, of the drunkard makers, starve and rot and perish and die, without mercy, without a finger being raised to prevent this most horrible of all the human sacrifices of all history: dont touch it or speak of it, lest it should disturb a political leader or a political party whose patriotism can have no higher definition than a love of spoils and power.

And no one would attempt to portray Mr. Gladstone otherwise than as a highly estimable man in his public and private character. But in this thing he must be blind like other millions to the enormity of an evil which he has daily seen before his face from childhood up. And he lately said "beer was the best drink in the world" while science and all human experience declare it to be the worst and most insidious and most vile of all rotten drinks.

Our lamented President Garfield in his public documents alluded to many evils, but dared not incur the displeasure of his party by any allusion to the incubus which is a thousand times greater curse to our country than all the evils combined to which we are subjected. The same applies to President Hayes and many of our most prominent, estimable men. Sir Wilfred Lawson, Gov. St. John, Gov. Colquit, are men of an infinitely greater patriotism or of a vastly better understanding of true statesmenship.

Surely no one will deny that our foremost nations are sick and growing worse with too much party, too much wire politics, and no room for patriotism, no place for conscience.

THE SEWING SCHOOL.

Invitations were sent out on Saturday to friends to be present at the Childrens Hall, the Home of the Sewing School in the Silver Star house, corner of Pacific and Sansome in this city, and the Hall was pretty well filled with the children and friends. Dr. R. H. McDonald after the usual opening services of song and prayer, gave a short history of this enterprise. Three years ago it began near its present quarters with 7 pupils gathered in under the care of that eminently worthy apostle of charity and benevolence, Mrs. Aigletinger who has tenderly cared for it ever since. It soon grew to 25 and moved and as it outgrew its premises it moved again and again till it remained for some time in the dining room of the Commercial Hotel on Montgomery Avenue, and now it numbers 532 pupils and has 30 teachers. At a recent picnic the pupils mustered 452.

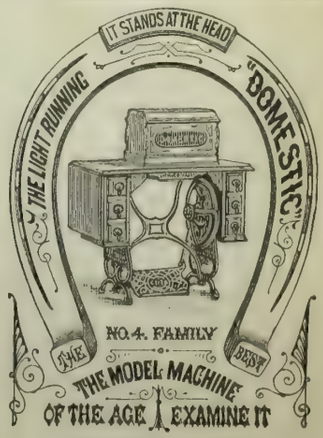
Many of these little children who did not know how to thread a needle, now make the garments they wear. The material is furnished by good people and the garments are given to the little artists when they have made them. Many of the children prove quite smart and tasty. They are to be taut various things beside sewing; singing, reading and the elements of the Christian religion. (It might not be far astray to whisper a prophesy here on the sly, that this enterprise which has evoluted so far up from the seven little "protoplasms" will yet develop into a first class female college or a Christianized copy of the Cooper Institute, before the Doctor and his family get thru with it.)

The hall is to have a fountain and to be well supplied with pictures etc., to cultivate a taste among the children for the beautiful and the good. There is a parlor for the teachers and a kitchen and fittings for festival purposes.

The house is expected to be a headquarters for temperance people, the hall will be used for public meetings for good and moral purposes; will be a highly moral, Christian and benevolent institution, but by no means sectarian; no interference with the religious faith of the children, and with these statements as a prelude, the Dr. turned over the house to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ to forward the cause of education, temperance and all good purposes.

Mr. Frank McDonald, son of the Dr. then spoke of the interest in the school; is sure "it will yield 100 fold returns for all time, money and labor invested. We cannot live to ourselves alone; all depend on each other. Neglect of one class by another, leads to revolution as France and Russia and all history have shown. This work of the teachers of this school is a very noble one, and all the revenues of the building and all helps rendered will be expended on the school. More teachers are wanted, intelligent, kindly, willing and capable; lots of people who are starving for something to do can here find a field." A stirring applause greeted the speaker and then the opening of 775 jugs which had been placed over the city for contributions commenced; the sum of $755 was reported and many jugs yet to come in. School every Saturday afternoon and Sunday-school at 9½ A. M.

AUTOGRAPH ALBUMS.



The RESCUE sometime ago wisely recommended young (and old?) ladies to secure signatures to a temperance pledge in their autograph albums. I have recommended the plan in nearly all my lectures and it meets with much approval. Now I find David C. Cook, (may the good man live to be as old as Methusaleh and able to work all the time as he is now doing for God and humanity, in the cause of temperance, Sunday-schools, and Christianity generally,) is publishing very neat autograph albums for that very purpose. I have started one on my own account and will have samples and take orders for them at Guerneville campmeeting; 25 cts each.

J. W. WEBB.

THE CAMPMEETING.

There will surely be a splendid gathering this year in the Redwoods at the temperance campmeeting. Round trip ticket only $4 from San Francisco. It is to be hoped every body who can, will be present at this fourth annual reunion of the friends of temperance, and help to make it a little happier and better occasion than any former one has been. The Rev. Mr. McKenzie delivers the oration on the 4th, and it will be worth going a long way to hear. The Dr. is one of the most talented and acceptable orators on the coast. Let us all be there and have a good time as of old our temperance gatherings have been.

THE "Leag of Death to Freedom," or "Leag of Freedom," as they call it for short, is engaged in a desperate effort to usurp unlimited freedom for crime and to utterly stamp out liberty or shelter or refuge for virtue. What the leag wants is free papers, a general warrant to slaute the working man on Sunday and skin his family of their weeks wages and their bread and clothes.

THE RUM FIENDS HOWL

When ministers preach against intemperance.
When people don't patronize them.
When they are prosecuted for violating the law.
When any person dare denounce drunkenness.
When respectable people discountenance them.
When a poor victim of alcohol tries to reform.
When politicians say, "I am not courting the support of the lowest elements of mankind."
When there is an effort made to let people decide by the ballot whether they want drink shops in their midst or not.
When broken-hearted wives and worse than orphan children say: "You shall not have my last bed and article of furniture."

THE RUM FIENDS SMILE

When they can violate law with impunity.
When a poor unfortunate breaks his pledge.
When fathers and mothers favor their business.
When the people submit to their destructive business.
When a political leader or party is not afraid of their degrading influence.
When gambling, clicking of glasses and carousing are indulged in.
When a "pious saint" will claim "my church" as a sufficient field to work.
When the professor of religion will take an occasional glass to gain friendship.
When they can sell whisky every day in the year, and twenty-four hours every day.
When temperance people are too penurious to subscribe for a good temperance paper, and too lazy to work for a good cause.
When they can be recognized as Christians while they are making drunkards, convicts, murderers, breaking hearts and ruining homes.
When ministers virtually say, "I am too busy to take in a work of sobriety; besides I do not want the enmity of the rum fiends—they help to support me, and contribute to my church."
When politicians say: ',You are my friend and master; we need your assistance, please dont injure our party, go on in your work of destruction,we fear you more than we respect the wishes of respectable people."—Watchman.

IN A HURRY.

A woman and a terrier reached the Union depot yesterday half an hour before the time for the Grand Trunk train for Buffalo, and while the woman sat down in the waiting room as the least thing she could do, the dog made a tour of the room several times, and then curled up on the seat not far away, to get a wink of sleep before being turned over to the tender care of the baggage car. All things were so when a young man with a good deal of cane, and watch chain, and necktie sauntered in and took a cool survey of the various females. The one nearest the dog not only had a young and pleasant face, but she was all alone. After satisfying himself of this, the young man advanced and made a graceful bow and enquired:

'Beg pardon, but do you go east?' She nodded.

'Ah! I thought so. If you have any baggage I shall be most happy—ah—shall be most happy to—'

He had all the time been preparing to sit down beside her and the dog, and the sentence was not finished when he sank gracefully back. Some dogs have been sat down on so often that they don't mind it, but this terrier had always been a pampered pet. And had been given proper time to shake off sleep and get his legs under him. When suddenly buried under 140 pound masher, his ideas must have been terribly confused, but not for long. A clock could not have ticked over six times when the young man began to rise and whoop, and he was scarcely up when he made a course for the door which upset every bandbox and satchel for a width of ten feet. As he went out of the door a black object let go of him and trotted back, and it was only when the dog began rubbing against the baseboard to restore himself to his former shape that anyone was able to discover why the frenzied young man had left in such a hurry.—Canada Casket.

Bro. H. S. Graves our G. W. C. writes from Toolsboro, Iowa, that after a stay of 10 days at New Albany, Ind., he and Mrs. G. are visiting his old home which he left 33 years ago. He is surprised at the enthusiastic welcome among relatives and friends which is extended to them everywhere. An aged friend whom he visited, Mr. Jonathan Parsons, who has seen his 85 years recognized him, called him Henry, and told him "it was just 33 years on the 15th day of April last since you left Toolsboro," and the happy greeting made them both 33 years younger on the spot during the visit. Bro. Graves was treated so generously everywhere in Iowa that he thinks word got round among the chickens there that he was a minister. On Sunday they rung the bell at 4 P. M., and when our friends arrived, Bro. G. was conscripted to give an address on temperance and then Sister Graves was called on, and Mrs. Meek, one of the grand women workers of Iowa, closed the meeting. Fine groves of timber have grown up in the 33 years, young orchards have become old and many changes have occurred; but the hospitality and kindness of the people remain unchanged. Great hopes are held as to the success of the Amendment, and if Bro. Graves survives the generous feed and generous treatment, he will be back soon. It is a comfort and pleasure to us here to know that the attentions of the good people of Iowa are in this instance bestowed upon those who are most thoroly deserving of honorable distinction.

Phrenologist—(examining a man's head.) I find the reasoning and perceptive faculties very small; language and self-esteem inordinately large; veneration quite wanting. This character, vain, mean, selfish, cowardly, would be very successful as a lecturer against Christianity.—D. C. Cook's Church and Home.

Mr. Spurgeon said recently at the formation of a Temperance Society at the Metropolitan Tabernacle: "I hope this Society will do something when it is started. I don't want you to wear a lot of cocks' feathers and pretty medals, nor to be always trying to convert moderate drinkers, but to go in for winning the real drunkards and bringing the poor enslaved creatures to the feet of Jesus who can give him liberty." It is surprising that a man of Mr. Spurgeons intelligence should hold such an opinion of the objects of a temperance society. It reveals the fact that he has given the subject little or no attention, when he supposes that a society would be of any use that should confine its labors to "real drunkards."

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

STATE PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

A State Convention in the interests of Prohibition and Reform will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. 232 Sutter St., San Francisco, on Tuesday, July 11th, at 10 o'clock, A. M The attendance of delegates from every part of the state is desired. To this end, every lodge of Good Templars, every branch organization of the Home Protection Association, every division of the Sons of Temperance, every Loyal League, every W. C. T. U., every Band of Hope, and, in fact, every temperance organization favoring prohibition will be entitled to one delegate each.

It is earnestly hoped that every temperance or political organization in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic will send its duly elected representative to the Convention, as very important matters for the interest of the cause will be discussed. Ministers of the Gospel, Protestant and Catholic, in good and regular standing are also invited.

By order of the Executive Committee of the Prohibition Reform Party.

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated Feby. 2, 1882, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of liquors, particularly the Sunday law and to procure the enactment of such other laws as are or may be necessary for the protection of our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of the liquor traffic.

It is desired to charter auxiliary associations in every town of California. Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may apply for a charter. The membership fee is $1.00 a year, and charter, with full set of books and register for 600 names costs $5. Of membership fee one half goes to the State association for the general work. Apply for information and all particulars to the State Secy.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the Rescue will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

NOTICE OF ABSENCE.

The friends and patrons of the undersinged are respectfully notified that he will take his summer vacation during the month of June. His dental rooms, however, will be open as usual; at Oakland, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Vallejo, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week, for July appointments. About the first week in June I will start with my family for Yosemite and take one months' rest. I. S. Halsey.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

David C. Cook has removed his great establishment to Elgin, Illinois, which is about 40 miles from Chicago. Send in your orders to Elgin and they will be attended to promptly. It is presumed some advantages of manufacturing facilities led to the removal.

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

PARKER'S
SALVATION POWDERS!

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

ALL CAN BE SAVED FROM THE TERRIBLE APPETITE FOR INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge ot the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills. at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

All communications are strictly confidential, and private references of the most conclusive character can be given if desired, by applying in person or by letter, to

DISTRICT LODGE.

Colusa Co. District Lodge met at Butte City, Friday evening, June 2d. An open meeting was held at which stiring speeches were made by Bro. W. C. King and D. Dep. J. H. Leining. Lodge opened at 9 next morning, Bro. King presiding. Fifty-seven delegates entitled to seats in the lodge. Eight lodges reported in good working order with a membership of 600. Two lodges not represented. A committee of 7 was appointed on resolutions and submitted the following:—

WHEREAS—In our judgment the time for action on the part of temperance people in the selection of the various county officers, has come, and, believing that the temperance voters of this county can by united action wield the balance of power in the coming election, therefore be it

Resolved. That a Committee be appointed by the District Deputy, consisting of one member from each lodge in the District, and one at large; said Com. to have a general supervision of the work in Colusa Co.

Resolved. That said Com. be empowered to levy an assessment on each lodge in the District, not to exceed fifty cents for each member, and the Com. to be given all the powers usually accorded to the county Committees of the great political parties.

Resolved. That it is the sense of this body that it would be well to employ speakers to make a thoro canvas of the county previous to election, and the Com. provided for are hereby instructed to employ such speaker or speakers as to them may seen necessary.

Resolved. That members of the Order be urged to use all legitimate means to further our noble cause by increasing the membership of subordinate lodges and by building up temperance sentiment outside the lodge-room.

The above resolutions were unanimously adopted and the D. Dep. appointed the following county Committee: Maxwell, J. K. Mapes; Willows, O. K. Jones; Newville, Reuben Burress; Elk Creek, Wm. Anderson; Sheet Iron, A. T. Welton; Butte City, W. P. Craig; Colusa, A. M. Pearsall; Sycamore, C. J. Walker; Arbuckle, T. R. Arbuckle; College City, J. B. Hewitt. At large, John M. Pugh, of Sheet Iron. The Committee was called to meet at Colusa, June 17th.

At noon the members of Silver Star Lodge spread a bountiful lunch, which was enjoyed by all present. At the afternoon session a fine literary entertainment was given by members of various lodges. It was the opinion of all present that this was the best session of the District Lodge ever held, and all went home with the determination of making more strenuous efforts in the future. The next session of this District Lodge is to be held at Arbuckle, Sept. 1st and 2d. J. B. HEWITT, D. Sec'y.

OROVILLE, June 16, 1882.

EDITOR RESCUE:—Butte Co. D. L. met at Forbestown on the 14th, with Taylor Lodge 222, the oldest Lodge in the county. A large delegation from Knoxdale Lodge at Brownsville in Yuba Co., were present as invited guests and added much to the success and spirit of the meeting. At the noon recess the Lodge marched in a body, clothed in regalia, to a pleasant grove near by, and were entertained in a most hospitable way with a picnic lunch by the ladies of Taylor Lodge and citizens of Forbestown. At the P. M. session Resolutions were adopted; to raise the Dist. Lodge tax to 10 cts. per capita per annum on the membership of the sub. Lodges in this Dist. To pay the traveling expenses of the Dist. Dep. in his official visits to sub. Lodges. To appoint a Com. consisting of the D. Dep., D. F. S. and Dist. Sec., to confer with Dist. Lodge of Yuba and Sutter Co., and sub. lodges in this Co. in reference to holding a camp convention for two weeks in some pleasant mountain resort in Sept. next, and make that the time of meeting of the two Dist. Lodges, and in case of failure to secure a camp convention, this Lodge to meet with Messilla Valley Lodge at Pentz, in Sept.

A resolution endorsing C. N. Reed and the Gridley Herald, in his support of the temperance movement and the Sunday law in this county, and recommending members of the Order to support the paper by their patronage. A ringing and effective speech was made by Prof. Hill, of Knoxdale Lodge and Yuba Sutter Dist. Lodge, in favor of organized work by our Dist. Lodges in starting Home Protection Clubs, electing Dist. lecturers and superintendents of juvenile work. Distribution of temperance literature, and calling on our membership to give not only their efforts but their money to push the cause along. And believes that if an organized political body went to work now, that it would materially effect the coming campaign and in 10 years secure Prohibition in California.

In the evening an open meeting was held. The first part consisting of exercises by the Band of Hope, under the direction of Sister Derrel the Supt., and the latter part of songs, readings and speeches by members of the Order. Forbestown being at the extreme end of our county, the number of delegates was not so great as usual, but the meeting was a grand success. And for genuine hospitality, commend us to the members of Taylor Lodge 222. About 4:30 next morning the Dist. Dep. and the delegates from Wyandotte, Pentz, Chico and Oroville, got under way for the home trip, to meet at Boston Ranch for breakfast. Seven o'clock found us at Boston Ranch, to the number of 17. Here we found Mr. Smith Hurles and family, who has kept public house for 25 years without a bar, but in place of the bar we found two pleasant sitting rooms with a fine cabinet organ, a piano, a large hand organ, a drum, two violins and a saxaphone. Mr. Hurles family are musicians, and so are Sisters McBride and McCarger of the Chico delegation, and so were all the rest of the delegates to some extent, and two hours and a half we sang, and concluded with "Marching through Georgia," and marching through a fine breakfast with toasts to our Dist. Dep., J. B. Mullen, Dist. Lodge of Butte Co., and Smith Hurles (with three cheers)—"The man who keeps a good hotel, but no bar and no whisky.

A GOOD TEMPERANCE HOTEL

AT SIERRA CITY, CAL.

Mr. D. M. Mitchell, L. D. of Sierra City Lodge, No. 359, I. O. G. T., keeps a good, quiet hotel, spreads an excellent table, furnishes comfortable rooms and has no bar anywhere. There is a large reading-room which he supplies with a great variety of papers, among them the RESCUE. The stages stop at Scott's Hotel on Main street; passengers will do well to ask to stop at Mitchell's; especially should temperance people patronize a temperance hotel. There are three whisky hotels, and sixteen saloons. Only one temperance hotel and one lodge.

Our lodge is doing well; the hall is under repairs; when finished it will be very pleasant and comfortable, and in our small but necessary field of labor we shall do all we can to promote the interests of the temperance cause and honor God.

A. J. MCMURTRY, W. S.

UNION RANCH, WASHINGTON DISTRICT,
Sonoma Co., Cal.

Have been enjoying my sojourn in this beautiful portion of our glorious State in a very interesting and I trust profitable manner for the past two months. All seem to be of the go ahead good-natured class, welcoming the "stranger within their gates" in a genuine social style. The Swiss Italian colonists have elbowed out of the way several excellent American families, so that neighbors of the desirable stamp are a scarce article. Our new comers are destined to prove a curse to this otherwise fair land, their chief industry will be the manufacture and sale of wine.

Geyserville Lodge has had a set back, but is struggling bravely onward in the good Samaritan work, of "rescuing the perishing;" have visited them several times and endeavored to cheer them up.

In response to the desires of the residents of this district, have conducted religious services on Sunday afternoons at Washington Dist. School house. On Sunday May 28, we held special services in memory of our Nation's honored dead. The farmer friends came in from far and near, bearing beautiful floral tributes with which they tastefully decorated the school-room. At close of ceremonies the flowers were ordered on to Lincoln Post, G. A. R., to be used on Decoration Day. I miss the City Lodge meetings and will gladly hail the "meeting bye and bye," which will probably be some time in September.

Yours truly,

FREDERICK FENN.

SAN LUIS REY, June 11, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—Our lodge here is in good running order. I have been preaching for the Christian church in this place and lecturing on temperance since September. When Bro. Webb was with us there were three saloons in our village; we now have only one and from reports that is doing but little. If you should hear of any destitute church that would pay a small amount for the half of my time (say two or three hundred dollars) that I might travel and preach and lecture at destitute places I would give Bro. Webb, or the Elder of the church at this place as reference.

I began to hold monthly meetings at Monseratt last fall. It was a drunken place. They now, for the first time have a church in good running order. It is not strange that Felix should have trembled when Paul preached on temperance.

W. D. FRAZEE.

"A short distance from Buena Vista, California, is a cave inhabited by spiders of enormous size. The cave was discovered last December by a party of sight-seekers. The spiders are about the size of small birds, and make a strange sound while weaving their web. The webs are so tough and the fibres are so large that it is almost impossible to break them."—W. Va. Exch. That party of sight-seers evidently looked into a Rio Vista fish shed where the Italian fishermen were mending their salmon nets. After they have had 'em four or five times more, they will see larger spiders than that a good deal.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—HUTCHINGS.—In Los Angeles, Cal., on June 17, 1882, by accidental drowning, Chauncey S. Hutchings, age 17, member of Merrill Lodge No. 299.

DIED.—AVERILL.—In Los Angeles, on June 17, 1882, by accidental drowning. John M. Averill, age 19 years, 4 mos. member of Merrill Lodge No. 299.

Merril Lodgel ordered the customary mourning ceremonies and adopted resolutions of respect and regret for the loss of their brethren and gave expression to their kindest sympathy with the bereaved relatives.

IN OTHER STATES.

Mrs. Woodbridge calls upon people to join the W. C. T. U. and pay $5 a year to help the work and withdraw at will; or in other words to contribute $5 a year and no work unless they please. It is a good idea. We never hear of the Good Templars doing anything in all the late temperance struggles in Ohio. The cheap john philosophy appears to have entirely spiked their guns.

THE Christian Temp. Alliance of Harmony, Ind., have sent a protest to Pres. Arthur against the continuance "of a custom so corrupting to the morals and so destructive to all interests social, civil and religious to the citizens of the country." Such a message must be flattering for a President to receive.

BISHOP Ireland at St. Paul, Minn., in a recent speech said: "If Ireland can purchase her liberty only by cowardly assassination, she does not want it. Great would be her glory if she had her Parliament meeting on Steven's Green to-day, but that glory would still not be so great as would be the spectacle of every Irishman in America joining together and resolving once for all to crush out the evil of intemperance and henceforth live and act with clear reason for all time." It was some minutes after the lecturer had ceased to speak before the applause, in which every one present joined, subsided. That speech deserved applause indeed.

A DOCTOR has been fined $100 in Kansas for unlawfully prescribing alcoholic drinks, which is good news. If Dr. Bliss had been liable to a fine of $100 for each prescription of rotten poison drink for nourishment to the sick, President Garfield would probably have been in robust health in 80 days after he was shot.

IN AUSTRALIA the Sons of Temperance are toning up their capita tax fees and dues and their "funeral levy." They say they must do so or have an empty treasury. The cheap john system is getting into discredit all round: and it is time after blocking the wheels of nearly every temperance organization in the world for fifty years.

IOWA.—The Des Moines Daily Register is the foremost of journals in defence of the prohibitory amendment and is about the foremost of the political journals of the State. It strikes most telling blows against the saloons. And there are Miss Willard, Mrs. Skelton, Mrs. Aldrich and Mrs. Foster, all lecturing to interested multitudes every day in various parts of the State. Mrs. Aldrich is not known to us in California but if she ranks with the other three as is probable, there are not 4 other people in the world whose labors are of such intense interest to its welfare. There are no abler citizens in this Republic than Miss Willard and Mrs. Foster. Mrs. Skelton is the Deborah that shall lead the Germans to liberty. Many thousands of clean honest Germans in Iowa are for temperance and will vote for the amendment.

SCOTLAND.—The Synod of the United Presb. Church at Edinburg recently passed by a vote of 84 to 74 a mild resolution offered by Dr. Cairns, "that the church should not only discountenance all public drinking usages but should seriously commend its membership to consider how far it might be their duty to discontinue the personal use of intoxicating beverages." This very moderate step of progress was smartly opposed however and a dissent entered by a large number of the minority, on the ground that the resolution "virtually declared it the duty of every member to be a total abstainer, and it was taking away their individual liberty." How precisely similar is the effect of alohol upon a minister and upon a saloon keeper. It makes them see things in the same light, and each has the same sacred reverence for liberty to do wrong to their own and others injury. If Moses had been in the daily habit of taking a few whisky punches, he would probably have entered a few vigorous protests against the assaults upon individual liberty contained in each of the ten commandments.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHANS HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto. Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

LADY MANAGERS OF ORPHANS HOME.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

This paper has been broken up by camp-meeting and 4th of July holidays. Next week and after it hopes to improve materially. No more long articles.

Messrs. Stanford and Crocker were not arrested this week for selling rum all day last Sunday to boys and drunkards on the ferry boats and at their 500 or 600 stations in this state.

Samples of the Chromo Cards referred to by Miss Julia Colman can be seen at the Rescue office. They are very beautifully and artistically ornamented and are prizes indeed for the young folks.

Subscriptions and Renewals this Week:—Gilroy, 1; San Francisco, 2; Red Bluff (W. C. King), 16; Miss Guthrie (Hueneme 2, Scenega 1), 3; J. W. Webb, 1; Winters, 1; Wm. Crowhurst, 1; in all, 25.

"Life Crystals" is a very useful health journal by Mrs. Carrie F. Young, $1.50 a year, Oakland; full of interesting matter and good advice. Mrs. Young has been an active laborer in the cause of temperance in this State and her voice and pen are still vigorous for temperance and every wholesome rule of life.

A celebration of the Iowa victory is proposed to be held in San Francisco and the State. And the Leag of F. is asked to have a Sunday dog fight to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the surrender of the American General Stoneman to the Hessian contingent General Schayghfear at San Jose, Virginia, in 1782.

Only 130 failures in the U. S. last week; that was 26 over the preceding week and 42 more than the same week of last year. But it was by no means a large number considering the vast number of moderate drinkers doing business, who are becoming every week drunkards and gamblers and getting into drunken scrapes.

Temperance Groceries.—A perfectly reliable authority reports from Mariposa county a saving of $35 on a $60 bill of groceries after paying freight from San Francisco. That $35 was made by ordering from a San Francisco grocery advertised in the Rescue. That should be a pretty good card for both the paper and the grocery.

Decoration Day.—There should be a separate cemetery for the brewers, distillers, saloon and dive keepers and the Leag of Fiendom generally, or at least their graves should be conspicuously marked, so that on Decoration day when a grateful people decorate the tombs of the heroes who died that their country might live, an opportunity would be afforded to hold fitting memorials over the graves of the patriots who lived that their country might perish.

The Republican Convention in Toledo, Ohio, in their buncombe resolutions "condem the terrible persecutions and outrages inflicted upon the Jews of Russia," but they had not a word of compassion for the tenfold more cruel outrages perpetrated upon the women and children of this country by the drunkard makers. There are nothing like 100,000 Jews murdered in a year in Europe as there are of Americans here.

District Attorneys.—Candidates for this office are politely informed by the Leag of Fiendom that if they want a nomination they must promise first to commit perjury whenever a rum-seller comes within reach of their official duties—and some of them are quite willing. One man who indignantly refused was nominated, however; as the rum-sellers themselves allowed they could not go a cent on the promise of a man who would make the pledge they required.

The Ministers.—The object of the Grand Lodge in sending the Rescue to the ministers of this state is not to assume to instruct them in their clerical or other duties, but to place weekly before them whatever information is elicited thruout the world, regarding the nature and evils of strong drink, the progress of the warfare that is being made against the gigantic crime of crimes, and the methods that are pursued for its extinction. Also to furnish for their consideration the speeches and writings and opinions of eminent Christians and temperance advocates on this vital question; and, lastly, with a hope that if any of them have not given the cause of temperance all the help they could, they might be induced to do so in the future. And it is believed the Rescue is generally received in a kindly and appreciative spirit; the following is a sample of a good many similar letters which come to this office: "June 16, 1882.—The Rescue is such a friendly visitor in the ministers' family, provoking us unto good works in the temperance cause, that I hope you will still be enabled to continue your kindness in furnishing it. My address is changed from ——, Cal., to ——, Cal., where I hope to see its bright face if you will please change the address, and oblige Yours in the cause, * * * Tehama Co. Cal."

The S. F. Bulletin which is a professedly moral church going paper, advertizes on its editorial page for choice Sunday reading, the "standard quality and general excellence" of the whisky sold by an immense concern in Philadelphia with branches in various cities, including San Francisco; their business of poisoning and killing men, and training thieves and murderers and maniacs and betraying female virtue is said to employ three million dollars capital and 500 men. They are always ready to deliver 50,000 barrels of wife-beater's stimulant and perjury inspiration; the concern has been in business 55 years. If there is a separate place for the souls of drunkards, what an amazing populous colony must owe its existence to this company of manslayers and the Bulletin the ready helper of its operations. It is a noble position for an instructor of the people to be for coin hired to toot the praises of a gang of thugs who subsist on the souls and lives and tears of our fellow-men and their helpless women and children. It is a high order of patriotism that accepts for coin the position of armour-bearers for assassins. There is no denying the fact that the journal which advertizes and commends whisky and grogshops and resorts of crime is a paid accomplice of the murderers of our people and the debauchers of our youth and a conspirator against the peace and virtue of the home; it should be treated as the most dangerous class of literature.

A Correspondent of the Petaluma Argus criticizes C. P. Berry, the Statesman's gospel on the Sunday law. "I want the citizen to eat what he pleases, drink what he pleases, do what he pleases whenever he pleases, so that he does not interfere with the rights of others." He calls Berry a Demagog, and asks if the citizen aforesaid is to be the judge of when he interferes with the rights of others. Mr. Berry did not know that he was preaching exactly the doctrine of the most earnest advocates of the Sunday law for that is just what they desire. But he meant that the citizen should be at liberty to sell liquor on Sunday, get drunk, rob, steal, beat his wife and club the people that go to church or keep sober on Sundays. Of course Mr. Berry's attitude and reasoning would be very silly and undignified and immoral for a man of any sense or conscience, and would ornament a 16 year old school boy with a fool's cap; but it places him on the level of the average congressman. It is quite as intelligent and creditable an utterance as ever came from Bayard, Beck, Hendricks, Thurman, Booth, Andrew Johnson, Sargent, Page and that class of patriots whenever they touched a question of morality, sobriety or decency. Berry is a good average politician in this matter. No brains, no principle need ever enter into the composition.

Loss of Lammermoor. The Chronicle's report of the evidence offered on the first day of the investigation at the British consulate is rather peculiar. The ship's course was "N. E. N.," and was altered to E. by "N. E.;" the captain "backed up ship," and the ship's chronometer was 75 miles out when she left Sydney which the captain knew then. There are no such courses as those named and altho a mule gets its back up, a ship at sea dont unless it is a very recent improvement. Every chronometer has an error and gains or loses a certain rate daily, which is ascertained on shore and a statement and record of it kept in the chronometer box. The error is sometimes as much as an hour and the rate from one-tenth to 2 or 3 and more seconds a day; but when known it is really no error at all. Every time an observation is made the error at last port (or last point of land when a good observation was made) and the rate for the number of days since, is applied to the time shown by the chronometer and then the captain has the true London mean time. An hour is 15 degrees of longitude or 710 miles in this latitude and the known error of a chronometer is frequently that much fast or slow because they do not set them back or forward except when being cleaned or repaired. Again a chronometer that would deceive a captain 75 or 25 miles in a short trip from Sydney here would be an entirely worthless instrument. No such are at all likely to be found on a steamer. But the mate was not sure whether the captain was sufficiently intoxicated to impair his judgment at the time the ship was wrecked, but he had been drinking and had been in the same condition before. That, if the mate tells the truth, winds up the whole affair. The owners or insurers have only paid a whisky assessment as usual.

THE RUMSELLER'S REFRAIN.

Go back to your homes! you are out of your place
In a public saloon; 'tis a shame and disgrace
For a woman to put herself thus in the way.
Go back to your closets to weep and to pray!
We are peaceable men, to the world be it known,
If the quarrelsome women will let us alone.

Go back to your parlors; work lamp-mats and lace,
Study etiquette, elegance, fashion and grace;
Don't bother your heads about justice and right!
Be passive, and patient, and keep out of sight.
If rumsellers ruin your husband and home,
If your hearts break with sorrow or turn into stone,
Our funds are invested; pray, let us alone.

Go back to your kitchens; strive early and late,
Economise, plan, spread the table and plate.
And if one cometh not, sit down quiet and wait.
Sit down in the shadow and bid the time's flight;
We will send him to you at the middle of night,
As good fellows term it, "delightfully tight."
He will curse you for waiting, and mock at your tears,
And sleep while you watch till the slow dawn appears.
If your children should starve or your poor brain go crazed,
The world need not pity, nor look on amazed—
There's a refuge for you and the almshouse for them;
But don't molest us—we're such peace-loving men!

We have called you by all the hard names we can think;
We have led your sons down the back stairway to drink;
We have mixtures unheard of on low-hidden shelves,
We will see that men drink them; you can't help yourselves!
You may bring in petitions well worded and strong,
With a list of bold signers both honored and long;
They bear no more weight than an idle street song.
You can't oppose strength by a woman's weak moan;
Business men are our friends; you must let us alone!

Go back to your homes, nurse your little ones there,
Set them holy example, and when they bid fair,
The fondest of hopes to your bosom will burn;
But when from your fold to the great world they turn,
We will spread our fine meshes and snare their young feet,
We will gather them in from the store and the street,
We will bloat the young face and bring low the proud head,
And lay them before you dishonored and dead.
But don't make a fuss, don't create any riot!
St. Paul bade the women of Corinth "keep quiet"
Your words are as seed cast on flintiest stone
We have paid for our licenses; let us alone!

REPLY OF THE WOMEN OF MICHIGAN.

When the last door is shut and the last bar is closed,
When the last petty fraud and deceit are exposed,
When the hideous head of the snake of the still
Is crushed to its death 'neath our heel—then we will.
When the good Lord shall whisper, "Your labors are done;"
When our spirits beyond the still have flown,
When the dust hides our faces, we'll "let you alone!"

—The Woman's Journal.

REV. PHILLIPS BROOKS.

This gentleman has unwittingly made himself a a hero. He might have preached for a half century the most excellent sermons, might have done a gigantic labor for the poor as many years, might have secured comfortable provision for every orphan and cripple and blind person in Boston, he might have proved himself a hero in every good work and he would never have been considered worth complimentary mention by the beer-god organs of the secular press. But he happened to say recently that unless "the temperance people provide resorts as attractive as the saloons," the temperance reform will never progress, and that we have made a great mistake in "confounding the moderate drinker, who is perfectly able to withstand temptation and restrain himself, with those who give themselves up to the influence of strong drink," etc.

Now Mr. Brooks has never done any thing for temperance and cannot in the least be a judge of the best method of prosecuting the work, much less an authority against tens of thousands who have labored and studied and read and thot and learned in this interest for ten to fifty years. It is not of the least importance to anybody what he says or thinks about it. He is evidently ignorant of the well known fact that the discoveries he has made, have been made perhaps 20 times during the last 30 years by new beginners, but the doctrines never got so far as to find a second adherent or to attract any attention. It is admitted that it is a natural idea to come to a person who has given no thot to the matter, just as the absurd theories of high license, civil damage, respectable bars, only respectable men to sell liquor, only pure liquors, the beer craze and the pure wine craze, were all advanced as panaceas for intemperance, while everything but total abstinence and prohibition have been the most illogical and ridiculous absurdities, except as a protection and a promotion of the drunkery and all its evils.

All the temperance people have to say about Mr. Brooks is that he is a talented and popular preacher in a most fashionable Episcopal church in Boston. He is a much esteemed citizen and clergyman, and in giving an opinion probably for the first time on this question he builded as well as he knew, and was doutless entirely consciencious and came as near the mark as a trained talented lawyer, editor or mathematician would do, if he undertook to deliver an off-hand opinion as to what was the reason the clergymen of the past 300 years have not succeeded in converting the entire Anglo Saxon race from intemperance and vice.

Had Mr. Brooks made an orthodox, logical, reasonable deliverance such as the eminent Rev. Dr. Cuyler, Wm. M. Thayer, Doctor Lees, Dr. Richardson, and a thousand Christian leaders and ministers in America and England have done, who are qualified to give an opinion on the matter—the beergod organs would have called him a bigoted fanatic, a blatant fool and a bushel of their own pet names—but simply because he has naturally said something silly when he touched upon a topic entirely new to him—he is lauded as an "erudite clergyman," a "distinguished divine," a "frank and honest pastor" etc.

But coupled with his praise the organs of corruption tell us that "prohibition has utterly and totally failed everywhere it has been tried, that the liquor question must come out of politics, that the prohibitionists have no aim but that of selling their votes and the sooner the "narrow minded bigoted fanatics" fall in line with the "sensible people" and "noble bands of Christians" who believe in moral suasion, the better."

It is to be hoped Mr. Brooks would rather be reviled than applauded by the wretched beer-swipers of the prostituted press.

Similarly, Bishop Huntington of New York State, made himself famous a few weeks ago in the discovery that all temperance work had been a failure tho it had had no opposition !!!—simply because the reformers had not confined themselves to running inebriate asylums!!! But he did not tell us why his church had been so many thousand times less successful in effecting any reformation with the enormous helps it has had of money and influence.

A GOOD SOUND BEER.

No. 43.

This is one of the expressions much in use by brewers when they wish to impress upon people the importance or the dignity of their business, and especially when they find it necessary to defend beer against charges of adulteration, unwholesomeness, etc. If you ask them what they mean by it, they will say they mean a well-brewed beer, made honestly from malt, with no sugar, no drugs of any kind, and made carefully with clean water, and in clean machinery. They will tell you that brewing is a very difficult art, that it requires a deal of skill to know just when each process has gone far enough, and to stop it at the right moment. To have the sprouting go no further than it ought; to have the water in the mash-tub at just the right heat; to have the yeast pure (?); and to stop the fermentation at the right moment. Nothing can be left to chance nor to nature. All this, and much more, is necessary to develop the alcohol and secure it. And yet people will talk about these alcoholic beverages being good creatures of God! as if man did not make them as much as he ever makes anything!

"MALT LIQUORS.—In the manufacture of beer, often (we suppose generally) a powder of alum and copperas is used to give the beautiful head of the froth. Aloes, quassia, cocculus indicus, wormwood, tobacco, are used to supply the place of hops. Saltpetre, jalap, sulphate of lime, nut-galls, prevent acidity. A little oil of vitriol added gives the imitation of age.

"Some years ago it was proved in a court of justice in Albany, N. Y., that one of their principal brewers had been accustomed to take water for his beer from a pool in which lay dead cats and dogs, and all manner of offal. Such water was said to give a 'fine body' to the liquor."

The prevalence of mould in breweries is due to the fact that in the manufacture of beer, the fermentation, is a process of decay. It can not be clean and the product cannot be clean or sound. You might as well talk about clean sound apples which are a mass of rottenness.

But beer-drinkers find other difficulties in getting "good sound beer," for much that goes by the name of beer is not made from malt at all, or sugar is added to the beer. In Great Britain, where they have the most to say about good sound beer, they used in the year ending with September, 1877, no less than ninety millions of pounds of sugar in beer-making in the breweries. The London Examiner says that the law is so lax now that beers have been produced innocent of malt and hops alike, but that usually the adulteration begins with the retailers, most of whom possess some recipe by which they can make three barrels out of two. Sugar, salt, and cocculus indicus are the more common adulterations. They are so commonly used that the best judges of beer are in despair of finding any "good sound beer" in common use, themselves being judges. The Hartford Times, in an elaborate article, says: "Nearly all the beer manufactured nowadays is doctored; that is, drugs are used to color and tone it up. The business of supplying drugs to the beer-men has become quite large. The brewers admit the use of drugs, but maintain that the beer is improved by them rather than injured." And yet the sale and use goes on, and we do not believe there is any way of securing an honestly-made article, saying nothing of the utter worthlessness of the "best." Our remedy would be to stop drinking beer entirely, to the great advantage of all concerned, and to do that by giving the people honest information of what beer is, and what it does to those who drink it.

THE TIPPING SCALE.

ED. RESCUE:—Is it not encouraging to notice how the secular press is trimming ship for the coming state of things? Certainly no reader of the newspapers can fail to see how the advocacy of the rum reign is growing more and more doutful and slack; and clear, unmistakable editorials tell how preponderating intelligence is tipping the beam towards the side of truth and justice. As an illustration of this gratifying fact I enclose a clipping from the Oregonian. The statements are not strictly true, and yet show clearly how the grasp upon the sword of rum rule is gradually loosening, as the sunlight of truth shines in upon the dark system. The Oregonian has been strongly on the liquor side of the great question of the American people, but, judging from the tone of this expression, is on the highway to wisdom, and not to be classed with those papers and individuals that think a change of views and actions a weakness. It says:

"The liquor question is to be the chief issue in Indiana politics this season. Among the republicans of the state, outside of two or three large cities where the liquor interest is strong, there is developing a bitter feeling of opposition to the dictation and arrogance of the liquor seller's league, at whose instance the democratic party took ground in opposition to the submission of the 'temperance' amendment. The action of the liquor sellers in Ohio on the Pond bill and the Smith Sunday closing bill has intensified the feeling in the state, and there is a general disposition to test the question whether politics shall be managed exclusively by any special class of people, and particularly by a class which makes a virtue of defying the law, no matter what sort of law it may be, if it appears to interfere in any way with their personal feelings or business selfishness. That is the shape the issue is taking in Indiana—not so much a question of prohibition or non-prohibition, of temperance or not, as whether the people will abdicate their political functions to the liquor sellers of the country."

T. J. ALLEY.

HOW MANY of the 280 no-God Democrats and of the no-God candidates who cordially endorse the no-God platform at San Jose will hesitate to sell out the people who vote for them? And of what earthly use can the candidates of any old decayed corpse of any party of spoil-seekers be to the country? The Democrats ask for office and spoils because Jefferson and Jackson were good Democrats, and the Republicans because their record was good 20 years ago. What the people want is a party that will make their record good next winter. Neither Jefferson nor Jackson ever sold rum to boys on Sunday, nor kept Sunday beer-dives, nor charged six cents for carrying one cents worth of grapes to market on a railroad built entirely of the peoples money.

NOT RADICAL.—In Ionia, Mich., a temperance man found a stranger who had to cling to the roadside fence to keep him from falling. He talked to him and advocated total abstinence and prohibition as necessary for the welfare of the country. The other securing a fresh grip on the fence, replied, "Oh stranger, I am a temperance man too all over, but then I'm not radical."

THE MISSOURI G. L. of A. O. U. W. passed by a large majority the resolution that no saloon keeper or bar tender shall be admitted to membership. If all saloon keepers and bar tenders were put immediately into the penitentiary we could safely liberate all the present occupants who at least 9 of every 10 have been sent there by them.

CAL. W. C. T. UNION.

"THE WOMEN OF AMERICA vs. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC"

President, Mrs. D. P. Browne, Blake House, Oakland.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Mrs. G. S. Abbott, Oakland; Mrs. John McNear, Petaluma; Mrs. M. A. Nash, Santa Rosa; Mrs. W. R. Spencer, Grass Valley; Miss W. Bell, San Jose; Miss Sarah P. Morrison, San Jose; Mrs. J. B. Hill, Alameda.

Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Congdon, 314 Sutter St. S. F.

Assistant Secretary, Miss M. J. Havens, Blake House, Oakland.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Wickersham, Petaluma.

ORIGIN AND OBJECTS.

The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, with its twenty-four auxiliary State Unions, is the largest Society ever composed exclusively of women, and conducted entirely by them. So far as reported (the returns are very incomplete), there were at the close of last year, 1,654 local auxiliaries, with a membership of 34,317, and 494 juvenile organizations. It is the lineal descendant of the great Temperance crusade in 1873–74, and is a union of Christian women of all churches for the purpose of educating the young; forming a better public sentiment; reforming the drinking classes; transforming, by the power of Divine grace, those who are enslaved by alcohol; and removing the dram-shop from our streets by law.

SANCTIFICATION.

"Sanctified" means "set apart" to some special purpose; in general we mean wholly "devoted" to God: having given ourselves wholly to the Christian life and we think and teach that having done this we are cleansed from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit; but this does not result in withdrawing ourselves within ourselves (like a snail within his shell) except in "holiness" meetings, when we are expected to testify. Not by any means. I am a full believer in sanctification in that "Holiness" without which none shall see the Lord. But my sanctification urges, presses, compels me to work; work everywhere, not by constantly preaching "what God has done for me" (though that is proper on occasions) but by working for the elevation of humanity, in church, in Sunday-school, in Bands of Hope, in Good Templars Lodge, Blue Ribbon Club, Temperance Alliance, anywhere where there is degraded humanity; in any society—whether distinctively religious or not (so that it is not opposed to Christianity), that has for its object the uplifting of humanity. And in all this we must be true, pure, keep ourselves unspotted from the world. We must go nowhere, engage in no business in which we can not take Jesus. But Jesus went about doing good—mingling with the people in their work, their business and their innocent engagements and pleasures, instructing, healing, blessing and saving them from their sins. Let us follow his example. MRS. S. A. McKUNE.

That differs very much from the kind alluded to which required withdrawal from all temperance work for fear of personal demoralization. It is presumed no one would be inclined to ask questions about Sister McKune's consecration, as was done in another case.

WOMEN AND TEMPERANCE.

The local option law of Arkansas is to-day the one great public thot. It was wrot out as the result of petitions from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the watchful care of a committee of temperance men. This committee consisted of the Rev. Dr. Winfield, a leading minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and delegate to the recent Ecumenical Council; the Rev. Mr. Mayfield, Baptist; Col. Porter Grace, a leading lawyer; the Rev. Mr. Withers, editor of the Temperance Banner; and Hon. J. L. Palmer, assistant state auditor.

These men watched and worked and prayed the whole of last winter. Finally they secured a "Home Protection Law," based on petitions sent in from fourteen counties, and, chiefly by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, by which women as well as men had direct authority to determine the legal status of the dram-shop. The method was by signature, and the majority was to rule. Of the 112 papers in the state, 100 were favorable to the movement. The ministers were a unit: the Supreme Court was solid—"having behaved like one big Murphy meetin'," as a disgruntled saloon-keeper declared. The district judiciary is declared to be the best in the United States, for they have to a man set about the righteous enforcement of the law. These have been "high days in Israel," when tidings from three-fourths of the counties in the state have declared the besom of destruction to have swept across the cruel and criminal trade in the "drinks by which demons are made of the hearts of men."

The machinery of the law is superb. No "remonstrance" or counter petition is permitted. The simple question, "Do we want dram-shops?" is answered by the signatures of men and women, and that settles the matter—not for a year only, but "once for all." In not a single case where the vote has been taken, has it favored the abomination of desolation. The outrages upon the home have been borne so long that "wrath has been treasured up against the day of wrath." Too often the "drug-store nuisance" succeeds that of the saloon, and prescriptions at so much apiece fly thick as autumn leaves from the hands of the recreant members of the medical fraternity. Not so here. Each doctor makes public affidavit, under pains and penalties, that only in cases of extreme necessity will he so prescribe. The only people, aside from saloon-keepers, who have so far as I can learn, antagonized the law, are the "hard shell Baptists." They have joined in the hue and cry that "alcohol is a good creature of God," and angrily declared that women had better stay inside their own proper sphere, and let politics alone—Francis E. Willard, in Christian Advocate.

A VOTE ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The Senate Select Committee on Woman Suffrage, by a vote of 3 to 2, agreed to recommend to the Senate for adoption Senator Lapham's joint resolution proposing the following amendment to the Constitution:

Article XVI, Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Section 2. Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article.

The vote was: Ayes—Lapham, Blair and Jackson—3. Noes—George and Fair. Absent—Anthony and Ferry.

STATISTICS OF CALIFORNIA.

A census bulletin issued to-day, gives the following statistics of the population of California in 1880: Native, 571,820; foreign born, 293,874. The latter total comprises 73,548 Chinese, 62,962 Irish, 42,532 German, 24,657 English, 13,071 Canadians, 9550 French, 8648 Mexicans, 7537 Italians, 6465 Scotch, 5308 Swiss, and 13,590 of all other foreign nationalities. The total white population born in California is given as 306,550, and colored 19,447.

The total number of farms of California is given at 35,934, of which 20,214 are from one hundred to five hundred acres each; 3967 from fifty to one hundred acres; 3475 from twenty to fifty; 3108 from five hundred to one thousand, and 2531 of one thousand acres each or over.—Ex.

"THE CHURCHES OR THE SALOONS MUST DRY UP."

I was reading a few days ago, a communication from the Rev. Dr. Marshall of Vicksburg, one of the leading ministers of the South, which puts the matter thus:

"We have a terrible battle to fight, and I often think that priest and preacher, elder and bishop, had better abandon the ordinary round of parochial toils, and go into a regular temperance crusade until the foe of God and man is crushed out, than to try to conduct the regular duties of the sanctuary as they do, in the vain hope of converting the world, with dram shops at all the street corners and the population given so much to excess.

"One who knew human nature well has said, 'Let me make the songs and I care not who makes the sermons.' Let me sell the liquors to the people unrestrained, and I don't care who preaches." (He might have added or teaches.)

"It is coming rapidly to this that the churches or the saloons must dry up.

"Just think of the millions of American and Christian mothers, who are raising sweet boys for this Moloch to devour.—Sel.

MISS WILLARD.—A movement is proposed by some of the friends of temperance to invite Miss F. E. Willard, the gifted and heroic general of the W. C. T. Union army, and her excellent and devoted companion and helper, Miss Anna Gordon, to visit this state next Spring, and make a trip along the coast from San Diego to British Columbia. Those who have been consulted on the matter have enthusiastically endorsed the proposition and express the opinion that we can do nothing which will so much help the cause of temperance as to give them a unanimous invitation from the temperance and religious associations, to give them a right loyal reception and a loyal support and assistance in making their tour a triumphant success. Bro. A. B. Hotchkiss, of San Diego, and Bro. J. Chilberg, of Olympia, are at the two extremes. Let us hear from them and all along the line.

AMITY, Or., June 21, 1882.

* * * * * We have a Band of Hope in Amity of 50 members—mostly women and girls, only a few boys. The latter of our town are too small to belong to the Band. They follow the example of their fathers, and swear, smoke, and drink. One man has joined with his two little boys. We have those here who are mean enough to entice little boys to sell their badges. We sent for Cook's Temperance Library and papers. We shall do our best, but discouragements are many.

Our Lodge almost a failure, tho we have a few who are trying to "hold the fort." I wish we could have Mrs. Stevens in Oregon a few months. The cause is advancing. We have 25,000 names on the petition for Constitutional Amendment; expect 10,000 more by the time Legislature meets. We are circulating a petition for a law forbidding the sale or giving of tobacco to minors. Amity Lodge has a committee to circulate a petition for raising the license in town, but with little hope of success.

Dr. Watt, President of State Temperance Alliance, has been lecturing with great success. We need more lecturers. Two or three more of the right stamp just now would give an impetus to the movement which would insure success. This is not written for publication, tho if you wish to use any portion of it you are at liberty to do so.

MRS. S. A. McKUNE.

OUR OBJECT LESSON.

Again the Hayes commission comes before you with this subject. The pictures, for which subscriptions have been received, have been sent out, and surely there was never so large an expression of delight from every one; there has scarcely been known one shadow of a disappointment. "Well worth waiting for," "much finer than we anticipated," "lovely," "beautiful," etc., etc., have been the words written. To-day comes a voice from Spain, "We are much pleased with it, and hope that its influence may be for good among the girls of our school, so that it may spread thru the land." John B. Gough, Mrs. Garfield, Dr. Merrick, Mrs. Senator Blair, and hundreds of others, have expressed their gratification with the picture, and the hope it may fill a glorious mission. This it will do when placed in every school-room in the land. If, in each city and town, one energetic, earnest woman will tell the children of this beautiful memorial, and tell them how easily they can raise money for it for their school-room, it will be done, and this lovely object lesson in total abstinence will ever give its monitions. In many places one child has taken it in hand and speedily and easily raised the money. Collection cards for securing the money in small sums, will be furnished on application to the Treasurer, Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City. All subscriptions should be addressed to her, and she is prepared now to send the picture by return mail. We hope thousands will be called for, and that no school-room nor Sabbath-school, no W. C. T. U. room, nor Good Templar lodge will be considered furnished till this charming testimonial looks from its walls.—Our Union.

EXPEDIENCY.—"It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth or is offended or made weak." That was Paul's doctrine. There are many who love to preach and praise that doctrine, as their temperance epitome, and there are some who preach and practice it as theirs. A mathematical expert who undertook to figure up the proportion existing between these two classes of professors, has concluded his arduous labors with the following result: the former are to the latter as 841,917 to 0.019.

WHEN woman gets the ballot, away with intemperance and monopolies. Woman is called the weaker vessel, but when questions which affect the human family come up, she becomes the stronger, and will every time vote to break up the powers that are trampling upon their rights. You can trust a woman to protect her own interest and that of her children, but poor, weak man has to be led around by the apron strings of old mother party. Poor man, he is too weak to break the chains that are binding him. Our word for it, women will do it when she gets the right to vote.—Ex

WE trust woman's capacity on very intricate matters, and yet we can not trust her feeble cranium to decide when she has temptable children under her wings, whether she would or would not like to have a whisky shop opened on the opposite side of the street. Is it a very complicated question? Must we wait until the ladies' seminaries have done their work for twenty or fifty years more? Must we adhere to the wisdom of making haste slowly? How long will it be before women will be developed far enough to know whether she wants drunken sons or not.—Joseph Cook.

THE woman suffragists have scored a great victory in Iowa. Both branches of the Legislature have passed a bill submitting to a vote of the people a constitutional amendment, striking out the word "male." In the Senate the proposition received a two-thirds vote, and in the House a three-fourths vote. It has to be adopted by the next Legislature before it can go to the people.—Ex.

THE MRS. HAYES pictures ordered have all been delivered; so our good sisters of the W. N. C. T. U. report. If any one entitled to one of those pictures thru the RESCUE, has by any possible oversight been omitted and has not received it, please notify this office at once. Would rather make the mistake of sending five too many than omit to send one promised. Lots more pictures to be had of Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, N. Y.

BRAVE WORDS FITLY SPOKEN.—All beneficial and mutual insurance organizations are awakening to the fact that temperance, in the sense of total abstinence, is the only safe rule of procedure for those who desire the blessings of good health and long life. The A. O. U. W. leads all others in the advance steps being taken to place the tempted and tempter of the liquor traffic where they properly belong—outside of the organization. At the recent session of the Supreme Lodge of the A. O. U. W., which convened in Cincinnati, Ohio, the Supreme Medical Examiner, Dr. Wm. C. Richardson, of St. Louis, Mo., in presenting his annual report gave no more interesting nor important facts than the following:

"As Supreme Medical Examiner during the past year, I have made in Lodges, under the immediate jurisdiction of the Supreme Lodge, 53 rejections out of 503 applications that have come before me for consideration. The following is a list showing the causes for disapproval: High rate of pulse 1, daily drinkers 15, pulse and heart unsteady 2, hereditary consumption in family 12, saloon-keepers 7, bronchitis, fistula and rheumatism 1, asthma 3, bronchitis 3, cough, asthma and swelled hands 1, hemorrhage from lungs 1, renal colic 1, general debility 1, over age 2, chronic diarrhœa 2, not vaccinated 1. In most cases of daily drinkers and saloon-keepers there were evidences of physical disability, aside from the extra hazardous habit and occupation, such as high rate pulse, cough, syphilis, rupture, etc. The most remarkable thing in connection with these rejections was the very persistent determination in most cases of the local examiners, deputies and Lodges to get the candidates through, even after they had been forced to see the unsafe risk they were about to assume. 'He is a leading and influential citizen.' 'a good fellow,' his 'rejection will ruin the Lodge.' 'other societies will take him,' etc., were the reasons adduced for their conduct. I have only to add the remark that this is all talk, and as soon as people realize that we are in earnest in our determination to accept only the very best first-class kind of material they will seek admission to our ranks as they do to no other benevolent organization or life company. We have raised our standard and must keep it where it is, or elevate it more, if we expect to reap the full benefits of the system. From the report of the various Grand Lodges it appears that there have been, all together in the whole Order, 1,143 rejections during the past year. The reasons for rejection are given in about one-half the cases—or in actual figures, 612 cases—and they were as follows: Acquired or constitutional diseases, 273; hereditary diseases in family, 234; habits of intemperance, 56; over age, 30, occupation, saloon-keepers, 17; under age, 2.

This record is one the Ancient Order of United Workmen may be proud of, and shows that we have finally taken a stand that means permanency and perpetuity to the institution The lessons it inculcates are that medical men, at least, are a unit in the belief that we have the most to fear and shun from hereditary influence, occupation and intemperance. Out of the occupations it seems that in proportion to those belonging to the Order in each, the most dangerous are saloon-keeping, practicing medicine and railroading. The occupations of the saloon-keeper is undoubtedly the most hazardous of any business generally engaged in It is not only the large amount of liquor usually drank by persons engaged in this business, but the late and irregular hours, vitiated atmosphere of the bar-room, frequent occasions for angry disturbances and violent altercations, which go to make this a vocation whose followers should only be admitted, if at all, with the greatest care and circumspection. As regards the point of intemperance and close confinement to the details of their business, the physician's life is rendered extremely uncertain, and his occupation is generally recognized as extra hazardous, largely from the irregular hours of sleeping, of taking his meals, mental worry, and anxiety and frequent exposure to inclement weather and contagious diseases."

SCIENTIFIC:—Scientists say "the death rate of a State is regulated by the beverage of its people." It looks like it, and also that it might be profitable for the people of some States to "regulate their beverage."

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

MRS. E. P. STEVENS.

The campaign thru Sonoma Co. is completed with fair results. I met the RESCUE worker, Mrs. Doan, at Healdsburg, who unfurled the Prohibition Home Protection Flag when the news of the victory for Prohibition in Iowa was received. All honor to that brave State. The people of the M. E. Church South feel keenly the stand taken by the Democratic Convention. Virtually that party has lost the votes of that body of church workers. Perhaps the stand taken by that party will advance our cause materially in this State, with the M. E. Church South.

Santa Rosa is largely Democratic. Our Sunday night meeting was held in the M. E. Church South, and many were obliged to go away for want of seats. There is a growing sentiment in Santa Rosa on the Home Protection question. The Band of Hope is largely attended. Bro. Sacry is Supt., and proves to be the right man in the right place and loves the work. The Band of Hope in Healdsburg is also in good hands and many of the old tobacco slaves are wearing the badge of freedom, and emancipation from that deadly and destructive weed. These children of larger growth need to be educated on this question.

Bro. Culver's former fearlessness and radical stand for law and order and Sunday closing has so intensified public sentiment in this Co. that it needed only the recent capture of a great party by the Leag of Freedom Conspiracy to predict the result of the fall election in this county. Nothing could have been more inane on the part of those delegates. At San Jose the result of the recent victory in Iowa means emancipation from the slavery and degradation of saloons thruout our land. Continental Europe with her vices cannot thrive in healthy American soil and while Uncle Sam is rich enough to give all the disgusted slaves of despotism a farm, he is not rich enough to pauperize his people with alcoholic poison. America has broken chains of despots before, and as a nation, always does what she undertakes.

IN OTHER STATES.

ILLINOIS.—The U. Presbyterian Gen. Assembly of Illinois have united with the W. C. T. U. in a request to the Evangelical Alliance to assign one day of the week of prayer to the subject of temperance. As the committees who have hitherto framed the program of the week of prayer have been hostile to temperance and probably are so still the assembly direct their clerk in the event of their noncompliance to designate a day for that purpose and give notice thereof. The Chicago Signal suggests that other churches might enforce this proceeding. At Payson Ill. the town trustees have given the exclusive right to license sale of liquors to the W. C. T. U. and empowered them to prosecute offenders. In Monmouth they are giving school prizes for essays on the Twin Evils.

THERE is a class of fools who continue to offer the argument, (1) Prohibition is a failure, and (2) If you pass the amendment you will ruin the State, as you will drive so many from our borders who will not stay where they cannot get their favorite beverage. Thus, first they get just as much as they ever did, and second they can't get any.

Over and over again we have asked them why the saloon men and the brewers oppose the amendment if it will not prohibit? And they have no answer; they simply go on with the same idiotic statement that "Prohibition don't prohibit!"—Ex.

LUTHER BENSON writes from the south, "Georgia has voted on local option in fifty counties and carried in forty-seven.

THE SECEDING GOOD TEMPLARS.—The true position of the seceding (British) Good Templars was quite freely defined by the R. W. G. L., at its last session, which adopted the following report of the committee on memorials unanimously; the committee was composed of Hastings, of Wis.; Brackett, of Me.; Douglass, of N. Y.; Way, of Ks.; and Sorrell, of Col. The report is as follows:

The Committee of Memorials to whom was referred the application of the Worthy Grand Lodge of the British Isles for pecuniary aid in their Charter suit would respectfully report that a full history of this suit, and of the present status of the matter, is presented in the annual report of the R. W. G. Templar.

This is a matter in which this body has a deep interest. The Grand Lodge of England was working under a Charter granted by this body. At the time of the secession in 1876, a portion of the Grand Lodge of England seceded from this body and took with them that Charter. This Charter rightfully belonged to the loyal members of the Lodge, who in a legal and constitutional manner elected Dr. F. R. Lees as the G. W. C. T. As G. W. C. T., Dr. Lees was the proper custodian of the Charter of the Grand Lodge. On making a demand for the Charter, those who illegally had it in their possession refused to surrender it, and there was nothing left for Dr. Lees, other than to appeal to the courts for the protection, not of his personal rights, but the rights of the loyal Grand Lodge of England, and of the entire Order.

The original act of secession at Louisville, in 1876, was one of the most preposterous and absurd ever perpetrated by intelligent men Simply because they failed, under pretext of giving the Order to the colored people of this country, to repeal the action of the previous session of this body, held at Bloomington, which action actually opened the way for the introduction of the Order among the colored people while at the same time it opened the way for the division of the Grand Lodge of England, in the event the majority of the members of that Grand Lodge desired to have it divided.—because they failed in this—and even in their attempt they were acting unconstitutionally-about a dozen of the members of this body withdraw from the session and proclaim to the world that they were the original body, and that the nearly one hundred members who continued quietly transacting the business of the session were outsiders, no longer members of the original and true I. O. of G. T.!

If they were, as they claimed, the rightful and legitimate R. W. G. Lodge of the I. O. of G. T., why did they not claim the records and the property belonging to the Lodge?

If the farce had ended at Louisville it would not have been so bad. But it did not. These men returned to their homes, and by the greatest misrepresentations—by statements utterly without foundation in fact—by concealing facts of the utmost importance to be known for a right understanding of the matter, they induced the Grand Lodges with which they were connected to follow them in the high handed and unwarranted course they had taken.

Dr. Lees and his associates, in endeavoring to maintain their position as the true and loyal Grand Lodge of England, have been acting in accordance with the advice of the officers of this body.

They have been contending for the rights of the Order, and were it in the power of this body to do so, it would be perfectly proper and legitimate for us to meet the great bulk of the expense that has accrued.

The present pecuniary embarrassment of this body is solely the result of our efforts to counteract the consequences of the action of the seceders, and to save our Order from destruction in the localities under their influence.

The injury that has resulted to the cause of Temperance all over the world in consequence of the action of the seceders can never be fully understood.

It has divided our Order in many of our jurisdictions, and instead of unitedly laboring for the furtherance of the cause of temperance, they have been contending with each other, while the evils they were banded together to overthrow were increasing all around them, and this body, representing as it does the entire Order, has been so financially crippled in consequence of the secession movement, and the great expense involved in our effort to maintain the integrity of the Order, that we have been unable to do a tithe of what we ought to have done in the special line of work that belongs to us to do.

Probably the disastrous results of the secession movement have nowhere been more seriously felt than in the Southern States of this country. To perserve their consistency it seemed necessary that the leaders of the movement should attempt to do something for the colored people of the United States, and from the time of secession until the present they have had their paid emissaries in this country trying to sow dissension in our ranks, and to destroy the confidence of the colored people in the members of our Order; trying to convince them that men and women who had shown themselves to be their life-long friends had suddenly become their enemies; and this R. W. G. Lodge, now in session in the heart of the Southern States, wish to give emphatic expression to our conviction that the efforts of the secessionists of Great Britain to plant their bogus order among the colored people of this country, while it has done no good, has greatly retarded the good work among these people; has tendered to create ill feeling between them and those who were disposed to be their friends, and to aid them in their efforts to deliver themselves from the curses of intemperance, and generally to retard the progress of the cause in this entire section of the country.

The committee would recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That this R. W. G. Lodge of the I. O. of G. T., representing seventy-six Grand Lodges, over six thousand Subordinate Lodges, and nearly three hundred thousand members, hereby emphatically declares that the Charter issued by this body to the Grand Lodge of England is the rightful property of the Loyal Grand Lodge of England, of which body Dr. F. R. Lees is G. W. C. T., and that Dr. Lees as G, W. C. T. of the body, is the rightful and legal custodian of the Charter.

Resolved, That this R. W. G. Lodge hereby pledge to Dr. F. R. Lees the sum of one hundred dollars to aid him in defraying the expense of the Charter suit, and that the Executive Committee be instructed to remit the amount to Dr. Lees as soon as the condition of our finances will admit of their doing so.

TWO QUESTIONS.—A SUGGESTION.

Ed. Rescue:—I wish, thru the Rescue to ask two questions:—1. Why is it that the Home Protection Association, the Temperance Societies, and other temperance workers of San Francisco are not trying to enforce the Sunday law. 2. Why do they work for the non-repeal of that law while they make no effort to enforce it? We need not waste our strength fighting for a law that we will not use, and that will do us no good. Lodges and individuals in the interior have no heart to work for the enforcement of this law or for its non-repeal, while the temperance people of San Francisco make no effort to enforce it. If our friends there would only make an effort to enforce the law, it would encourage us. If the law can not be enforced in the ordinary way, it is certainly time to call on the Governor and ask him to have it enforced. This call could be made by the friends of law and order in S. F., and signed by that class of people thruout the State.

Yours truly, H. C. Culton.

Winters, June 21, 1882.

The attempt was made to enforce the Sunday law in San Francisco but under the present condition of the law, it was found the saloon keepers could pack the jury or block the courts and could not be punished for violations, altho a temperance man could be convicted for selling a box of blacking on Sunday or a hymn book with the greatest facility. Home Protection meetings were held at large expense to one or two individuals and it may as well be confessed that tho the Sunday law movement met with much apparent favor at first, the people who would attend a meeting, pay a dollar toward the enforcement or give any active help or encouragement to it were few in San Francisco.

What is earnestly hoped for by the friends of temperance is that the effort to repeal the Sunday law may be thwarted and amendments made to it that will secure conviction and make the present law effective. Possibly it may not be enforced then in this city for some years but it can be elsewhere. There are a great many in San Francisco who would like to see Sunday observed but would not help any temperance movement that looked further. And while the actors in the movement cling with all tenacity to the Sunday law as one step towards prohibition, they would not give a fig to have as a finality a Sunday law strictly observed and enforced and free rum the rest of the week. Lastly if the pulpits and churches of San Francisco would take up this matter vigorously and unanimously as the N. Y. pulpits fot the Passion Play, the Sunday law and a great many other improvements could be made within a year. When the pulpit puts on its armor in earnest and fights an evil, it can develop a tremendous power; but when it is lukewarm its power for any purpose is of course insignificant.

THE OTHER SIDE.

On the Tuesday which proclaimed the statement of the Rev. Mr. Barrows on the question of license vs. prohibition in Lowrell, a letter was sent to this office by the G. W. S., which he had just received from the well-known Rev. W. S. Bryant. It comes in opportunely.

Lowell, Mass., June 9, 1882.

Dear Sir and Brother:—I left Reno one month ago and have visited my wife's people in Maine, N. H., and Mass., and we are to start out west to see my people next week on our homeward trip. I want to tell you the difference between these adjoining New England States, where there is nothing to make the difference but the prohibitory liquor law of Maine. We arrived in Boston by the evening train from Albany at 9 p. m., and in a walk of one block to the U. S. Hotel were accosted by two drunken young men, with a half Americanized Irish brogue on their tongues, one of whom was so impudent that I put him into the care of a policeman, and the other took a paddy's hint and left. In the morning we visited many interesting public places, among them Bunker Hill Monument, where another of this class was so annoying in denunciation of American institutions and religion and law, that the Americans present were pleased to hear me tell him that a prohibitory liquor law (national) and an anti-European immigration law and a strict Sabbath law were our most necessary safeguards now. Having enjoyed a ride on the Pacific, I tried one on the Atlantic to Bangor. Here I met the liquor dealers drummers and bummers (they were indeed vile as Satan) who go from Mass. to Maine and engage to send by express or freight to parties wishing to drink all they may choose thus to order, and yet so effectually does prohibition prohibit, that it is like going from a bar room to a parlor to go from Mass. to Maine. Returning we came by car thru N. H., and as soon as we crossed the State line drunkenness and rowdyism began on the cars. From Manchester thru Concord to Franklin (37 miles,) drunk men were passing the bottle all the time, and one man was so beastly drunk and shocked the ladies to such an extent that threats of violence toward him only made him desist, while a dozen were nearly as drunk and enjoyed his beastly conduct. And liquor from broken bottles ran in a stream half the length of the first-class passenger car. These were Yankee men, young and seemingly educated as well as the young men in Maine. Beside in the latter State parents have no fears when their sons step out that they will fall into the demoralization of the saloon. May God bless Iowa, Maine and Kansas and thru their bright example our beloved land. The cities that are now sowing to the wind may have to reap the whirlwind of drunkenness but surely our whole country will yet be free from this worst of slavery, folly and wickedness.

W. S. Bryant.

FROM COLUSA.

Rev. J. D. McNary sends the following farewell address made by Sister Mrs. S. L. Drake to Protection Lodge at Colusa on the eve of her departure to spend the summer in the mountains. He states that she had no suspicion that it would ever see print, but he very justly thinks it should be read far and wide by Good Templars.

"Brethren and sisters: Since this is my last time of meeting with you this term, perhaps forever, (who knows?) I wish to speak of a subject that has lain near my heart for a long time. It is this: that we do not love our Order as we ought.

Who ever heard of a Mason or an Odd Fellow making light of the order to which he belongs? Can we say the same of the members of our order? It was said to me once "Why, as a secret society the Good Templars amount to nothing. You may hear all the business of the order discussed on the street next day after a meeting, and the password even is no secret." I am glad to say that it was not our Lodge of which this was said. Yet I have heard things said of us that made my heart ache; almost made me feel that our efforts were fruitless.

When I feel almost to give up the ship, I am reminded of some who have been reclaimed and who are an honor to themselves and us. Only yesterday I was told by one not a member or believer in our order that he had seen so much tipling among Good Templars that he had little faith in them. Others again say that those who come here, at least most of them, come only for the good times to be enjoyed and not because they really care anything for the cause of temperance. Again it has come to my ears that some of our younger members are in the habit of giving the test signs and words to each other in public places, not seeming to understand that these are only to be used in making themselves known to strangers; they thus make our order a laughing stock for its enemies. How any who have come to years of discretion can come here and take the solemn life-long obligation, which we take and then at will resign their membership and return to their old ways without a twinge of conscience, I can't understand. I wish it were with us such a solemn thing to be a Good Templar, that being one once we could never dare to think of being anything else, and that in our daily walk and conversation we should give forth no uncertain sound, but let our light so shine that men seeing our good works and better lives, would be inspired to follow our example."

THE GERMANS.

It is false to say that the Iowa Germans are solid against prohibition. The following declaration of sentiments emanates from, and is signed by about seventy-five German voters of Charles city. We give it in the original, that he who knows how may read:—Signal.

Ein erklaerung fur das amendment. Da es offenbar ist dasz der Gebrauch berauschender Getraenke schon Tausende und aber Tausende Menschen ja ganze Familien in leiblichen und Geistlichen Ruin gebracht hat; aber jutzt die Zeit gekomme ist da Staatsliche Verfassung und Kirchliche. Verkehrung sich die Haende reichen um gemeinschaftlich gegen das Uebel der Trunkenseit anzukaempfan so erklaeren wir als Christen und Veutschredente Burger, das wir durch wort und Thart dahin wirken wollen dasz genanten Uebel Einfalt gethan werde.

The readers of the Rescue will do a good work to let their German neighbors see and read that little item.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died—Walker—At Lathrop, San Joaquin Co., Cal., June 25, 1882, Mary H. Walker, a native of St. Lawrence Co., New York, aged 32 years.

Sister Walker was an active, faithful member of Lathrop Lodge, No. 373, I. O. G. T. The customary ceremonials were observed, and appropriate resolutions passed by the lodge in respectful, kindly memory of the deceased sister. Her death is mourned by a sympathizing community, husband and four small children.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

TRUTH.

There is no more despicable character than that of the untruthful. Jeremiah said: "A sword is upon the liars and they shall dote" or become silly and stupid; and St. John said: "All liars shall have their part in the lake that burneth," etc. When men speak of those they hate and despise and sum them up as thieves, robbers, murderers, etc., they are sure to count the liars in with them.

And there are thousands of men whose word is not to be depended upon at all, if they are trying to sell or buy anything, who would never forgive one who should call them "liar." Even when one has told a gross and very wicked lie he is insulted grievously if that most despicable word is applied to him.

And still men and boys, and possibly girls, too, at times, depart from the truth which they should hold as sacred as their lives; but it is the silliest trade a person can make to barter the truth for anything. There are some who seem to think they can lie and not be known or suspected as guilty of that most miserable of failings, the perversion of the truth.

But all such people fail: if there is a grocer or storekeeper who tells lies about how much his sugar or his pocket knives or his boxes of steel pens cost, all the neighbors know it in a short time, and not one of them ever places any real solid confidence in what he says. Think of it what a character to have. People saying, "Smith told me yesterday that Tom Jones has come back, but you know one can't believe anything Smith says." What is the moral value of a citizen whose word cannot be believed on such a simple question as Tom Jones coming home or about a cat catching a mouse in a barrel?

People who have been found violating the truth on one point need never expect to be believed in anything they say. And there are many people who betray their disregard for truth so readily and constantly that strangers in a few minutes conversation discover the utter worthlessness of their character.

On the other hand there are some men and women who love the truth and everybody knows they do. People have known them for 5, 10 or 30 years and no one ever knew them to violate the truth once. And when they tell of something that has happened which they have seen, people know it is absolutely true as gold. Such poople may not be rich in money but they can never be poor. They are always worth vastly more than if they had millions of gold and no honesty.

And again lack of truth is lack of honesty. There is a very close partnership between lying and stealing; they are such intimate companions as to be difficult to tell apart, and they both grow from small beginnings. Those who never begin at the small end will never be contaminated with either. The difference between the character and reputation of the truthful and the untruthful is so immense that the young folks should make their choice early and be tremendously radical in the truth.

It is well to point our young folks to the falsehoods of the liquor-sellers and their sympathizers. If there were in your town or village two societies that wanted you to join with them, and you found that the members of one were truthful and honest and all the members of the other were in the constant habit of the most monstrous falsehoods you would have the utmost contempt for the latter.

And that is just the case with most of you: there is a lodge or Band of Hope or temperance society that stands upon the truth that sobriety and honesty and morality and good behavior are most wholesome and conducive to happiness. In these societies there is not nor ever was any use in a falsehood. No lie could have ever been invented that could have helped us.

But the whisky and beer and wine and brandy business, cannot afford to deal with the truth at all. The only argument they can find to help them is falsehood: the Bible says "Wine is a mocker and deceives all who use it" and it said that at a time when men were very ignorant of the evil effects of wine.

For a long time the advocates of drink and vice declared these drinks were necessary for health: and they continued to declare it long after everybody knew better. Then they were good as a medicine. Many people know that is not so and many do not. But lots of people assert it who knows better.

Then they tried to assert that altho strong liquors were abominable and deadly poisons, beer and wine were good and wholesome; but it has been proved that the latter are even worse and more degrading and brutalizing and murderous than the strong; because thousands learn to be drunkards on them that would never have learned to use strong liquors first; and because so many people believe they are not dangerous and so women and children by thousands become drunkards and castaways on beer and wine.

Then when prohibitory laws were enacted the old liars who had prophesied lies from the first were busier than ever, and tried to make people at a distance believe that where the sale of liquor was prohibited there was more sold and more people were drunken. Newspapers and even renegade preachers have been hired to peddle these lies to the world. And they keep still asserting that prohibition dont prohibit in Maine when every one who makes that assertion if he knows anything about it, knows it is utterly false; every minister of the gospel, temperance advocate, every Christian man and woman, every congressman and governor and respectable citizen of Maine that we hear of, has declared for many years that altho in two or three large towns some poison rumsellers have a few sly dens and sell a sly drink to a loafer at times, prohibition has been a great success and an incalculable blessing to Maine.

The same has been true of Kansas. One year of prohibition has prospered and enriched, and bettered and blessed Kansas amazingly and the servants of sin tell the same lies. And when it was to be tried in Iowa the lying liquor sellers declared all along that in Maine and Kansas there was more liquor sold than ever and then subscribed we dont know how many hundreds of thousands of dollars to buy votes in Iowa and hire thieves to go there and vote illegally to prevent the passage of the prohibitory law.

Now all our juvenile readers know that if prohibition made more liquor sold in Maine and Kansas, the liquor makers and sellers would have paid some money to get the same law passed in Iowa. But now when Iowa has declared by a vote of her people that no soul poison shall ever more be made or sold there, the lying prophets of Satan are tearing their hair and blaspheming God from Boston to Arizona.

When any one declares that prohibition dont prohibit, he assaults the wisdom of God and the common sense of mankind. The ten commandments of God are chiefly prohibitory laws. And nearly all the laws that righteous men have made are prohibitory laws. If any one is so silly as to say prohibition dont prohibit the sale of liquor and believes what he says, his case is almost as pitiable as if he knew it to be absolutely false. The fool is often as unwise a guide as the positively and cunningly wicked.

IOWA.

Our Juvenile organizations everywhere should at an early date have a day of thanksgiving and rejoicing over the victory of prohibition in Iowa. It makes prohibition sure in Nebraska, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio on the next trial, and in a number of other states and in California the first time an earnest effort shall be made by Christianity and good citizenship to root out this vilest and meanest and wickedest curse that ever scourged the world.

INDIANS.

Judge McGarvey, Superior Judge of Mendocino Co., has decided that the law which prohibits selling liquor to Indians is null and void, altho it is a law of the United States and confirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. The circumstances were, a white rumseller was sentenced in a Justices Court to 40 days jail for selling liquor to an Indian and an appeal to Judge McGarvey, the only way the latter could acquit himself of the necessary duty of letting the rumseller go free, was to capsize a law of congress and of the Supreme Court of the U. S. But that was only a trifle for a Judge to do; we have had judges often and recently declare the laws of God an entire humbug, to acquit a rumseller under all circumstances. It must not be supposed this is an unkindly criticism of Judge McGarvey. The Republican Administration of Grant and Hayes pardoned out 7700 of the worst criminal, outlaws, perjured rumsellers, nearly all of them without trial and declared it the national policy that the rumseller is above all law and the people have no rights, no laws, no privileges, no liberties, which the rumseller may not spit on and trample under foot with utmost impunity; because the Republican and Democratic national policy is to fight for the gutter vote which the rumseller controls; and if the nation perishes to get that vote, why let her rip.

HOW TO INTEREST.

To interest children in the work of the Temple give each something to do. Children instinctively desire to be useful.

After having taken the triple pledge, incite them with an earnest desire to secure their companions to do the same. This will send them out as messengers of the truth thru the week, and bring them back with enthusiasm to the next meeting.

During the session also the children must be thoroly interested. Do not let the brightest and smartest furnish all the entertainment for the good of the order, but provide something easy for the dullest one to do, and encourage by gentleness and love each to attempt something for the good of others.

In all the work of the Temple combine with our noble principles something pleasing and entertaining; no session of the Temple should be allowed to become wearisome. Truth loses none of its force by having agreeable surroundings, while it may be enforced with such harshness that it becomes actually distasteful.

MUSIC.

By all means encourage the children to sing. If you are superintendent of a temple, and have the ability to sing, happy indeed will be your influence over the little ones, and wonderful your power for good.

There is nothing more touching than the blending of childish voices in sacred song, and these young soldiers of temperance thru this priceless gift may reach and touch the hearts that are insensible to all other forces, and bring back to virtue many lost and sinful ones. But this is not all; the subduing and refining influences of song upon the child's heart is far reaching and incalculable.

To sum up, make the Temple (1st) a place sacred to the principles taut.

2d. See that, while every duty is scrupulously performed, just as much pleasure and true enjoyment as possible be combined with the duty.

3d. Give every member something to do, and encourage to best endeavor. Excite in all a desire to excel in earnest work, in enthusiasm, in devotion to the cause.

4th. Make the pledge and its keeping, and the truths which enforce, the prominent features of all effort.

5th. Taking the motto, Truth, Love and Purity, seek to exemplify in each life the beauty of truthfulness, the law of love, and build characters which will illumine all within their circle by their purity.—Mrs. M. B. O'Donnell, in the Youths' Temp. Banner.

STEPHEN ALLEN'S POCKET-PIECE.

[In the pocket-book of the Hon. Stephen Allen, who was drowned from on board the Henry Clay, was found a printed slip, apparently cut from a newspaper, a copy of which we give below. It is worthy to be placed in every newspaper, and engraven on the heart of every young man.]

"Keep good company, or none. Never be idle. If your hands can't be usefully employed, attend to the cultivation of your mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets if you have any. When you speak to a person look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character is above all things else: your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speaks evil of you let your life be so that none will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income. When you retire to bed think over what you have been doing during the day. Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper. Small and steady gains give competency with a tranquil mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it. Never run into debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young, to spend when you are old. Read over the above maxims at least once a week."—Banner.

A SKEPTIC'S ADVICE.

Benjamin Franklin was a deist, but had sense enough to see the banefulness of infidelity. When Thomas Paine sent him a portion of his "Age of Reason" for examination, he wrote, "I have read your manuscript. You strike at the foundation of all religion. You will not succeed, so as to change the general sentiment of mankind on that subject. The consequence of printing this piece will be mischief to you and no benefit to others. He that spits against the wind spits in his own face. You may find it easy to live a virtuous life. You have a clear perception of the advantages of virtue. But think how great a portion of mankind consist of weak and ignorant men and women and of inconsiderate youth of both sexes, who need the motives of religion to restrain them from vice. Perhaps you are indebted to your religious education for the habits of virtue upon which you now justly value yourself. I would advise you, therefore, not to attempt unchaining the tiger, but to burn this piece before it is seen by any other person. If men are so wicked with religion, what would they be without it?"—Ex.

THE DRINK-DEN accomplishes wonderful transformations in society. It takes a boy of beauty and promise, teaches him to carouse with gay associates, and makes him a bloated, loathsome, worthless man. It takes a young girl, loved and loveable and manufactures her into a miserable, bloated woman, at whom passers by point with finger of scorn. It wrecks lives that might but for it be grand; hearts, that might otherwise be happy; homes that in its absence might blossom into Edens. Why does Christian society license and protect this social pestilence?—Advance.

Moses Williamson of Pleasant Co. W. Va. is said to be sick at 98 years of age; the Freeman says he used to be the biggest man in the county and weighed over 400 lbs. The remark that he has always been highly honored and respected by three generations of men, explains his longevity. He has been an observer of the ten commandments.

In 8 years Germany has consumed $1,625,000,000 worth of beer and about 250 million dollars of brandy. That is the greater part of that huge amount has been wasted by the poor who work for miserable wages and have a very hard time indeed to live and drink beer and not starve.

Knee Deep Offer.—We publish 18 monthly papers, same size as the PASTOR, each for a special class of readers or special kind of temperance work. We send any one for a year to any address for five cents. Thus a society can for a few dollars reach every family, or every individual in a town every month in a year with temperance matter. Nothing ever heard of to compare with it; hundreds of towns already trying it. Samples and full particulars, 10 cents.

5c. Popular Temperance Library.—For general distribution among the adult masses; $1 argumentative temperance books put up in neat form, paper covers, at 5c each, in lots of five or more.

No. 1 Drinks from Drugs.
No. 2 The Liquor Traffic and the Sober Citizen.
No. 3 The Liquor Traffic and Crime.
No. 4 Home Protection; a Lawyer's View of It.
Sample copy of each for 20 cents.

5c. Fireside Temperance Library.—52 choicest $1 to $1.50 temperance story books, suitable for libraries or general distribution. Selections of 5 or more at 5c. each.

Band of Hope Outfits.—The choicest lesson books, song books, weekly papers, library, badges, pledge rolls, pledge certificates, class records, and all so cheap that penny collections pay expenses. Sample of everything for 25c.

Many other goods; catalogue, etc., free.

CAUTION.

RENEWALS FOR BAND OF HOPE SUPPLIES.

We desire to call your attention to the fact, that, while in ordering Sunday-school literature, one always orders for the then current quarter for "Band Supplies" it is difierent. No matter what time in the year a Band is organized, it is always expected to commence its lesson with the "first quarter," and for the following reasons:

The lessons for that quarter are upon the subject of starting Bands, and commence to teach temperance from the very first principles. Gradually, as the first, second and third quarters are reached, the scope of the lessons widens as the ability of the pupil to understand the subject develops. So on through each succeeding year. Therefore it is essential in ordering or renewing, to state definitely which quarter the supplies are for, otherwise there is liable to be great confusion. It is understood that these suggestions refer to the Band of Hope Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterlies, the "Red, White and Blue," and "Crystal Fountain"; the two last named being companions to the first named. We trust that we shall receive your renewal at the time of expiration each quarter, and that you will kindly assist us by keeping the above hints in mind.

THE CAPTAIN'S REMEDY.

Oh! sailing away, and sailing away,
Far over the shimmering sea,
Went little Jack Hill as a sailor boy
In the stout ship Nancy Lee.

The captain was kind, and kind was the crew;
No reason could any one find
Why bright little Jack, the pet of the ship,
Should not have a contented mind.

But he longed to be grown, to become a man,
To command instead of obey;
For, like many bright lads in this world of ours,
He liked to have his own way.

He felt very sure, this sailor-boy Jack,
That could he but smoke and chew
He would be a much larger and wiser lad—
At least in the sailors' view.

One day behind lading and boxes he hid
With tobacco to chew and smoke;
But chewing and smoking were new to poor Jack,
And the way he soon felt was no joke.

The captain spied him with swollen cheek,
As behind the boxes he lay,
And asked for a look at the troublesome tooth
In a kind but commanding way.

When Jack slowly opened his mouth he cried:
"Much worse than the toothache sure;
But I think I know of a remedy
That will soon effect a cure."

And he called for the tongs, and a pan of sand,
And a piece of canvas stout,
Then showed to the boatswain the dirty mouth
And told him to clean it out.

Then freely the boatswain used tongs and sand
And canvas and soap without fear,
Till the bleeding mouth of sailor-boy Jack
From tobacco was wondrous clear.

And the soap, or sand, or canvas stout,
Or the pain he has endured,
Has worked like a charm, for of love of the "weed"
Little Jack is entirely cured.

ENGLISH INTEMPERANCE.—The Rev. J. W. Horsley, Chaplain of Clerkenwell Prison, who knows all about it, reports that 178,429 persons were tried last year for being drunk, or drunk and disorderly. There are 892 saloons and beer dives that are known dens of thieves and ruffians. The police and prisoners alone cost very nearly 20 million dollars a year.

GRACE BABB, a Maine girl, recently stood first and passed the best examination in a class of 195 at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy. This is supposed to have prompted Harvard College in refusing to admit girl students to the medical course.—W. Va. G. Templar. Not at all, friend; it was because the girls would not play billiards and call for champagne and cigars at the Parker House. It would be a complete waste of a student to let a girl into Harvard.

LODGES, ETC.

MISS MARY A. GUTHRIE is mentioned by several correspondents of this office in the most kindly terms and her addresses are said to be most effective. A bright future of usefulness is in anticipation for her.

FOUNTAIN LODGE gave a dime entertainment on the 12th; a large attendance and an interesting and enjoyable program of vocal and instrumental music, reading, recitations and speeches and an address by Bro. R. S. Wade of San Francisco.

MRS. STEVENS AND MRS. RICHARDSON have had a successful mission in San Mateo Co., and have visited and revived with new hopes the faithful old guard who have kept the camp-fires burning brightly all these years; and the old camps have been vigorously recruited, too, with genuine live material in Half Moon Bay and Pescadero.

THE Santa Cruz Transcript has suspended and merged into the Watsonville Transcript, which claims to be the biggest and brightest paper in the county and to have the largest circulation. It is to be hoped it will lead off in banishing the rumselling mantraps from a place in the advertizing colnms of family papers, where it is a crime to put them.

OUR BRETHREN in Stockton have done a most creditable work in providing themselves with a pleasant and convenient and attractive place of meeting. They deserve the plaudits and best wishes of the Order for the active public spirit they have manifested. Will be glad to give place to a duplicate of the Stockton work. San Luis Obispo is suggested as the next one to follow suit.

SOULSBYVILLE on June 10, had enthusiastic open meeting; Bros. Penrose, Coles, Bluett, Grey, Oliver and Barron and various others advocated prohibition and earnest efforts at next election. Temperance literature was distributed and good results secured. Bro. Barron the L. D. is working away at the Mutual Aid and getting reinforcements to it and trying to get people to avail themselves of the temperance press. With a little vigorous effort of all our Lodge deputies in the same direction we could have our classes in the Mutual Aid full and show the world the best and most successful Mutual Insurance in the world and the RESCUE would soon become a source of revenue in place of an expense and it would have its influence vastly widened.

FROM Half Moon Bay a lady writes to the G. W. C. T., June 12th: "We can never sufficiently thank you for the help you have been the means of giving us in acceding to my request for Sisters Stevens and Richardson, they have taken immensely and done a wonderful power of good, 20 members initiated so far, and about 12 more for to-night. At the meeting last night at the church which was crowded, they received a rising vote of thanks and a cordial invitation to return soon. The Grand Lodge sends out a powerful double team in these two ladies. Sist. Richardson's sweet voice acts as the rain on the dried up earth and softens the ground of their hearers hearts to receive the good seed so plentifully sown by Sister Stevens, it sinks in and is covered again by another sweet or stirring song; they are immense favorites here, and deservedly so."

THE Democratic Standard of Eureka, H. B., is up to the full standard of a clean, wholesome, honest, respectable journal; those who don't agree with its choice of candidates presented for President and Governor, cannot deny that the Standard comes full and square up to the measure of patriotism and good citizenship, and deserves honor and respect and $2.50 a year of your patronage, ten times more than any paper of your own politics whose colums are prostituted for pay to the service of the worst enemies that ever cursed and depraved a community. Better a thousand times patronize an honest man who you think wants the wrong man for Governor, than the one who is under pay to help make your boy a drunkard and your dauter a drunkards wife. The Standard don't want this country and its Sunday and its liberties turned bottom up and made a ragged pauper pasture under the despotism of beer barrels, bagnios and bayonets.

HERRICKS CROSS, June 6, 1882.

ED. RESCUE, I am now in the field devoting all my time as a lecturer on prohibition, it is our only hope. As long as we legalize the manufacture and sale of the king of all evils so long will it be drank. As long as drank so long will there be drunkards. As long as there are drunkards there will be crime, degradation and misery (the legitimate offspring of alcohol) in our land and nation. All the efforts put forth for temperance have accomplished, have done little more than occasionally reform a drunkard and perhaps save some from becoming drunkards. Then our government has levied a heavy tax on alcohol increasing the evil tenfold. For when there was little or no tax on the sale the article sold was not adulterated. But was altho a poison free from the terrible and more poisonous ingredients that are in the drinks now sold. In the last few days a man has been thru this county selling receipts for making whisky. I have learned from a reliable source that he proposed to one of our merchants to sell him a receipt for $20,00 for making whisky or to make five barrels for $20,00. Only think of it 40 gallons of whisky for $4,00. And that too from poisonous drugs. No wonder that advocates of and apologists for dram drinking declare with a show of triumph that there is more whisky sold and drank now than before we tried to suppress its use by tax.

When we refer to the evil that has come from taxing alcohol, some say it is a good thing as it helps to pay our nations debts. The blood of thousands of Americas bravest and best men was shed in contracting that debt.

And now shall we oppress, degrade and corrupt the whole nation in order to pay that debt. God forbid. What shall we do? Prohibit its manufacture. Make laws that will view it in the true light, a high crime to even give it away or possess it. But say some, you cant stop it entirely. Perhaps not. We cannot entirely stop horse stealing even by well executed laws, yet there is not so much horse stealing as there would be if we should abolish the law against it and license one to one hundred men in every town in the nation to steal according to law. Then let the surrender be an unconditional one. Down with the king of all evil. We will vote only for such men as we know to be prohibitionists; men that pledge themselves to do all in their power to banish from our land all intoxicants.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

NEW HAMPSHIRE AND OTHERS.

Some months ago the Rescue noted a decline in the membership of the Good Templars of New Hampshire as reported at their G. L. session, and lamented the cheap john finance that has been destroying our Order in many of the States, making it a laughing stock to our enemies, crippling every effort at progress, and as surely bringing the Order to the grave as ever cause produced effect.

There never was an interest of humanity or an association that had a juster cause than we, a clearer case of truth and right; that ever had so many blessings and rewards to offer as inducements for men to join us; that ever could point to such awful dangers and penalties as threaten those who stay in the valley of destruction, or who backslide from the path of temperance after once embarking in it.

There never was an enterprise which could present so many and so powerful reasons for appealing to men's generous support as ours, and there never was a cause which has been so pitifully starved and beggared in all directions. The remarks made have drawn a defence from a junior P. W. C. T. who seems to think the Rescue mistaken in attributing their loss or lack of progress to lack of funds, and suggests that New Hampshire is 12th in the list of States that have the largest proportion of Good Templars to the population, and as another offset for decline, says they invited the R. W. G. L. there and will do so again and entertain it handsomely.

Friend junior, that is a lame answer; to be No. 12 on that list is not creditable to a State with such privileges and advantages of every kind and so few obstacles; it would be a thousand times more creditable to expend the money cost of the entertainment of the R. W. G. L. in adding 50 per cent or 20 per cent to your membership every year, as any jurisdiction in the U. S. can do with a proper financial system adopted and properly managed.

The Rescue intends to fire a shot at cheap john wherever his head pops up and it pops up all the time somewhere, except on the Pacific coast; the greatest and most destructive of our enemies. But in going for cheap john it dont assail or belittle any Good Templar or association or any class of temperance people.

The simple assertion is very broadly made that any Good Templar state association that attempts to get along as a progressive concern, on a 5 or 10 or 15 cent quarterly capita tax is of necessity a failure. It cannot succeed. Nor can the sub. lodges be a success that are organized on a corresponding financial basis. If something is not done to reform this folly, we are going to die out before some active progressive society that will pursue a rational policy and mean business.

This is a matter of figures. A lodge that has a treasury that can only pay for lights and room rent, and cant circulate temperance literature and do lots of other things to help the cause, is a failure, and makes its Grand Lodge a larger failure.

A jurisdiction that has nothing, does nothing and gets in debt, all because it has not vim enough to raise a working fund, is little more than a stumbling block in the way of something better. There are lots of them whose large majority of members would be total abstainers without any society, but are good citizens and belong to the lodge to try to help it and do good, but are actually shut off in the lodge from doing the good they desire.

Friend Junior says his people could not stand a heavy tax; they are never asked to. But they have been taut to believe 5 or 10 cents a tax. We are used to buy a box of matches for two cents; we should make a fuss if the price raised to ten cents; but we could all stand it perfectly well if we had to pay 20 cents for every box of matches we use. Not one of us would lose a meal or have to abandon one accustomed luxury for that.

And there is not a lodge from here to Maine whose members could not with utmost ease adopt the California system of finance all thru, and they all would adopt it cheerfully, if it was properly presented to them as a duty. They have been taut to believe temperance means 25 cents where we have been taut to believe it means a dollar. They can do as much with $1,000 as we can; have just as much talent and earnestness and sincerity and love for the cause as we have, but they think 20 cents a year will do it all, and no one has waked them up about it.

"Can't sustain a heavy tax"! no, they can't stand a $50 capita tax, but they can all stand the highest Good Templar dues and fees. Some of our members in every State use tobacco; we have never heard of one who could not afford to use tobacco; never knew one who thot he could not stand a tobacco tax of $20 a year. They can stand it when it goes up to $30 and $40. And those who used to drink could spend $100 or more a year for drink which they save now. Therefore whoever spends $6 a year for tobacco can stand it perfectly well to spend $6 or $10 or more for temperance and whoever does not use any tobacco can much better afford to spend $6 or $10 more to rid the country of a cause which is costing us all hundreds a year in losses and damages besides all the expenses of the temperance warfare.

Nothing in the world ails our N. H. friends but the lack of a working fund; with the best leaders and officers and membership in the world, you can make no progress unless you have an army of rich men and women who will labor and write and travel and organize gratuitously and purchase and circulate temperance literature and pay the expenses of meetings, and pay the audience so much a head for listening, as Genl Riley used to. The best thing for you to do first is to take a few hundred copies of the Rescue and get them circulated. The Lord never intended a church or a temperance society to be a poorhouse, but the devil has always slipped that plank into both wherever he could, and had a good laugh over it too. New Hampshire and every other eastern State by adopting the California finance can add thousands to its membership every year and never meet a decline once. New York could add from 10,000 to 20,000 to her membership every year, and all it would cost would be the price of a few cigars for each member, a sum that no one would miss in the least. Brethren, everywhere we have to choose between active progress and extinction. For ten years past you have been heading for the latter. The Rescue has no pick at any temperance advocate or organization—not a word or thot unkindly to any of them; but it has a pick at cheap john, the best friend and protector the rum traffic ever had.

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC

Is evidently one of the best and most useful institutions of the Pacific coast. It would be idle to endeavor to confirm its well earned and well established reputation for affording first class facilities and pleasant healthful accommodations for those desiring an education for their children. But it is of the very highest importance that parents and guardians should select an institution where their children will be free from dangerous example and companionship and where they are removed from all temptations of drink and from drinking examples. The University of the Pacific is on the old platform of Christianity, morality and temperance, that has given to the world so many grand and noble specimens of American citizenship.

FOR GOVERNOR.

No man can be truly a patriot or a Christian and be indifferent or neutral in the political occurrences which seriously affect the welfare of his country. Recent events demand the serious consideration of all good citizens. Genl Stoneman has been nominated on a platform of the most dire hostility to the public welfare. No dout political opponents will try to rake up something disparaging to him personally; but an attempt to blacken such a worthy citizen as Genl Stoneman is despicable; it is presumed that his personal record as an honest, reputable citizen is unimpeachable. But if it were possible for him to have stood higher still in the people's estimation and had he been in favor of Chinese labor for making railroads, ditches, dams, levees and cleaning sewers, as some honest, righteous men are, he would have been furiously assailed and denounced as unfit for Governor of this State.

If he had been a Republican and if it were possible for him to have had 75 per cent more moral worth than he has, every delegate at that Convention that nominated him, would have yelled him out of the building, and now that he is a Democrat, about all the Republicans will do their utmost to defeat him.

The principal reason why the leaders and engineers of the Democratic party will desire the success of Genl Stoneman, will not be that he may act St. Patrick on the Chinamen and railroad monopolists or because he is a man of clean record. They dont care a rap for those things only to make a bait of them to catch voters. They hope to see him elected so that they and their friends may thru him or under him be elected or appointed to roast turkey and cranberry sauce, and see their own names on the State's payroll. If they did not have these motives not one of them would give an old toothpick to see him elected.

The reason the Republican managers and scene-shifters dont want to see Genl Stoneman elected, does not touch Chinese or monopoly or tariff; it is pure patriotism with them; they dont want the Democrats to get any of the spoils; but if Genl S. would throw the spoils their way they would every one work for him and vote for him.

But it is fair to say that no man who endorses an infidel, wicked, pagan, merciless and infamous platform is fit to be a Governor of any class of people except of the rumsellers and tyrants and traitors to God and country and home who foisted that platform, odorous of blasphemy and crime and blood, upon the Convention.

No man who forswears the Christian institutions of America and adopts the rallying cry of, No Sunday, No God, no liberty for any but the rum thief, no safety from the bloodhounds of the beerdives for American women and children, is fit to be the Governor of any State, tho in other respects he were a Washington or a Lincoln.

No man who surrenders all the liberties and privileges of free American citizenship and all that has been bot and earned in a century of American progress and patriotism and virtue, to be trodden underfoot by a horde of vandal robbers and traders in debauchery, for the sake of catching the ruffian vote and the thief-trainers vote and the pauper-makers vote, deserves to get the vote of a decent virtuous patriot.

No man who, in a contest between the women of America and the crime rotten, barbarous and brutal portion of our foreign immigration—in a contest between virtue and vice, between the home and the brothel, embracingly hugs to his bosom the dirty and the nasty side every time, deserves any position in this commonwealth, except it be among the criminals whose reign he seeks to make absolute in this State.

There were many respectable virtuous democrats at the Convention who voted against the infamous part of the platform; and it is said Mr. Shafer of Shafer Schetzel notoriety, president of the wife beaters co-operative association, got his leag of fiendom plank into the platform under a promise that he would get it stuffed into the Republican platform also. And but for the San Francisco delegates who had been sent there by the Shetzel-Shafer anti-home conspiracy, the infamous plank would have been indignantly kicked out.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

There is a fear expressed that this Convention is going to usurp the government of the U. S. elect and instal a President and cabinet and stop the liquor traffic entirely on the 11th inst., or to blow up the country if they fail to carry out their program. But as they have invited every political, religious and temperance society to be represented it is supposed they desire to have a conference of temperance men to consult upon the best methods to be adopted for the general good.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

"We believe Sunday and church and Christianity and virtue and honesty and sobriety are relics of a barbaric age and should be abolished by a few people. We believe sovereign MAN should have the fullest freedom on Sunday and every day to poison and murder American citizens, to beat women with shovels and three-legged stools, to teach the boys to drink and smoke. Above all things we declare the American Home an insolent menace and an onerous tax upon the Sunday beer garden; that the latter supplies all the needs of rational civilization and the former should be abolished as one of the many modern twin relics of barbarism. And we believe that Marx P. Schetzel and Mr. Shafer are the fittest men to direct the politics, formulate the creeds, nominate candidates for office, appoint the police and supply the beer and tobacco which are the only provisions necessary for the working men of the State."

THE IOWA VICTORY

Has taken people by surprise. This is an event that has a national importance perhaps beyond that of any other event since the close of the rebellion. It shows that the doom of the rum tyrant and monster is sealed the moment the people themselves can get a fair lick at it. Because it is an event that bodes untold good to the nation, the secular dailies are silent about it for fear of offending the wife beaters and outlaws whose cause they champion against the people. Had it been a signal victory of foreign scoundrelism and barbarism over American Christianity and virtue, the big rum worshippers would have flamed all over with jubilation.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad. The Democratic party of California in their recent action at San Jose have proved themselves subjects of this kind of preparation and have committed the last degree of folly that was possible—unless the Republicans go a step beyond and do a greater folly in blinding themselves to the advantage that is now within their easy reach—that of coming out openly in favor of a wholesome Sunday law and of letting the people decide the question of licencing murderers and thieves to prey upon the people like wolves upon defenceless lambs. The Democrats have secured all the dirty vote, if the Republicans secure the decent vote they will win, but if they angle in the fish pond which the other party has taken possession of, they will be beaten as shamefully as they will deserve to be. And they may as well understand in time that no hedging or dodging will avail them or blind the people. They must have a square sound platform and put up men who are neither tools of the railroad or Shaferites or any other class of the peoples enemies. The temperance tide is flowing steadily and it will never ebb again.

THE SHAFER-BABCOCK CONTROVERSY.

SHAFER SIDE.

Ship and cargo lost off Bodega Bay; captain had been in the same condition before, and nothing had happened when there were no rocks or land in sight.

The number of suicides, divorces, murders, stabbings and fights have been so numerous and inspiriting that the wifebeaters and drunkard makers co-operative association talk of soon having a grand comprehensive universal Sunday drunk, with dog-fight and cock-fight diversions and a female boxing match to ratify the San Jose nominations.

Three suicides, four sudden deaths with entrees and dessert of numerous shootings and robberies all on last Friday have made the Shafer side jubilant. Those are unerring indications that the Leag of F. is doing a good business.

BABCOCK SIDE.

PROHIBITION amendment majority in Iowa, 40,000 to 50,000. Fiendom wails and howls.

SWEET CIDER.

The following is clipped from an article by Miss Ruby Gilbert in the Chicago Signal.

"We condemn light wines and beer because of the alcohol they contain, but there is the same objection to cider. It contains the same alcohol, its use creates the same appetite, it makes people drunk, and it makes drunkards. All this has been done with simple cider. Miss Colman gives a number of cases proving this statement. Among them are these:

"A carpenter drunk on cider, was known to chase a fellow-workman around the new building on which they were at work, trying to kill him."

"A man in northern New York, drunk on cider, shot an innocent neighbor who was looking out of the window."

It has been known to produce delirium tremens, as it did with a boy only six years old, in Masonville, New York, who was allowed to drink all the cider he wished.

A family of four persons in Massachusetts drank between forty and fifty barrels of cider in less than a year. By summer, when the alcohol was well formed, two of them had died and the others had delirium.

Says Dr. S. I. Prime, speaking of New Hampshire; "Cider is made and drank largely, and it is a bad liquor to get drunk on. Beer stupefies, and cider sours a man. The cider drunkard is the ugliest man to meet.

Six sons in one family in Connecticut, who began with cider, became drunkards.

Persons usually begin with drinking what they style, "sweet cider" and keep on drinking it day by day, the alcohol coming so slowly, so little at a time—their appetites becoming, meanwhile, more and more vitiated—that they do not recognize its presence. A reformed man said "I would not dare drink sweet cider." And another said. "If you have any regard for us, do not set the example of drinking even sweet cider."

A striking and force-full incident, given in Our Union of March, 1879, so clearly illustrates the use the devil makes of this harmless "apple juice" that I give it in full: "One of our best workers is our authority for the following, and we beg the earnest consideration of those who are opposed to "cider" in our pledge upon its point. Said she: I had a long talk on various phases of temperance work with a converted saloon-keeper. At last I asked him. What do the signs in the saloon windows mean, 'Sweet Cider Free?' Well, said he, hesitating, I really don't like to tell you; yet I urged it, and he said. The living is so satanic, it is too bad to tell! But at last I prevailed upon him. 'It is nothing but a lure—a regular trap. You see, there are so many boys from the country going up and down our streets; they are from pure good homes, have probably promised their mothers they never would drink; but they get awful lonesome and home-sick in a great city, with no place to go to but a comfortless boarding-house; and they see these signs and they think how good the sweet cider used to taste at home; one boy remembers how father made it, and how mother never thought of there being any harm in drinking it, and he longs for it. One draught of cider would be almost home, it would be as good as the odor of a clover-field; so he goes in and the barkeeper pours out a glass—so sweet, so good, and nothing to pay. Well you see he has been in the trap once—taken one nibble at the bait—and the man behind the bar is perfectly satisfied, he is in for it now, so he goes for the second time, for there isn't the least harm in sweet cider, it wouldn't hurt a baby, but he is ashamed to go in without paying something; so he buys a glass of beer; next thing there is a game of billiards; then he is fast. The business is done, and that case is secure as a regular customer!"

"The youngest of my thirty-six feet of boys, now a man with silver hair on his brow, spent last summer with his wife in Wyoming territory, I asked him how the people there looked upon woman suffrage. His answer in brief, was: "As a fixed fact, beneficial to all the best interests of the community—morally, spiritually, financially, and socially, I have heard no clamor against it.—A Mother.

Of all the proofs that "Home Protection" is the way out, Arkansas, is the most shining and unanswerable. Last winter they gave women the right to vote by signature against dram-shops. To-day the State of pistols and bowie knives (as Arkansas is called) has three-fourths of its towns under prohibitory law. "Haste to the rescue," dear women, and tarry not in all the plain.—Frances E. Willard.

NOT A NEW TEMPERANCE METHOD.

The Ed. of the Patron has just found out that the Methodist Church has placed itself "squarely on the reform platform." Had the editor been conversant with the history of the M. E. Church he would have known that she has been there for a century. The deliverance of the M. E. Church upon the making, use, and sale of spirituous and vinous liquors, has been by no means problematical.

As was Wesley opposed to the use, sale or manufacture of the death dealing beverages, so has the church been to the present in perfect harmony with the temperance sentiment of the country. The issue now being brought before the people may have caused the M. Conference at Nashville to be more pronounced. Every good methodist will work for, and in the cause, until the issue is brought to a conclusion in harmony with the good of humanity, the demands of the church, and the advancing civilization of the times. The editor of the Patron in approving the action of the conference shows indications of improvement. There is hope that he may yet place himself on the reform platform.

A METHODIST.

THE BEST MEDICAL TREATMENT.—The London Temperance Hospital has been in operation nine years. Its object to heal the sick in the surest and speediest manner. No alcohol is used as beverage or medicine nor in making tinctures. Result, its proportion of deaths is a fraction less than half of those in other hospitals where alcohol is prescribed. In the U. K. Temperance Provident Association the strictly moderate drinkers die from 127 to 138 for 100 of the same number of total abstainers. Even moderate drinking of beer or wine shortens life. It must for it is taking poison. It is useless as medicine or in any way.

THE BONDED-SPIRITS INVESTIGATION.

Dr. Rush of Chicago, Secretary of the National Distillers and Liquor Dealers' Association testified before the Windom committee that his association had not raised or expended a dollar to influence the passage of the Bonded Spirits bill. Dr. Brown of Louisville, formerly attorney for the Association, said he knew nothing whatever of the subject of the inquiry. —Chronicle.

But we know that no Secretaty or agent of the whisky ring gives evidence in such a case that carries the first particle of value in it. Perjury and fraud are their principal working machinery. It is well known that this whole scheme of passing a new bonding bill was built upon an immense bonanza of bribery in the house of representatives and the only hope of passing it in the Senate was thru bribery which failed: was partially discovered, investigated a little and whitewashed, as the above clipping shows.

There was on March of this year, 84 million gallons of whisky in bond the duty on which is about 75 million dollars, and is about due now under the present law. The proposed act was to extend the time of bonding indefinitely by which they hoped, as is well known, to swindle the government out of most of the tax. The scheme was two months in the House incubating and passed almost unanimously. Senator Windom exposed the rascality of the bill in the Senate and it was killed.

Every congressman who voted for that corrupt and scandalous act ought to be labeled and branded as a traitor. The experts claim that there were $400.000 used in bribing the bill thru the House. In the Senate there were 20 interested in the attempt to assist the whisky steal and 34 who voted honestly

The high tariff apostles are now interested in reducing the tax on liquors and tobacco so as to have an excuse for heavily taxing imports of manufactured lawful merchandise.

It looks as if it would be a calamity to cheapen whisky and beer and tobacco, but that result is hardly to be feared, for the remitted duties of 110 millions a year would chiefly go into the pockets of the wholesale operators. And it is possible that were the revenue taxes altogether removed from the makers and sellers of these villainous nuisances, we should find fewer obstacles to stamping out the murderous business. It will probably be much easier to kill the liquor ghoul when the government national and local has been divorced from an apparently profitable partnership in it. Free rum committing murder and rapine on its own sole account will be easier handled than rum protected by the U. S.

"No more discrimination in rates, Mr. Stanford. No more dodging of taxes on railroad property, Mr. Crocker. Mo more monoply of the public domain, Mr. Huntington. The San Jose Convention has spoken on these points, and its decision will be upheld by the people. No sumptuary laws must be enacted in California, say the Democracy, and it is but a re-enunciation of good old Democratic doctrine. It will suit the majority of the people. The world is governed too much. Personal freedom must prevail to as great an extent as possible."—Examiner. That is very good sauce for geese, but the three deities who unseen presided over that Convention dont want any more discrimination in rates than they have; they dont care a rap about taxes if they are protected otherwise, and they could not get any more of the public domain anyway. The San Jose Convention spoke exactly as inspired by the angels of the deities aforesaid. The Examiner is possibly mistaken in the idea that the majority of the people are on the infamous level of free rum, free debauchery, no God, no Sunday, no virtue, that is proposed by the 280 members of the Convention and some of the speakers will discover perhaps that there are members of the Methodist Church South who will scratch an infidel, devil worshipping ticket. And that the respectable Democrats do not believe it a patriotic move to surrender this country to be ruled by the drunkenness and debauchery of a mob of drunkard making malefactors who have rotted their own country out and have come here to make this a nest of crime and pauperism. It is to be hoped no man who endorses a platform that cuts loose from Christianity and decency will ever get elected to any office. And it is possible the Republican party will do the same thing or dodge the issue entirely, which will be a little meaner and worse than the San Jose Convention has done. And they may as well understand that in time.

BACKSLIDER.—Some good Samaritan ordered and paid for a copy of this paper to be sent to "John Doe" and after getting it a month or two, John Doe sent a scornful message, refusing to have "no such paper in his house." On enquiry, John Doe is said to be a sore-headed backslider of the ——— Church, and has substituted whisky for church. That recals a memory that John Doe might profit by. In the village of B., a smart, intelligent mechanic was an active member of the Methodist Church; the first temperance society that was formed there he joined with alacrity, but he back-slid, and as the president, one of the most prominent church members, did the same, soon after the society died. It was revived and the backslider set out again with good promise, but slid the same way again. Then the Sons of Temperance were established and to them he was a fanatical enemy and mostly on scriptural grounds. Sometime after he had 40 or 50 days holiday in bed with a broken leg, and fearing that it was a judgment on his slides, he told this witness he was going to read the Bible all thru, and if he found more texts in favor of temperance than against it he would haul down his flag and join the Sons. He marked all the passages and tallied the chapter and verse on a big sheet of paper: the result was 67 arguments against and only two for temperance in the Bible. He got up and fot temperance and drank gin and had all the bad luck of gin-drinkers, and last thing heard of him he was what he had always been, a drunken, soreheaded backslider, full of whisky, and without a friend in all the earth. Somebody said there was nothing so mean and nasty as a backslider. "Why," said he. "A backslider would not stay on the whales stomach and he had to vomit up Jonah."

THE NEW YORK Tribune winds up an editorial about the Republican party defeat in Ohio thus: It is true that the issues which now present themselves are met with difficulty in the old parties, but the party that ignores them surely stands upon the verge of departing glory, if, indeed, it has any glory to lose. The prohibition of the liquor traffic is the demand of the people. Politicians and statesmen who fail to heed it are only treasuring up for themselves wrath against the day of wrath, political policies, enthusiastic campaigns, wealth and party power, to the contrary notwithstanding. The day has come when men cannot, will not give their suffrage to the party that licenses and protects the liquor crime.

THE NATIONAL conference of drunkard makers and crime-breeders and home-destroyers in recent session in Chicago declared they had no intention of forming an independent party!!! but they are going to work against the election of any one favorable to prohibition. How patriotic and magnanimous not to form a new party; they would not do it; they are too loyal to their friends; too patriotic; too honest and there is one more reason which they dont mention; they could not with a new party of theirs, elect one single candidate in the United States—not so much as a fourth assistant deputy to a deputy inspector of eggs that have failed to hatch.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

STATE PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

A State Convention in the interests of Prohibition and Reform will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, 232 Sutter St., San Francisco, on Tuesday, July 11th, at 10 o'clock, A. M The attendance of delegates from every part of the state is desired. To this end, every lodge of Good Templars, every branch organization of the Home Protection Association, every division of the Sons of Temperance, every Loyal League, every W. C. T. U., every Band of Hope, and, in fact, every temperance organization favoring prohibition will be entitled to one delegate each.

It is earnestly hoped that every temperance or political organization in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic will send its duly elected representative to the Convention, as very important matters for the interest of the cause will be discussed. Ministers of the Gospel, Protestant and Catholic, in good and regular standing are also invited.

By order of the Executive Committee of the
PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated Feby. 2, 1882, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of liquors, particularly the Sunday law and to procure the enactment of such other laws as are or may be necessary for the protection of our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of the liquor traffic.

It is desired to charter auxiliary associations in every town of California. Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may apply for a charter. The membership fee is $1.00 a year, and charter, with full set of books and register for 600 names costs $5. Of membership fee one half goes to the State association for the general work. Apply for information and all particulars to the State Secy.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R. Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

PARKER'S SALVATION POWDERS!

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

ALL CAN BE SAVED FROM THE TERRIBLE APPETITE FOR INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge ot the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills. at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

SUTTER AND YUBA DISTRICT LODGE

Convened in its 25th session,at North Butte, June 23d. Present, 33 delegates, and other full degree members making a total of about 75. Harvest time thinned the attendance. 10 of the 20 lodges of the district represented and 4 of the 11 Bands of Hope; the former have 941, and the latter 513 members. It was decided to collect the 10ct cap tax semi-annually. The matter of a temperance camp-meeting in the mountains this fall, in connection with Butte Co. D. L., referred to the Ex. Com. with power to act.

The following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, The cause which the I. O. G. T. represents is one of paramount importance, seeking as it does to secure the best efforts of the best people against the evils of intemperance, and calling upon all good citizens to rise in solid phalanx to oppose the curse of whisky and the "Whisky Ring;"and

WHEREAS, The Leag of Freedom and all opposers of the Sunday Law are joining hands to dethrone the right and maintain this giant wrong; therefore be it resolved by this Dist. L. here assembled, that as Good Templars we will ever continue to labor for the suppression of the liquor traffic and the evils growing out of it; that we stand unalterably opposed to all men, all parties and all associations, so far as their acts in any manner, or in any degree support the evils brot about by the use of intoxicating or malt liquors.

Resolved, That as an Order we stand ready to use our utmost endeavor to maintain the Sunday Law of this state and every other law of the land.

Resolved, That we will wherever possible organize Home Protection Associations as branches of the H. P. Association of Cal., and join efforts with all good citizens and societies to overthrow the Leag of Freedom.

Resolved, That we greatly deprecate the action of one of our great political parties now in State Convention assembled at San Jose, in placing itself in opposition to the advancing spirit of the age and for cringing and cowering before this hydra-headed monster, the liquor traffic, and begging for its votes and influence. that we glorify the delegates of the counties of Yuba and Sutter who manfully voted in a splendid minority against this outrage, and that we assure them that we and every good citizen of these two counties will hold their action in grateful remembrance.

Resolved, Taat we shall always accept it as a challenge for any political party to openly oppose the principles for which we are organized, and shall treat such action from our standpoint by voting against such parties and such measures.

A resolution of thanks in North Butte Lodge No. 452, for its hopitalities, was passed.

The next meeting of the District Lodge will be held in Marysville.

The meeting was an exceedingly pleasant one. The poople of North Butte did all they could to entertain their guests. Bros. Van Anda and Featherstun each addressed the audience upon the subject of Temperance and the objects of our Order. Attention was called to the fact that two saloons have recently been opened in the place. For a number of years past, the people of North Butte have in every way discouraged attempts to start a saloon in their midst. Neither house nor land could be had at any price for such a purpose. But at last by deception these two saloons have gained a foothold. The people are naturally indignant but will have to grin and bear the evil, the more certainly, if the lately promulgated Democratic doctrine prevails this Fall. The result in the short time these saloons have been at work is plainly to be seen. Property has decreased in value and the morals of the young men of North Butte are being corrupted. Just the day before the meeting one patron of these saloons stabbed and killed another in a drunken brawl.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

The pleasant face and genial voice of Brother Graves was all that was lacking at the meetings The Brother (who was a delegate to the R. W. G. L. at Charleston) is at present visiting relatives in the East and sent his regrets to us.

An appropriate resolution was passed expressing the feelings of the members and their appreciation of Brother Graves past services and zeal in the cause of Temperance.

A gain of 4 lodges 211 members and 5 Bands of Hope have been made in the past 11 months. CHAS. J. COVILLAUD, D. S.

CHAS. S. BROOKS, D. A. S.

WITHOUT any prejudice to any other District Lodge officers, the thoro business like manner in which the Sutter and Yuba affairs are conducted commands admiration and favorable comment. The program well planned and neatly and handsomely printed and the proceedings got up for distribution and circulated among the lodges. Bro. C. J. Covillaud seems to have served an apprenticeship to some business in which precision and efficiency and good taste were inculcated and after the manner of Achilles he was dipped in infancy in the river of temperance, heels included. Bro. C. should send samples of his circulars etc., to every D. S. in the State and we should soon have the system uniform.

PETITION

For Non-repeal of Temperance Laws, for Local Option, and for Prohibition Constitutional Amendment.

TO THE HONORABLE THE GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATURE OF CALIFORNIA:

We, the undersigned, citizens of the State of California, respectfully petition:

1st. For the non-repeal of the Sunday Law and the law forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors to minors and common drunkards.

2d. For the enactment of a law whereby the qualified voters of every voting precinct, town, city and county, by a majority vote, may determine whether the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited within their respective limits.

3d. For the submission to the people of an amendment to the Constitution forever prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in California.

[Here follow heading and spaces for signatures and addresses, and on the other side are:]

Note 1.—SOME REASONS WHY THE PRAYER OF THIS PETITION SHOULD BE GRANTED:—Temperance laws are a protection to life, liberty and the best interests of mankind. The Sunday REST is a decree of Nature and of Nature's God,and upon its observance the public health, the public morals, the public safety and the general welfare of the community largely depend. The repeal of the Sunday Law is sought for permission to sell intoxicating liquors to people who are free from labor on that day, and to convert the day of rest into a day of drunken revelry. The liquor traffic should be prohibited and destroyed,because it is a greater evil than war. pestilence and famine. It is the gigantic crime of crimes. It increases taxation, destroys capital and ruins labor; it fills hospitals, asylums and prisons, and produces a perennial harvest of tramps, criminals, suicides and murderers; it debases youth, wrecks manhood, enslaves women and degrades families; it corrupts ballots, injures the public service, and threatens the overthrow of our free institutions and the destruction of the Nation.

Note 2—LOS ANGELES. Cal., June 1. 1882.—In behalf of the Grand Lodge, I, O. G. T., of California, I have been directed to cause this petition to be circulated in all parts of the State, to request that as many signatures be obtained thereto as possible, and return to me immediately. Additional blank petitions will be furnished on application. The full and hearty co-operation of all friends of temperance is most earnestly desired and requested. Let some responsible person in every community fill out and sign the Certificate hereunto attached, to show that the signatures are genuine, and to insure good faith in the matter.—WILL D. GOULD, P. G. W. C. T.

Note 3.—CERTIFICATE.—I hereby certify that the.....names signed to this petition are genuine, and of the number.....are males over the age of 21 years.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC,

Located midway between San Jose and Santa Clara, Cal.,

AND ACCESSIBLE BY STREET CARS FROM BOTH CITIES.

There are five regular courses of study, viz: 1. The Classical Course—Four years. 2. The Latin Scientific Course—Three years. 3. The Scientific Course—Three years. 4. The Conservatory of Music Course—Four years. 5 Commercial Course—One year.

The CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is designed to furnish the best facilities for acquiring a complete and thorough musical education.

A PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT is connected with the School, for the benefit of such as are not qualified to enter the College classes.

The COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT affords ample facilities for acquiring a thorough business education. It is remote from the temptations of a great city, and the course can be pursued in connection with the other branches of the College. In this way the expense is trifling compared with that of institutions devoted exclusively to business training.

WEEKLY LECTURES will be delivered before the entire School, by gentlemen selected for their attainments in Letters, Laws, Medicine, Theology and the different Sciences.

The YOUNG LADIES' BOARDING HALL, under the supervision of the Preceptress and an experienced Matron, offers a safe and pleasant home for young ladies from abroad. The terms to young ladies, by the year, for board, and tuition in all regular classes, are $250, payable semi-annually in advance.

Young gentlemen can obtain board in good, private families at reasonable rates.

A judicious supervision is exercised over the deportment and morals of all the students.

To young gentlemen or ladies desiring to pursue an Academic or Collegiate course, under wholesome moral influences, and to parents who are compelled to send their sons or daughters from home for education, the University of the Pacific offers great inducements.

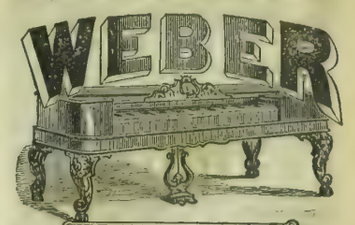
HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

Adoption.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

Admission of Children.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street. San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphans Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searles, Nevada City; A.G.Clark. Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Rob't Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.



Lady Managers of Orphans Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco; Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco; Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. M. A. Mayhew, Red Bluff; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. E. P. Stevens, San Francisco, G. W. V. A large amount of matter crowded out as usual.

Remember Mrs. Hart's Lodging House 706 California St. for temperance travelers.

Col. Babcock will lecture at Silver Star House Sunday evening 16th, Hon. Warren Oliver on the 23rd, and Mrs. Stevens on the 30th, and the meetings will be kept up regularly.

The report which has being going the rounds of the press lately that the Rescue has engaged the ex-cook of the late Baron Rothschild at a salary of $7000 a year is an unmitigated prevarication. It was Vanderbilt in New York that did it.

When you order goods from San Francisco cash grocery 519 Post St. say whether to be sent by freight or express. Make checks or P. O. orders payable to H. A. Smith. Full particulars about ordering and general price list sent on application.

Rev. C. D. Barrows preached Sunday last on "The Resurrection—Does the Body Rise? What is the Spiritual Body?" Ii is presumed he is much better authority on these simple, easy questions, than he is on the mysterious unknown of "Does Prohibition Prohibit."

The San Francisco Hebrew speaks of a class of people as being full of apathy and indifference. If so, they should not be allowed to go to sea without taking in ballast. The Escambia had about 450 tons of that kind of cargo in her bottom, and capsized.

The northwest passage is a failure. You can't get to the Pole, but you can do a good deal better thing than that: Take a passage to 19 New Montgomery street, and ivest $5 in that magnificent hammock-chair advertised on page 588, and you will not want to make any polar voyages for comfort.

Subscriptions and renewels this week:—Mrs. Stevens and Mrs Richardson, (San Francisco 33; Oakland 2; Russian River 1; Guerneville 10; Tomales 1; Sebastopol 3; Petaluma 1;) 51. Mrs. Doane (Geyserville 6; Healdsburg 13;) 19; New York 1; Ottawa Canada 6; Lake City Modoc Co. 1; Drytown 1; Campmeeting Mrs. Thompson 5. In all 84.

Cleanly.—How consoling and refreshing it is when you are settling at the counter for a lunch at a restaurant, to see the bakers man all tobacco bedraggled, smoking a chinese labor cigar over a tray of tarts and pies and cakes which he is delivering to the restaurant man, and perfuming with smoke and ashes to give them a delightful flavor.

When Gen. Stoneman learns from the Republican papers what a miserable forlorn critter he has been thru life, it is to be hoped he will repent and have a change of heart, and be thankful for the opportunity of learning so much about himself, which he never would have discovered if he had not been a candidate for Governor. A wine and brandy maker, with an anti-Sunday and an anti-temperance creed, and his acceptance of the wife-beater platform, is objection enough. No use in trying to make that any worse.

Mrs. Pinkham, etc.—Dont go your whole pile, or rather dont invest your whole bank acconnt on Mrs. Pinkhams picture yet; there is another curative portrait out which is altogether better looking medicine than the other. It is a Mrs. Van Buren somewhere, it dont matter where; all you have to do for corns, jimjams, dyspepsia, gout, frostbite, fleabite, ringworm, sunstroke, infidelity, bad dreams and inability to spell hieroglifically, is to look at her picture and send her a dollar and you are cured.

The Alliance Messenger, Hanford, Tulare county, is a neat four-page paper, to be issued weekly at $1 a year, under the auspices of the Tulare County Christian Alliance, Rev. R. R. Jones, Editor. This Alliance hopes to unite all denominations in an effort to lay plans for a more general advancement of the cause of Christ, to interest young men and women and children in religious work, etc., and to give hearty support to the cause of temperance thrnout the county. There are 350 members of the Alliance in the county, including 32 ministers of various churches. No. 1 of the Messenger has come to hand, and is a neat and most creditable specimen, and full of useful and readable matter. It should be in the hands of every family in the county. It is not going to be a tax on the people, but, if properly supported, will be one of the best and most effective agencies to lighten every ones taxes.

A Donkeys nest found.—A writer in an Austrian agricultural paper wants to find some way of increasing the alcoholic strength of wine "to make it better" without adding alcohol to it as they do in Europe. He has discovered that the alcohol in wine and beer is not analogous with alcohol in other drinks!!! altho he says he cannot prove it by experiment. And it is surprising that the Scientific American should give such unscientific trash currency in its colums and upon a matter of such entire uselessness as making the nasty swill called beer better or worse.

Mistakes.—Camp-meeting, holidays last week and the absence of the foreman printer at the same time rather mixed up the Rescue last number. The department of the G.W.S. was cut up into sandwiches and distributed around promiscuously. In nearly one-third of the edition the cut in the Democratic Platform was misplaced and put in the Shafer Babcock controversy; in that article too, "abolished by a free people" said "a few people" and "supplies all the needs" was made all the news." Perhaps the readers have discovered some more ornamental flights. No news of Camp-meeting last week, Monday and Tuesday being holidays in the printing offices.

Whisky papers say prohibition is a failure in Maine and Kansas. That is, it fails to promote the liquor traffic and to enrich the brewers, distillers and saloon-keepers. It is such a tremendous failure that the brewers' congress feels itself justified in pledging a million dollars to secure the repeal of the prohibition amendment to the Kansas Constitution. It is such an utter failure that the whole liquor interest of the United States is aroused to fight its battle on the Kansas soil in fear that this failure will become epidemic in the country. Just bear these facts in mind, reader, when some one tells you he opposes prohibition because it is a "failure."—Vancouver Register.

The Future.—Many friends whose good opinion is most highly valued, were pleased at the Camp-meeting to express themselves both publicly and privately, as warmly interested in the success of the Rescue, and declared their approval of its course and methods. They certainly did not overrate the desire on the part of the editor to make the paper first truthful, next useful and thirdly acceptable to its readers who desire the success of the cause of temperance and the highest good of humanity. Without doubt the kindness and truly Christian charity of friends have shielded its faults from the observation of those who love its mission and desire its success; but the effect of the commendations bestowed will be to stimulate an earnest endeavor to make the Rescue far more deserving, more useful and better in every way in the future.

The rebellion of the whisky men of this State is doing much to open the eyes of the people of this State. A man in high official standing said the other day that if the temperance speakers would call the attention of the people to the fact that the saloon men had evaded and violated the Slocumb Laws and that officials had helped the saloons to evade and avoid the law, that it would do more to open the eyes of the people of this State on the question of temperance than all the lecturing we can do. He says go into the country and tell the people that they have to help pay these enormous expenses, piled up as expenses for prosecuting the whisky thieves, and drunken rows. Give the people to understand that the people are nursing, feeding and clothing a set of vagabonds that should go to the penitentiary or go to work and the people will sweep the State as with a whirlwind.—Neb. Liberator.

"VOTE ALWAYS AS YOU PRAY."

BY REV. J. A. MCMILLAN.

One Sabbath day a preacher stood
The gospel to proclaim;
He spoke of man's great brotherhood,
Of love in Jesus' name;
How each his brother's keeper is,
That none may live for self;
He told how great their miseries,
Who live for sordid pelf.

He said, "the life to be desired
Is righteousness and truth;"
The character to be admired
In hoary age or youth.
He warned against the tempter's snare,
In dread of endless pain;
The young be cautioned, to beware
The wine-cup's fearful reign.

He spoke with no uncertain sound
Against prevailing sin,
Denouncing it wherever found,
Outside the church or in;
But specially did he decry,
In full unmeasured terms,
The wickedness in places high
That common vice confirms.

He spoke of our unrighteous laws
That license sin and shame;
Pronouncing them the fruitful cause
Of crime of every name.
"And they who make such laws," he said,
"The wrath of God must dare;
The blood of souls is on their head,
And they their guilt shall bear."

The sermon ended, low he knelt
Before the throne of grace;
And every humble spirit felt
That house a hallowed place;
For who that feels the weight of earth,
With all its sin and care,
But gladly hails the precious worth
Of faithful, fervent prayer?

He prayed that sin might be subdued,
And banished from our land;
And all that's right, and pure, and good,
On firm foundation stand:
He prayed the tempter's power to break,
And set the captive free;
That for the dear Redeemer's sake
Each soul might ransomed be.

He prayed that wickedness might cease,
And righteousness prevail;
And then, that plenteousness and peace
Might never, never fail:
He prayed for laws of equity
To rule the people well;
That men in high authority
In godliness should dwell.

How noble is the Christians life
Whose words and acts agree!
In every sphere of earthly strife
The right his choice shall be.
For Christians still, as other men,
Must such relations share
As neighbor, friend and citizen
And all their duties bear.

So when election day came round
The preacher voted too;
But on his ballot was not found
One rightsous man, nor true.
The men whose names his ballot bore
In vice and sin delight;
Men who only self adore,
Defying God and Right.

He measured not each candidate,
In search for righteous men;
He thought to "vote his party straight"
Was all his duty then.
His prayer and sermon are forgot,
Nor heeded his own word:
The godless, profligate, and sot,
For rulers are preferred.

But which shall bring an answer first,
The ballot or the prayer?
That with glaring vices curst!
This fraught with righteous care!
Which shall quickest bear its fruit,
The sermon or the vote?
That striking at sin's deepest root!
While this its powers promote!

Since "actions louder speak than words,"
What use to preach and pray
To banish vice and crime's discords,
And then to vote their stay?
As "God is God and right is right,"
There's but one guiltless way
For honest men to press the fight,
"VOTE ALWAYS AS YOU PRAY."

VENTURA.—D. L. was to meet 12th and 13th in Ventura and Sister Mary A. Guthrie and Bro. J. E. Kellogg were to lecture at their open meetings. But the notice only reached San Francisco after the last paper of last week had been mailed.

RIVERSIDE.

BY ELDER M. V. WRIGHT. NUMBER FIVE.

PRODUCTS ETC.

I fear that if any of your readers are thinking of coming to Southern California and are waiting to hear first all the writer has to say in respect to Riverside and other points of importance and interest that they will have a golden opportunity of putting into practice the scripture injunction "Let patience have her perfect work."

Circumstances beyond my control have caused a delay in my communications which I much regret. And now to-night after having ridden about forty miles in an open wagon in the hot sun during an unusually warm day (the thermometer being about 105) I seat myself at 10 o'clock to pen another letter for our friends in the East.

If my letter should be somewhat dull and prosy, dear readers please pardon me, for I find that my thoughts to-night like angels visits are few and far between. They are "wandering in by and forbidden paths" and like bad bills are hard "to collect." But "I am in for it" and "so here goes again." Well let me tell you something about our wonderful products. We have in the line of fruits the following named: Oranges, lemons, limes, English walnuts, almonds, raisin-grapes, figs, apricots, nectarines, pomgranates, besides all the fruits of the more temperate eastern, and colder northern states, do well here; except the cherry. That does not do well in the valleys of S. Cal.

Of all of our fruits

THE ORANGE

Takes the precedence. It is the great success attending the raising the orange that has done more to advertise Riverside than all else of her many achievements. This is accounted for from the fact that the orange belt of the U. S. is very limited. The entire area would not perhaps exceed one half the State of Rhode Island. I am told that comparatively a small portion of Florida is adapted to its culture and there are only localities here and there in S. California where it can be brought to perfection and made profitable.

The general reader at a distance is very apt to fall into the error of making what may be written about certain localities in Cal., equally applicable to the entire state. This is a very grave mistake and has been the means of doing Cal., great injustice.

No country in the world perhaps has a greater variety of climate, soil, products and people than has this State. To such an extent does this go that frequently what is written by way of describing one locality or even neighborhood has no more application to another place ten miles distant than a description of England would compare with that of Patagonia. To illustrate. In R. we raise oranges, lemons etc., but down in the bottom lands of the Santa Ana River from which we receive our water to raise said oranges not an orange, lemon or lime will grow. The only difference materially, in this, case being that the orange land is about 50 feet higher than the river. The water there is too near the surface, making what is here known as "damp land" and the frost is too severe for semi-tropic fruits which require a warm, dry soil, and general freedom from frost.

The following varieties of soil are found in this colony viz, sandy, loam, gravelly, clay, red clay, black adobe, alkali. The first three are adapted to the orange, the adobe somewhat to grains and grass, and the alkali—well, Darwin died before he discovered the connecting link between it and the other members of the family of soils. It bears about the same relation to the physical world that that moral monstrosity the rumseller does to the kingdom of Heaven. Like him it is "good-for-nothing" but to be cast out and trodden under foot.

AN ORANGE ORCHARD

Now doubtless all of my readers have often had an opportunity to test the rich flavor of this queen of all fruits and not one among them seriously objects to repeating the operation, but there are many among them who have never had the pleasure of beholding an orange grove. Well come with me and we will take a stroll through some of them. Just imagine yourselves here and I don't care how many of you join me on the present occasion, so come along fathers and mothers, young men and maidens, lads and lasses and all the bright-eyed, rosy-faced, prattling little household pets, come one come all for I can afford to be lavish in my invitations as you are all at a safe distance from my fruits which is a matter of no small importance to the average Riversider as long as his oranges are bringing him three or four hundred dollars per acre. You see at a glance that he can't afford to let you eat many at that rate for you would soon bankrupt him. Wait until they are so plentiful that they are rotting on the ground and you'll see how hospitable we are, for we will then most cordially invite you to help yourselves to all you wish (of those on the ground.)

No more beautiful picture ever met the eye of the lover of nature than an orange orchard when each tree is laden with its thousand golden spheres, bedecking every part of its bright dark green foliage and making it as beautiful as sweet-sixteen, as attractive as a new bonnet, as tempting as our mother's cookies in the cellar, and boys, it will make your mouths water more than those splendid water-melons in that patch just across your neighbors fence with a big bull-dog chained in the middle of it.

You will notice as we pass along through these miles of orchards a peculiarity of our climate, mainly that on the same tree may be seen fruit at times, in all of its various stages of growth from the blossom to the full ripe fruit. Ripe oranges may be seen here and there frequently clustered among a wreath of charming white blossoms, the rich perfume of which is indescribable and unexcelled. The trees are set from 18 to 25 feet apart each way, as a rule cultivated both ways and kept as clean from weeds and as nicely cultivated as a garden. The orange is one of the most beautiful and symmetrical trees in the world. The seedlings grow larger than the budded and at full bearing are from 12 to 15 feet in height; the foliage is very compact and has at that age a diameter perhaps equal to its height. It is a very thorny tree. Nature has been kind to it in furnishing it with this weapon of protection against that investigating genius, "the small boy" and he who attempts to pluck this fruit at the midnight hour "when good men sleep" finds that he has a "thorn in the flesh" and woe to the uninitiated little chap who has just arrived in Riverside and spying a nice large orange on the top of an orange tree and not dreaming of the hidden bayonets in the foliage makes up his mind almost with the rapidity of woman's intuition to go for that orange as he would for the forbidden cherries back home. Being afraid that mother or the owner may come out and attack him he illustrates the scripture declaration "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, that do with all thy might" and makes one only one bound into that tree like a cat after a sparrow. Now for the sequel. He from some cause changes his mind, there is a reaction and that is followed very suddenly by a tremendous rebound and he decends from that tree a disgusted, humiliated and much afflicted boy, and feels for a few days that this world is a sham, and oranges are an unmitigated humbug. Reader with your permission—I with this boy will rest until my next, we both need rest for he is sore and I am exhausted.

THE ANTIOCH "LEDGER."

Is an exception to the general rule of California in newspapers. It is run in the interest of the community and not in that of the drunkard makers and thief dens which have always spread a leprosy of vice and pauperism over that town of great opportunities and almost limitless possibilities.

A crowd of drunken ruffians recently made a boisterous procession thru town to a late hour of the evening, shouting, swearing, drinking at every saloon and calling people out of bed with false alarms and making the air heavy with blasphemy. The Ledger commented on the proceeding and seven rum den keepers, two of the town trustees and two other sweet rowdies treat the Ledger to an open letter in the Martinez News which some sober man compiled for them. Of course they accused the Ledger of entire falsehood as usual and of injuring the prospects of the town.

The Ledger publishes and refutes the letter of the rowdies and then shows thus, how the town is injured.

"Let us look back a few years: Some of our readers may remember that a letter appeared in the Ledger from a stranger, who had viewed the town with an idea of settling in it; but who stated that the saloon influence was so great that he could not think of settling here and raising a family. Some time after that date a gentleman of wealth, from Oakland, we believe, having heard of the advantages Antioch offered for a manufacturing industry, came here for the purpose of obtaining a location for some kind of a mill. Next day he went away and, it is reported, in conversation with a gentleman on the train, said that there was but one drawback to the place—there were too many saloons, and their influence was so great that he could not bring his family to such a place. Another instance: Last winter an Eastern gentleman of wealth spent several weeks in Antioch, visiting relatives. Before returning home he expressed the opinion that the town was beautifully situated, the land and water communications unsurpassed, the climate all that could be desired, the cheap fuel a great attraction for manufactures,

'and yet.' said he, 'nothing could induce me to bring my family up in such a place. The drinking and gambling influence is too great.' Now then, gentlemen, did the Ledger cause these men to express such opinions? No. They obtained them from personal inspection, and unless there is a positive change for the better, every man who visits Antioch with a like purpose will go away with a similar unfavorable opinion of the place.

Now, as to political matters, we must emphasize our former assertion: 'The time has come when the citizens of Antioch should awake from their apparent indifference to the power of the saloon in our home government. So long as this element is to control our elections and other affairs, so long is Antioch doomed to drag along in the mud and mire of comparative imbecility."

It is a wonder that it is necessary for any one to repeat that the saloons of Antioch have pauperized and ruined and cursed Antioch, driven away decent settlers and prevented good people from coming there and been a greater nuisance and fester sore of crime and vice than a brigade of Chinese lepers could have been had they been located there the past 15 years.

The Antioch Ledger is a patriotic honest paper $3 a year: and every good citizen of A. should rather patronize it at $10 a year than take a whisky slave journal at $1 a century.

CAL. W. C. T. UNION.

"THE WOMEN OF AMERICA vs. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC"

President, Mrs. D. P. Browne, Blake House, Oakland.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Mrs. G. S. Abbott, Oakland; Mrs. John McNear, Petaluma; Mrs. M. A. Nash, Santa Rosa; Mrs. W. B. Spencer, Grass Valley; Miss W. Bell, San Jose; Miss Sarah P. Morrison, San Jose; Mrs. J. B. Hill, Alameda.

Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Congdon, 314 Sutter St. S, F.

Assistant Secretary, Miss M. J. Havens, Blake House, Oakland.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Wickersham, Petaluma.

ORIGIN AND OBJECTS.

The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, with its twenty-four auxiliary State Unions, is the largest Society ever composed exclusively of women, and conducted entirely by them. So far as reported (the returns are very incomplete), there were at the close of last year, 1,654 local auxiliaries, with a membership of 34,317, and 494 juvenile organizations. It is the lineal descendant of the great Temperance crusade in 1873–74, and is a union of Christian women of all churches for the purpose of educating the young; forming a better public sentimeut; reforming the drinking classes; transforming, by the power of Divine grace, those who are enslaved by alcohol; and removing the dram-shop from our streets by law.

A NEW THING.

Miss Willard, and a group of ladies associated with her, are arranging an institution which does not look like losing sight of Evangelistic and Educational work, viz: a training school for those women who desire to do effective temperance work. It will be held at Lake Bluff, Aug. 10th to 22d. The most experienced and capable women will be Lecturers and Instructors. The topics are the fundamental practical questions related to woman's work.

Hon. John B. Finch is Chairman of the Committee on the Press at Lake Bluff Convocation next August. George W. Bain and Mary B. Willard of the Signal are his associates on the Committee. To look after the ample and graphic reports of the sayings and doings of this important occasion made by the Chicago and Milwaukee Press is good use of time and talent in vacation.

Mr. Gideon T. Stewart, Rev. D. C. Babcock, Mrs. M. McClellan Brown and Rev. A. A. Knappen will be among the new acquaintances at Lake Bluff Convocation next August. A hearty welcome awaits them.

CHURCH CENSUS.

General Booth of the Salvation Army gives the following opinion in the Christian Commonwealth:

"1. I maintain that the great reason why so few persons attend public worship, is that so few persons care about God.

2. And why do so few people care about God? Because so very few of those who profess to be His, manifest throughout the week real practical care about His kingdom. On Sunday they serve God to some extent. On week days they serve mammon precisely as non-worshippers do.

3. The great remedy for non-attendance on worship does not lie in any outward contrivances, but in the hearts of professors of religion. As soon as they begin to care more about God, the world will begin to take more notice of Him.

4. Wherever ministers and people are found who really care about God, it matters not what their names or forms may be, they soon influence the world so as to increase the number of worshippers. And just in proportion to their devotion is their success, with rare exceptions.

The shallow critics who then assemble and ascribe the gathered crowds, the emotion, the enthusiasm, etc., to some human influence, some external cause, are incapable of discerning the signs of the times. Those who profess the religion of Christ, ought at least to know that Jesus Christ lifted up always draws all men, and that when all men are not drawn it is simply because Jesus Christ is not sufficiently lifted up by those who have the solemn charge of lifting Him up or leaving Him low."

Some hundreds of people have given their opinions recently on the non attendance at church services. But just as the politicians, medical societies, boards of health, journalists, etc., do on similar occasions, they are nearly unanimous in entirely leaving out the principal and most prominent and most conspicuous obstacle in the way of church attendance. The national, State and municipal governments have chartered an opposition church in which all the influence that the government and the political and medical and fashionable associations of men can wield, is exerted to induce the rising generation to worship the devil and blaspheme God. Every election day the large majority of the voters (except in a few States and some parts of States) go to the polls and give their votes to support the public worship of the devil.

One single grogshop or a v. c. beer den, or one beer garden, open either on Sunday or Monday, is as much a public declaration that there is no God but Satan, that the church is a folly and a fraud, that virtue and honesty and decency and Christianity are outgrown superstitions—as an image of Satan 60 cubits high and 6 cubits broad would be if erected in a public square of the city at the public expense and inscribed "In this God alone we trust."

So when in every village and town and city and crossroads and in every corner and street and sometimes in 10 to 30 places huddled together on one street between two crossings, we find these temples of Satan backed by the strongest authority of law, national, State and local, endorsed and enforced by the political parties and the large majority of the voters and specially dedicated to the purpose of creating idleness, vice, blasphemy, falsehood, perjury, vice, theft, gambling, pauperism, insanity and murder—in short equipped with the most thoro machinery to carry on a successful war against all the ten commandments and the church and the gospel—a tremendous impression must be created in the minds of young people in favor of the immoralities so carefully and plenteously taut in the public schools of vice.

The thing to excite wonder and to set people to seeking an explanation, is that any following at all remains to the churches which our government and society have done nothing whatever to commend or countenance or assist, but have done everything possible except in open warfare to overturn and exterminate.

Perhaps some one will find this "too radical" again, if it is an exaggeration by a hairsbreadth it is too radical, if it is true it cannot be "too" anything. And if any one can show it at all untrue, he will confer a favor upon those who wonder much why so many people, who have eyes and ears, refuse with almost unanimous concurrence to confess or accept the unimpeachable evidence of their own senses.

When it is universally acknowledged that the open dramshop, the crime and theft and murder will causes nine-tenths of all the vice and sin and crime and poverty and misery and disease and deformity and untimely death in all our Christian civilizations, it is a truly wonderful instance of Satan's power to blind, that so many people who appear to be most interested in the church, fail to discover that this all-powerful agency of evil, this universal public worship of the devil can draw away any human soul from attendance at church.

MRS. PINKHAM has sat for a new picture and a grapevine border to it. Her neck frills have been newly laundried too, and her medicine now takes a better grip than it did under the old face.

GOD OR THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY; WHICH?

The creed of all the Evangelical churches is summed up in that of the Episcopal church—thus—"I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth, etc. Every member of our Evangelical Churches believes in the substance of that creed, and every member has taken the most solemn vows in entering into the communion of the church. We are supposed to vote for the prosperity of God's cause; for the eradication of all evil; for the purifying of the moral and social atmosphere; for the edification and instruction in religious matters of those outside the church;for the bringing of the world to a knowledge of the love of God, the power of salvation in Jesus Christ. The Holy Catholic Church is the true spiritual church found in all the different denominations; on all important points of belief it is united as in certain observances. The most vital observance of all is that of the Sabbath as a day d dicated to the service of God. We do not say every one must attend church; that every one shall worship God; neither do we expect the Legislature of Cal. to force Christianity upon the people of this State by the enactment of any law that "shall restrain a free and full exercise by any citizen of his own religious and political opinions. No such law exists; we could not desire such a one; it would be contrary to the principles of the Government, contrary to the Constitution. History proves conclusively that mankind needs one day in seven as a day of rest. Is it not the duty of every Christian to see that the day selected should be the one that we believe God commands us to observe? Is it not the duty of every voter whether christian or infidel to see that the merchant, lawyer, mechanic, artisan, clerk and other toilers for their daily bread have one day for rest of body and mind? We claim therefore that the Sunday law, so called, is a police regulation that is binding upon every citizen; doubly so upon the Christian who knows, does not guess at it, but knows that God commands us to keep the Sabbath day Holy.

The points I desire to make are these 1st. On our Statute Books we have the socalled Sunday law. 2nd. Every member of each and all evangelical churches is bound, if that member believes what he professes to believe, to pray, work and vote, to the end that the law shall be duly enforced and continued on the Statute Books as a law.

3rd. The Democratic Convention has proclaimed that it will oppose the enactment of all "sumptuary" laws and all laws intended to restrain or direct a free and full exercise by any citizen of his own religious and political opinions, and demand the repeal of those existing. "It is probably presumption for a woman, not a voter, consequently not supposed to be any more enlightened upon such momentous subjects as Democratic Platforms, "sumptuary laws," tariff, and all questions pertaining to the Government than her idiotic or insane friend; for a woman whose intelligence is rated below that of the herds of foreigners who come to our shores and the colored slaves liberated and given the ballot at once by our Government.—to suggest that the Democratic Convention made a mistake in its rather ambiguous (if taken literally) Sunday plank. As no laws now exist that "restrain or direct a free and full exercise by any citizen of his own religious or political opinions," it would be a fair question to ask what law there is to be repealed? In the discussion that followed in the Convention it was clearly stated the socalled Sunday law was meant, and it gratified thousands of staunch Christian Democrats to read the report of the noble speech made by D. J. Outram of Alameda in opposition to such an outrage being inflicted upon the Christian Democracy of Cal. as the adoption of the "plank" under discussion. Others who did not propose to favor the law on the ground of christianity did so from policy. They begin to read the hand writing on the wall, and they knew if the Democratic party adopted such a "plank" that as they expressed it the party were throwing a "fire brand" into the campaign; one that may possibly ignite the party to such an extent that it will burn to ashes next November. The question is asked. Which is best, "Monopoly whisky Republican rule, or Anti-Monopoly whisky Democratic?" The answer will ere long thunder forth from the people of Cal. Neither. The whisky men may laugh and snap their fingers in our faces and pack our conventions;put in "planks" that are understood to effect the repeal of a law that is a much needed police regulation, and affects no one except the whisky seller who desires unlimited freedom to ruin financially the hard working man who will spend his weeks earnings at his bar. He may defy God and laws; but the intelligent voters of Cal.will rise with its third party; a party that will have inscribed on its banners "Prohibition" and teach the "Monopoly, whisky Republican" and "Anti-Monopoly, whisky Democratic parties" that they do not own all the voters of this State. When one party gets whipped because of the five or ten thousand votes that it might have had, had it favored laws of sobriety and decency, it will begin to respect the law abiding and christian element of this State. Until Christians can make up their minds to help organize, support and vote for a third party, they must not complain if Sunday laws or Monday laws are not enforced. They must submit to the desecration of the Sabbath, the desecration of their homes, the ruin of their boys and girls, the increase of pauperism and crime and the train of evil following in the wake of license and liberty (?) granted to the people of California by the "planks" of the Leag of Freedom (?) inserted in the platforms of the two political parties, now existing. Can any Christian constitutionally vote with a party whose leaders support "in detail and as a whole, a platform that is avowedly in favor of the rumseller who only works moral and physical devastation in the State? I appeal to the Christian ministers, the Christian men who read the RESCUE to gird on the whole armor of God and vote as they will wish they had when they stand before the great Judge. I appeal to the Christian women in the name of their God, their home and all they hold sacred to use their prayers, their power, their influence against the Leag of Freedom (?) that is now entrenched in both of the political parties of their State. The same God is over all that led the children of Israel from their bondage. He will yet lead us out from this greater bondage, and His cause shall become triumphant.

ANOTHER CAMP-MEETING.—Bro. Moses Bull, D. D. G. W. C. T. for Plumas County announces that Plumas D. L. will hold its next meeting at Big Meadows on the 23d of August, at which time and place it is desired to hold a "Temperance Encampment." Everybody is invited to attend, and especially the valley people who would do well to take this opportunity for a vacation from the heated term and go up to Big Meadows to breathe the pure mountain air, drink of the crystal springs that there abound, and on the green grass and under the lofty trees that have been reaching heavenward through generations of men, take a new hold of life and return to their homes invigorated in mind, body and principle, for the conflict which is now truly classed as irrepressible. Tehama, Yuba, Sutter, Butte and Lassen counties should all send delegations and doubtless will. Ho for the Temperance Encampment at Big Meadows!

THE TEMPERANCE CAMP-MEETING.—California has many things peculiar to itself, which it does not share with any other state, territory or country. Her plants, her quadrupeds, her birds and her fishes vary and differ greatly from those of other countries, and it has much of the mammoth order. But the most wonderful and perhaps the least remarked of all its wonders is its botany containing many of the largest and most beautiful coniferous trees in the world, growing to an altitude of 350 feet and with a thickness of twelve, fourteen feet and still larger in the trunk. The leading varieties of these glories of the vegetable kingdom are the mammoth tree (Sequoia gigantea) and the redwood tree (Sequoia sempervivens). The latter, though occupying the second position in size, ranks first in market value. It grows in a belt extending all the way from Monterey to Crescent City, all along the coast and within thirty miles of the ocean. The tree grows in dense forests, is beautiful in its symetrical proportion, every tree being perfectly straight, beautifully tapering, branching about thirty feet above the ground, the foliage being of a dark green shade, the bark corrugated and the wood of a dark red hue. Some of these trees would furnish twenty saw logs—and perhaps more—each ten feet long. And after the tree is cut down the roots and stump with remarkable vitality throw out a number of shoots, one or two of which choking out the weaker ones soon run up into other trees, so that a redwood forest may be said to be almost inexterminable. In such a forest, one of the finest on the coast, indeed one which seems to have been expressly prepared therefor, was held the Temperance Camp-Meeting, under the auspices of Enterprise Lodge, No. 356, I. O. G. T., from June 29th to July 6th. The grove is situated within one mile of Guerneville, Sonoma Co., accessible, within five hours ride, by steamer and rail to San Francisco, and it seems almost a pity that it could not be secured and preserved to the people of the state as a park, camp-meeting ground or for other public purposes. As it is, ever and anon is heard the thud of a descending monarch, which has grown hoary with age, its birth and infancy dating away back to the commencement of the Christian era, now falling the victim of the saw and axe of the woodsman, to satiate the greed of puny man. To the lover of the beautiful in nature such sights and sounds produce anything but pleasant reflections. The location named combines also a great variety of scenery roundabout easily accessible and including mountain, water and forest effects. In the midst of the forest is found a natural auditorium, the density of the trees encircling it and the arch of foliage overhead conspiring to make its acoustic properties almost perfect, so much so that the human voice could easily be heard in an address delivered in an ordinary tone a hundred feet away and without at all tiring or taxing the voice of the speaker as is ordinarily the case with speaking in the open air. Here a platform had been erected and tastefully draped, and seats provided for about 700 auditors. Upon the platform was placed an organ at which Sister Mrs. N. E. Manning presided with great efficiency and acceptability. Many of the prominent workers in the temperance cause were present throughout the meeting, sessions of which were held daily at 10 A. M., 2 P. M. and 8 P. M., when stirring temperance and prohibition addresses and lectures were delivered, interspersed with soul-inspiring music and songs. Among the more prominent workers who were present and frequently addressed the meetings were G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson; G. W. V. T., Mrs. E. P. Stevens; G. S. J. W., Mrs. M. E. Richardson; Grand Lecturers Col. C. N. Goulding, Jas. W. Webb and F. J. Culver, also Dr. R. H. McDonald, Col. Geo. Babcock, Capt. A. D. Wood, Frank Storer, Sec'y of the S. F. D.L.; R. S. Wade, Sec'y of the Home Protection Association, and others whose names are not so readily recalled. Many other prominent members of the I. O. G. T., were also noted present; among others three P. G. W. V. T's., viz: Mesdames C. B. Thompson, M. A. Alsip, M. J. Mayhew and C. E. Fowler. Ample accommodations were provided for all, tents and cabins being furnished at a reasonable rate to all who chose to remain throughout the week of which privilege many availed themselves. Meals were served by Mr. Hicks and family of Green Valley. Refreshment, fruit and literary booths were managed by Bro. John Robinson. In fact everything was provided for the rational enjoyment of all who attended. Those who were so fortunate as to be present and participate in the weeks festivities are to be congratulated while the less fortunate who were unable or did not attend are to be heartily commiserated. The fourth of July was celebrated in true orthodox style, by a reading of the declaration of independence. The recitation, a poem and an oration delivered by Col. C. N. Goulding all interspersed with patriotic music led by Sister M. S. Richardson, and concluding with a short but effective appeal by Sister E. P. Stevens in behalf of the Good Templars Home for Orphans, which netted $61.50 in behalf of the fund. The evening was enlivened by the discharge of rockets, bombs, and a general display of fire works. The week of service, song and good work rolled around very pleasantly, so much so that many were loth to part when the time for breaking up of camp arrived. The want of space forbids any extended criticism or elaborate descriptions. Suffice it to say that the occasion above outlined was one productive of much good and which it would be eminently proper to secure an annual renewal of, if not under local auspices then under the patronage of the Grand Lodge. Look out for the next and each succeeding camp-meeting and hold yourself in readiness to attend.

ENCOURAGEMENTS.

We have never had more to encourage us to due dilligence than at the present time. Each year finds our work in advance of the last; each turn of the earth takes us nearer to a final success. The liquor interests realize this fact. Not long since a liquor dealer said to me, "You will conquer in the end. Everything indicates a gain on your part. The moral forces of the Nation are becoming unified against our business, and, in the end, it must fall. It may not affect me, for I am in declining years, but the time will come when our traffic will be crippled through the influence of your temperance workers." He could see the signs of the times and honestly spoke the mind of a large number in the trade who know but do not like to acknowledge their convictions. As an order, we are furnishing the material for political influence, and as our numbers increase, our influence will grow and affect our laws as well as our social customs.

Even now we hold the balance of power in California. I mean by "we," those who believe that the sale of intoxicants as a beverage is only an injury to our State, unbalanced by any good. Both the political parties have dodged the question about as long as they can. In our weakness they ignored us with impunity, but now they must listen to live. One party has put itself squarely against us, and declared for free whisky and no Sunday. This is well for our cause. They would not have done this if they had not felt our power; yet, we find this party, with a majority of its convention, outside of its largest commercial city, against the policy adopted. The liquor shops of that city held the balance of power in the party at home and in the convention, and controlled. We shall soon see who owns the party. If they, too, are in possession of Liquordom, we have no use for either, for we, as the friends of temperance and religion, do not train under that captain. Let us be led by principle, not party without principles. One party has declared itself Teutonic-American, and if the other does the same, we must build up an Anglo-American party, that American ideas may rule America.

Three-fourths of our liquor interest is owned by the foreign born, and it is fast settling down to the questions, "Who shall rule our country? What policy shall we adopt for the future? Shall riot run unrestrained, and religion and sobriety be trampled underfoot?" These are questions our political leaders are to encounter, and they may as well meet them now as bye and bye. No party that has the combined moral and religious forces of the State against it, can hope to long survive. The plank on which the one party has attempted to float, is not large enough for both parties. If both clamber thereon, let us hope that both will perish.

Iowa tells us of the future. In no State or nation is our cause losing ground. It is, in all quarters, gaining. We are in the right, and our enemies know it as well as we do. Those in the right can afford to labor and wait. In God's own good time victory will perch upon our banners, and our whole country be free from the greatest curse known to our age. With 20,000 members and 10,000 in our Bands of Hope, we go to meet the future with full confidence that our efforts will be blessed.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb and Hugh R. Hughes.

C. N. GOULDING.

My last letter was mailed from Bridgeville, Humboldt County, on the 23rd. At the close of my lecture, the audience were invited to partake of a supper that had been prepared by the ladies, and a pleasant hour was passed in forming the acquaintance of the members of our order. At a late hour the crowd wended their way home impressed with the idea that Temperance pays a large percentage on the investment.

Up early on the 24th and drove to Blocksburg 23 miles, arrived there at 2 P. M. It had been arranged that I should lecture there that evening, but as my next appointment was Garberville on the 25th, 3 and 8 P. M., and the team I had was remarkably slow, the grades and mountains unusually high, I deemed it best to go on and at 7 P. M. reached Alder Point, remained over night and left at 4 A M for Garberville, reached there at 2 P. M. and lectured in the afternoon and evening to large audiences. The Lodge was organized about a year since by Bro. Culver; numbers 52, is in good condition financially, and has brought about a remarkable change during its short existence. Brothers Garber, McMillen, Osborn and others hold the fort, and grow more enthusiastic as the days pass by. Am under many obligations to Brother Garber for a valued present. "May his shadow never grow less." This concluded my lectures in Humboldt County and I wish here to acknowledge and thank all who so earnestly labored to and for the success of our cause. The meetings were in every instance largely attended, where all done so well it would appear invidious to mention any particular one, but justice demands that I should mention the kindness of Reverend Bro. Woodward of Ferndale. The cause is gaining ground every day in Humboldt County; the Clergymen are a unit on this great question and vie with each other in their endeavors to advance the cause. Had it not been for orders received from head quarters I should have remained one or two weeks longer in the County. It would have been policy to have done so.

Left Garberville at 4 A. M. Monday 26th, intending to reach Spruce Grove (15 miles) in time to take the stage for Little Lake, but missed the stage and journeyed on. Reached Belts Springs at 7 P. M. and enjoyed sitting before a blazing fire in an old fashioned fire place, (think of that when looking for your linen duster.) Had I time would say a word regarding the view from the Summit of "Chemise Mountain." I have in my time climbed the Alps in Switzerland, and concluded that they were unsurpassed, but I think the view from the Summit of "Chemise Mountain" excels the view from the Alps. To the right the sun flashes on the waters of the Pacific. In the distance "Trinity Mountain" rears its tall head as far as the eye can reach. Mountains, canyons, rivers, appear, and standing there 4,100 feet above the sea, the cool, bracing atmosphere, the pure air, all combine to impress this scene indelibly on the mind. So much for romance, it was seven miles up the mountain, slow, tedious, and exasperating, but the ride down the mountain on the morning of the 27th had quite enough excitement to make it interesting. I watched the "brake" closely and had it broke I should have "lit out" for the upper side of the road. In riding down these mountains one is reminded of the old lady who said that she put her trust in Providence until the breeching broke, and then she gave up all. Providence happened to be the name of the horse she was driving, but all is well that ends well. 5 P. M. arrived in Cahto, (here I left the team and A. A. Birds of Mendocino who had for five days piloted me over the grades and hit every rock in the road,) 6 P. M. was on the front seat of the stage bound for Little Lake 22 miles around, then at midnight found that a large audience had assembled to hear me lecture, but I was five hours behind. It could not be avoided and I trust the brothers and friends of Little Lake will not censure me too severely. Continuing on my way arrived in Ukiah at daylight on the 28th, lectured or talked to an audience of 25 and made arrangements to return if agreeable to the "powers that be." On the 29th came to Healdsburg, lectured there 29th and 30th to large audiences and came here, Guerneville, to-day; what for I have not been informed. We shall probably be notified.

My labors in June can be stated in few words. Traveled 584 miles, on foot, horseback, by steamboat, stage, etc. (only 18 miles by rail,) delivered 31 lectures, addressed about 7,000 people, organized two new lodges, collected nearly $250.00, (in the mountain counties of Humboldt and Mendocino,) Others might have done better, I am quite willing they should try. I believe this months work (hard work) will be beneficial to the order. If so, all will have been accomplished that could be desired. Am now for the "Picnic."

Guerneville, July 18, 1882.

WM. CROWHURST.

Our work in Alameda Co. was seconded on every possible occasion by Bro. Naismith of Oakland, who was compelled to take the duties of D. D. as the Deputy for the Co., gave me no assistance, attended not one of my meetings, and did not even acknowledge my list of appointments. A live District Deputy can be a host, and perform grand work for the cause.

Livermore consulted us concerning the nomination of temperance ticket; we recommended it, and endorsed the idea. Result: elected two trustees, marshal and assessor, besides showing the people "It can be done."

The pastor of the church there, Rev. Bro. Phelps, puts his whole soul into the matter and is not afraid that a temperance meeting in his church on Sunday night is at all a detriment to the cause of Christ, but is rather a gathering and spurring of the hosts of right onward in their grand warfare against the devil and all his forts and forces. When this feeling is unanimous on the part of our noble ministry, Cal. can no longer suffer from the curse of intemperance or remain a stronghold of liquordom. Nor can it be interfered with in enforcing law and order by any such band of outlaws as the "League of Freedom."

District Lodge public meeting at Haywards was ably presided over and conducted by Bro. Joel Russell, and resulted in good to that community. Winding up our work in that Co. we prepared for Nevada, from which we had been delayed entering by reason of the universally deep snows of the winter and spring.

At Grass Valley, met by Bro. Elam Biggs, conducted to the Lodge room, seated by the side of the W. C. T., having been introduced to everyone present, and made to "feel at home" we commenced the Nevada campaign by an address under Good of the Order on the design of our work in the Co., and the exemplification of the unwritten work of the Order. Bro. the Rev. Geo. Newton of Oakland was there with the tent of the Cal. Central Holiness Association doing a grand work. In the afternoon, members of various churches and creeds were seeking and finding holiness, then in children's meeting the littles ones were dedicating themselves to God's work; at 7 P. M. preaching on the streets was arresting the attention of men who could not be reached otherwise, and at night the masses gathered, interested in the work going on, and "leaving the world" for God. In consideration of all this, and wishing not to have even a seeming conflict, our meetings here were postponed until July 1st and 2nd. Before leaving, however, we had a very pleasant parlor meeting in the home of Bro. Ridge Attorney at law, to thoroughly master the unwritten work. Several learned it and were very much pleased with its beauty and completeness when properly understood.

In Mountain Guard Lodge the work was also exemplified and afterwards committed thoroughly to memory by the W. C. T., Bro. J. T. McConnell. In Smartsville, the home of this Lodge, we had two very good meetings in the Union Church, Bro. Rev. C. H. Darling giving up his Sunday night sermon—I did not say service, because the service goes on just the same; whenever a lecture is given on Sunday night, reference is had and deference is shown to the place and the time. The lecture merely takes the time of the sermon, but is not of a character calculated to lower the dignity of the occasion by any means. Much good resulted.

Up at 2:10 A. M. Monday morning, and off by wagon, cars and stage to Little York, arriving at 11:20 A. M., and afterward cheerfully greeted by Bro. and Sis. Frost of Dutch Flat. The place has almost ceased to exist, hence our meeting was exceedingly small though earnest.

Next day at You Bet, found that our friend to whom letter, appointments and posters had been sent had removed; hence on spur of moment had to make all arrangements. On short notice had a small but good and earnest audience, was received very kindly, treated with great courtesy, and warmly welcomed for the work of next evening.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

NORTHERN D L meets in I O G T Hall, Arcata, Humboldt Co., July 29.

OPEN LODGES.

Open Lodges are becoming quite a feature in the Temperance Reform in Amador Co., and it is a pleasure to witness the good results from, and the interest taken in these meetings. Some of the Lodges hold regular open meetings every month, others once a quarter; until every lodge in the county have adopted this method of meeting the people and pressing the claims of our grand cause and noble Order. May I ask is it not high time that something be done to awaken the masses and set the people to think, reflect and act as an intelligent, civilized and progressive age should. Is it not astonishing to see the awful indifference of the very ones that ought to be engaged heart and soul, mind and strength, in this Temperance Reform. Look at the condition of the otherwise beautiful town of Plymouth to-day, 14 saloons running in full blast every day in the week (Sundays not excepted) supported maintained and upheld by that respectable gentleman called moderate drinker, backed up by the law of the land and sustained by the custom and habits of the people. Is it not time I repeat that our Lodges throw open their doors, that the world may know the object and purpose of our organization and the claims of our cause may be presented in its proper light, and such an influence brot to bear on the public mind that will persuade them to see the error of past custom and habit, and take their stand on the side of God and humanity and work for the redemption of our country and state from the power of strong drink.

C. L.

A GOOD WAY TO CELEBRATE THE FOURTH.

We learn that Rev. J. C. Simmons of this city delivered his temperance address "Law and Liquor" in Ukiah the Fourth of July to a large audience and so impressed were they with its overwhelming facts that a spontaneous contribution was made to purchase between three and four hundred copies for gratuitous distribution.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

WHAT TIME IS IT?

What time is it?
Time to do well—
Time to live better—
Give up that grudge—
Answer that letter—
Speak that kind word to sweeten a sorrow;
Do that good deed you would leave till to-morrow.
Time to try hard
In that new situation;
Time to build up on
A solid foundation.
Giving up needlessly, changing and drifting;
Leaving the quicksands that ever are shifting.

What time is it?
Time to be thrifty;
Farmers take warning—
Plow in the Springtime—
Sow in the morning—
Spring rain is coming, zephyrs are blowing;
Heaven will attend to the quickening and growing.
Time to count cost—
Lessen expenses—
Time to look well
To the gates and the fences;
Making and mending as good workers should;
Shutting out evil and keeping the good.

What time is it?
Time to be earnest,
Laying up treasure;
Time to be thoughtful,
Choosing true pleasure;
Loving stern justice—of truth being fond:
Making your word as good as your bond.
Time to be happy,
Doing your best—
Time to be trustful,
Leaving the rest.
Knowing in whatever country or clime,
Ne'er can we call back one minute of time.

THE DUTCH.

A singular law in Holland, passed November 1, 1881, went into effect on May 1st of the present year. It forbids the retail sale of spiritous liquors of any kind to any person holding any public appointment, or to any other person not holding a license under the provision of the statute. During the first four months of the present year, before the law went into operation, the revenue from spirituous liquors showed a decrease of one per cent., though during the preceding ten years, it had showed an average increase of three per cent. per annum. This anticipatory effect of the law is considered surprising.

The Hollanders (the only people properly called Dutch), have always been noted for commendable qualities; they have been a remarkably cleanly people, very industrious, capable, enterprising. They seem to have produced a smaller proportion of thieves and swindlers than any other nation. They have been lovers of true liberty and liberality, and their mercantile honor has stood among the very highest.

But, unfortunately, they have drank much gin and wine for over two centuries, and gin transforms a good Dutchman into about as mean a specimen of humanity as can be made of a good German, Irishman or American. This terrible scourge has terribly demoralized vast numbers of the naturally honest, manly, active Dutch, and has spread its leprosy of ruin over its towns and cities.

But the example of prohibitory States in America is extending to Europe, and when it emancipates Holland from the national slavery of gin and restores the ruined temples of Christianity, the Nation which has wrested its territory from the sea, will assume one of the highest places among the nations of the world.

TOO RADICAL.

When the temperance reform was started, and a very few people began to say that drunkenness was wicked, and that it was a sin for Christians and citizens to drink whisky and brandy and gin at all, whisky coaxed some very good people to sing,

"Oh, that is too radical."

When they settled the point that drunkenness was a sin, they began to find out that drinking wine and beer made people just as drunk as whisky did; and when they besot people to abstain from all intoxicating drinks, the old refrain was revived—"Oh, that is too radical."

When it was suggested that it was a sin to sell liquor by retail and make people drunk, so that they murdered their wives and became outcasts, whisky hired a good strong band of music to play, "Oh, that is too radical."

When somebody discovered that the fine, fat, rich, broadcloth brewer and distiller and wholesale liquor dealer were somewhat implicated in this monstrous sin, many pious people shouted, "Oh, that is too radical."

When societies were formed to prohibit, by law, this liquor business that was breaking and defying the ten commandments, and every other law, good people joined in a tumultuous chorus, "Oh, that is too shockingly radical," to try and break up such an old custom.

When juvenile societies were formed to pledge young people and prevent them, if possible, from becoming tramps and castaways, the old chant went up—"Oh, that is too ridiculously radical."

And so, thru every step of our advance, the old song of "too radical" has greeted us morning, noon and night. A friend of mine was for years troubled with a family of little animals that have, in our language, an ugly name and a pungent odor. They located under his barn, and every attempt to raise chickens was a failure; for the eggs or chickens, and the old hen, too, used to disappear all in one night. My friend shot one, or two, or three, whenever he got a chance, and, at last, demolished a nest of nine—mostly young ones—which he dug out under his barn.

The neighbors talked about that feat and it got in the newspapers, but not one of them said, "Oh, that is too radical;" but every time that friend tried to stop traitors and ruffians from selling rum to his neighbors and destroying, not their chickens, but their sons and dauters and themselves and his family, the devil tempted the people to send up a tremendous chorus, "Oh, that Mr. Trueman is too radical."

And when the RESCUE tells the solemn truth about this most horrible crime of setting traps for the lives and souls of the children, when it counsels no harm or wrong to any one, but asks that men may be constrained to quit their murderous trade and go into an honest and happier one, it is a pity that any respectable people should belittle themselves by joining in the devil's pet chorus, "The truth is too radical."

TOBACCO AGAIN.

Why does the RESCUE have so much to say about tobacco? Because people have not left off using it and selling it to boys and teaching them to use it. If every body will next week throw away for ever their wretched and nasty tobacco, the Genl. Superintendent wont be able to say tobacco once again in this paper. But if they will not they must expect to get bombarded right along.

It is a sad thing to know that so many men of good impulses, generous, kindly, social, obliging and estimable in all other respects are constantly befouled with this odious habit; their whole system drenched with a vile poisonous juice and their intellects constantly under a cloud of intoxication as genuine as that of alcohol tho of a different type.

Many men suffer intensely from the use of tobacco and are constantly miserable from its effects, the only remedy being to narcotize and paralyze their systems with more poison or make a powerful effort and break off the habit. Some of these have experienced so much pain in the night and morning from the poison used the preceding day that they would have cheerfully given $1000 if they could have purchased an entire riddance of the appetite for tobacco: but they could not stop and continued the helpless slaves of a filthy poisonous disgusting weed; the nastiest and most hateful of all things to a clean and innocent taste.

Our boys should know that this horrible and disgusting deformity injures and kills strong men who never used tobacco till they were men; and its effects are vastly more ruinous when they commence to use it as boys and children. Boys who use cigarets and get into the habit are not a whit better off in many respects than if they were drunkards. They are going to suffer as much in health, going to be as dirty, as idle, as stupid. as lazy, as unsuccessful and as disreputable, altho tobacco will not make them beat and kick their mothers and sisters as beer does.

And the tobacco idiot is very apt to become a slave of beer, as one bad habit so leads to another and tobacco and beer slavery are only two forms of drunkenness.

The boy that gets the highest place in his class at school, that gets to be foreman in the shop or factory or chief in the mercantile office, or president or cashier in the bank, and better than that who is going to have the respect and esteem and good will of all good people is going to be the one who is above the meanness and folly of using tobacco.

PORTUGAL.

You have been told before in this paper that every thing claimed for wine has been proved to be false, except what the Bible says of it, that "it is a macker and deceives all who use it; that it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Newspapers and very siliy people tell other silly people that wine-making is going to make California rich. That is just equal to saying that drunkenness makes a drunkard rich and his family rich, which you all know cannot be; no one has ever heard of such a thing.

It was thot for a long time that Port wine was an excellent thing for sick people, for weak people, for old people and for people that had been sick or were going to be sick or were getting well or desired to continue well. It was said by all the doctors once to be nourishing and strengthening and almost every body who went to get a doctor to visit the sick, got a bottle of port wine the same time for the sick person.

But it is now found that in every case port wine and all other wine had been telling lies as usual; it was bad for sick people, old people, young people, well people. It weakens and does not nourish but it creates disease and is a nasty and foul poisonous product of rottenness. It makes both sick and well people who drink it, partially or wholly drunk and they always feel better when partially drunk, because their nerves are paralyzed partially and they dont feel pain so much. The wine lies to them.

Because nobody, until lately, knew what wine really was, the doctors were deceived about wine like all other people, wise and unwise. And because wine was so good, many people always wanted it, and it brot a high price, and was always in great demand all over the Christian world. Everybody who had wine could sell it at a good price.

Portugal has always been a great producer of wine, and port wine is so called, because the only place where it is made from grapes is in one district of Portugal, called Porto. But a great many years ago this favorite wholesome wine for sick people was made by swindlers just as well from sugar cane, from rum and water, potato whisky, gin and a few drugs and coloring matters. It became a monstrous lie everywhere. They made, perhaps, fifty times as much in England as grew in Porto, or Oporto, which means "the harbor." And they made it in America as plentifully.

Everybody thot this port wine, because it was very red (with logwood), must be the purest kind of wine, and it was generally used at cammunion. But it has always been the meanest and vilest of all cheats. Our late good Brother Walker, P. G. W. C. T., of California, could make it in a few minutes, and it was pronounced by judges better than what was for sale in the stores.

But all the wine Portugal could make has found a good market and a ready sale, and so Portugal must have become rich, you would suppose. It is a splendid country, and has a fine climate; has a population of four millions and a debt of four hundred million dollars always growing larger. It exports twenty-two million dollars' worth of wine, fruit, oil and cork, mostly to Great Britain. Of this, about fifteen millions is in wine. Its people are more debilitated than the Spaniards, and more ignorant and poor, and quite as much demoralized, altho 300 years ago they were a hardy, enterprising race, and held a very high position among the powers and commercial nations of Europe.

But they have been degenerating just as their wine trade increased; have been harrassed with wars and internal dissensions and debilitated with vices, till they are too poor to get very drunken in their own country, and they now get along very peaceably. Twenty cents a day, half payable in wine, is fair laborer's wages there, and you can readily see they have to keep pretty sober to live on that. And when they come to this country, as most people are aware, they are excessive drinkers of the most fiery whisky which they can find.

It is a singular but well-known fact, that there can be no pure wine made of any kind from grapes, which a San Francisco liquor dealer cannot exactly imitate in his own "down cellar," with some potato whisky or rum or alcohol and some water and a few drugs—and they can make it for about 15 cents a gallon, too—and just the same as the pure or grape wine, which is only alcohol (made from rotten sugar) mixed with water and flavored and colored with the same substances as are found in the skins and rotten offal of the grape.

And the poor, silly people who drink the wretched, lying stuff, learn to like the false better than the grape wine, because it bites and stings harder, and tells bigger lies.

FROM KANSAS.

The following villainous letter was picked up in Strong City, Kansas, recently. It is from a brewer in Lawrence, Kansas, who was commissioned by the National Association of Brewers to expend their corruption fund of $5,000 to defeat prohibition in Kansas by bribing witnesses and jurors to perjure themselves. Our Juveniles should be made acquainted with the tactics used by these leags of scoundrelism to entrap men and boys and make them drunkards and paupers and slaves of the beer poisoners. Here is the infamous letter:

Office of the Lawrence Chemical Works,
JOHN WALRUFF, PROPRIETOR,
Man'f. of the Celebrated Stomach Invigorator.
LAWRENCE, Kas., May 22, 1882.

Mr. L. W. Clay, Strong City, Kan.

DEAR SIR:– On my return from the east I found your letter and postal card of yesterday morning instructing me to stop sending you beer until further orders. You ask me my advice. If you do not want to sell during the session of the court, you better go somewheres; you need not go far, but don't tell anybody where you go. After court adjourns you come back, and if you can make any arrangements with your city council you better do so. If you are arrested, the main point is to get the sheriff or constable on your side, so that you get at least one juror, whom you can depend on, who will hang the jury until dooms-day. This is the only advice I can give you in regard to this matter. Now, one thing more, I do not know your politics, but one thing we must unite on and that is, we must work with all our might to send delegates to the state convention who are anti-St. John first, last and all the time. Even if you should be a Democrat, you can work at the primaries quietly. If we beat St. John, then the backbone of prohibition is broken. Please keep me posted as to the doings of the court.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN WALRUFF.

STRONG DRINK AND DISEASE.

Dr. Charles A. Story, of Chicago, says: "The building of asylums, the furnishing of medicines, and comforts for four thousand insane people, who die after three years of insanity, and at an average cost of $1,000 a year, amounts to $2,000,000 a year. And at the same rate, eight thousand lunatics, who do not die, but are cured after three years' treatment in the asylum, cost $24,000,000, making a total of $36,000,000, as the triennial cost of insanity, caused by drunkenness."

Alcohol predisposes to almost all other diseases. A very slight injury to an intemperate man is likely to result fatally. Surgeons in city hospitals find that they cannot expect the same degree of success in the cases of intemperate persons; a very slight operation, which would have occasioned no inconvenience to a total abstainer, often ending fatally.

Dr. Cartwright, an eminent physician of New Orleans, in an article on the yellow fever in that city, published many years ago, says: "The yellow fever came down like a storm upon this devoted city, with 1,127 saloons in one of the four parts into which it has been divided. About five thousand of the supporters of these haunts of intemperance, died before the epidemic touched a single citizen who was a sober man, so far as I can get at the facts.—Zion's Watchman.

ON THURSDAY last a boy was arrested for habitual cruelty and violence to his mother; his last exploit was to knock her down, beat and rob her of $7.50 which was all the money she had. And that is exactly the kind of boy our beer dives and grogshops and Shafer dens are raising all the time. That boy is a true type of the Shafer leag of free-rum-Sunday-school pupil.

THERE was a splendid turn out of the children at the Redwoods Camp-meeting on Monday of last week. The little folks made a fine display of recitations, music, etc., and Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Stevens gave stirring and interesting addresses to the young and old folks.

ADVANCE STEPS IN THE EVIL OF INTEMPERANCE.

Alcohol first extracted from fermented liquors, by the Arabs, in the year 1000.

1230—Introduced into Europe.

1581—British used it for cordial for their soldiers.

1700—Boston began distilling from West India molasses, converting it into New England rum.

1794—Whisky was made from rye, in Western Pennsylvania.

1811—The Presbyterian Church formed a society for the suppression of the evil existing from the use of ardent spirits.

1815—There were 40,000 distilleries consuming 10,000,000 bushels of breadstuffs, making 30,000,000 gallons of spirits, 10,000,000 gallons of rum was used at that time. Were we not drifting into a nation of drunkards?

1815—Massachusetts formed a society for the suppression of intemperance. Rev. W. Humphrey published a pamphlet advocating moderate use.

1822—Total abstinence societies were formed. Origin of societies purely American. Alas! that there should be such a crying necessity for it.

Oliver Cromwell's drunkard's cloak—An inverted tub with a hole large enough to go over the head in the bottom, and smaller ones for the arms—North of England.

Whisky—The key to poorhouse and prison; champagne, cause of real pain.

AN OLD veteran was found dirty and wretched last week living in an old flat boat sleeping on old mats. He claims to be 73 years old, to have been in the Seminole war where he was wounded, to have seen the first American flag in California hoisted, etc. But he is a miserable slave of rum. The Leag of Fiendom have got him body and soul and he is a finished piece of the Shafer Schetzel workmanship.

YOUNTVILLE has a society called the G. O. A. H., grand order of Anointed Hoodlums; object, the cultivation of red and blue volcanic noses, ulcerated stomachs, debauched morals and general blasphemy. It declares people should be allowed to raise grapes and eat and drink what they like and that children should be educated between the ages of 8 and 14. It is presumed the boys of Yountville are being pretty well educated in the grogshops and wineries there.

BAD BOYS.—The Chronicle tells last week of two boys who have been reading villainous books and who wanted to be robber heroes. They stole their fathers money and spent it in guns, pistols, ect., and nasty books. They then took to the woods to watch for travelers to rob but were soon captured and severely punished. Young people should never look at such a book as the life of Jesse James; such things are rank poison—as bad as tobacco.

YOUNG GIRLS are committing suicide with frequency. Beer is poisoning and crazing thousands every day depraving its victims and dragging them to crime and murder and suicide. The Leag of Beer-dom would if not arrested soon make this beautiful country a general morgue and a bedlam of lunatics and criminals. What a horrible nature men must have who for the sake of robbing their neighbors of a few dimes every day plunge the whole country into a sea of daily misery and make human blood flow like water all the time.

GLORY—GLORY—GLORY.

PROHIBITION IN IOWA, 40,000 MAJORITY.

Let the people rejoice that Temperance is triumphant. The people of the State of Iowa have voted upon and adopted the following amendment to their State constitution.

"That no person shall manufacture for sale, sell or keep for sale as a beverage any intoxicating liquors whatever, including ale, wine, and beer. That the general assembly shall by law provide regulations for enforcement of the provision herein contained and shall thereby prescribe suitable penalties for violations of the pernicious traffic."

The election was held on the 27th, so that the vote had not been counted but is estimated by the Register and deemed to be very nearly correct. This gives us four prohibition states, Maine, Vermont, Kansas and Iowa.

The people of California should now ask for a similar amendment and set the ball in motion at the next session of the legislature. The people are disgusted everywhere to think that five or six hundred rum-sellers and murder shops set at defiance the laws of the land, while a great party panders to the insult, pledges itself to repeal the Sunday law, and thus expose the laboring people and their sons to robbery by at least six thousand poison shops in this State.

I like the style of the RESCUE, its language is plain and easily understood—Brother Wood you swing a keen edged sabre and deal telling blows in nearly all your articles. The Good Templars headed by Judge Thompson and his Grand Lecturers hold a proud position in this State; they are telling upon the public mind every day, they have raised a throne of reflection and every body stops to stare at it until the mind is leaning toward Temperance and its results.

The Bands of Hope are a great army; being drilled for reinforcement they will bear aloft the flag of Temperance, they will sound the bugle of alarm and bear arms to successful battle; it was a grand invention to train the children in that glorious cause. God was at the beginning of that work and will put it into successful issue.

Yours truly A. M. WINN.
Sonoma, June 29, 1882.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AT CAMP-MEETING.

Whereas we fully believe that the ultimate success of the temperance cause chiefly depends upon an enlightened public sentiment, and that the RESCUE, the official organ of the Good Templars of the State of California, under its present management is one of the most powerful means of educating the people and arousing them to the gravity of the issues now forced upon them, therefore,

Resolved, That we most earnestly recommend each lodge of Good Templars in this State to immediately use its utmost exertion to extend the circulation of the RESCUE, not only among its membership but throughout the entire community within its jurisdiction, as the best means of promoting the cause of temperance and the interests of the order.

Resolved, That each lodge be recommended to appoint forthwith a committee of its most active members to canvass the entire community within its jurisdiction for subscribers to the RESCUE.

Resolved. That the editor of the RESCUE be requested to publish the foregoing preamble and resolutions in the RESCUE, as in the interest of the order.

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be tendered Dr. R. H. McDonald for the most bounteous supply of valuable temperance literature and songs.

Resolved, That our thanks are due, and are hereby most cordially tendered to our distinguished brothers, R.W.G.T., Geo. B. Katzenstein, and R. Thompson, G.W.C.T. of California, for their invaluable services in making this gathering so pleasant and profitable to all.

Resolved, That we congratulate each other upon the perfect harmony, good will and pleasure that have characterized this meeting.

Resolved, That as we return to our several homes, we pledge ourselves to do all we can to promote the cause of temperance by electing men to represent us in the legislature who will honestly, faithfully and courageously represent our principles and our cause.

PLYMOUTH, June 19, 1882.

ED. RESCUE:—The temperance question has not died out by any means; we are all still at work trying to lift up and to save. But tho our enemy is crafty and powerful, we are confident that right must conquer and we do not get discouraged tho the road seems rough and thorny. Our Band of Hope is getting along very nicely, we have over eighty members and last year we spent over fifty dollars in temperance literature and we believe we are doing a good work. Saturday the 17th, I with thirteen more persons visited Washington Grange at Dexter and found that many of the grangers were Good Templars. Mr. Dill, the Master of the Grange being the W. C. T. of the lodge, hoped to have the pleasure of visiting Dexter Lodge No. 472. But they do not meet on Saturday as stated in the RESCUE but on Sunday at twelve o'clock. Mr. Giles the L. D. is also a granger. Dexter lodge has not so much to contend with as we have, for it is four miles to a place where liquor is sold. Bro. Waters, our host, says they have no hoodlums there and our experience led us to believe he is right. Among the earnest temperance workers are Bros. Stamper, Dill, Giles and Waters, and Sisters Stamper, Waters and McIntosh, Pres. of the Band of Hope. Bro. Stamper Jr., seem to be heart and soul in the cause and so are many others. Dexter Lodge is a success; there are no saloons any where near Washington school-house or Dexter. The lodge pays no rent for its hall, it being a public building. Mr. Stamper was saying that some of the members of the of the lodge wanted the dues reduced. I would ask him to read Sec. 5 of Article 5 of the Constitution of Sub. lodge. If I ever visit San Joaquin valley again, I hope to have the pleasure of visiting Dexter Lodge. GOOD TEMPLAR.

The Rescue.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

TRUTH.

That is the name of a labor-advocating journal in San Francisco. It says "the Chinese must be expelled from the Republic at any hazard and at any cost." It attempts to defend and protect labor against capital and monopoly. It ventilates the land question and condems and assails all the evils that disturb our country—except the principal one, which is the foundation cause and source and shield and bulwark and sum and substance of all the rest.

With 10,000 or more grog-shops in this State to deprave and degrade and enslave our white labor, and to turn the boys into idlers and beer hoodlums at the ages of 12 to 16, the sudden expulsion of Chinese labor would be ruinous to the State. If their places could be supplied at once by sober white men and women, abstainers, no evil could result; but they could not. As long as these pest-houses are committing their daily slauter upon the white workers, there will be a very few sober, reliable whites coming to this State to take the places of the Chinese now employed in various departments.

It is idle to expect immigration bureaus and lying bulletins to bring worthy people here to take the places of Chinese as long as the State is placarded and pitted all over with the drunken tramps and paupers and criminals who act as advertisements of the pauper mills, which lie in wait for the white worker at every possible corner where one may be entrapped.

It seems strange that any one who at all attempts to advocate reform and take up the role of patriotism should leave unmentioned and untouched the greatest abuse and the most monstrous oppression and treason that ever cursed a people. To agitate against railroad monopoly and Chinese invasion and hold a truce with a tyrant conspiracy against, not only the properties, but the peace and the homes and the lives of the people, is as great an inconsistency as it would be to chase with hue and cry a boy who has stolen a box of matches from your store, and to allow the professional shop-lifter who has robbed your till of a roll of $20 pieces and shouldered a tray of jewelry, to walk away unmolested.

The Chinaman is here in force because the grog-shop makes so many men and women unreliable and useless, that many employers are afraid to employ white labor at all. Were the grog-shop and brewery removed, there would be no need of any law to keep out Chinamen; because no one employs them for any other reason than that they are compelled to.

The railroad interest affords remunerative employment to thousands of our people, and it gives us all invaluable conveniences of transportation, altho' its charges for doing so are altogether enormous nd exorbitant. Its greatest wrong to the people of the State is in planting its 700 grog-shops, more or less, all over the State to rob the people of what change it has left in their pockets: but of this greatest crime of the railroad neither reformer, patriot, statesman, editor or pulpit dares to whisper a syllable.

The grog-shop robs labor and the homes of California of at least fifty million dollars a year in cash, afor which it returns nothing but drunkenness, poisoned health and poisoned morals, crime pauperism, suicide, insanity; makes life and property insecure; retards settlement and destroys industry and property to the extent of fifty or a hundred millions a year more, and is the most impudent, vile, wicked and atrocious crime that has ever cursed the world, and does not do one person in the State a benefit for all its millions of harm.

The religion, the patriotism, the reform spirit, the anti-monopoly, the statesmanship, that proposes to reform or improve anything in this State without making the first step the utter destruction of the infernal nest of all our evils, the cess-pools of crime and infamy and drunken depravity, has not a particle of consistency or of reasonable ground of hope for success in any direction.

STOCKS.—THIEVERY.

Some one sends a copy of the Daily Stockholder of New York, of June 7th. It has nineteen editorials, all but two of which are upon the rascality of a millionaire stock-broker, who has been expelled from the New York Stock Exchange, for swindling a little out of the ordinary methods practiced by the membership, and violating the sacred principle of "honor between thieves."

Mr. Wm. J. Hutchinson, so the paper says, has swindled a Mr. Duff, for whom he acted as broker, out of over one and a half millions; when discovered he paid up half that amount and was expelled from the fraternity of gentlemen stock thieves.

The Stockholder aforesaid goes for the detached scalp of Mr. Hutchinson in the seventeen editorials, in a tone of outraged virtue that jealously guards the purity and honor of the stock thieving business. About the worst Hutchinson-crime was as follows: Mr. Duff is a rich stock operator; he thinks a large robbery may be made on Hannibal stock, which was worth about 80. He consults with Hutchinson, sets his traps all round, and orders him to purchase 20,000 shares for him. Buying up a large quantity of this stock would, of course, raise its price. So Mr. H. buys 5,000 shares at an average of 83, but reports only 2,500. Then he gets 5,000 more at 87, and keeps back half of that, and repeats the operation at 92. Then he pretends when the price is 96 to buy 7,500 shares more, but he did not buy any—merely putting in at that price the three lots of 2,500 each which he had purchased at the lower prices and kept on the sly.

That was one of many similar schemes by which he managed to defraud his principal out of one and a half millions, and for which he was turned out of the immaculate Exchange. But it seems that he did nothing inconsistent with the principles of stock-broking and stock operations. If Hannibal stock was worth just 80, and Mr. Duff tried to defraud the public into the belief that it was really worth 100 or 110, and intended to buy up 20,000 at 80 or 90 and sell out at 100, when it was worth no more in reality than before, he engaged in a theft in which those who were mean enough to assist him, might be expected to steal from him as cheerfully as he was stealing from others.

It is not attempted to insinuate that it is in the least dishonest to invest any amount in proper, legitimate stocks. It would be a very happy thing for the country if every working man and woman in the Union had shares of stock in railways and steamboats and ships and factories and co-operative stores and colonies, honestly managed for business purposes and not for gambling pools. It would then be a duty for one who believed steamboat stock would pay better dividends than his shares in a shoe factory, to sell the latter and invest in the former. And stock dealing would thus be as honest as any other mercantile business.

But if the practice of running up stocks to a temporary fictitious value by means of lying trickery and false reports and cunning traps that, having bought them cheap, they may be sold dear, or that a plunder may be made by selling short or selling long—if that is any more honorable or honest than the work of the Brothertons who raised a merchant's check from $35 to $3,500—and if said conduct does not equally deserve the distinction of striped clothes and iron bars, please put this deponent down as the champion stupid.

It is about time that the tan games, which our laws consider so criminal when practiced by Chinese heathens, should be followed with proportionate penalties among the millionaire bunko sharps.

BLUNDERING.

The Pope of Rome and his cardinals and high officers have the complicated affairs of a great number of churches that report to Rome to attend to. They may manage the business in which they have served a life apprenticeship better or worse, but it would be the hight of presumption and conceited folly for a San Francisco cigar-maker or a street-car conductor to write an essay, ridiculing the domestic government of the Vatican, or the business methods of the Head of the Romish Church with his subordinates, and assailing people he knows nothing about as blunderers.

The Pacific Bank and the California Bank have systems of book-keeping and counting their cash, etc., in which the clerks are thoroly posted from long practice. We dont know whether some improvements might or might not be introduced there, but we do know that it would be swimming in very deep water for a newsboy or a 5-year-old bootblack to prescribe how those banks should be managed, and to call the present managers and assistants "idiots and fanatics and blundering fools."

An Italian fisherman or a French butcher boy, whose highest mental achievement has been hitherto the splitting of sturgeon or peeling the pelt off the sheep carcases in the Washington Market, would write a very lame criticism on the artistic arrangements of the Diamond Palace on Montgomery street.

But any of the aforesaid would cut a far more creditable and dignified figure in the cases imagined, than do many of our newspapers—such as the Chicago Tribune and others—when they display their "entire blockheadism" under such headings as Temperance Blunderings. Think of poor, besotted donkeys and beer bummers recounting the mistakes of temperance people! They have not sense enough to know that the silliest scrape a temperance man was ever found in, was not equal to the miserable daily folly of a saloon-keeper's serf.

The temperance workers have expended much time and labor and money, and have carried on a successful war against appetite, custom, fashion, folly, ignorance, avarice, hypocrisy, wealth and bigotry. In the fray they have suffered much hatred, ridicule, persecution and slander, but nothing has been quite so hard to put up with as to be kicked at by the illiterate and brainless journalists and quack critics who, under the inspiration of a mug of fool's broth, yelp about "temperance blunderings."

GRAND TEMPERANCE CAMP-MEETING AT GUERNEVILLE REDWOODS.

The Fourth Annual Camp-meeting in this most beautiful grove of mammoth trees, near the railroad and on the backs of Russian River, was held under the management of Enterprise (well named) Lodge of Guerneville, lasting from June 29th to July 6th, inclusive. Everything was done by the committee of such men as Bros. John Robinson, Manning, Twombly and others, aided by Bros. Judge Thompson and F. G. Culver to make it a success, and the writer does not remember to have heard a single word of compfaint. It will be a matter of great regret if, as is feared, the committee does not come out financially ahead. The attendance was large, some 500 being present on Sunday and 600 or 700 on the Fourth. Amid the majestic giants of the forest, a quadrangle of camp cottages is built for campers; all were full and a large number of people put up tents outside. In a monster tree are two rooms, each large enough for a small family to camp in, and are used for that purpose. Within is a good platform, at the back of which is a large picture of the Home for Orphans, surmounted by "Welcome to the Right Worthy Grand Templar of the World." A large national flag floated over the audience. Ample seating accommodation in this grand auditorium was provided, and the various camp houses were adorned with evergreens and floral inscriptions, indicating what grand officer or lodge had there headquarters. An excellent restaurant was conducted by Mrs. Hicks and family. There were also fruit, refreshment and book stands.

G. W. C. T., Judge Thompson and family, Sister Stevens, Sister Richardson, Bro. Culver and local workers were on hand from first to last. On Saturday arrived R. W. G. T., Katzenstein, wife and Willie, Col. C. N. Goulding, Col. Babcock, Elder Webb and many others; at night Dr. R. H. McDonald, Capt. Wood and a number of staunch temperance workers. Among the many others who took part publicly or aided by their presence may be named Sisters Mayhew, Alsip, Fowler, Revs. Father Waugh, Walker, Jesse Smith, Dr. Finlay, President Santa Rosa College, Rankin, Dinsmore and Clark, Messrs. Frank Storer, R. S. Wade and others, too numerous to mention or remember. Sister Manning ably presided at the organ. Three public meetings were held daily, the best attention being given to the various speakers. Dr. Finlay put himself squarely on record as a Good Templar and a Sunday Law man. Col. Babcock made a masterly and convincing plea for Home Protection, the Sunday Law, and the maintenance of all American moral institutions, Dr. McDonald presiding and speaking, also Sister Richardson captivated all by her sweet, clear, intelligible and well emphasised singing; an able choir assisting in choruses, etc. Sister Stevens made some of her earnest, sympathetic appeals being specially successful on the Fourth when a committee of ladies collected over $60 for the Home.

On Sunday morning religious services were held, Elder Webb preaching a practical and apparently appreciated temperance sermon. Col. Goulding was, without warning, called on to supply the place of Rev. Dr. McKenzie, who failed to appear and orate on the Glorious Fourth. So successful was he, in his characteristic style, in drawing everyone within sound of his voice to the meeting and holdthem spell-bound, that the Doctor was quite freely forgiven for not coming. The Colonel, on another occasion, "went for" the whisky-drinking "bhoys" in his own peculiar, good-natured style, full of wit, anecdote and pathos, and concluded by demonstrating how cheap whisky can be made from water and chemicals. But a detailed account would be too long for these columns, yet we must not forget a grand Band of Hope meeting on Sunday afternoon and a meeting for the advocacy of the claims of the RESCUE for patronage. At the former a number of children recited most creditably, and Srs. Stevens and Richardson spoke effectively; at the latter, J. W. Webb, Dr. McDonald, Col. Babcock, Col. Goulding and others, endorsed the paper as one of the most able in the United States. Many subscriptions were obtained on the ground.

On the last night, R. W. G. T. presided at a kind of Temperance Love Feast, giving a most interesting and encouraging account of his trip east and the signs of progress noted. G. W. C. T. cheered the meeting with words of counsel and hope. Bros. Robinson and Fowler of Valley Ford and others made good impromptu talks, and all adjourned to a rousing camp-fire where solos, duetts, choruses, recitations and toasts were long indulged in. Master Willie Katzenstein handed round many plates of pliable sweetness and a jovial candy pulling followed. The grand display of fireworks on the night of the Fourth, the sending of a telegram to the Grand Indiana Temperance Camp-meeting in session at Seymour, and the passing of some resolutions, unanimously must not be omitted. Take it for all in all it is a most enjoyable place and time; no Good Templar or friend to the cause should miss going next year should a similar meeting be held. Judge Thompson intimated that he thot it would grow into a popular, patriotic, temperance meeting each year, under the auspices of the Good Templars. A place may possibly be purchased in the Redwoods for permanent use, or it may be held at different places, in Pacific Grove, Monterey, for instance, sometimes. (And in the southern part of the State occasionally?) J. W. W.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED.

1, That during the Temperance camp-meeting we sadly miss the genial presence and faithful work of our late lamented Bro. H. H. Peckinpah; "not lost but gone before."

2, That in the sudden death of M. D. Merrick, we deplore the loss of a strong and able worker in the cause of Temperance, and we trust many laborers may be raised up and brought out to carry on the great Reform.

3, That after listening with deep interest to the eloquent, emphatic and logical address delivered by Col. Geo. Babcock in this place, on the 3rd of July, 1882, we believe it well calculated to do very effective work as a campaign document, and we hereby request a copy of said speech for publication and distribution.

4, That we deem it of great importance and advantage to have the friends of Prohibition hold a grand Ratification meeting in San Francisco to celebrate the glorious Prohibition victory in Iowa.

5, That the thanks of all the visitors to this camp-meeting are due and hereby tendered to Guerneville Lodge, its active committee, to Bro. F. J. Culver and all who have contributed to our pleasure and comfort, and the success of the meeting.

6, That as Bro. Rev. F. J. Culver is soon to leave for Nevada to labor as Grand Lecturer of that State, we heartily bid him "God-speed" and wish him and the Temperance workers great success.

7, That it is the conviction of this meeting that Col. Geo. Babcock has proven himself a most able, sincere and successful advocate of Temperance, and that since the harvest is truly plenteous and the laborers yet comparatively few, we would hail with great satisfaction and expectation his fully devoting his time and talents to the great work at this important crisis, should he find it possible to do so.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

The Prohibition Reform Convention met at 10 A. M. in Y.M.C.A.Hall, S. F., 11th of July. A goodly number of delegates present from far and near. Bro. M. C. Winchester was elected Chairman. Mr. John Woods of Cambria Vice President and Rev. Geo. Morris Secy. Committee on resolutions reported as follows:

1. Resolved, That no exigencies of a political campaign, can release a citizen from the obligations of truth, honor, loyalty and public decency.

2. Resolved, That we hold the supremacy of law and the preservation of the laborers rest day as paramount to party fealty and the hope of political victory or the fear of defeat; and no partizan consideration whatever shall induce us to cast our ballots for a party or a platform which ignores our religious rights, fawns on conspirators or proposes to rob laboring men of a law which protects them, one day in seven, against the oppression of power and the exaction of greed, nor will we support any nominee of any party who is disqualified by a debasing appetite for alcoholic drinks.

3. Resolved. That we will vigilantly await the platforms and nominations of existing parties in the hope that we may find ourselves able to vote like honest and loyal men without the necessity of separating ourselves from the parties which now divide the State.

4. Resolved, That we hail with gratitude the triumph of local option in Arkansas and of constitutional prohibition in Kansas,and more recently and gloriously in Iowa, as a presage and prophecy of victory over the impoverishing and demoralizing liquor business destined ere long to be achieved in every State in the Union, the actual results of these beneficent measures having refuted the calumnies of their adversaries and reassured the faith of their friends, all of which encourages us to believe that public sentiment is now ready for prohibitory legislation in this State, and we shall consider that no party or candidate on any ticket that is opposed to permitting the people to vote upon the question of the discontinuance of this traffic is entitled to our support.

The convention adjourned after passing the above. More particulars cannot now be given for want of space.

SILVER STAR HOUSE.

On Sunday evening last, the Childrens' Hall, corner of Pacific and Sansome streets, in the Silver Star House, had a fair audience assembled to listen to a discussion of the temperance question. Col. Goulding gave the principal address; Judge Thompson and Mrs. Stevens also made short speeches. Mrs. Richardson sang, and the evening passed quite pleasantly. Dr. Finlay, of Santa Rosa College, was present, and a number of the active men and women of the cause occupied seats on the platform. Meetings every Sunday evening in future will be held in this Hall. Col. Babcock will lecture next Sunday evening on "Sunday a Civil Institution."

SHAFER BABCOCK CONTROVERSY.

SHAFER SIDE.

Mr. Shafer's leag of Fiendom had in 1881, June 30, 173 of their converts warehoused in the House of Correction at the expense of the sober business men and workers who pay taxes in this city. Since that time the leag has secured a position there for 669 more of its converts; 514 males and 155 females, making a total of 842. During the year 510 male and 131 female converts have been discharged, leaving 210 remaining which shows a gratifying increase over last year and puts Mr. Shafer a little ahead this week.

Of the converts discharged, 1 died, 3 escaped, 3 were sent to the Leags warehouse for its insane at Napa, and 1 was transferred to the Leags headquarters at San Quentin.

The Leag is in extacies over the delightful fact that 109 WOMEN and 126 men converts were sent to the Leags branch boarding house for drunken misdemeanor, and 221 for petty larceny; two accomplishments in which the leag takes especial pride in educating its pupils.

The tax payers have paid $40.710 for daily expenses of maintaining the leags boarders, but that is a trifle when we consider the Leag scooped in 20 millions from their converts during the year who did not get sent to their House of Correction.

The morgue business and pistol and knife practice and the woman-whaling business has been cheerfully active during the week; large number of new deadfals have been opened and the leag is jubilant.

BABCOCK SIDE.

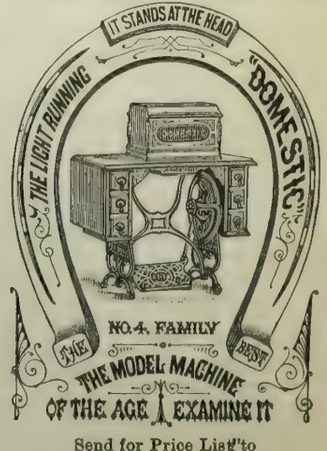
Temperance meetings opened at Silver Star House, Cor. Pacific and Sansome, to be continued every Sunday evening, to make captures from the shackles of the leag and invite people to go into their right mind, wear clothes and have something to eat.

Active work all over the State on the Babcock side. The Shafer plank in the Democratic platform smells bad everywhere. But notwithstanding the Iowa news has given Babcock stock a vigorous boom, the report of the Leags work got in at the House of Correction, especially the 109 female drunks, puts Mr. Shafer about a neck ahead this week. The Babcock side can't begin to show anything to match that House of Correction and its female drinkers to boom up their side of the argument.

IN OTHER STATES.

THE Burlington Hawkeye came out squarely against the prohibitory amendment and as its only motive could be a share in the sack of the manslayers leag, it is to be hopad that its circulation may go down to the number of saloons in Burlington and half of that deadhead.

THE Scioto disaster by which 50 lives were lost a few days ago in Ohio is said to be another whisky assessment. It is claimed that some of the officers end many of the passengers were drunk just before the collision. But as whisky kills 11 persons an hour or 280 every day on an average in this country, it is not to be complained of when it scoops from 10 to 100 in a drunken accident.



COMMUNION WINE unfermented must be in good demand in England. It is being and has been for many years monstrously fabricated and the swindles have been exposed as the vilest frauds. One Frank Wright of London imports and makes and sells large quantities of the pure unfermented fruit of the vine, gennine and excellent. But a new firm has come up with a great advertizing flourish, offering a "pure Communion Wine for abstainers" containing no alcohol and only the juice of the grape. The Grand Lodge had it analyzed and find it contains 24 per cent of proof spirit.

ONE MORE tally for prohibition. In 1814 the site of Grangemouth, Scotland, was leased with a condition that no intoxicating liquors should be sold in any buildings thereon. But the condition was of course violated. About two years ago the Earl of Zetland tried to close up the 14 dramshops in this town of 5000 people on the ground of said condition and that they were destroying the value of his property. The lower courts decided against him declaring his position was one of defending public morals, but an appeal to the House of Lords has reversed the decision and scored one for prohibition in Scotland.

ANOTHER FOR PRHIBITION.—The Scott Act or Local Option Law of all Canada has been sustained by the Privy Council of England to whom it was appealed and is now out of danger. Its history is a little singular. A precisely similar act was passed in the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. In the latter temperance Supreme judges sustained it and it nearly drove rum-selling out of the province. In N. Bk. a Supreme court, whose judges were all notable enemies of temperance, declared the local option law invalid because it was a regulation of trade and only the Federal parliament could pass such an Act. Then the Federal government passed the Scott Act,and the same judges in N. Bk. declared it invalid because it was not a regulation of trade at all but a matter of licence and police upon which only the province could legislate. They decided that all law was turkey for the whisky men every time and all crow for the temperance men every time. But the Supreme court of Canada reversed the crow decision of these tippleosoppers and the law-abiding rumsellers with the aid of the latter appealed to the Privy Council of England and the judges whose judgment was perverted by wine stand rebuked and their evil designs thwarted. That is good news to go with the Iowa boom.

COL. BABCOCK

Will lecture on Sunday evening, July 16th, on "Sunday as a Civil Institution," at Childrens' Hall (Silver Star House), corner of Pacific and Sansome streets. Everybody invited; a pleasant hall, and 600 or more can be comfortably seated.

HOME PROTECTION LEAGUE OF SANTA BARBARA COUNTY.

We the undersigned, citizens and voters of precinct in Santa Barbara County, hereby pledge to each other our sacred honor to act conjointly and in unity, in all honorable ways to preserve the statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday; to procure more effective legislation for the suppression of Conspiracy; the perpetuity of our Republican institutions, and the promotion of the moral, intellectual, social and material interests of the Commonwealth.

We agree to abide by, and work under the following plan, rules and regulations, which were adopted by a Convention held at Goleta, on the 18th day of May, 1882.

1. We will use our influence in our respective political parties to secure the nomination of men who are thoroughly committed to the principles of temperance and sobriety, and to the maintenance and enforcement of the Sunday Prohibitory Liquor Law; requiring from candidates for the Legislature a written pledge to use all their influence in favor of Temperance or Prohibitory Legislation.

2. After the political Conventions have been held, if their nominations are not satisfactory, and a Convention is held by the Home Protection League, we agree to support those candidates who may be nominated or endorsed by that Convention.

3. The County Executive Committee is as follows:

Jas. Morse, Chairman, Guadalupe.

L. F. Potter, Secretary and Treasurer, Lompoc.

A. W. Hickok, Montecito; J. J. Steele, Santa Barbara; J. A. Mitchell, Los Alamos; —— Hawthorne, Goleta; W. W. Ayers, Guadalupe.

It shall be the duty of the Executive Committee to appoint an organizing officer in each precinct, and to exercise a general supervision of the League in the county. Also to call a Convention and apportion the number of delegates to the same, when requested so to do by a majority of the clubs; and may do so without a request, when deemed advisable by all its members. It shall have power to fill vacancies that may occur in the Committee.

4. No fees for membership or dues shall be required, but all expenses met by voluntary contributions.

5. Each club should hold a public meeting at least once a month for the instruction of the people by Speeches, Reading, etc., in the principles and objects of the Home Protection League.

6. Each club shall have a President, Secretary and Treasurer, and may adopt any By-Laws that do not conflict with the foregoing rules and regulations:

WHEREAS, A League of Conspirators has been organized throughout this State for the avowed purpose of defying the legal authorities and clogging the wheels of Justice, to prevent the enforcement of the Sunday liquor law; and to elect legislators this Fall who will repeal that law; it now becomes the duty of all loyal citizens, irrespective of party affiliations, to unite their influence in an effort to defeat this monstrous scheme to subvert the sacred institutions of our Fathers, and of enlightened Statesmanship; and to this end. we the undersigned citizens and voters hereby form ourselves into a Home Protection League.

ED. RESCUE:—Will you please publish the above plan of organization, as it may be preferred by some to the plan adopted by the State organization, on account of its simplicity, cheapness. and the very important feature of not being encumbered with non-voters and minors? I have no particular objection to the State plan for a permanent educational organization, but to be effective for the coming election I think it would be a failure. Boys and girls of 16 take very little interest in politics and will impede rather than advance political action.

These clubs may, and no doubt many will, finally be merged into the chartered organization.

This county was organized under the above plan three months before its adoption at Goleta, and before the State plan was published, but we waited to see the State plan, and finally concluded to work under this.

Fraternally yours,
JAMES MORSE, Ch. Ex. Com.

SPEECH BY SIR WILFRID LAWSON.

(Sir Wilfrid is by far the greatest Statesman of Europe; one of the truest patriots; one of the noblest advocates of the truth, one of the most thoroly earnest and genuine philanthropists and benefactors of his country and race that this or any other age has produced. The following speech of his at the London Temperance Hospital annual meeting May 23, is found in the Alliance News.)

* * * I feel that to-night I have a very sympathetic audience. I think I should call this an anti-alcoholic audience, because I presume we are all more or less enemies of alcohol. And why are we enemies to alcohol? Because we believe that alcohol is what Sir William Gull called it two or three years ago, "the most destructive agent with which we are acquainted." Well, you may say, if alcohol is such a destructive agent, everybody will be against him; he will be the common foe, and he will not have many friends. But that would be quite a mistaken view of the question; because, altho he is so destructive, he is the most popular fellow going. He has been popular for ages past, and he is popular now; and that is a very extraordinary thing, because not only does Sir William Gull, the great medical man, say he is the most destructive agent known, but our own Prime Minister has told us that the doings of alcohol bring upon this nation of which he has charge at present the accumulated evils of war, pestilence, and famine. But in spite of all this his friends have supported him for generations past thru thick and thin. And now let us look at who his friends are. They are found amongst the very clever men. That is natural enough, because alcohol is an agent which affects the brain and diminishes its power, and it is only very clever fellows who can afford to have their brain power diminished. I never found that I had too much brain for anything I had to do. I often, every day in truth, feel the reverse, and so I do not like the enemy to come and associate with me. And the foolish men like him. I will tell you a story about that. There was a man once in the wilds of America who sat down by a stream, and he amused himself by feeding a fish with crumbs of bread, By-and-by he steeped the crumbs in his whisky flask, and he observed that when the fish ate the crumbs of bread so steeped in whisky they turned on their backs and died—all except one species of fish, which seemed to be no worse for the alcoholic crumbs. By-and-bye an Indian came up, and he asked the Indian what sort of a fish that was—pointing to one that was quite lively after the alcoholic dose. He said, "Oh! that is called the 'mullet head.' It is a kind of fish that has no brains at all." That is the other class who are very fond of alcohol. Then, Mr. Chairman, for ages alcohol has had a great many friends among the poets. The most beautiful songs we have are drinking songs. I think the reason of that is because they find that "soul" rhymes with "bowl" so beautifully, and they can't help bringing it in. And then there is another class, perhaps one of the most powerful set of friends alcohol has, and that is the statesmen. They are very dangerous characters are the statesmen. You know statesmen have to raise the taxation of the country. A statesman in this country who is in power has to raise 85 million pounds a year for educating the people for killing other people, and for carrying on all the resources of civilization. It is very difficult to get their money; it is very hard to impose taxation; so, how do they do it? They call in alcohol to their aid, and they get alcohol to knock the people down wholesale, and when they are down they pick their pockets and put it into the Treasury, and by that means they get somewhere about a third part or more of the revenue of the country. They get about 30 million pounds from what Dr. Richardson calls "the graves of the people." Now you see how valuable alcohol is to the statesmen. Then there are the slaves of drink, who are his friends so long as they are his slaves. and these poor slaves work along with the statesmen. The statesmen get the money out of the pockets of the poor slaves who drink in the way I have described; and our object is to emancipate the slaves. That is what my friend the chairman (Mr. Samuel Bowly) has spent his life in doing—in getting the slaves of drink to emancipate themselves from drink; and when the slaves have done that, they will look after the statesmen, you may be pretty sure. They are getting emancipated by degrees. The Cardinal knows that. He and I had an experience of it last week. Two years ago he and I went down to Cambridge to talk about this alcohol in its relation to the State, and to give our fellow-countrymen advice as to what should be done. We had no selfish object. We went simply to tell them what we thought was right, and ask them to do it; but the slaves of drink assembled in numbers. They yelled, they screamed, they howled, they fought, they threw missiles at us; and the Cardinal and I, two prudent men, retired from the platform and left the howling mob to fight it out for an hour or two in our absence. As the Cardinal reminds me, the forces of drink were so violent on that occasion that they broke down the doors and damaged the place to a very great extent. That was two years ago. But the Cardinal and I did not think there was any argument in breaking the doors down or in howling and fighting; and believing that what we had to tell them two years ago was just as true now as it was then. we went there again. There was no howling, no door breaking, no throwing of missils. They heard us gladly—one of the largest and most influential assemblies ever held in Cambridge—and carried our anti-alcoholic resolutions with unanimity and enthusiasm. That shows that alcohol is gradually losing his friends, and that we are getting more friends.

A TEXAS clergyman makes the remarkable statement after seven years of evangelistic work in that State, that the railroads and telegraphs have done more to prevent crime, than all the Legislatures which have assembled since the rebellion, because they have made the escape of criminals difficult. That claim might be allowed without canonizing the philanthropic railroads, seeing that the prevention of crime don't appear to have been even dreamed of in any Legislature since the war. And in Texas, the railroad proprietors don't sell rum all day Sunday to the boys in 600 thief dens, as the poor railroad proprietors of California are obliged to do, to make both ends meet and overlap satisfactorily.

Bro. W. C. King will visit Nevada and Butte Counties. He deserves a most kindly reception. He has made his presence very useful wherever he has been.

MUTUAL AID ASSOCIATION.

I. O. G. T. OF CAL.

Every Good Templar between ages of 20 and 60 eligible if medical examination passed.

TWO DIVISIONS, A and B. Benefits in A, $1,000; in B, $2,000. Entrance fee in A, $4; in B, $5. A member of one joining the other pays half fee; under 49 eligible to both.

Classes: 1st, 20 to 29 yrs; 2d, 30 to 39; 3d, 40 to 48; 4th, 49 to 55; 5th, 56 and upwards.

Assessments. On the death of a member each member of his division shall be assessed, 1st class, 75c; 2d, 90c; 3d, $1.15; 4th, $1.40; 5th, $1.70.

Notice of assessment payable in 30 days.

Benefits payable within 60 days, 1st class, 60c; 2d, 75c; 3d, $1; 4th, $1.25; 5th, $1.60.

For further particulars apply to G. W. S., Sacramento.

No Lodge dues, rents, officers' salaries or banquets to pay for; nothing to pay but bare cost of insuring healthy, sober lives. Consequently, such institutions are the cheapest and safest in the world; ours has the least costly machinery of any. One old insurance company East has received in premiums 218 millions, and paid out for losses 57 millions, which is less than the company's receipts for interest on their customers money.

HOME PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

This association was incorporated Feby. 2, 1882, for the purpose of securing the enforcement of all laws restricting the sale of liquors, particularly the Sunday law and to procure the enactment of such other laws as are or may be necessary for the protection of our homes from the insidious and destructive influences growing out of the liquor traffic.

It is desired to charter auxiliary associations in every town of California. Any 10 or more persons over 16 years of age may apply for a charter. The membership fee is $1.00 a year, and charter, with full set of books and register for 600 names costs $5. Of membership fee one half goes to the State association for the general work. Apply for information and all particulars to the State Secy.

Officers of the State Association: Otis Gibson, Pres. 916 Washington St. S. F.; Dr. R. H. McDonald, Treas., Pacific Bank, S. F.; Geo. Babcock, State Supt. R. S. Wade, State Secretary, 76 Montgomery Block, San Francisco.

Directors: Stephen G. Nye, J. L. Lyon, E. Wadsworth, Joseph A. Fairbanks, R Thompson, George Babcock, Geo. T. Hanly, Otis Gibson, Will D. Gould, Geo. B. Katzenstein.

OPEN LODGES AND PUBLIC MEETINGS.

For distribution at public meetings or once a month the RESCUE will be sent to one address at $2.00 per 100, and in packages of 20 to 50 will be sent once a month for a year for 24 cents per copy or $4.80 for 20 copies a year. At this rate there is no paper published anywhere that is cheaper. It is suggested that lodges try this method of introducing temperance literature but the best plan is to get a weekly paper into the family by the year. Orders for lots of 50 or 100 should come a week in advance.

A VALUABLE ADVICE.

My dear friends, and fellow sufferers. If you want to save a hundred dollar doctor bill, hours of agony and months of valuable time, buy a bottle of "BOSCHER'S LE ROY," the only positive cure for chills, fever, ague, and all fevers originating in biliary derangement. Prepared and sold only by

E. H. BOSCHER, DRUGGIST,

DONT WAIT.

Our readers need not wait till they have $1,000 to spare, or even $100, to send for goods to H. A. Smith's Cash Grocery, advertised in another colum of this paper, but send for what you need or can spare the money for, if only $10 or less, and it will surely pay you, and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have knocked at least one pin from under the whisky fabric which is struggling and striving for supremacy over every thing that is good or that opposes its rule in this beautiful land.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise

A Radical Cure for Intemperance!

—o—

PARKER'S SALVATION POWDERS!

—o—

HOPE FOR THE INEBRIATE.

—o—

Now is the time! Hear it! wives, mothers and daughters, who are trying to reclaim a loved one. Hear it! young man, in whom an appetite for alcoholic stimulants is beginning its ravaging power. Hear it! moderate drinker, rushing headlong to moral and social degradation. Hear it! wretched fallen man, enslaved, lost in your love for strong drink. Hear it! you who would save your fellow-man from filling a drunkard's grave. Let it be known through the length and breadth of our land that a safe, sure, and radical cure for drunkenness and the love or desire for intoxicating liquors has been discovered, perfectly effective in its action, and of so harmless a nature that a very frail person or a child can take it with impunity. Alcohol is a powerful poison! Its action on the mucus membrane, or coating of the stomach, is similar to that of the most virulent poisons known to the Medical Science; such as Strychnine, Arsenic, Prussic Acid, etc. The same unhealthy change results from the use of Alcoholic stimulants, as when those posions are introduced into the system. An unnatural gnawing, or hankering, an insatiable desire, an unsatisfied thirst is produced, which this remedy counteracts and removes, changing the stomach from a diseased to a healthy, natural condition, and at the same time rendering alcoholic drinks unpalatable and positively loathsome to the most inveterate drinker.

This remedy was discovered over twenty-five years ago, by a well-known Physician of New York, and has been prescribed by him in his private practice in thousands of cases with unparalleled success. Parker's Salvation Powders are inodorous, tasteless, and colorless, consequently can be given without the knowledge of the patient, in coffee, tea, beer, or any other beverage, while they invariably produce in him a distaste and loathing for Alcoholic stimulants, and thus work a complete destruction of all desire for intoxicating liquors. It is sometimes advisable to give two of Dr. Parker's Indian Liver Pills. at bed time, to clean out the system. Perseverance in giving these Powders will surely emancipate the enslaved victim of diseased appetite. Many have testified to their astonishing efficacy in rescuing themselves or their friends from the horrible bondage which has dragged them down to the very verge of despair. To give general publicity to their names, would be an obvious breach of that honorable confidence which the physician owes to his patient.

All communications are strictly confidential, and private references of the most conclusive character can be given if desired, by applying in person or by letter, to ENFORCE THE LAW.

EDITOR RESCUE:—In your issue of this week you answer two questions asked by me in regard to the Sunday law. The answer to the second question is satisfactory, but not so the first. You say an attempt has been made to enforce the law in S. F. But by whom? In other numbers of your paper you admit that it was by Shaeffer, Shetzel & Co., the enemies of the law. True, the municipal authorities made an attempt, but that attempt was evidently designed to block the courts and make the law odious. Is it common for policemen to slip around and watch men violate a law one day and on the following day go and make complaints and arrest them? Why were these men not taken in the act of violating the law? Simply because another plan had been chosen by which to obstruct the operation of the law.

These efforts, by the enemies of temperance and the Sunday law, are now at an end, and I repeat my question. Why do not the friends of the law take it up and make an effort to enforce it?

Let the citizens take a few cases at a time, make complaints themselves, have their own witnesses, their own lawyers, and then let the friends of temperance swarm around the court rooms when the cases come up. Make your demonstrations here: spend your money here, where it will do some good. A cause, with no friend in court is surely lost.

H. C. CULTON.

Winters, June 8, 1882.

GUERNEVILLE, July 6, 1882.

COL. GEO. BABCOCK, S. F.:—DEAR SIR AND BRO.—I have the pleasure of forwarding you a copy of resolutions passed by the grand Temperance Camp-meeting at Guerneville, Sonoma Co., Cal., the 5th of July, 1882. Geo. B. Katzenstein R. W. G. T. of the world, presiding. The vote was unanimous.

Very truly, JAMES W. WEBB, Sec.

Resolved, That after listening with deep interest to the eloquent, emphatic and logical address of Col. Geo. Babcock, delivered before the Guerneville Temperance Camp-meeting, July 3, 1882, we believe it well calculated to do very effective work as a campaign document and hereby request a copy for publication and distribution.

Resolved, That it is the conviction of the assembly at the Guerneville Temperance Camp-meeting that Col. Geo. Babcock has proven himself a most able, sincere and successful advocate of Temperance and of the maintenance of law; and that since "the harvest truly is plenteous and the laborers as yet only comparatively few," we should hail with great satisfaction, and await with confident expectation his fully devoting his time and talents to the Great Work at this important crisis should he find it possible so to do. Signed,

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, Pres.
JAMES W. WEBB, Sec'y.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION.

The Lodge at Boulder Creek, Santa Cruz Co., will celebrate in the Grove on Monday, 17th. Grand Lecturer Webb is to be present to deliver an address besides which there are other speakers expected, music, basket picnic and amusements. All neighboring Lodges, Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, Band of Hope and friends of Temperance most cordially invited to come and enjoy themselves and help to "advance our common cause."

G. M. MCWAIN, for Committee.

A MILLLION APIECE.—Somebody trying to make trouble in this country, has figured up the expenses of the out fit of Columbus when he started out to discover America. And putting it at $5,000 only, and figuring up six per cent interest compounded every year he makes it amount to $17,895,700,000,000, which is about one million for each family in both North and South America. Now if the Spanish Government hears of that, it will be demanding payment and there are lots of us who could not come to time on a million dollars.

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC,

Located midway between San Jose and Santa Clara, Cal.,

AND ACCESSIBLE BY STREET CARS FROM BOTH CITIES.

There are five regular courses of study, viz: 1. The Classical Course—Four years. 2. The Latin Scientific Course—Three years. 3. The Scientific Course—Three years. 4. The Conservatory of Music Course—Four years. 5 Commercial Course—One year.

The CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC is designed to furnish the best facilities for acquiring a complete and thorough musical education.

A PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT is connected with the School, for the benefit of such as are not qualified to enter the College classes.

The COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT affords ample facilities for acquiring a thorough business education. It is remote from the temptations of a great city, and the course can be pursued in connection with the other branches of the College. In this way the expense is trifling compared with that of institutions devoted exclusively to business training.

WEEKLY LECTURES will be delivered before the entire School, by gentlemen selected for their attainments in Letters, Laws, Medicine, Theology and the different Sciences.

The YOUNG LADIES' BOARDING HALL, under the supervision of the Preceptress and an experienced Matron, offers a safe and pleasant home for young ladies from abroad. The terms to young ladies, by the year, for board, and tuition in all regular classes, are $250, payable semi-annually in advance.

Young gentlemen can obtain board in good, private families at reasonable rates.

A judicious supervision is exercised over the deportment and morals of all the students.

To young gentlemen or ladies desiring to pursue an Academic or Collegiate course, under wholesome moral influences, and to parents who are compelled to send their sons or daughters from home for education, the University of the Pacific offers great inducements.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano Co., and in 1870 it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the [Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templar's Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age are received and cared for, and over 100 orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls. The buildings are sightly, capacious and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the state, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public School System" of the state, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self-imposed duty of sustaining this Home gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.—Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.—All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

GOOD SPEAKERS! GOOD MUSIC! GOOD COOL Water, Good Milk, Plenty of Horse Feed and everything else necessary to make the affair a GRAND SUCCESS.

ALL ARE INVITED.

W. S. READ, D. S. C. J. COVILLAUD, D. S.

BE sure to read Sir Wilfrid Lawson's speech in the RESCUE of 13th, 20th and 27th.

MR. GRADY has made himself famous by saying "the Southern Methodists never scratch their ticket;" the Hanford Journal says every Southern Methodist in his (Fresno) county will scratch him if they get a chance.

SOMEBODY thinks that Sitting Bull might have said "what a pity my forefathers did not pass an anti-European immigration bill in the year 1500."

PORTRAITS.—If the squaw portrait which adorns the ad. of Dr. Clark Johnsons Indian Blood Syrup is a correct likeness of the inventor, it must be a good medicine.

SUNDAY.—The two nasty doggeries which are running day and night a turmoil of drunken blasphemy and filthiness at the lower end of Montgomery Avenue, have added the attraction of a fine band of music on the sidewalk during church hours on Sunday.

DONT FORGET Home Protection meeting at Childrens Hall, Silver Star House, Cor. Sansome and Pacific on every Sunday evening. Mr. Oliver of San Jose will speak on the 23, Mrs. Richardson will sing. Mr. Oliver will give an excellent address; he always does.

SENATOR THOS. J. FOSTER of Ind. editor and proprietor of the Evening Herald one of the leaders of the Democratic party of Ind. shot himself while under the influence of a drunken spree June 23, age 35 years. That is what whisky does for the Democrats who make its planks in the platforms and sing no sumptuary laws.

THE Advance, devoted to education and temperance, is published by W. H. Savage, 518 Clay street, a neat 8 page paper same size as the RESCUE, monthly, $1.00 a year. It proposes to be a Mentor and Monitor to the teachers of the State and their pupils and will doubtless be found a usefnl and acceptable journal. It proposes to have a colum of improved spelling for people to practice on. Any attempt to expose the hideousness of our barbarous spelling should be welcomed and encouraged.

THE REV. L. C. RENFRO who always has both eyes open on the temperance question, calls attention in the Pacific Methodist to the recent legislation of the M. E. Church South, in general conference, on the liquor business. The "general rule" is reiterated which forbids drunkenness or drinking spirituous liquors unless in case of necessity. Members guilty of drunkenness, drinking except in cases of necessity, or engaging in the manufacture or sale of liquors, are to be proceeded against as in cases of imprudent or improper conduct.

SENATOR WILSON of Iowa declares that the evidence of men who pass for good citizens and drink at saloons, is of no value whatever when they are testifying in court as to the sale of liquor to them. He adds they go from bad to worse till their moral foundations become so badly shattered that they finally lose all appreciatiou of what constitutes the crime of perjury. We all know that is so, and how is this saloon education going to affect our judges and lawyers and legislators who practice at the bar of the Father of lies and shame?

SUBSCRIBERS and renewals this week: Elk Creek, 1; Mrs. O. M. Armstrong, W. V. T. (Table Bluff, 3; Eureka, 1) 4; San Jose, 2; J. W. Webb (Santa Cruz, 6; Felton, 4; Soquel, 1; Boulder Creek, 8) 19; Wm. Crowhurst (Rough and Ready, 1; North San Juan, 1) 2; L. Leland, Oregon, 1; Farmington, Utah, 1; Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Richardson (Oakland, 2; Guerneville, 1; New Brunswick, 1; Tulare City, 1; Brentwood, 1; Healdsburg, 3; Brooklyn, 1; Berkeley, 1; San Bruno, 1; Alameda, 1; Cloverdale, 1; San Francisco, 117) 131; W. C. King (Grass Valley, 30; Nevada City, 23; Forest City, 1) 54. In all, 215.

IOWA, according to the State Register voted for the amendment, aggregate majorities of 50,726 and majorities against it of 21,817 leaving a majority of 28,909 in its favor. The press despatches stated first that the vote was very light, which was false. And because the Iowa election was a triumph for the right, they have been entirely silent upon the most vitally important event that has occurred in this country since the close of the war of secession; while they have daily nauseated the public with colums of useless swill about Irish land leag meetings and leag of deliverance doings and Democratic machine operations.

SEASIDE.—The Pacific Churchman makes a good kindly suggestion that while people of means are going to the seaside and springs and other summer resorts for relief from the turmoil of the city and the monotony of their daily employments, they might much enhance the pleasure of their holiday by remembering those whose means do not permit such an indulgence and helping some of them to enjoy a similar relief. There is many a widow who toils late and early to provide for her children, that would be much benefited by a little out in the country or to the seaside and the little folks would prize it immensely. And the richest enjoyment of all would come and stay with the generous heart that devoted a little of his means to buy a day or two of sweet sunshine and happiness for the weary poor.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—The public instalation at Santa Cruz took place at the Hall of No. 4, Eureka Division, on Tuesday, July 11th, by G. W. Patriarch Rev. L. N. Barber; Judge Curtis acting as Grand Conductor. Were entertained with an address by Elder J. W. Webb and an interesting program of music, recitations etc., and an address by Chaplain Rev. W. Bennett in favor of determined and united action in enforcing the Sunday law. This proposition was loudly cheered. An ample supper was then spread and vigorously discussed. The meeting was in every way a success. Miss Lottie Sagar presided at the organ. D. M. Lindsay is W. P. and H. Glenn R. S. of No. 4. J. W. W.

"DON'T forget that the State Convention of the Prohibition party is to meet in this city to-day. We trust that the hotels will not raise their prices on account of the crowd."—Examiner. The Examiner's enthusiasm in favor of the beer den and whisky Sunday school exploded in the above item which the compositor and proofreader both forgot to label as a joke. No, the attendance was not an overpowering one; there was an entire lack of the attractions which gathered the clans at San Jose. There was no Hearst with his coin sacks, no barrels of Democratic inspiration on free tap at the surrounding grogshops and nobody to set out free lunches for the patriots anxious to sell their votes—and there was an entire absence of such patriots and the C. P. R. R. Co's., agents were not the manipulators of the convention. The Examiner is invited to reproduce that same little "joke" on the 8th November next.

PROHIBITION.—Bro. John Robinson's letter is given its place in the RESCUE; it can do no harm to hear all sides of the question. It is a matter of serious dout whether anything at all can be expected favorable for temperance from the Republican party. But there is no reason to dout that it could now fortify itself beyond all danger of successful assault, if it would give us honest, temperance candidates on an out and out prohibitory platform and a stringent rest day plank. There are so many Republican managers and counselors who drink that they are blinded like all drinkers and cannot take in a commonsense landscape. Every Republican who don't drink, believes prohibition energetically and sincerely proclaimed by one of the old parties would lead it to triumph against all opposition. If either old party would take the side of the people and the home against the human butchers of the liquor traffic, it would be better for us than to have to form a new party. It is possible the blindness may be removed; there is no reason but pure wickedness and corrupt politics why it should not. If there is no prohibition in the other parties Bro. Robinson's letter will be in order and it will not be too late to choose our separate course of action.

UNDER THE "FLAG OF THE FREE."

A WHITE HOUSE SKETCH.

"[President Arthur has gained the approval of all the drunkard-makers, outlaws, blackguards, gamblers and thieves of both sexes by his re-opening the White House as a dram shop; but we may be pretty sure that he has not gained by that act the affection or approval of one really respectable citizen.—RESCUE.]

Rum is restored to the White House—
Turned to a liquor saloon;
Revel from morn to the midnight,
Drunk from the midnight to noon!
Up at the head of the nation,
Plain that the people may see,
License and Revenue flourish,
Under the "flag of the free."

Rum in the East and the Green rooms,
Wine from the parlor to hall,
Brandy and gin in the cellars,
Liquors of all kinds on call!
"Come to the national bar-room—
Drinks all around let it be;
Here's to the glories of license,
Under the "flag of the free."

Here's to success of party—
Revenue, license and drink:
Down with all temperance "fanatics,"
Urging our voters to think—
Mixing their voting with praying—
Making them both to agree—
Down with religion and Sabbath
Under the "flag of the free!"

There from the wall of the East room,
Gazes a womanly face,
Queenly yet tenderly, sadly
Viewing each guest in his place;
Smiting with mem'ry his conscience,
Chilling his bacchanal glee,
Telling of hearts he has broken,
Under the "flag of the free!"

"Out" cries the chief of the banquet,
"Out," cries each shivering guest—
"Out with that face of reproving Giving us constant unrest!"
"Out," cries the liquor leag madly,
"Four years of traffic did she
Take from our stills at the Mansion
Under the "flag of the free!"

So, to please liquor and party,
So, to please guests and their host,
No more in East room that picture
Troubles that bacchanal toast.
Time it was e'en for a shadow,
Honored by Garfield, to flee
From his insulting successor,
Under the "flag of the free!"

Shame to the whisky curse holding
Revel, where sorrow late reigned;
Where with the life-blood of Garfield,
Floor of the White House was stained,
Shame, that the picture accorded
Room by his friendly decree,
Rum should remove, where he placed it,
Under the "flag of the free."

Vengeance is coming full swiftly,
Out of the nation to sweep
Drink and its horrible traffic—
Licensed, though thousands should weep!
Down with its slav'ry that fetters
Victims of every degree!
Then may we boast of true freedom
Under the "flag of the free!"

SPEECH BY SIR WILFRID LAWSON.

But now I come to another set of friends, who have already been touched upon, and those are the doctors. They have been strong friends, as the Cardinal said, of this enemy of the human race. It is a very odd thing—I cannot explain it—I am only going to advert to it—that medical science has not made more advance than it has done, and that we are no further forward than we are in the matter at this stage of the world's history, because you would think that the science of health must have been a matter interesting to the whole of the human race ever since the first man appeared on the face of this world. Everybody has a stomach, and most people have brains to a greater or less extent, and it must have been an object with everybody to keep his bodily health and his mental powers in the highest state of preservation. It must have been an object with everybody to know what was likely to injure him and what was likely to benefit him, and we know that doctors have studied for all these ages, and I am not sure that the ablest doctor would not have been the first to confess that his profession is still very much at sea in most matters even still. One of the greatest of them said not long since that the science of medicine was "based on conjecture and improved by murder." No layman would have dared to say so; but still, facts, I think, bear him out. What extraordinary doctrines they propounded for ages, and were quite angry if anybody disputed them. There are plenty of people not very old who can remember how doctors used to say at one time that bleeding was a sovereign cure for almost all evils. Why, if a doctor were to bleed a patient now, I am not sure that he would not find himself before long in prison. Then there is vaccination. I dare say vaccination may be all right. The doctors stick up for it just as boldly as they did for bleeding, and there is a possibility that it may be just as wrong. Do not let anybody say that I said so. Mr. Burns says that they opposed it in the first instance just as violently as they crack it up now, so that they were right once—that is certain. When doctors were thus at sea in so many matters people began to doubt whether they were the infallible creatures that they set themselves up to be. I remember a newspaper (I suppose it was an Irish one) saying "We expected this week to have had the record of a wedding and a death, but a storm came on which prevented the wedding taking place, and the doctor fell ill so the patient recovered." These doctors, who were very often wrong, said for a long time that the great thing was for everybody to take drink. I am sorry to say that the clergy helped them for a good while. There are plenty of clergy here to defend themselves, so I may speak boldly. There is a passage in Timothy where something is said about Timothy having a little wine—only a little—for his stomach's sake, and when my friend the old Dean of Carlisle came first into the county where I live, he said he was astonished to find what a vast number of the clergy in Cumberland suffered from the Timothy complaint. Timothy was a great character with the clergy for a long time; and he was employed to resist the temperance reformation. I heard of an Irishman who signed the pledge, but his clergyman did not much approve of this abstinence system, and so he quoted the case of Timothy who was told to take a little wine for his stomach's sake. "Sure, your reverence," said the man, "that was all right enough, but my name was not Timothy, and I have nothing the matter with my stomach." Well, Mr. Chairman, as time advanced and as intelligence was spread abroad on the face of the earth, and as people like you and like my friend Mr. Cadbury, whom I see here, devoted themselves to preaching the truths of abstinence. this absurd notion about alcohol strengthening people and doing them good and being a necessary of life began to be exploded. It was not all very plain sailing with the teetotalers who adjured people to give up drink. They had a rough time of it at first. They were misrepresented. They were called miserable, half-starved fellows, and it was related in the newspapers how, when a tetotaler died, they had an inquest and a post mortem and found lumps of ice in his stomach. But the truth made its way in spite of all this nonsense. The facts came out. It was found that men could do more work without drink than with it. It was found that they were better without it in every way. There is a very curious proof of that. You know we keep a great number of people in this country in what are called the "Queen's Hotels." You know what I mean. Places where they are taken up by the police and looked after by jailers. I mean the public jails; and in these "Queen's Hotels" they never give them any alcoholic drink at all, and I believe there has never been a single case of a man being sent to jail, whether an Irish member or what he was, who was not better for having the drink cut off and being kept on a system of total abstinence. That was a striking illustration that men could do without drink.

(To be Continued.)

WHY IS BEER REFRESHING?

No. 44.

Because there is water in it. Ordinary beer has from 90 to 95 parts water in 100; and water is refreshing because it is the natural source of supply for the fluids of the body. The blood is largely water, so is the eye and its tears, the saliva of the mouth, the gastric juice of the stomach, as well as much of the brain and lungs, and other soft parts. Much of this water is constantly passing off in sensible or insensible perspiration, and if it is not replenished we become faint and thirsty. Water revives and freshens us, because it brings all these fluids and semi-fluids to their proper consistency, that is their best working order, and then everything goes on smoothly again. No other fluid but water will do this work properly; or if the drinks are known by other names, such as milk, fruit-juice, etc., the water they contain does the work.

We wonder what the wine and beer drinkers would say to that if they knew it, especially those who so often assume to laugh at the water-drinker. As Dr. Richardson says in his "Lesson Book," they hold up some colored liquor in a glass and boast, "This is my drink! None of your slip-slop water for me!" Poor people, they are drinking slip-slop water and they have merely added another slip-slop which has no business there and spoils the natural intention.

But then, beer has another effect, which some people call refreshing. They take it when they are tired because it "goes to the right spot," and they feel more rested than they do when they drink merely water. This is mostly due to the alcohol, which has the power of paralyzing the feelings. It does not really rest the drinker, it merely prevents his knowing how tired he is; in short, it deceives him. This is what it did to the poor tired dressmaker. She felt relieved, rested, refreshed, and so she took up her work again, and thought she could do a great deal more. But somehow she bungled what she tried to do, and finally she took another glass of beer—the first "had done her so much good"—and after that she concluded to work no more that night. She forgot to question how much the beer had helped her do.

Did it really refresh her? Perhaps the water did so; but it would have done far more good had there been no alcohol with it or any stupefying hops. A better thing would be to take a little fruit or fruit-juice and water, a sherbet, a lemonade, or some other light refreshment, and a little rest, lying down for a few minutes. It is easy to say "no time;" but Dr. Richardson says that five minutes' actual rest is worth more than a glass of wine or beer in its immediate effects, and still more in its effects; and you will be likely to spend more than five minutes in drinking the beer.

So far from being satisfying and refreshing, it seems only to create a thirst for more. They do say that the beer-maker or the beer-seller puts in salt and resin and other things to create thirst. This was its effect upon an intelligent English harvester. He says when engaged in the harvest-field, and accustomed to drink beer, his mouth became parched with thirst, and the oftener he drank beer the more frequently he became thirsty. He was afflicted also with a loss of relish of food followed by weakness and trembling, which were entirely cured by abstinence. How can such a drink be called refreshing? We should call it a deception and a fraud! The money is gone, the drink is poured down, the system is stuffed up or pickled down with salt and alcohol and resin, the water is run through, and the drinker worse off in several respects, and just as thirsty as he was before. Please excuse us from such "refreshments."

JUNE REPORT. ABSTRACT OF WORK.

Meetings, etc.	Attendance.
24 Noon day meetings	175
3 Wednesday evening	25
4 Sunday P. M.	145
1 Association meeting	45
2 Street meetings	350
Other meetings	30
1 Concert (Old Folks)	300
30 Days Reading Room	543
Total	1613

The influence of a summer month has been seen in a somewhat lessened attendance at our meetings, but no ground has been lost.

At the Co. jail the association has not yet been allowed to resume religious services, but something has been done by personal visits and conversation with the prisoners, and the distribution of Testaments, tracts, and suitable newspapers. We hope to resume regular work there in September or October.

June 18th, Street Preaching was taken up as a department of association work. The meetings held have been well attended with good interest shown. Free use has been made of our Invitation cards and of the McDonald Temperance circulars at these meetings.

Under the auspices of the Ladies Central Committee an excellent Old Folks concert was given on the 6th of June, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. furnishing fund. The ladies have on hand about $140 for this purpose.

The regular monthly meeting of the association was enlivened by an admirable address from Judge Henry on "Temperance." All present were greatly pleased and profited thereby.

Our General Secretary, D. S. Fuller, having accepted our "call" will arrive early in August, and probably assume charge about the 15th. ANDREW J. HANSON, Pres.

SUNDAY IN POLITICS.

As we predicted months ago, the Sunday-law question has gotten conspicuously into the politics of California, and will no doubt become one of the main points at issue before the next election passes off. We do not believe this matter has presented itself in the proper shape. It seems to us that the Democrats of this State took a very unwise course in allowing the matter of a Sunday law to intrude itself into their platform. If it is a purely sanitary law, then it is not a proper matter to make one of the principles or planks of a great political party? It is considered as a religious question; then has it no place in our politics? Of course the plank in the Democratic platform as it stands, declaring against "sumptuary" laws, is well enough, but when it it is made to mean a declaration against the Sunday law, we say it is not a proper thing to have a place on any party platform. If the present Sunday is improper, and if the matter of its repeal is to be submitted to the people, it should be submitted in a simple proposition. As it now is, a man is, in fact, pledged against the Sunday law so soon as he accepts a nomination on the Democratic ticket, and a man advocates its repeal by voting that ticket. —Hanford Journal.

THE Cincinnati Gazette says that "if German laws were extended to Cincinnati every brewer in the city would be in jail; and every bit of his property would be confiscated." Germans are obliged to obey laws while in Germany, but in America they trample them under their feet."

"THE WOMEN OF AMERICA vs. THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC"

President, Mrs. D. P. Browne, Blake House, Oakland.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.

Mrs. G. S. Abbott, Oakland; Mrs. John McNear, Petaluma; Mrs. M. A. Nash, Santa Rosa; Mrs. W. R. Spencer, Grass Valley; Miss W. Bell, San Jose; Miss Sarah P. Morrison, San Jose; Mrs. J. B. Hill, Alameda.

Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Congdon, 314 Sutter St. S. F.

Assistant Secretary, Miss M. J. Havens, Blake House, Oakland.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Wickersham, Petaluma.

ORIGIN AND OBJECTS.

The Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, with its twenty-four auxiliary State Unions, is the largest Society ever composed exclusively of women, and conducted entirely by them. So far as reported (the returns are very incomplete), there were at the close of last year, 1,654 local auxiliaries, with a membership of 34,317, and 494 juvenile organizations. It is the lineal descendant of the great Temperance crusade in 1873–74, and is a union of Christian women of all churches for the purpose of educating the young; forming a better public sentimeut; reforming the drinking classes; transforming, by the power of Divine grace, those who are enslaved by alcohol; and removing the dram-shop from our streets by law.

FROM THE GOVERNOR OF WYOMING.

Our honorable colleague, Eld. D. H. Heckathorn, was always opposed to Woman Suffrage until recently. Mr. Heckathorn determined to make inquiries into it and see, whether or not Suffrage was a "success or a failure," thereupon he wrote to Gov. Hoyt, of Wyoming Territory, and received the following reply:

TERRITORY OF WYOMING, EX. DEP.,
CHEYENNE, JUNE 24, 1882,

D. H. HECHATHORN, JAMESTOWN, IND.—DEAR SIR:—There are no papers in Wyoming opposed to Woman Suffrage; all are in favor of it. A paper opposing it would find no support among a people fully committed to the doctrine of equality.

Herewith I send you a copy of an address on this subject, recently delivered by me in Philadelphia.

Very Respectfully, JOHN W. HOYT."

Wyoming has had an opportunity to test the question of making women citizens and the general conviction is for ever settled that women make as good voters, as good citizens, as good officials, as good jurors and as good every way as a naturalized Russian, Portuguese or Greek bandit or street organ-grinder.

Having had a practical experience of the fitness of women to be citizens, for the past 12 years, it would seem that if any evil had resulted they would have discovered it. But the fact is, the most inveterate opponents of womens equal rights have become entirely converted to the new and better interpretation of justice and equality.

It will be conceded by all observent people that had we been accustomed like the Chinese for a few centuries to cripple the feet of women or to flatten their heads or blacken their teeth as some Savages do, the endeavor to create a revolution against the practice and abolish it, would have met with a similar opposition from the peculiar sect of our excellent friends who on principle declare war against every innovation upon old customs and are only converted by hard work and persistent argument to submit grumblingly to one slow step of progress at a time.

An incontestible proof of this peculiarity in so many good well meaning people who fight any change for good or ill, is found in the fact that there has been a long established habit of beating women with shovels and axe handles and stove lifters and altho not a man openly declares that such a thing should be permitted to continue, or that it is right, just or merciful to beat and kill women—it is about the most difficult task ever attempted to persuade a large proportion of our exemplary citizens, to take a single step or do a single act in the direction of abolishing the dearly cherished, time honored, tradition enshrined privileges of wife beating and mother cuffing.

It is more than ordinarily inconsistent in Good Templars to resist even justice to women, for our Order has advocated and enforced the most perfect equality of the sexes in voting and holding office. And not the least inconvenience has come from it; on the contrary it is not likely that any Good Templar will attempt to deny that this wise provision in the founding of the Order has been a constant blessing to it and to the world. Doutless it has exerted a most healthful influence in bringing the subject of woman's capacities before the world.

If it has been good and is good to-day that woman should have equal rights and equal duties in the Order of Good Templars and in other temperance Societies and if women should properly be permitted to be teachers and school officials as they are in many places, there is evidently a greater necessity to have the benefit of womans sacred purifying and conserving infiuence as a helpmeet and counselor by the side of man in all the cares and trials and enterprises and employments that are engaged in for the common welfare and the common safety.

Iowa has got prohibition and next proceeds to scoop the word male out of its constitution and extinguish injustice to women as it has done the liquor traffic by 50,000 majority. The question of female equality has been passed upon by one legislature of Iowa, has to pass the next and then go to the vote of the people.

IN HIS OWN COIN.

"Is this seat engaged?" he asked of the prettiest girl in the car, and, finding it wasn't he put his sample-box in the rack and braced himself for solid enjoyment.

"Pleasant day," said the girl, coming for him before he could get his tongue unlinked. "Most bewildering day, isn't it?"

"Ye-yes, miss," stammered the drummer.

"Nice weather for traveling," continued the girl, "much nicer than when it is cold. Are you perfectly comfortable?"

"Oh, yes; thanks!" murmured the drummer.

"Glad of it," resumed the girl, cheerfully. "You don't look so. Let me put my shawl under your head, won t you? Hadn't you rather sit next to the window and have me describe the landscape to you?"

"No, please," he muttered. "I—I'm doing well enough."

"Can't I buy you some pea-nuts, or a book? Let me do something to make the trip happy. Suppose I slip my arm around your waist! Just lean forward a trifle so I can."

"You'll—you'll have to excuse me!" gasped the wretched drummer. "I—I don't think you really mean it!"

"You look so tired," she pleaded. "Wouldn't you like to rest your head on my shoulder? No one will notice. Just lay your head right down, and I'll tell you stories."

"No—no, thanks! I won't to-day! I'm very comfortable, thank you!" and the poor drummer looked around helplessly.

"Your scarf-pin is coming out. Let me fix it. There!" and she arranged it deftly. "At the next station I'll get you a cup of tea, and when we arrive at our destination you'll let me call on you?" and she smiled an anxious prayer right up into his pallid countenance.

"I think I'll go away and smoke," said the drummer, and hauling down his grip-sack he made a dive for the door, knee-deep in the grins showered around him by his fellow passengers.

"Strange !" murmured the girl to the lady in front of her. "I only did with him just what he's ready to do with me, and big and strong as he is he couldn't stand it. I realy think women have stronger stomachs than men and beside that there isn't any smoking car for them to fly to for refuge. I don't understand this thing."

But she settled back contentedly all the same; and at a convention of drummers held in the smoker that morning it was unanimously resolved that her seat was engaged, so far as they were concerned, for the balance of the season.—Neb. Liberator.

HARD TO BEAT.

In passing along Sansome street one day last week, our attention was attracted to a number of suspicious looking barrels labeled "Hard to Beat." That is true; well, it is about the only true thing we ever saw stated about liquor by a dealer in it. It is hard to beat. We have known tens of thousands in our time who have tried to beat it, but never one was successful. It has beaten them all; and has driven them from the contest in disgrace—some to suicide, some to the gallows, more to prisons and still more to starvation, the alms-house and pottersfield—all to dishonorable and ignominious fates. Truly, it is hard to beat. But its triumph over its victims does not end with their individual humiliation. It invariably involves their families and immediate friends in calamities equally great, and fills them and all who love them with woes unspeakable. It drives pure wives and innocent loving daughters to lives of shame; drags the minister from his pulpit, palsies the tongue of eloquence; drowns the strain of poesy; plucks the roses from the cheek of beauty, subdues the spirit of heroism; thwarts the plans of the warrior; brings the statesaman into disgrace; neutralizes education; debauches and barbarizes men and women, and turns human society into a saturnalia of vice and shame and crime, deplorable to contemplate, and shameful as it is deplorable. But its accursed influence does not stop here. It keeps our divorce courts employed; fills our orphan asylums and madhouses; makes brothers murderers of each other, and children murderers of their parents. Maddened by its fire from hell, fathers beat their little children to death; husbands and wives destroy each other; fathers are slain by sons and sons by fathers. It is indeed, and in truth hard to beat; so hard that sensible and humane men and women should give up the contest and beat it from civilization by refusing to touch it. It performs no friendly mission in the world; but is an implacable foe to every good thing, a perpetual breeder of strife and discord, and everywhere the instrument and abettor of disease, crime and death. Surely the time will come when society enraged by the evils this shame inflicts upon it will rise up and destroy it—beat it by exterminating the last vestige of it—uprooting its foundations.—Emancipator.

JOHN WESLEY AND THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

For the benefit of our Methodist temperance brethren, who have not been careful on the 20th to vote in the interests of prohibition, we give these extracts from the writings of John Wesley. In a sermon, published in 1760, he says.

" Drams or spirituous liquors are liquid fire, and all who manufacture or sell them, except as medicine, are poisoners generally. They murder his Majesty's subjects by wholesale—they drive them to hell like sheep. The curse of God is in their gardens, their walks, their groves. Blood—blood, is there: the foundation, the floor, the walls, the roof of their dwellings are stained with blood!"

And a letter published December 1st, 1772, in Lloyd's Evening Post, contains the following, signed by him:

* * * "Have we not reason to believe that half of the wheat produced in the kingdom is every year consumed, not by so harmless a way as throwing it into the sea, but by converting it into a deadly poison—poison that destroys not only the strength and life but also the morals of our countrymen? Well, but this brings in a large revenue to the King! Is this an equivalent for the lives of his subjects? Would his Majesty sell a hundred thousand of his subjects yearly to Algiers for four hundred thousand pounds? Surely no; will he, then, sell them for that sum to be butchered by their own countrymen? 'But otherwise the swine for the navy cannot be fed.' Not unless they are fatted with human flesh! Not unless they are fatted with human blood! Oh! tell it not in Constantinople, that the English raise the royal revenue by selling the blood and flesh of their own countrymen!" —Crusader.

It seems strange that John Wesley, 120 years ago was up with this present day of 1882; and lots of men now living that have had the benefit of his judgment and experience and in addition all the light and knowledge that have since been diffused, are now 250 years behind John Wesley. It is a marvel how he could get so far ahead into the light, but a much greater wonder how they can have bored away so far back into the darkness.

OUR OBJECT LESSON.

Again the Hayes commission comes before you with this subject. The pictures, for which subscriptions have been received, have been sent out, and surely there was never so large an expression of delight from every one; there has scarcely been known one shadow of a disappointment. "Well worth waiting for," "much finer than we anticipated," "lovely," "beautiful," etc., etc., have been the words written. To-day comes a voice from Spain, "We are much pleased with it, and hope that its influence may be for good among the girls of our school, so that it may spread thru the land." John B. Gough, Mrs. Garfield, Dr. Merrick, Mrs. Senator Blair, and hundreds of others, have expressed their gratification with the picture, and the hope it may fill a glorious mission. This it will do when placed in every school-room in the land. If, in each city and town, one energetic, earnest woman will tell the children of this beautiful memorial, and tell them how easily they can raise money for it for their school-room, it will be done, and this lovely object lesson in total abstinence will ever give its monitions. In many places one child has taken it in hand and speedily and easily raised the money. Collection cards for securing the money in small sums, will be furnished on application to the Treasurer, Miss Esther Pugh, 54 Bible House, New York City. All subscriptions should be addressed to her, and she is prepared now to send the picture by return mail. We hope thousands will be called for, and that no school-room nor Sabbath-school, no W. C. T. U. room, nor Good Templar lodge will be considered furnished till this charming testimonial looks from its walls.—Our Union.

Returns Received.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged: Nos. 176, 202, 232, 262, 312, 407, 441.

STOCKTON.—Mt. Vernon Lodge, No. 254 of Stockton celebrated the anniversary of the Order in becoming manner last week in the new Good Templars Hall, which was filled to its fullest capacity, many of the auditors finding standing room only throughout the exercises. The hall was described at length in the RESCUE, June 22d, page 536, and proved to be one of the completest halls for Lodge room and social purposes in the state. It reflects great credit upon the energy and enterprise of the good citizens of Stockton, many of whom subscribed liberally toward the enterprise, although not members of the Order. Bro. W. W. Cowell acted as Master of ceremonies, and after the singing of an opening ode, in which the audience united, introduced the R. W. G. T. who delivered an address upon the objects, principles and aims of the I. O. G. T., and who was complimented by the closest attention of the very large audience, notwithstanding the almost suffocating condition of the atmosphere. Following the address were vocal solos by Mrs. A. M. Noble and Mr. Chas. Pinkham and the dancing of the "highland fling" by two "wee Scotch lassies" in highland costume. The evening's entertainment concluded with a temperance dramatic representation entitled the "Last Loaf:" Refreshments were then served in the commodious and well appointed dining hall. As an admission fee was charged, it is hoped Mt. Vernon Lodge will reap a substantial financial benefit from the occasion. The newspapers of Stockton all gave the kindliest notices of the affair, the Evening Herald giving nearly a column synopsis of the address. With the kind disposition of the press, the co-operation of leading citizens, and comfortable, not to say luxurious hall accomodations, it would seem that a proper degree of energy displayed by the Good Templars of Stockton should win it over completely to the side of morality and temperance. Many old friendships were renewed and new acquaintances fomed of the pleasantest character. Quite a number of visitors were present from "abroad" among others J. T. Bloomer L. D. of Ripon Lodge, No. 315; Bro. W. H. Gilmore L. D. of Granger Lodge, No. 295, San Jose; Miss M. M. Blower L. D. of Summit Lodge, No. 125, Plymouth. Sister E. E. Goldsworthy (that was), the present R. W. G. D. M. and formerly of San Jose, was found present rejoicing in a "new name" upon which circumstance all the representatives and visitors at the last session of the Grand Lodge will unite in congratulating her fortunate husband, Bro. Parmelee of Stockton Lodge, No. 182. Bro. E. L. Moore L. D. of Wildwood Lodge, Atlanta, was also present and a number of other visitors whose names are not easily recalled. To Bro. W. W. Cowell and his estimable wife who extended the hospitalities of their home, as to one and all of the Good Templars and citizens of the "city of windmills" who united in many courtesies, grateful acknowledgment is rendered.

RETURNED.—The Grand Lodge office was honored with a call on Wednesday of last week from the G. W. Counselor Bro. H. S. Graves and wife who were en route for "Home Sweet Home" after an absence of two months in the Eastern and Southern states visiting friends and relatives and attending the recent session of the R. W. G. L. Bro. G. expressed his pleasure at returning to the land of his adoption and will no doubt renew his temperance work with more vigor to compensate for the time lost to his district during his absence. All who know brother and sister Graves will unite in a hearty "Welcome Home."

A GENEROUS DEED.—Though not a "beneficial society," in the general acceptation of that term, yet the Order of Good Templars is a dispenser of material aid and assistance in a degree equal to that of more pretentious institutions. At a recent meeting of Siloam Lodge No. 2 a member who had been absent was reported in a distressed financial condition by reason of long continued illness. Without drawing upon the Lodge funds or any extraordinary exertions, messengers sped to the distressed household and deposited a goodly load of provisions and a purse of gold, as a reminder that though absent from the Lodge councils, the member was not forgotten. The spontaniety of the movement and the prompt response of the membership, constitute acts of that greatest of all virtues—Charity in the highest degree.

PERSONALS.—The following persons members of the Order, favored the G. W. S. with passing calls during the past week. Bro. W. C. King, special canvasser for the RESCUE, who departed hence on a canvasing tour through Nevada county.....Bro. J. Hardy of June Lodge No. 321, Sutter county..... Sister Bertha Fowler of Valley Ford Lodge No. 156, who is spending a short vacation in Sacramento .....Bro. P. H. Mulcahy G. W. S. of the Grand Lodge of Nevada passed through Sacramento accompanied by Bro. F. J. Culver who visits the sage brush State as a special Grand Lecturer.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb and Hugh R. Hughes.

J. W. WEBB.

MORRO is a small place that once had Good Samaritan Lodge. Fair audiences; no show for Lodge or Band of Hope just yet, tho I obligated a number of children and gave them pledges. Mr. J. S. Stocking and wife were very hospitable; strong temperance people; Bro. Rev. Wenk lives here and can be depended on for the cause.

CAYUCOS is a pretty little seaside town; unfortunately the Swiss, who are opposed to temperance, are getting numerically stronger than others and the earnest efforts of a few to sustain a Lodge and Band of Hope have failed for the present. Sisters Gemmill and McMillan earnestly desired a B. of H. but failing in that are doing what they can in the S. School for temperance. All have my thanks but especially Bro. and Sister Gemmill whose guest I was.

OLD CREEK gave a fair audience gathered on short notice, Mrs. Goldsworth, the school teacher gave good assistance. Mr. Chas. Clark, formerly Lodge and State deputy, under Capt. Woods administration, at Linden, San Joaquin Co., lives here, is a subscriber to the RESCUE and as staunch a temperance man as ever.

CAMBRIA has a good Lodge and Band of Hope. Several lectures resulted in obtaining 15 names among them Rev. Mr. Rice, Mr. Jas. Campbell, of the livery stable and others. Met with Lodge to encourage and instruct. Bro. Thaddeus Sherman, Lodge Deputy, and wife entertained me handsomely and seconded all my efforts. Judge Rigdon, John Woods and many others might be named as faithful workers. The choir gave us good inspiring singing. The Lodge and public are now hoping that Sister May Guthrie will visit this place before very long, and I am trying so to manage. If circumstances will permit, she has promised me to make the attempt between this and Grand Lodge since a number of lodges have urgently invited her to lecture for them.

GREEN VALLEY has a good, moral, church-going community and I think a Lodge is possible here if the District Lodge or San Luis Obispo and Cambria Lodges will work up the interest started by the lecturer's visit.

JOSEPHINE is an old quicksilver mining place, mine not worked now because it does not pay. Very good meeting: Mr. Lindner and J. T. Walker live a few miles off and came over. They are strong prohibitionists and would go into a lodge were not the people so scattered as to make its permanence very doutful. For a long time they did sustain open temperance meetings. Both traveled several miles to vote for Neal Dow at the last Presidential election.

H. R. HUGHES.

AMADOR Co.—Our cause and Order are very flourishing in this county. They have 17 lodges in working order. I visited those in the lower end of the county when going up to El Dorado county, and visited most of the others on my trip down.

At Shenandoah, meeting small; farmers very busy harvesting.

At Oleta, had a splendid meeting; lodge prosperous, and the cause gaining ground.

At Plymouth, Summit Lodge and the Band of Hope turned out in regalia, accompanied by the brass band, escorted me through Main street to the church, where we had a very fair meeting. A traveling troupe and some other counter attractions prevented our having a crowded meeting.

At Drytown and Quartz Mountain, meetings small; Iron Clad and Golden Crown are the mother and baby lodges of the county.

At Pine Grove, they turned out very well; have a good lodge.

At Volcano, we had a good meeting, but not the enthusiasm that used to pervade temperance meetings there. The town is not as prosperous as formerly, and the lodge has suffered from that and some other causes. Rev. Ezra Haskell, the present L. D., and his good lady, are working hard, with others of the faithful few, to get a "turn in the tide."

At West Point, in Calaveras county, found that the lodge met but once after its organization, and, out of 19 present, but 3 or 4 were willing to go on, as they objected to taking a life-long obligation. They had a big school-party the night previous, and were too sleepy to attend a temperance meeting. Talked with a number of the families, and promised to return at some future time.

At Glencoe, some of the mines have shut down, parties have moved away, and the new lodge fell through. Dr. Laurence had the school-house engaged for a week for scientific lectures, and so I had to defer any present effort to revive either of those lodges.

Thus terminates my seven weeks' work—mostly in El Dorado and Amador counties—taking in remote points in the west and northern part of this county, and organizing one new lodge at Mackville, San Joaquin county.

ANGELS, July 8, 1882.

WM. CROWHURST.

At You Bet, our second lecture was well attended, much enthusiasm was manifested and as a result we organized Earnest Lodge with 18 earnest members, Mrs. Fena Blue, sister of Sister Frost of Dutch Flat, as L. D, and Bro. Herrick, W. C. T.

Quaker Hill being a deserted Camp, a visit there was useless, hence, we proceeded one day earlier to Nevada City, and commenced arranging for July programme. On Friday night, met with the Lodge and enjoyed a very pleasant evening, exemplified and "orated."

Arrangements were made for the lectures which were given on Saturday and Sunday nights in the Congregatioual Church, Prof. Cowdery presiding at the request of the Lodge of which he is a member, P. W. C. T., and not too proud to act as W. O. G. The first meeting was well attended under the circumstances and bid fair to usher in a larger and more enthusiastic meeting for Sunday night.

At second meeting, Rev. J. Sims, Pastor, very impressively read Prov. xxiii, and offered a fervent prayer to "Our Father in Heaven," after which the lecture was delivered to an audience occupying the entire seating capacity of the large church. At the close of the meeting a unanimous vote of thanks was moved by the Pastor and adopted by the audience. On Monday night a Parlor Exemplification meeting was held and about 14 members learned the entire private work of all three degrees.

At this place we found Bro. W. F. Englebright, a former member and P. W. C. T. of Vallejo Lodge, and brother of the young lady, Sister Loraine Englebright, who so ably and gracefully presided over Vallejo Lodge during last Grand Lodge Session.

Here also we found Sister Anna R. Congdon, sister-in-law of Sister Congdon of the W. C. T. U., 1st assistant teacher in the Prescott Grammar School, Oakland, formerly a member and P. W. V. T. of old Vallejo Lodge, and the originator of the prize idea in the S. F. public schools which was so effectively carried out through the munificent generosity of Dr. R. H. McDonald.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

NORTHERN D L meets in I O G T Hall, Arcata, Humboldt Co., July 29.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

At the regular stated meeting of Stockton Lodge I.O.G.T. held on Tuesday evening, July 11, 1882, the following resolutions were proposed and unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The Hon. Otis Perrin, Grand Marshal of the day, at the banquet given by him to the Aids, General Ketchum and Staff, and other citizens on the 4th of July last, offered to his guests no refreshments in the shape of wines and liquors, stating at the same time that in thus departing form established custom he was actuated by conscientious motives alone. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the earnest thanks of this Lodge and of all friends of the Temperance Cause are due to that gentleman for the noble example thus given, as inaugurating a precedent which it is hoped will become universal throughout our State and country.

Resolved, That the Secretary be requested to present a copy of these resolutions to Mr. Perrin and also to forward a copy to the RESCUE for publication.

ORRIN S. HENDERSEN, Sec'y.

Stockton, July 12, 1882.

VENTURA CO. DIST. LODGE, I. O. G. T.

The Ventura Co. Dist. Lodge convened at Ventura on the 12th and 13th. A full delegation was in attendance; eight lodges represented, all doing well, and though not gaining in numbers very fast, all are working in harmony and are in a healthy condition.

Bro. F. E. Kellogg, fraternal delegate from Santa Barbara Co. Dist. Lodge was present, and gave a good report of the work in that county.

Discussions on the various subjects as stated in the printed programme had a good effect.

Sister May Guthrie of Springville, was recommended for D. D. for the ensuing year, and the officers were elected and installed, Rro. Kellog officiating. Sister May Guthrie was elected fraternal delegate to the Santa Barbara Co. Dist. Lodge to meet in August.

Bro. L. C. Clark of Hueneme, was recommended for a State deputy. The lectures delivered by Sister Guthrie and Bro. Kellog were as good as have ever been listened to in the place. They were supplemented by first-class music, all of which was well appreciated.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That each and every member of the I. O. G. T. of Ventura Co., do all in their power to have their respective parties nominate temperance and competent men for the various public offices, and as a leading step in that direction that all the voting members attend the primaries of their respective parties and at the general election work and support the above principles.

Resolved, That in the event of the great political parties failing to nominate such men it is our duty to call a Convention to nominate suitable men for above offices.

The next session of the D. L. will convene in Santa Paula early in October. MYRA WALBRIDGE.

DISTRICT LODGE.

ED. RESCUE.—Our District Lodge which met recently levied a per capita tax of 5 cents for the coming quarter, the lodge also voted to send one of Cooks publications to every voter in the county. We will send 4000 papers out monthly for one year. After revising the Great Register of the county we sent it to Cook for his mail list. About $100 has been subscribed.

We would suggest that each District Lodge would do well to inaugurate a movement of the same kind. We must not expect a temperance vote till the people are educated.

Bro. Pedlar, our D. D., is an efficient and active officer, and the work in this county will progress under his guidance.

A thriving Home Protection Association exists in San Jose, and one is to be organized in Santa Clara this week.

Santa Clara Lodge concluded a piano would be a desirable acquisition to the Lodge room, so a piano will be purchased next week.

ELMER E. CAREY.

OREGON.

At the open meeting of July 4, of Astoria Lodge I. O. G. T., Astoria, Oregon, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, By the grace of God, the temperance people were enabled to achieve a great victory in the State of Iowa on the 27th of June last, by carrying the Prohibition Amendment to the State Constitution by the great and decisive majority of twenty-nine thousand therefore be it

Resolved, That we heartily congratulate our noble brothers and sisters of Iowa, and the brothers everywhere upon this great victory over our common enemy, King Alcohol.

Resolved, That we sincerely thank all who were instrumental in bringing about this great victory, and especially do we feel that thanks are due from us, and from all who sympathize with our cause, to Gov. John P. St. John, John B. Finch, the Womans Christian Temperance Union and to all persons and organizations who by their persevering and untiring efforts in the field contributed so much towards the great result.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished each to the RESCUE, and the Temperance Herald for publication, and that a copy be suitably engrossed and forwarded to the Governor elect of Iowa.

GEYSERVILLE.—There is a temperance organization (a Blue Ribbon Club) in Oriental school district, Sonoma county, Cal., just across Russian river, opposite the little town of Geyserville, which for liveliness, advanced temperance ideas, and fearlessness in promulgating temperance principles, stands without a rival in this state, I verily believe. Mrs. Josephine Doan, a great friend of the RESCUE, and a woman who has done wonders in advancing the temperance cause in this section, (a portion of Cal., where every one nearly hopes to get rich through the successful manufacture of wine) requested the people of Oriental school district to meet and form some society that would benefit all, but especially the children. The heads of but one family came; a temporary organization was effected. The next Sunday, a Blue Ribbon Club was permanently organized. About thirty persons (young and old) being present. The third Sunday we had a full house, and thirty one (adults and children) joined the club.

At the time of camp-meeting, this club had flourished up to 96 enthusiastic members and Mrs. Doan assisted by a few faithful friends expects to capture the whole community in good time. M.

SAN DIEGO, July 8, 1882.

ED. RESCUE—The temperance folks of San Diego County will be glad to have an opportunity to welcome Miss Willard and her helper Miss Gordon. Extend the invitation at once. Let us have a grand temperance triumphal march thru the State. Invite Mrs. Emily Pitts Stevens to join the party.

A. B. HOTCHKISS.

AN appropriate monument to American civilization should be erected by the lovers of drink. High on a beer barrel should stand the drunken god clutching a bottle and a brand, pointing the nation down to hell, about him should be grouped war, murder, famine, seduction, beggary and insanity. There should be Miles Standish mixing his bowl of punch, and Piper beating the brains out of a little girl in a Boston church steeple. There should be an American sovereign hugging a lamp-post, and the serpent of the still coiled about the form of a crazy Columbia. There should be the scroll of the buried army of the intemperate and a maimed union soldier playing their funeral dirge on a hand-organ. In high relief should be sculptured on the pedestal the home of the drunkard's family and the palace of the distiller. The school house should be shown with broken windows in the shadows of a police station, and the church drawing its revenue from a brewery, whilst in its shadow heathenism worshiped the juggernaut of gin, and on the gate post of the grave-yard Belzebub pointed his finger at the parson.—Anvil.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, in this jurisdiction, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., Cal.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

LEAG OF FIENDOM CHURCHES.

"According to the saloon census California contains 8,658 retail liquor-dealers, and 270 wholesale ones. The number looks small on paper, but the amount of crime and suffering they cause each year, what tongue can utter it!"

That is 8,928 schools or mills in which to take the innocent youth of this state and educate and manufacture them into swearers, smokers, gamblers and criminals. Nearly 9,000 of these dens licensed by the government to rob, deprave and kill our own brothers and sisters. And there are doutless from 2,000 to 3,000 other dens unlicensed, as the police and city and county officials seldom care or dare to interfere with any ruffian who chooses to defy the law and run his murder mill without a license.

When the children who read this shall have lived to be classed among the old folks, they will find it hard to make the young people of that day believe that the government of this great country once derived its revenues largely from the license to kill off 100,000 of its citizens every year by the most cruel tortures and agonies, and for money permitted millions of its innocent women and children to live and die in misery and poverty and starvation to satisfy the merciless greed of the brewer and distiller who got rich with the price of the blood and tears and lives and souls of the innocent.

But their reign of blood and slauter, continued so long in the past, has but a few years more to run.

RADICAL; TO SAVE THE BOYS.

It is very unpleasant for one who writes every week to many thousands of people, to have to say harsh things of any class of our fellow men. But it is much more unpleasant to look on at the long procession of those who in Mrs. Richardson's song (King Bibblers Army) are "going down, down, down;" a procession of your brothers and sisters and mine, going down nearly 300 of them every day to the awful doom of the drunkards end.

It would be so much more pleasant to talk only of happy and joyous things, but because so many people have been having a nice time, visiting and singing and dancing and paying no attention to the evils around them, we know that in this beautiful country that God has made so rich and bounteous, laden with plenty of good things for every person old and young, there are millions of people suffering from privation, starvation, neglect and ill treatment. Most of them are children and women.

Because no body has talked about the sin and crime of keeping grogshops and beer dens to tempt people to be wicked and nasty, the country is overrun with these nests of pollution and their sole business is to begin to ruin boys and young men who have good homes and loving mothers and sisters; and to make them drunken and wicked. These dens are full of young and old people and because they visit these awfully wicked and loathesome resorts, the police courts and jails are crowded with them, the two penitentiaries, the industrial school, the house of correction, the poor house and the lunatic asylums are crammed with the victims of the beer dens.

Thousands of men, women and children, and mostly children, are starving and homeless, and in this country where everybody should be happy and hearty, nearly three hundred people are daily murdered by the rumsellers and brewers, who do this to make money without working as honest people have to do.

Now if these criminals who make all the sorrow and misery of this country could have their own way, every grown up man and every boy of 16 would be an idle, gambling, swearing, brutal drunkard and loafer, and every home in the land would be a den of strife and starvation and misery.

You can see they have done this thing already to every home whose men and boys they could train to drink; and they try to teach every man and boy to drink and loaf and be a rowdy, and therefore if they could entrap everybody, every one of us would be drunkards, every home would be ruined, and every one of us, men, women and children, would become like howling wild beasts, and worse.

That is the life the saloon-keepers and brewers have laid out for every one of you; and the RESCUE dont want them to capture you. It would be much more pleasant to say these saloon-keepers and brewers are noble, handsome, generous, good fellows and praise them and ask everybody to love them, as we talk about the members of the Band of Hope. But it would be false and wicked to do so. To save you from getting into the dismal procession of 300 that go every day thru the brewers slauter pen to death, to save you from being robbed and depraved and made miserable for life, we point them out truly to you and tell you they are setting traps and snares for your lives all the time. And you should avoid them exactly as you would tigers and wolves, and caution all others to do so. But for them everybody could be happy and joyous in this beautiful land that God has given us.

WORK OF THE MANKILLERS.

It is pretty safe to estimate the yearly deaths from drunkenness as follows, knowing the two first named to be within the mark.

Great Britain	117,000
United States, Canada and Mexico	100,000
France	60,000
Germany	60,000
Russia	100,000
Other European Countries	80,000
	517,000

If this is not an over estimate the brewers and liquor sellers send to the grave 1416 persons every day; 59 every hour, or every minute of the hour save one a ruined human soul slain by the merciless poison of the liquor leag, goes out into the dark unknown.

What an awful picture this presents of the murderous ravages of this satanic business which people are so slow to try to remove. There is every reason to believe 1416 a day is an under statement and the amount of woe and sorrow and misery and crime which it causes beside this is appalling. But if it is too large an estimate, let us thro off the 1000, and 416 a day would be an awful slauter; and then if we had to thro off the 400 also and leave it at 16 daily murders committed by a business that never did, never can, never will, do one particle of good; then we should have an appalling evil, and to fail to make daily protest against a daily slauter of 16 souls would seem to be a heartless cruelty and a mortal sin.

NOTES FROM THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT.

CAMP-MEETING.—As so much has been already said in these columns about our Guerneville Temperance Camp-meeting it will only be needful to mention that we had a children's meeting on Sunday afternoon, and were highly entertained with recitations and readings from members of the different Bands of Hope that sent delegates. My testimony must however be added to that of all others, that the camp-meeting was a decided success and a very profitable and interesting meeting. It will be long remembered with pleasure, particularly our homeward trip and the river we crossed.

CERTIFICATES OF MEMBERSHIP.—David C. Cook of Chicago is publishing among other good things for the Band of Hope a book containing 50 certificates of membership. This certificate is quite a handsome little affair, to be cut from the book, leaving a stub on which is written the name of the member receiving the certificate. Some superintendents have procured them and have given them to the children of their Band at a public meeting, making quite an interesting feature. These certificates are published at a nominal price, only fifteen cents for fifty. They are well worth the money and I heartily reccomend them.

CATECHISM.—Some of our good friends complain the Catechism is too dry, that the children do not understand it. It would be an excellent plan, as a worthy brother suggested recently, to take a single lesson in the catechism, study it up in all its points, and give a thoro explanation of it to the children, making it an object lesson when possible. If there are any words which the children cannot understand, explain them. Do not be contented with simply reading the lesson over. Catechisms are to be learned and fixed in the mind, and there is nothing so valuable as an aid to memory as an object lesson. There are lessons in our ritual, that are very valuable, and every Band of Hope member should learn them.

But do not forget, that to succeed in interesting the little people, they must have some amusement, as well as instruction. Julia Colman's Teachers Manual is an invaluable aid to Supts. She has such a happy way of imparting instruction that it must inspire any willing teacher with new and successful ideas.

WORK.—We must not fall into the error of thinking that the Band of Hope will be a success without work! There is no royal road to victory in the juvenile ranks. We must labor and sow the good seed, in season, but the harvest will be abundant, and if faithful to the task, we may hope at last to hear "Inasmuch as ye did it unto these little ones, ye did it unto me."

KEEPING FOURTH OF JULY.

Rub-a-dub-dub! rub-a-dub-dub! rub-a-dub-dub! rub-a-dub-dub! rub-a-dub-dub!

"Children, children!" cried Mrs. Clark, "do stop that dreadful noise. You will wake up the baby, drive me crazy, and shake down the house. What are you up to?"

"We are having a Fourth of July parade," said Fred. "I am the drum-corps, Nellie is the procession, and Jack is the general. You know you must make a noise on the Fourth of July; that's what it's made for."

"Then go into the yard and march around the stable. Old Hero may like it; he carried your father through many a battle, and I am sure that he will think he is in another when he hears the dreadful noise you make."

"Right wheel," cried Jack, and the procession wheeled into the yard, and as they passed the stable old Hero put his head out of the door and began to whinny, which he meant (I have no doubt from the look of his eye) for a hurrah.
